LYON'S MAGNETIC POWDERS

BEWARE OF GAMMON.
Look out for counterfeits,
Vile and detestable;
Rats are not killed
By a spurious comestible;
And though powder corrosive
Will kill you and I,
Bugs won't take a dose if
Your manœuvres you try.
Go to Lyon, if ironbled
With Bed-bugs, Rats, Mice;
If you once have been bubbled,
Don't be a fool twice.

BEWARE OF IMPOSTORS.—The dépot of LYON'S MAGNETIC POWDER and PILLS, for the certain and instant destruction of Insects and Vermin, No. 424 Broadway.

LEGEND.—The mountain forests of Pastoria are inhabited, it is said, by Pixies, Sprites and Elves, who, like the Phantom Dancers of Germany, delight to entrap travelers into their realms and torment them with their mischievous antics. Having the power of transferring the spirit, they often, in their malicious gambols, give life to the newly dead. Statues, rocks and trees are seen fantastically moving in the forest, but it is only during the DAY they retain their fictitious existence; at the approach of NIGHT they resume their immobility.
THE MONEY QUESTION, by Dumas, fils, will be produced immediately.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

According to the probably correct statements of an Albany correspondent Governor King, yesterday, sent into the Senate the names of sundry persons to fill various offices in this City: For Police Commissioners we have the names of Simeon Draper, James W. Nye and Jacon Cholwell, for the County of New-York; James Bowen for the County of Westchester, and J. S. T. Stranahan for the County of Kings. We presume these nominations will be confirmed by the Senate; and, while we have nothing whatever to say against the personal character, intelligence and probable efficiency of the Commission, as it will be thus constituted, we cannot conceal our apprehensions that its exclusively and conspicuously partisan character will utterly deprive it of that degree of public confidence which is essential to the success of the great and important experiment which it inaugurates. The principal ground of complaint against the Police Department, with the great body of our citizens, has been the political control which has been exercised over it. It is not easy to foresee any marked improvement in this respect from the Commission just appointed. While we think that a very grave error has been committed in this particular, we shall not judge the Commission in advance of its action, but shall be happy to find our apprehensions dispelled by its practical results.

The following are said to be the other officers whose nominations were yesterday sent into the Senate:

FOR PORT WARDENS:

Minthorne Tom[illegible],	John Butler, Jr.,
William King,	John Friend,
Edward Seaman,	Capt. Tibbetts,
Edgar McMullen,	Capt. Tinkham,
Judge Beardsall,

FOR HARBOR MASTERS:

Spencer Benedict,	W. J. A. Fuller,
Jerris T. Stagg,	Willis Patten,
Jacob L. Dodge,	Hart L. Murray,
Charles G. Murch,	A. Smith,
John Cashow,	James P. Fagan.

These nominations were all referred to Committees, but will doubtless be confirmed before the adjournment, which is likely to take place on Friday.

The bill providing for the erection of the new City Hall was ordered to a third reading in the Senate yesterday. The bill to enable the Supervisors to raise $50,000 for deficiencies in the Department of Repairs and Supplies, was also ordered to a third reading. The Assembly amendments to the bill to prevent the sale of fraudulent passenger tickets were concurred in by the Senate. The Albany Bridge bill was reported complete and passed, 17 to 12. In the Assembly, a statement was received from the Metropolitan Bank, as to the redemptions during the year of bills of other banks. The figures will be found in our report of the proceedings. The Excise bill, after considerable opposition, was referred to a special committee to report complete. The joint resolution reorganizing the Court of Appeals and the Supreme Court, was adopted by the Senate. A great mass of legislation was gone through with by both Houses.

The Hamburg steamship Borussia, from Hamburg on the 1st inst., arrived at this port yesterday. She brings four days' later news from the Continent of Europe. In the Hamburg papers of the 1st inst. we find no later intelligence from Great Britain. There is nothing in the news worthy of special comment.

[illegible] that the recent voyage of exploration, undertaken by the Quarantine Commission, resulted in an offer and acceptance of $40,000 for property on the shore of Prince's Bay, belonging to Mr. Udolpho Wolfe. The estate is a large one; amply sufficient for the Quarantine buildings; and if the title, about which there is some hitch, can be made good, Prince's Bay will be the spot favored with the lazaretto. Otherwise, there is a prospect of one of the shoals in the outer bay, either the Romer, or one nearer the Narrows, being appropriated for the purpose. It is estimated that it will cost less to fill in one of these sand bars, which are bare at low water, than to buy and improve a property along shore. Should this plan be adopted, Raritan Bay will be the anchorage for infected vessels. The Dry Romer is three miles north of Sandy Hook; while Coney Island, the nearest soil of New York, is four miles and a-half distant. The West Bank, two miles away from the Fort Tompkins light, and as many from Coney Island, is the other available site; and as being less exposed might deserve the preference. There is room enough at all events for the Commissioners to choose, should the negotiation with Mr. Wolfe come to nothing.

The Iowa State election took place yesterday, and the returns thus far received indicate the success of the Republicans by a majority as decided as that at the Presidential election.

A destructive fire occurred in Baltimore last night, which burnt several large warehouses and their contents on Charles and Lombard streets. The loss will probably reach half a million. A fire also occurred in South Pittsburg yesterday morning. The particulars will be found under our telegraphic head.

It is stated, on the authority of a letter in the St. Louis Democrat, written at Lecompton, that the appointment of Hon. Robert J. Walker as Governor of Kansas does not give satisfaction—it being regarded in the Territory as favorable to the formation of a Slave State.

The Albany Charter Election took place yesterday, and resulted in the success of the Democrats. The vote was very light. The Democrats were also successful in the Paterson (N. J.) Charter election.

The report of a schooner having been seen ashore north of Barnegat, on the 11th inst., is probably a mistake.

Ex Speaker Banks has declined the compliment of a public dinner, tendered him by citizens of Boston, irrespective of party. In his reply to the invitation, Mr. Banks takes occasion to review the legislation of the last Congress and the effects thereof.

The total amount contributed for the relief of the families left destitute by the loss of the schooner Sarah S. Bird is about $5,800. Of this sum $1,500 was contributed by the Board of Underwriters, $1,400 by the several Marine Insurance Companies, and $2,178 received in donations by Messrs. Poillon and Le Count. Further sums will be received by Ellwood Walter, Esq., on behalf of the Relief Committee appointed by the Board of Underwriters.

The examination of witnesses as to the alleged marriage between the late Harvey Burdell and Mrs. Emma A. Cunningham, was continued yesterday before the Surrogate. The rigorous cross-examination to which Miss Augusta Cunningham had been subjected by the council opposing her mother's claim, was concluded. Dr. D. Smith and Mr. B. T. Benton were examined on the same side. Dr. Smith testified that on the 30th of October last he saw Dr. Burdell in the Lafarge House, and was informed by him that he intended going to Europe in June next, in company with several ladies, and that on being asked by witness if he was about to get married, he smiled significantly. Mr. Benton testified that Dr. Burdell was present at a meeting of the Board of Directors of the Artisans Bank (of which the witness also was a member) on the 28th of October last, the date of the marriage, and took part in a discussion relative to matters concerning the bank. At this stage in the proceedings the claimant's council announced that they would rest their case. The further hearing of testimony was adjourned till Thursday morning, when the opposing council will proceed to submit evidence against the marriage.

A Committee of the Ten Governors recommend the removal of Miss Jackson from her place as teacher in the Randall's Island School. Miss Jackson is the lady who was charged with punishing lads by burning their tongues on the stove. Gov. Townsend introduced a resolution as an offset—and under it a Committee of Investigation was appointed—alleging that the principal of this same school prejudices his pupils against Catholic teachers.

Though this is the 19th Century, some of our hospitals are badly ventilated; so badly that puerperal fever has broken out in the Bellevue Hospital,—no uncommon thing, though it ought to be. The Governors voted $500 to improve the ventilation last night.

In the Court of General Sessions, yesterday, the trial of Charles Rosi and Justus Kohler, the two Germans charged with rape, was continued.—The Jury were unable to agree upon a verdict, and were locked up for the night. Henry Beck, a young German, who placed arsenic in the food of George Griesgrave, in Second-street, on March 1st, pleaded guilty of an attempt at manslaughter. In reply to the Recorder, he said that he owed the parties no grudge, and did not know what he was doing when he committed the act. He was remanded for sentence till Saturday, that inquiry might be made into his previous history.

The Captain and crew of the schooner John Frederick, which went ashore on Tuesday morning on Sandy Hook, during the N. E. gale, were rescued with much difficulty by the Telegraph Operator and News Agent, stationed at that point.

The pilot-boat Washington, No. 4, which has been absent three weeks, and for which some concern has been felt, returned to port yesterday, all well.

A heavy rain set in late Monday night, and continued almost without abatement until noon yesterday. It helped our dirty streets marvelously, and flooded a great many cellars.

An inquest was held yesterday, at the New-York Hospital, upon the body of James Carman, aged 36 years, a United States sailor, who died from the effects of landanum taken the day previous, with suicidal intent, at the residence of his mother, No. 10 Greenwich street.

Cornelius Collins, an Irish laborer, was killed yesterday morning at the drug store No. 355 Third-avenue, by the accidental falling upon him of a barrel of potash, which he was assisting in removing from the sidewalk to the cellar.

The Council of Sachems met again yesterday at Tammany Hall, and took further action upon the lists of compromise delegations submitted to them from the different Wards by the factions known as the Savage and Small. The Committee on Credentials reported in part. From the Nineteenth Ward the Dunham ticket was received as legitimate. Three other Wards yet remain to be adjusted,—the Seventeenth, Twenty-first and Twentieth. In the first two the hitch is with the Savage men, and in the last with the Small. The Council will sit again to-day.

The Board of Representatives of the Fire Department met, last evening, at Firemen's Hall, and elected Reuben Mills, Chas. Clayton, Peter Van Cott and Geo. W. Andrews, Fire-Wardens, in place of John Crossin, M. Eckell, David Theall and William Wessels, whose term of office (three years) had expired. Six ballots were had. The election was amicably conducted.

Before the Brooklyn Young Men's Christian Association, last evening, Rev. Mr. Hatch, who has become so noted as the clergyman who went in for Sunday car-running, read an essay favoring dancing, drinking pure wine, and similar entertainments. The essayist was evidently not without indorsers in the room, though the tide seemed to be strong the other way. Mr. Hatch was appointed essayist before the Sunday discussion began to agitate the Brooklyn people—so the Association is hardly responsible for opening this new question of contention. A spirited debate was provoked by the essay. Many members, while repudiating the doctrines of the paper, expressed the want felt by all classes, demanded by health, reason and religion—for more popular amusements. One said that he who would organize a system of practicable, rational and healthy amusements for the people would immortalize himself.

There was an interesting Missionary meeting held last Sunday at Huntington, L. I., when Dr. Charles Sturges, (25 years a medical practitioner in the village) and his wife, Misses Harriet Gould and Emily Smith, Charles Selleck (all of Huntington) and Jarvis R. Rolph and lady, and Miss Helen Ensign, of Brooklyn, took formal leave of the church with which seven of them are connected, to go as Missionaries to the Omaha Indians, in Nebraska. They are under the auspices of the Presbyterian (O. S.) Board of Foreign Mission.

The old Duffield House, on Fulton-avenue, near Duffield-street, was burned down yesterday morning.

The Difficulty with New-Granada.

There is no mistaking the policy which is to be urged upon the President in regard to the New-Grenadian difficulty. The Railroad interest, and the influence of all the Americans upon the Isthmus are directed the same way. The letter-writers by the George Law are of one accord as to the duty of the United States to take forcible possession of the transit. The special dispatches from Mr. Morse, announcing his discomfiture, and in all likelihood pressing extreme measures as the alternative, are sent home by the Superintendent of the Railroad, as the only proper and trustworthy messenger. And the tone of apprehension freely expressed by the Bogotan press, in view of threatened hostilities, evinces the blustering and offensive temper displayed by the North Americans, who have had occasion to discuss the difficulty with the Government or people of New-Granada. There is every indication, in fact, that the Isthmus population of American origin has pledged itself to procure the annexation of the route to the United States at all costs, risks and charges. They propose to make the Government at Washington the instrument of their plan.

It remains to be seen whether Mr. Buchanan will yield to this purely selfish pressure. If not, he will adopt the course we have repeatedly urged—demand of the New-Granadian Government a mixed commission for the adjustment of the damages experienced by our citizens in the Panama explosion, and only upon the definitive rejection of that proposition listen to counsels of an inflammatory kind. Let the railroad, which is a creature of the Bogotan Government, adjust its own difficulties with its creators. The individual interests which suffered in the emeute are the only subjects upon which we can justly approach the Government of that Republic; and in regard to them we cannot be too tenacious. Nor is there any reason to fear a want of conciliatory treatment when we present ourselves in this more reasonable shape.

The Diplomatic Service.

It seems to be generally taken for granted that Mr. Buchanan and his Cabinet are now busily engaged upon the Diplomatic appointments and disappointments incident to the establishment of a new Administration.

The new President has shown no indiscreet haste in remodeling this department of the public service, and we are disposed to attribute the unusual deliberation of his proceedings to a distinct perception by him of the fact that, in no department of the public service are changes so elaborate and so thorough, required by the interests and the honor of the country as in this. The Diplomatic corps of the United States are charged with the representation of the national character as well as with the care of the national interests. The Minister of a Great Power is held to be a type of the highest civilization and the most cultivated intellect of the country which commissions him. He is invested with a dignity not his own, and clothed with a prestige which only the most extraordinary personal qualities could secure for any other official, solely and simply in consideration of the fact that he stands for his Nation before the people among whom he lives. These circumstances should determine the qualities of character indispensable to the post. The qualities of intellect required for the due discharge of its functions must be decided by the number and the importance of the interests involved in our intercourse with each particular nation of the world; and though it can never be excusable in us to send a positive dunce or a recognized bore into the bosom of a friendly people, there is certainly no reason for our insisting that every Envoy, Chargé or Secretary of Legation appointed by the President, shall be a man of transcendent genius. But it is our right to demand of the Government that no blackguard, or bully, no low and vulgar politicians, no person of repulsive manners or filthy habits, no reprobate, or drunkard, or swindler, shall be sent to flaunt the shame of his vices or the odium of his behavior in the face of a foreign nation.

And, therefore, it is our duty to protest, with all the force of a united public opinion, against the system upon which our diplomatic appointments have heretofore been made; and to denounce the application of the "spoils" theory, where its application so nearly concerns the fair fame of the nation, the comfort of every American who travels abroad, and the self-respect of every citizen who feels that in the reputation of his country his own is involved.

It is an unpleasant fact, but a fact unquestionable as it is unpleasant, that the character and conduct of our diplomatic representatives in Europe has of late years done very much more to damn our national reputation and to destroy the consideration in which our institutions were formerly held even by their enemies, than their activity has done to advance our material interests or protect our public rights. There is hardly a Court in Europe at which some pet partizan of a past administration has not left his memory to be a hissing and a reproach to all of us. In one city the American traveler descends at a hotel from which a Plenipotentiary of the Republic was expelled for drunken insolence to the female servants of the establishment. In another he is regaled with the sight of diplomatic autographs in the form of "due-bills" drawn on brother Envoys and never discharged. In a third he is invited to inspect the records of a Club from which an American Chargé was formally expelled for his indecent vilification of the sovereign and the society of the nation to which he was accredited. Everywhere he hears of gaucheries and inelegancies, of awkwardnesses and improprieties lending confirmation to the lying legends of Mrs. Trollope, when he is so fortunate as to escape the battery of darker and heavier charges.

It is time that an end should be put to these things. It is time that our diplomatic service should cease to be regarded as the sure resource of Administrations driven to despair by hungry retainers and insatiable supporters. Mr. Buchanan can do nothing which will more redound to his credit or more warmly enlist the good will of all decent and respectable citizens in his behalf, than to reorganize our diplomatic system in accordance with the true principles by which it should be governed. His own experience must have amply satisfied him that, while the personal traits of good-breeding and of character are most essential to the success of a public negotiator engaged in transactions of the highest importance, they are of more value to the resident at a Court of the second or third rank than any other qualities whatever.

Nor, we trust, will Mr. Buchanan forget, in selecting the foreign representatives of the American people, that a due regard is always to be had to the public opinion and the political ethics of the different nations to whom our envoys are to be accredited. A Minister whose social philosophy and practice would cause him to be received with open arms by the society of St. Petersburgh, might very possibly find himself confined at London within the narrow circle of strictly official courtesies, and be wholly cut off from the thousand opportunities of usefulness which are afforded to any agent by the cordial sympathy with him of the people among whom he is to act in his convictions and his views of life.

The Progress of Rebellion in Utah.

It has not yet transpired who is to receive the appointment of Governor of the Territory of Utah, but it is believed to be the determination of the Administration to put a speedy end to the anarchical despotism which reigns there. It is one of the crimes of the Government of General Pierce, that, knowing, as he did, how rapidly things were advancing, under the sway of Brigham Young from bad to worse, no efficient step was taken to remedy the evil. The journey of Col. Steptoe was a mere farce. Judicial endeavors to restore order, and procure the enforcement of the laws, proved utterly abortive, and resulted in loss of life to some of those who, unsupported by military auxiliaries, persisted in performing their thankless duty. In fact, while bombastic vindications of American honor and dignity were made in the remotest corners of the Earth, and Feejee islanders and Greytown marauders were punished with ostentatious cruelty, the infernal brutalities which have been suffered by our citizens, in the midst of a Territory owing allegiance to the Federal Government, have remained unavenged until the present hour.

The letter of Judge Drummond to the Attorney-General, Judge Black, is before the public. The atrocities it reveals, unexampled as they are in our national history, are no blacker than might have been expected from the monster of iniquity who rules over the Mormons at Salt Lake City. The most fanatical clubs of Carbonari, with their oath-bound obligations to assassinate to promote their ends, fall short of the hideous vows of the Mormon Danites, of whom Brigham Young is the acknowledged leader and protector. Judge Drummond accuses them, "after a careful and mature investigation," of having procured the murder of Captain Gunnison and his eight associates. He says that his predecessor on the bench, Hon. Leonidas Shaver, met his death "by drinking poisonous liquors, given to him by order of the leading men of the Mormon Church, in Great Salt Lake City." The late Mr. Babbitt, Secretary of the Territory, was slaughtered, Judge Drummond avers, "by a band of marauders under the particular and special order of Brigham Young, Heber C. Kimball and J. M. Grant." Mormon murderers have been pardoned by Young, while "five or six innocent men are now in the Penitentiary at Utah, without having violated any criminal law whatsoever of America!" Federal officers who attempt to do their duty in the Territory, are insulted, harassed and killed, without being able to accomplish any good, because they are unsupported by a sufficient military force.

The talents and ability of Brigham Young are not to be despised. Miserable, heartless old reprobate that he is, he has displayed an amount of sagacity, political shrewdness, and bold ness, in carrying out his schemes which would do no discredit to the bottomless abyss of Pandemonium itself. At this distance, reading as we do his blasphemous, licentious harangues, and the insanely loathsome tirades which are reported as coming from his lips, we are in danger of imagining that he must necessarily be as well understood and as intensely abhorred at home, as he is with us, which is not, however, the case. He has succeeded in persuading the deluded people over whom he presides, that he is fully alive to the responsibilities of his station, sincerely devoted to their welfare, and they wonder at and admire what they consider the sensitive jealousy with which he resists every effort at interference with their polygamic, Buddhistical interests. He has gradually, but with surpassing skill, wrought up the feelings of the Salt Lake population, to a point of most deadly, implacable hatred against the Government and people of the United States. The majority, probably, of his spiritual subjects are aliens, wholly unacquainted with the spirit of our institutions, and the rest are so identified with Young, and have been rendered so confident by past impunity, and the isolated position of their valleys, that they apprehend no danger from physical restraint on the part of the United States.

It is useless to disguise—it would be mistaken and false humanity to do so—that there is within the limits of our Republic, a vast, fertile territory, with every physical element of future prosperity, containing a population of between one and two hundred thousand souls, whose existence is devoted to treason, and the accomplishment of disunion, in order to establish a quasi Mohammedan Empire. They stickle at no crime—whether it be poisoning, assassination, treason, violation of all natural law, incest, robbery—justifying them all under the name of religion. They are, at the present instant, in virtual rebellion against the Federal Government, and every hour that they are permitted to advance in their career of fanaticism and atrocity, is one of augmented hope for them and of danger to us. It may be requisite to bring fire and sword to bear against them; and the interests of the country, of the human race, and of civilization, may require much bloodshed, before the mischief can be healed, which the apathy of the two last Administrations has allowed to attain its actual growth. But the duty of Mr. Buchanan, in the premises, appears to us plain, and we rejoice to perceive symptoms of a determination on his part to fulfil it. A force of not less than two or three thousand men should be despatched to aid the Governor whom he may select for the charge of the Territory of Utah. The latter should be a firm, energetic and decided man, and he should be given, as far as the Constitution allows, plenipotentiary powers to put down, once for all, the treason which has progressed so far, and is constantly increasing in strength.

Kansas Correspondence.—We are in constant receipt of correspondence from Kansas; but most of it is so evidently written in the interest of special land speculations, that we suppress it rather than run the risk of misleading the public. Whenever a man or a company invests largely in any part of the Territory, it becomes his interest to induce emigration thither from the North and East; and the most feasible means of forwarding this object is by sounding the praises of that particular locality through the Eastern press. Under the innocent and apparently disinterested form of correspondence, therefore, very many of the leading journals of this section of the country, are filled with the most extravagant accounts of the rapid growth, the great promise, the favorable position, &c., &c., of particular sections and towns in the Territory. These statements may in the main be quite true, but there are so many [illegible] tion and misrepresentation [illegible] them, that they should not be acted on hastily or without due inquiry in quarters less open to suspicion. We make it a rule to decline publishing all such letters, unless fully assured by knowledge of the writers, that they are disinterested and thoroughly reliable—as we are unwilling to run the risk of misleading persons of small means into investments which may prove as deceptive and worthless as Parker Vein or Potosi Stock.

The Cry of the Children.

This is Easter-week; the sunniest and most sacred festival of all the Christian year. It falls in the very front of Spring, and brings with it the revival of all life and industry. In the field and in the streets, as in our hearts and homes, it is the beginning of a new season; and it should be crowned in every christian city with happiness and with hope. But on the morning of Easter Sunday there stood within the dreary walls of a Police Station in this City three young children, the natural types of happiness and of hope, of Easter and the Spring, so utterly bereft of all the rightful attributes of childhood, that if their case were theirs alone, all who read their story would feel themselves smitten as with a sense of personal responsibility for a misery so pitiful and so out of Nature.

No human being who read in the Times of yesterday the details of this desolate story can possibly need that we should repeat them here; but the statement made by the only witness, a little girl of eight, is so pregnant with pathos and so far transcends in the fervor of its unconscious appeal, any words that the skill of man could devise, that we would willingly republish it a hundred times, could we hope that by so doing we might engrave its lesson upon the innermost hearts of our readers. Thus it runs:

"That is my mother," she said, pointing to the corpse. "The night before last two men came into our house, and turned my father and mother, and me and my two little brothers out. We had no where to go. We then went to sleep in an entry. Nobody turned us away all night. In the morning father went away to look for another place. He was gone all day. We had nothing to eat, and were very hungry. Father came back at 6 o'clock and then went away again. Nobody would let us into their house, because they said if they did the landlord would turn them out. The folks we hired the house of hired it of somebody else. So we went into the yard. Mother said she was very sick; she had been sick a long time before, and my little brothers cried. Mother lay down, and I put some rags on her to keep her warm, because she said her head ached so bad. When it got dark my two little brothers lay down, and I put some things over them, and I got some rags to put under them too, and then I sat up to watch. By and by a policeman came along, and then he went away and got another one, and they lifted her up and put her into a cart, and took us all here. Mother didn't want to leave the yard. She said to the policeman that she wanted to stay where she was."

In the heart of this poor little half-starved child of eight what futurities of womanhood are hidden; what possibilities of tenderness and loyalty and devotion, of unselfish affection, simple truth, helpfulness! And yet what shall her future be!

Here is the question of which such tales as this should drive the urgency home to our very souls. The cry of this child, and of the thousands of children whose life is like unto hers in this great and Christian community, is the cry of the Future. Every measure of municipal reform, however judicious, every device of private or of public enterprise to secure and to advance the welfare of the metropolis, however skillful and well-timed, must be held to be subordinate after all to the far-reaching question of the condition and training of the Children of the City.

There live and move and have their being at this moment within the limits of this island very nearly a quarter of a million human creatures who come within the legal definition of infancy; whose characters and whose fortunes, therefore, are still under tutelage, but who are advancing with all the terrible speed of life towards the vanguard of independent action and of personal responsibility. If we were suddenly informed that in the counties adjacent to New-York there was assembling a force of two hundred thousand men and women, which was to be thrown into the Metropolis by heavy detachments, and at regular intervals for a number of years to come, with the avowed object of mingling with our population and engaging in the various pursuits of life which interest and affect ourselves, we should probably call meetings in the Park and appoint Commissioners of Immigration to examine into the desirableness of this proposed hiving of so vast a swarm. But now that we know that the thing is inevitable, that not in adjacent counties, but in the wards of our own City, the future drones and workers, the possible hornets and wasps, are gathered together and cannot be stayed from coming among us, we acquiesce in the tremendous fact almost as apathetically as if it were as unimportant as it is inevitable. To be sure, we do concern ourselves energetically enough, even if somewhat spasmodically, about our Common School system, and the children of the well-to-do classes receive perhaps as much attention from the public as is compatible with a proper respect for the rights of parents who, having the means, are presumed to have the disposition to care for the education and breeding of their own offspring. But what sort of provision have we made for that vast proportion of the invading host of the future which comes toward us foredoomed to ignorance and to iniquity?

We have done something for the children whose parents, however poor, can still secure them the advantages of attendance at the Public Schools. But what have we done for the ten thousand children in this City, who are so utterly abandoned of Heaven and Earth, so given over to wretchedness and to vagrancy, that they have neither where to lay their heads fitly, nor to clothe themselves decently—the hapless little savages, bred of over-immigration, indolence, misfortune, intemperance, and crime—but living among us, growing up side by side with the fairest children of our happiest homes, drawing nearer and nearer to us with every year that adds strength to their bodies, virulence to their passions, and keenness to their wits?

We shall presently show what answer we have to make to this question. But let us first see what these desolate little ones are doing for themselves.

During the last year about one in every twenty-five of the inhabitants of this City was committed to prison for one or another offence against the law of the land. This proportion is sufficiently startling, but still more startling is the fact that out of this proportion of guilty or unfortunate people nearly twenty per cent. were infants in the eye of the law!

Six thousand human beings in the Spring of life annually blighted with the brand of a criminal conviction! Is not this a thought to [illegible] most the most heedless and [illegible] selfish?

Some men and women who [illegible] heedless nor selfish it has arrested [illegible] and it is to their labors that we owe [illegible] able to say that anything better than [illegible] for themselves is doing, or has been done [illegible] these neglected thousands.

Several isolated and independent institutions have been founded for the purpose of healing this fearful chronic disease of infant destitution. The most important of these are the Children's Aid Society, the Juvenile Asylum, the various Orphan Asylums, the Five Points Missions, and the Home of Industry. In a disconnected way, but with earnestness and energy, the benevolent persons engaged in these various enterprises are prosecuting their good work, and we learn from the Report of the Children's Aid Society, that, during the past year, about six thousand children have received something like educational care from these sources, and that about twenty-five hundred have been provided with homes more or less permanent, and the chances of decent employment. When we think of the work to be done, this account is not of course magnificent; but when we reflect on the means employed, and on the fact that the whole question of juvenile reform has but recently engaged the public attention, these figures are indeed most eloquent arguments of courage and of hope. One fact alone should lend renewed spirit to the friends of this most important work—the reduction, namely, of the proportion of juvenile offenders to the whole body of commitments, from 25 per cent. in 1851 to 20 per cent. in 1856.

But the cry of the Children is for more help and stronger. How this cry can best be answered, we shall hereafter consider, when we recur, as we shortly shall, to this subject; and we shall endeavor to point out the way in which a united public action can be brought to bear on the difficulty. But let not the cry fall idly on the hearts of the people, for answered it must be, and will—if not in peace, then in wrath—if not in love, then in hate—if not to the help of the Children, then most assuredly to the deeper suffering and sorrow and sin of the unheeding City.

Budding Virtue!

Our beloved brethren of the Tribune have a most excellent homily upon the fraternal duties of the Press,—upon the loveliness of charity, forbearance and courtesy when displayed by journalists towards one another, and upon the somewhat conspicuous lack of these Christian graces in the mutual relations of our City Editors. We heartily concur in these excellent sentiments. It does one good to come across such refreshingly verdant oases in the great desert of journalistic life. We welcome them particularly as coming from the Tribune,—not because that paper has sinned above all others in this particular,—but because of the very unsentimental and somewhat irreverent scoffs with which it received sundry small homilies of our own on this subject and to the same effect some few months ago. We were quite sure even then that the Tribune would concur in our sentiments just as soon as it ceased to have any special interest or feeling on the other side. That time seems to have arrived:—and after having done what was in its power to "blacken the reputation" of some of its neighbors, the Tribune now chants the praises of charity and good-feeling, and commends all Editors to love one another, inasmuch as love is the fulfillment of editorial law. In the touching language of Mr. Aminadab Sleek, this is "really butiful!"

The Tribune, by way of pointing its homily with an illustration, is pleased to allude to the complimentary notice we have had occasion now and then to take of our illustrious, though slightly dilapidated cotemporary, the "historian of Parker Vein." With a degree of justice which a regard for the Tribune's fine "sentiments" prevents us from characterizing, it treats the Times and Herald as being precisely upon the same footing in the matter of stock-jobbing, and is pleased to exonerate both from "the imputations to which either is quite plausibly subjected." With all due gratitude for its kind intentions, we respectfully decline this very questionable kind of exculpation. Whenever the Tribune will reproduce from our columns evidence of the fact that they have been used, for a course of years, in giving fictitious value to utterly worthless stocks—in deluding thousands of people, by assertions repeated day after day, and month after month, without the slightest foundation in truth,—into investing their money in bubbles which finally exploded and ruined all who had trusted in them,—we will concede the justice of its indiscriminate censure and its equally indiscriminate praise. But it ought to know better than to treat the Herald's random, reckless, and utterly unsupported accusations against the Times, as of precisely equal weight with the statements we have drawn from the Herald's own columns, and the truth of which even that journal has not had the effrontery to contest. The Tribune is by no means slow to appreciate the virtue of due discrimination when its own character and conduct are involved. As it happens to be just now in a charitable mood, we invoke the extension of its kindly thoughts in the direction of justice and fair play.

One word more by way of apology. We are fully sensible of the desirableness of the greater practice among journalists of the virtue which the Tribune so warmly and so justly commends. But we confess to a full share of human infirmity,—and we find it somewhat difficult to exercise the higher virtues of forbearance and courtesy towards one so habitually and utterly reckless of all justice and all decency in his treatment of cotemporaries as the Editor and Proprietor of the Herald. We may be mistaken in this matter,—but it does not seem to us conducive to the dignity and standing of the Public Press that it should acquiesce quietly in the assumption of superiority, and in the imputations of dishonesty, in which this scurrilous Ishmaelite habitually deals. We do not see what the decent and respectable portion of Journalism has to gain, in character or self-respect, by tame assent to its insolent pretensions,—especially when their falsehood is so readily exposed by mere citations from its own columns. While we are quite ready, therefore, to accept the Tribune's theories and to practice upon them in all cases to which they can be applied, we propose to deal with the Herald as its peculiar nature and character may require.

Commodore Hoffman's Squadron.—The Honduras Expedition, which was announced for departure on Saturday, after being postponed to be on board the brig Pilot, Pier No. 47 East River, at 10 A. M. The latest circular states sundry regulations for the government of the corps; reserving the Captain's duties to the Chief Engineer, Mr. TRAUTEVINE; the Agent, Mr. SQUIER; the three Assistant Engineers, and the Surgeon, and assigning the rest to the other officers. Everybody is discouraged from carrying fire-arms; and implicit submission to the following resolution of the Directors, in session at London, March 10, 1857, exacted:

"Resolved, That all persons in the employment of the Company, be and are hereby instructed to cultivate the most friendly relations with the Government and people of Honduras, and to impress them with the fact that the Railroad Company has no ulterior object; that its sole purpose is to open a highway between the seas, and that the profit of the Company, and the commencement of a great future for Honduras, are alike concerned in the earliest possible completion of the road."

To this is added a hope of the Agent "that every member will see the propriety and necessity of upholding the institutions and religion of the country whether they are going with deference and respect, and of conforming to the feelings and sentiments of the people not less than in maintaining perfect order and subordination." The wisdom of these injunctions in these days of fillibusterism will readily impress itself upon the minds of the expeditionists. It is difficult to be sufficiently cautious to disarm the fears of the Central Americans. A rapid trip to Omoa, six months of active labor under a midsummer sun, and some months more of office work, will complete the task of the expedition, and give its members back to their homes. Among the corps we note the names of Mr. James L. BALDWIN, who, in company with the late JOHN L. STEPHENS, discovered the remarkable depression in the Cordillera through which the Panama Railroad passes, and which bears the name of the "Baldwin Summit." Mr. GEORGE R. GLIDDON, of ethnological fame, is also of the party, doubtless seduced by the interesting traces of an aboriginal race which abound in Honduras. The best wish we have for the party is that they may have a good voyage, cool Summer, and but few of them swallowed by earthquakes.

THE BENEFIT OF NOTORIETY.—Rev. Mr. KALLOCH, as we learn from the Boston papers, resumed his clerical functions on Sunday last, and was favored with the most crowded house in that city of church-goers. For a long time to come he will be one of the Sunday attractions of Boston, and people will crowd to hear him preach merely because he had the misfortune to be tried for a gross moral offence. Such is the curiosity of the world to see anything or anybody that has made a noise. Mr. KALLOCH will, of course, improve his opportunities, and turn his ill fortune to a good account by preaching in his best vein to the crowds that throng the sanctuary in which he holds forth, so that those who come to look may readily be induced to remain to prey.

Why Should Mayor Wood Resign?

To the Editor of the New-York Daily Times:

SIR: You seem to take it for granted that Mayor WOOD will resign merely because the new Charter curtails his functions as an Executive officer. But I am not aware that there is anything in the new Charter that restricts the privilege of the Mayor to issue proclamations or send messages to the Common Council; and as this prerogative is one which he has exercised more frequently and to a greater extent than any other, except that of reviewing the Police, I do not see why he should not hold on until next December, and continue to enlighten us on the subject of municipal reforms. To do no more than simple justice to his Honor, it must be admitted that he issued some admirable proclamations, and some of his messages have contained most excellent sentiments.

Your obedient servant, JONES' WOOD.

Italian Opera.

We are extremely sorry, but not surprised, to announce that Mme. GAZZANIGA is too unwell to appear to-night. There will, in consequence, be no operatic performance at NIBLO'S. The hoarseness o Mme. GAZZANIGA was so apparent on Monday night, that we are sure she is justified in deferring her second appearance until she is entirely recovered. Friday is announced as the day when we shall next have the opportunity of hearing the "Traviata."

ENGLISH OPERA.—The PYNE and HARRISON troupe commenced a short farewell engagement at BURTON'S theatre last night with AUBER'S "Crown Diamonds." The performance was smooth and satisfactory; the house crowded, and the conductor, Mr. MOLLENHAUER, able and diligent. The opera nights are Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays.

BENEFIT.—Mr. GEORGE HOLLAND, the "funny man" of WALLACK'S Theatre, takes his benefit to-night and has provided a bill of great excellence. The opening piece is the "Poor Gentleman," cast with the entire strength of Mr. STUART'S superb company. After the comedy the olympic farce of "Who's the Composer."

LAURA KEENE'S THEATRE.—Mr. CHARLES GAYLOR, the author of a vast number of successful pieces, produced a new drama at this establishment Monday night, called "The Love of a Prince." It is from the French, but adapted with such skill that Mr. GAYLOR may jointly claim the work with the original writer. The plot is founded on an incident in the life of FREDERICK the Great, in which as a thoughtless boy he protects the life of an officer at the risk of his own, and much to the wrath of his father the King, who storms and frets and threatens, without changing the generous impulse. The play is constructed simply and is sufficient in all its parts. The dialogue displays the practiced hand of the dramatist, and is never superfluous. Miss LAURA KEENE sustains the principal character with unusual animation, and is charmingly, ravishingly costumed. The other important characters are played by Messrs. BURNETT, JOHNSON, LINGHAM and STONNART. Placed on the stage in the superb style which characterises the productions of this house, it is not remarkable that the piece obtained a success.

SCHMEISSER'S CONCERT.—Mr. SCHMEISSER—a gentleman whose powers have been largely advertised, but whose fame is unknown—gave a Concert Monday night at Niblo's Saloon. We were present sufficiently long to assure ourselves that Mr. SCHMEISSER has listened to bad advice from "The Management," and that the Concert room is not the proper sphere for his usefulness. He is a very moderate player, and his compositions (he played nothing but his own compositions) fail to place him on a higher art-level. There are more charitable ways of disposing of superfluous cash than giving Concerts under such circumstances.

Madame DE WILHORST was the vocalist of the evening.

HARMONIC SOCIETY.—The New-York Harmonic Society made a second attempt Monday evening to perform Dr. CARL LOEWE'S cantata of the "Seven Sleepers," and although the night was not less unfavorable than on the former occasion, there was no postponement. The performance was not all that could have been desired, but was fairly given. Miss BRAINERD, in the part of Honoria, sang well and was received with much favor. The remainder of the programme was made up of the Te Deum and Jubilate of Mr. BRISTOW, who was also the conductor of the evening.

New Music.

Messrs. FIRTH, POND & Co., 547 Broadway, have favored us with copies of the following:

1. "Lullaby" for Pianoforte by WM. MASON, a natural and charming effusion, popular without being commonplace, and not so difficult as most of this composer's pieces.

2. "May Flower Waltzes," by J. N. PYCHOWSKI, a brilliant and effective set of waltzes, by a somewhat eccentric composer, who however possesses unquestionable talent moderate difficulty.

"Classic Gems," No. 1, arranged by BERG, a series of morceaux from the old masters. No 2 is an arrangement of HAYDN'S andante from the Symphony in D major.

INTERESTING FROM CUBA.

Report of the Commissioners to the Guano Keys—Preparations to Receive Spanish Troops—The Deportation again—The Tariff Question.

Correspondence of the New-York Daily Times.

HAVANA, Thursday, April 2, 1857.

Yesterday morning Capt. GREENE and the Commissioners appointed by Gen. CONCHA to inspect the guano keys, returned from their cruise. Capt. GREENE informs me that the result has been highly satisfactory, so far as the object is concerned, that immense quantities of this valuable manure exist on the thousands of keys that line our coast. Whether it will bring the prices that some parties anticipate, is quite a different thing. In the caves of several keys large quantities of very superior quality were found. It is as highly impregnated with ammonia as the best Peruvian. Capt. GREENE has been commissioned to inspect other keys in the vicinity of the Island of Pines, which the former commission could not visit, owing chiefly to the inexperience of the pilot, and that the gentlemen who accompanied him were called by urgent business to Havana. Gen. CONCHA has been extremely kind and obliging to our lucky countryman throughout the prosecution of his claims, and will doubtless remunerate him handsomely for his trouble and discovery.

General CONCHA is making great preparations to lodge the 10,000 men, whose speedy departure from Spain has been duly announced in the European and American papers. Several hundred workmen are engaged in raising temporary wooden barracks on top of the city walls. The buildings will be nearly a quarter of a mile in length. The location is admirably adapted to the health of the troops, but I am inclined to think that the citizens will not relish the proximity of such neighbors. From these active preparations, and the continual trials of powder under the superintendence of the Engineers, the repeated exercises in firing by battalions, it would appear that the Mexican vision has not been abandoned.

Your readers may recollect the Mexican war steamer Democrata, that deserted and entered this port some four or five months ago. She has been repaired, and yesterday exchanged salutes with the town and navy, previous to leaving us for her future destiny. It is quite unusual for a foreign vessel to salute twice in the same port, but I suppose her commander wished to testify his gratitude to the authorities for the very handsome manner in which they have behaved towards his Government in this case.

The Diario de la Marina continues the discussion of the Tariff, and boldly advocates the reduction of fifty per cent. on all articles. The high position occupied by this journal gives its articles a certain official tone, that has caused no inconsiderable excitement among a large majority of the old Spanish party, who have hitherto been conspicuous for their opposition to every kind of reform. I have heard it affirmed by parties who are well posted up on affairs of the Island, that the Diario is only the echo of General CONCHA'S sentiments. God grant that he may succeed in inducing his Government to grant the long-withheld boon! Spain may then quietly disband her large army in Cuba, send home or dismantle her ships, and rest assured that she has smothered fillibusterism forever.

The American dimes that have been introduced into our circulation are causing some uneasiness in the minds of the Spaniards, as to what means can be employed to get rid of them again. It is to be hoped that when they are reshipped to their own free home, they will be replaced by as good an equivalent, and in such profusion that will prevent the reëstablishment of money-changing offices. We have had two arrivals of Chinese laborers in these days, some six hundred. One of the cargoes was introduced by Senor CAMPBELL, who has received no permission to do so, but I believe he has found means to do away with this necessary permission as the whole cargo was sold to different parties at from $250 to $300 each! These are the finest looking lot that has ever been brought here. The different railroad companies have received a due share of them.

The Havana City Council will soon publish the terms on which that beautiful lot of ground in front of the Alameda de Paula, where Mrs. ALMY'S boarding-house stands, may be acquired, for the purpose of building a hotel. As many New-York hotel-keepers are interested in having a good hotel in this city, it would be well for them to be on the look-out, and put in their bids.

The bark Nacochee, Capt. WEIT, from New-Orleans, went ashore six miles west of the Moro Light-house, and was wrecked. She was loaded with flour.

Troops from Spain for the Invasion of Mexico —The African Slave-Trade—Failure of the Sugar Crop—The American Coin Question.

Correspondence of the New-York Daily Times.

HAVANA, Thursday, April 9, 1857.

The Spanish war-steamer Colon arrived last Saturday from Cadiz. She brings the official approbation of all the measures adopted by Gen. CONCHA for the speedy reparation due the flag of Spain by the Comonfort Government. She also brings the news that two thousand men were being embarked in Cadiz on board the ship-of-the-line Isabel Segunda, frigate Bailen, sloop Villa de Bilbao, brig Pelayo, and steamer Francisco de Asis. In Ferrol preparations were being made to get ready a sufficient number a transport ships for six thousand men. The command of the expedition was tendered to Gen. MANUEL DE LA CONCHA, brother to the Marquis DE LA HABANA. It was not known, however, whether the hero of the Duero would accept the thorny command. A large number of officers have been drafted for the service in Cuba, and rewards are offered to the soldiers to enlist in the expedition. It remains to be seen whether Gen. LAFRAGUA has been successful in his negotiations at Medrid, for upon its results the whole plan depends. The new barracks for this increased force are nearly completed. If they come, and there be no war, "yellow jack" will have food to fill his capacious maw. The Colon brought out $1,000,000 in Spanish ounces.

Among the passengers by the next steamer for Cadiz are the Most Rev. Archbishop of Santiago de Cuba and Brigadier SERRANO. This latter individual has been dismissed the military service in Cuba, by Gen. CONCHA, for having connived at the introduction of African slaves into his department of the Island. It is asserted that he has realized more than $200,000 as his share of the bribes from the operation. Gen. CONCHA would appear to deserve credit for acting so energetically in this case, but the truth must be told, that others here in Havana are as much guilty as SERRANO. They are men who sit at his table every day, and may be called the "bone and sinew" of his kitchen Cabinet. The redoubtable Brigadier M*a, and Col. Mz, who, though often sent in pursuit of the gangs of slaves that hourly pass over nearly every road in Cuba, always fail to find either the negroes or their owners. Archbishop CLARET has been promoted to a higher dignity in the Church, as the best way to get rid of a rank abolitionist, as he is known to be! The negroes in Havana have followed him in gangs o hundreds through the streets, calling him their father and friend, and yet the better classes of our citizens have rushed in crowds to hear him preach.

It is now a pretty well acknowledged fact that the Sugar crop in this Island will be shorter at least by one fifth than last year's. Interested parties are doing their best to conceal the truth, but the time is fast approaching when the official statements must be published. A large number of the estates have already finished grinding, particularly in the vicinity of Mantanzas. Throughout the whole Island, the cane has been more or less injured by the strong winds and excessively hard rains. In addition to these calamities, the heavy frosts bit the young growth. I have heard, also, that the yield has been quite small, compared with that of previous years, to such an extent that many of the estates have made at least thirty per cent. less than last year. This has had the effect of raising pricee to the present exorbitant standard, from which they will not abate. Our harbor at present offere an interesting sight. There are more than three hundred vessels, of all sizee and nations. In one week the arrivals exceeded one hundred and thirty. Such of the large carrying ships that have come here in anticipation of good freights will have to leave for New-Orleans.

The Huvana press, that hailed the introduction into our currencey of the small American coins, is now rather perplexed about the most feasible ways of getting rid of it. The Diario recommends the reduction of its valne as the speediest way to ease the country of the FOREIGNERS. It is well enough for the Diario to declaim against the dimee, now that they have used them to so much advantage to themselves, when their own coin was entirely insufficient to cover the wants of the community, so much so that silver was always at six per cent. premium. Since the free circulation of the dime, all the licensed money changers have been obliged to take down their signs. I consider it a doubtful question whether the Home Government will consent to the transferring from Scvilla to Eqnen of the Spanish mint. We have not derived much benefit from the importation of the old Spanish coin from the United States, as it is all gathered together by the Spanish houses to remit to Spain. Your readers are aware that there is a loss of six per cent. on the gold. The bills of the Spanish Bank of Havana have gone into our circulation with apparent ease, much more so than had been anticipated. Even the country people readily receive them, being rather safer for transportation over the dangerous roads in the interior. Probably the Diario fears some political danger from their familiar use.

We are good Catholics, in name at least, in this ever-faithful island, and as such, abstain from all amusements and labor, during the latter part of this and the first two days of next week, consequently all business is at a stand-still. Instead of going to balls and soirées, our citizens either stay at home or frequent the churches, which are now become the centre of attraction. In my next I shall give your readers a description of the sights.

The weather has been excessively hot for tha last three ar four days, and the strangers have nearly all deserted us.

VERY INTERESTING FROM THE GADSDEN PURCHASE.

Movements for a Territorial Organization—The Arizona Colonization Company—List of Officers—Covert Designs against Sonora.

FORT YUMA, Cal., Tuesday, March 3, 1857.

I have been enabled at this point to gather some information respecting the events occurring in the neighboring territory of Arizona—events which will soon attract attention in the States.

It is reported that a plan exists to divide California, annex the Gadsden purchase, and create a new Slave State. The idea is simply absurd. The Convention which sent Mr. COOK to Washington was composed of plain, honest, hard-working men, who, having been robbed and driven from their mining claims after great expenditure of labor and money, appealed in their extremity to the general Government for a separate territorial organization, knowing that it would afford them protection under the law. If Congress does not grant this most just prayer, another Convention, in which every section will be represented, will assemble in time to make itself heard before the next Congress. It will probably be reserved for a Democratic Congress to decree this separate organization. Whatever may be the speculations of sapient Washington correspondents, this is simply a bona fide claim of respectable hard-working men to be protected by that Government which claims them as citizens. It is no scheme of designing politicians. The idea of there being a covert purpose to create a new Slave State is absurd. The country is not adapted to slave labor, and if it was, it is too near the Mexican border to allow the importation of slaves, who, in a day's journey, could place themselves beyond the reach of any Fugitive Slave Law.

I am enabled through the courtesy of one of Gen. CRABB'S Staff, to forward you the following list of the officers of the great "Arizona Colonization Company." Their combined force is said to amount to 1,500 men on this coast, with large additions to arrive from Texas, under command of officers regularly appointed.

OFFICERS OF THE ARIZONA COLONIZATION COMPANY.

GEN. CRABBE, Ex-State Senator, and leader of the Whig and Know-Nothing Parties.

COL. WOOD, Ex-Member of the Legislature; Fillmore National Executive Committee, and Fillmore Elector for California.

COL. MCCOUN, Ex-Member of the Legislature of California.

DR. T. J. OXLEY, Ex-Member of the Legislature, two terms served; Whig and Know-Nothing Leader.

J. D. CROSBY, Now State Senator from Siskiyou.

LIEUT. HENRY, Ex-Member of the California Legislature.

Two Ex-Members of the California Legislature, Messrs. WADE and TALIAFERO now recruiting in California.

Most of the above men were party leaders—and of influence in their Districts.

J. D. JOHNS, Chief of Artillery, and graduate of the Military Academy, and late Lieutenant United States Army.

HENRY A. CRABBE, San Joaquin, Commander-in-Chief.

R. N. WOOD, Contra Costa, Adjutant General.

—— WATKINS, Yuba, Quarter-Master-General.

W. H. H. MCCOUN, Contra Costa, Commissary-General.

THOMAS J. OXLEY, Tuolumne, Surgeon-General.

J. D. CROSBY, (now in Senate,) Siskiyou, Brigadier-General.

T. D. JOHNS, San Francisco, Chief of Artillery, with the rank of Colonel.

COMPANY A.—Captain McDowell; First Lieutenant, John O. Oxley; Second-Lieutenant, W. S. Allen; Third Lieutenant, J. T. Carter.

COMPANY B.—Captain, Robert Halliday; Second Lieutenant, Quarles; Third Lieutenant, Porter.

COMPANY C.—Captain, Freeman McKinney; First Lieutenant, John Henry, of Mariposa.

At present the organization appears only as a party of peaceful emigrants combined to resist Indian attack. I understand that its leaders intend to preserve this character and not to violate any United Statee statute until every arrangement is complete, when they will cross the line, and with their allies in Sonora, make their issue spen and in strong force.

The Mineral Wealth and Resources of the New Territory.

FROM AN OCCASIONAL CORRESPONDENT.

GADSDEN PURCHASE, NEW-COLORADO, Tuesday, March 3, 1857.

The new Territory of Arizona, generally known as the Gadeden Purchase, attracts at present some attention, and intelligence from this remote quarter may prove interesting to your readers.

The inclosed letter from a gentlamen well known in California and here, as well as in the East, is worthy of attention as illustrating the magnificence of the mineral wealth of this last acquisition to our country.—[This letter, sent also to the SAN. Francisco Herald, was credited to that journal and published in the TIMES of yesterday.—ED.]

The Sopori Silver Minee, owned and worked by Mr. DOUGLASS, give the eame wonderful results—large veins of great extent having been opened and prospected much further than those of the Sonora Mining and Exploring Company, of which Mr. POSTEN is the manager. The Arizona Mining Company is developing its resources, and the results will astonish the world. These aggregate veins measure over twenty feet of ore, averaging in value from thirty to eighty per cent. They have already two hundred tons of ore above ground, which are only waiting the arrival of machinery and furnacee to commence smelting and shipping.

In the mines under the superintendency of Capt. F. TYLER, well known in the Copper mines of your Eastern States, about one hundred men are employed.

The Gila River Mines, discovered in December last, only twenty-five miles above Fort Yuma, promise all that their proprietore could hope or deserve. The assaye of their ore give respectively 57, 56, 58 and 31.5 per cent. of metallic copper. Fifteen or twenty veins have been opened, and yield every prospect of immense returns. The ores are the carbonate, gray sulphuret, and red oxide.

The Company, by late arrivals from San Francisco, has received furnaces, tools, and goods, so that it can operate on as large a scale as may be necessary. Other companies are in existence, and are doing well. Many men have been driven from their mines by the Apache Indians. After great expenditure of money and labor—they confidently look with the rest of the people of the Territory for a seperate organization and protection under the law.

Emigration is flowing in—and has received an impetus from the hope of the separation from New-Mexico, and the safety guaranteed by a separate Territorial organization.

A large party, one hundred and fifty strong, is at this point recruiting its animals—preparing to move to the vicinity of Tereson. It is the avant courrier of the so-called great fillibustering party under command of General HENRY A. CRABBE, late the distinguished Whig and Know-Nothing leader in the California Legislature and unsuccessful candidate for Senator. The subaltern officere comprise six ex-members of the California Legislature. Another party—nearly one thousand strong—are to arrive by way of the Gulf, and assemble at some appointed rendezvous. The whole expedition is well appointed in arms, ammunition and material. Its declared intention is a peaceful settlement within our borders to work valuable mines. The armament is for protection against Indians. Whatever may be the ultimate destination or intention of such a force, so constituted, the character and standing of the leaders are guarantees that something earnest will be attempted and carried out.

As citizens of a Territory yet to make her nam famous, and to gain the [illegible] of California to pale before the [illegible] we wish them every success. Arizona must be seen to be appreciated, and her claim to separate organization is justified by her almost fabulous wealth in mineral resources.

The Niagara's Engines.

The cylinder-head for the middle engine of the Niagara was cast yesterday, at the foundry of PEASE & MURPHY, and is now being fitted for its place. It will probably be sent on board on Friday morning, and by Saturday the Niagara will again be ready for sea. An extra head will be cast and fitted, but it will not be ready in time for her sailing on Saturday.

They assert at the foundry that the iron of the broken cylinder was good, and refer to the manner in which it broke as proof of that fact. They attribute the accident to the fact that a large amount of condensed water had accumulated in the cylinder, and that the engine was started without first working this out, when the pressure upon this body of water forced out the cylinder-head. Had the flanges of the cylinder given away, instead of the head, they say it would have caused a detention of three months to repair it. This would have defeated the whole project of laying the telegraphic cable with this vessel.

LONG CRUISE OF A PILOT BOAT.

The New-York pilot-boat Washington, (No. 4,) which had been absent for 19 days, and concerning which nothing was heerd for over two weeks, has returned to port, greatly to the relief of the friends of the five pilots who were on board of her. She sailed on her cruise on the 27th of March, and returned on the 18th inst., during which time she has sailed about 2,000 miles, and has been as far east as lon. 67° 30', or the vicinity of George's eboals. The first vessel boarded was the steamship Washington, 30 miles east of Nantucket shoals. On the same day they put a pilot on board the ship Guy Mannering, and afterwards supplied the ships Wm. Tapscott and Harvest Queen, and the bark Sarah Parks, all of which have arrived except the last two, who were reported below yesterday. The arrival of the steamer Washington, with Mr. VAN DUESEE, one of the pilots of No. 4, on board, all further anxiety on her account was dismissed. This is the longest cruise made for the last 12 months, except that of the A. B. Neilson, No. 21, which was spoken in lon. 66°, lat. 41o 20', by a bark bound to Boston, and reported. The Washington experienced two severe gales of wind, one on the 30th ult. from N. N. W., and another on the 6th and 7th from S. S. W., during which time they remained have to under reefed storm staysail. Who covets the profession of the pilot, or begrudges his hard-earned fees?

LOSS OF A SCHOONER AT SANDY HOOK.

Correspondence of the New-York Daily Times.

SANDY HOOK, Tuesday, April 14.

I have to report to you the schooner John Frederick, Capt. SOULE, ashore on the east side of the Hook, nearly abreast af tha Lifeboat-station. Sha came on here in a thick fog, at 2 o'clock this morning, during the heaviest part of the gale from the northeast, and whilst there was a very heavy surf on the beach. The Captain and crew, by dint of great axertion, remained by this wreck, with the sea breaking over her, until daylight, when she was discovered, and the Captain, mate, two seamen, and the cook, five in all, were rescued from their perilous situation by the axertions of Mr. CUMMINGS, the operator in the Telegraph-Office, and Mr. FARRELL, the news-agent of the Associated Press. They are now all comfortably quartered at the house of Mr. BARNES, the light-keeper, who, with his excellent wife, have made every effort to render their situation as comfortable as possible. The schooner had been hove to during the blow, but, a heavy fog prevailing, the vessel was close in shore before it was discovered, and when it was found impossible to work her off under sail. She lies on the outer bar, full of water, her bulwarks washed away, and the vessel much strained. It is daubtful if she can be got off. T. J.

QUARANTINE REGULATIONS IN THE BALTIC PORTS.

ST. PETERSBURG, March 23.—As heretofore, tha receipts for the Sound and Belt Dues have served as certificatee of Quarantine for ships arriving in the Russian Baltic ports which have passed those Straits, in consequence of the abolition of the Sound and Belt Dues after April 1, it has been ordered by the Imperial Russian Government that masters of ships bound for the above-mentioned ports must provide themselves with clean bills of health at their place of sailing. If on their passage they are obliged to touch at any French, English, Dutch or Norwegian porte, they must obtain the necessary Quarantine certificates. All these papers must further be certified to by the Russian Consul.

Naval Intelligence.

Private advices from San Juan del Sur, up to date of March 15, state that the United States sloop St. Mary's had arrived there, having had no little difficulty in making the harbor, in consequence of heavy gales blowing off the land for several days in succession; however, after repeated attempts at beating and warping her in, success crowned their efforts.

The writer of the letter states that while in the act of closing, the marines belonging to the St. Mary's were preparing to go ashore, "armed and equipped as the law directs," accompanied also by a twelve pound howitzer, for the purpose of protecting the American Consul from the outrages of the Costa Ricans, besides to keep in check any of WALKER'S party who may feel inclined to commit a breach of the peace.

H. B. M. ship Esk had arrived and left in a day or two afterwards for Panama, her officers not having exchanged the usual courtesies on such occasions, viz.: saluting the respective flags, &c., &c.

The St. Mary's had sent a portion of her crew on board of an American merchant ship in San Juan del Sur, said crew taking the place of the former one, which had mutinied, and were sent aboard of the St. Mary's.

The Peruvian Revolution.

PROSPECTS OF VIVANCO ON THE WANE—THE LATE PIRACY BY REVOLUTIONARY WAR SHIPS.

Correspondence of the New-York Daily Times.

PANAMA, Friday, April 3, 1857.

We have no leter intelligence from the South Pacific than was contained in my correspondence by the Texas. The boarding of the British steamship New-Granada by the two Revolutionary steamers of VIVANCO, and the forcible seizure of arms and money on board, has given rise to much discussion here. All concur in the idea that it was an intrigue—a set and agreed-upon plan; but most are of opinion that it was intended to assist VIVANCO and not CASTILLA. Still I believe that my theory, that it was an intrigue—to give the British fleet an excuse for seizing VIVANco'e ships, is the most reasonable one. I know very well that the British Chargé was inimical to CASTILLA, and that it was supposed the British Government was also adverse to him, on account of his refusal to pay certain moneys to British bondholders. But that could hardly induce Queen VICTORIA to wink at the forcible boarding of one of her specie-carrying steamers, and the abstraction of property from her. It would be a bad precedent. Besides, the game would be hardly worth the candle. To prevent the British steamere from carrying supplies to CASTILLA, would not seriously affect his Government. There are plenty of other channele through which he could receive them—through Ecuador and Bolivia, for instance;—and it would be perfectly consistent with British diplomacy, seeing that VIVANCO, whom It had favored, was about to lose the game, to stock the cards on him, so as to regain the favor of the winner. The next mail will probably unravel the mystery. It appears that the arms taken were not muskets and rifles, but only 1,000 cutlasses,—and it is reported, with how much truth I do not know, that the $32,000 seized, belonged to the Vivanco, and not to the Castilla party. The story now runs that the money was shipped from Callao for some port north of Huanchaco, but that the money being wanted at the latter point, bills of lading were presented for it at Huanchaco, and upon the captain of the steamer refusing to deliver it, except at its destination, in accordance with the articles of shipment, it was seized.

There are still 1,000 Minié and Sharpe's rifles waiting shipment here, belonging to the Government of Peru, and 1,500 more, destined to Peru on speculation—the British steamers refusing to take them.

A Card from Ole Bull.

I have noticed, in several of the public papers, a statement to the effect that I have lost nothing by purchases of land in this country, but have actually sent large sums to Norway for investment.

I know not who is the author of this report, but I think it due to the public and to myself to pronounce it wholly unfounded.

OLE BULL.

☞ The steamer Empire State, of the Fall River line, arrived here at 5½ o'clock yesterday morning, notwithstanding the severe storm. The reduced rates for passage and freight go into effect to-day, the 15th.

A few [illegible] tered the Fulton Ferry house, on the [illegible] and handed the ticket-master a two-dollar bill for their fare. He inquired how many she wished to pay for, and she answered, "Two." He gave her the change for one dollar, which she took without counting, and thinking he had made a mistake, said, "I gave you two dollars." "I know that as well as you do," was the reply, as he handed her the remaining dollar. She took it and they passed in, when he called after the second lady, "Coms back here and pay your fare." "This lady has paid for me, Sir," said she. "No," he exclaimed, in the most insolent tone, "I asked her how many she'd pay for, and she didn't know enough to answer my question." Upon this the first lady returned and told him, as she gave him the additional two cents, that she had said she wished to pay for two, when he repeated two or three times, in the same insulting manner, "I asked you, and you didn't know enough to answer my question." This was said in so loud a tone that it attracted the attention of all who were passing in and out.

Now no man should be employed an such a thoroughfare as the Fulton Ferry, who "doesn't know enough" at all times, and under all circumstances, to be polite to ladies, especially when they are unattended by gentlemen; and if this insolent ticket-master does not immediately reform, the public good requires that he should be removed to make room for a better man.

AUCTION SALES.

By R. & J. H. Sears.

ON FRIDAY EVENING, April 17, at 7½ o'clock, at their sale-room, No. 49 Liberty-st., by order of the executors of the late Jas. Lenox, Esq., deceased, the sale of one of the most valuable collections of modern oil paintings ever offered at public auction in this City, the property of E. S. Draper, Esq., who has been twenty years collecting them in Europe and America. They are all in fine order, and those with reference to artists are warranted originals, and many of them purchased at the sales of the famous collections named in the catalogue; and the modern ones chiefly from the artists themselves, among them will be found fine examples of Creswick, R. A.; J. R. Pyne, Shayer, Turner, Fraser, George A. Williams, J. C. Hornby, Glover, Vickers, Opie and others. Also a few very choice and rare pictures of the Italian schools, and some very fine cabinet pictures of the rare Dutch and Flemish masters, viz.:—Ostade, Daniels, Janstein, McInnair, &c. Also, the celebrated pair of landscapes, known in Europe as the Peach Zaccarelli, being the finest landscapes, with figures by that celebrated master, and purchased at the sale of Cardinal Fesch in Rome. Also a pair of cabinet-sized pictures by Hogarth, with pedigree. Also superb pictures by H. J. Boddington, Salvator Rosa, Valasques, Moncheron, Greuze, Titian, Rembrandt, Old Kuyp, Chimbeaux, Philipo, Lauri, Patel, De Grailly, E. L. Brown, Panini, Bartoline, Berkheyden, Horsley and many others. Catalogues with full descriptions are now ready, and the pictures will be on exhibition on Monday, 12th instant. The sale will positively take place on the day specified; and the public generally, as well as connoisseurs, are invited to examine them, as they may rest assured that the collection is the most rare and valuable one ever offered in this City.

HENRY H. LEDES, Auctioneer, No. 23 Nassau-st.

HENRY H. LEDES & CO. WILL SELL BY AUCTION on WEDNESDAY, April 22, at 12 o'clock at the Merchants' Exchange, important sale of an elegant country seat and building sites on Staten Island, being the western and central sections of the extensive and highly picturesque estate of "Hill Park," on Staten Island, 4½ miles from Vanderbilt's Landing, on the Richmond Plank Road, and near the New Drop Station, on the now constructing Staten Island Railroad. The estate is situated on the lofty hills extending from Toad Hill. The portion offered at present comprises 103 acres, and includes the first-class country residence of "Hill Park House," with about 7 acres of ground laid out at great expense, in the most superb style of English landscape gardening, and containing a beautiful lake stocked with gold-fish. The house is newly built of the best material, by days' work, and forms, with offices and outbuildings, a complete residence of a large and wealthy family. The remaining land has been laid out in the style of an English park, in which two public parks, of about 6 and 2 acres respectively, have been set aside for use of the residents on the estate, and the surrounding space has been laid out and fenced in for 16 building sites, containing none but useful and appropriate land, and made accessible by wide and handsome park roads. For further particulars and maps, also, for free omnibus tickets to view the estate, apply at our office, No. 23 Nassau-st.

MEDICAL.

SANDS' SARSAPARILLA.
This purely vegetable remedy combines in itself the properties of an antiseptic, a mild cathartic, and a tonic. It quickly removes all impurities from the blood which engender and feed diseases. The cures it performs are, therefore, radical and thorough.
Prepared and sold by A. B. & D. SANDS, No. 100 Fulton-st., New-York. Price $1 per bottle, or six bottles for $5.

THE GREATEST MEDICAL DISCOVERY OF THE AGE.—MR. KENNEDY, of Roxbury, has discovered in one of our common pasture weeds a remedy that cures every kind of humor, from the worst Scrofula down to a common Pimple.
He has tried it in over 3,100 cases, and never failed, except in two cases, both thunder humor. He has now in his possession over 200 certificates of its virtue, all within 20 miles of Boston.
Two bottles are warranted to cure a nursing sore mouth.
Two to three bottles will cure the worst kind of pimples on the face.
Two to three bottles will clear the system of boils.
Two bottles are warranted to cure the worst canker in the mouth or stomach.
One to two bottles are warranted to cure all humor in the eyes.
Two bottles are warranted to cure running of the eyes and blotches among the hair.
Four to six bottles are warranted to cure corrupt and running ulcers.
Two to three bottles are warranted to cure the worst case of ringworm.
Two to three bottles are warranted to cure the most desperate case of rheumatism.
Three to four bottles are warranted to cure the salt rheum.
Reader, I peddled over a thousand bottles of this in the vicinity of Boston. I know the effects of it in every case. So sure as water will extinguish fire, so sure will this cure humor. I never sold a bottle of it but that sold another; after a trial, it always speaks for itself. There are two things about this herb that appear to me surprising—first, that it grows in our pastures, in some places quite plentiful, and yet its value has never been known until I discovered it in 1846; second, that it should cure all kinds of humor.
In order to give some idea of the sudden rise and great popularity of the discovery, I will state that in April, 1854, I peddled it, and sold about six bottles per day. In April, 1854, I sold over a thousand bottles per day.
No change of diet ever necessary—eat the best you can get, and enough of it.
DIRECTIONS FOR USE.—Adults, one table spoonful per day; children over 8 years, dessert spoonful; children from 5 to 8 years, tea spoonful. As no direction can be applicable to all constitutions, take sufficient to operate on the bowels twice a day.
Mr. KENNEDY gives personal attendance in bad cases of Scrofula.
Manufactured by DONALD KENNEDY, No. 120 Warren-st., Roxbury, Mass. Price $1.

J. R. STAFFORD'S OLIVE TAR.—WE COPY the following from the editorial columns of the Boston Daily Ledger, of Feb. 19, 1857. Mr. Barnard, the gentleman alluded to, is a prominent citizen of Boston:
J. R. STAFFORD'S OLIVE TAR.—In the multitude of curatives that are almost daily offered to the public, it is very difficult to make a selection of any one that will prove valuable for all the purposes for which it is recommended. But in our opinion ONE specific has been discovered for complaints of the Throat and Lungs that seems to be of inestimable worth. It is J. R. STAFFORD'S OLIVE TAR. From a pamphlet setting forth the many claims on those afflicted with the diseases above named, we learn that this Remedy is not to be taken internally, after the ordinary methods, but is used by INHALATION and APPLICATION. In this subtle way it performs its soothing and healing offices on the THROAT, LUNGS, NERVES, MUSCLES, JOINTS, and SKIN. OLIVE TAR, it is claimed, contains an electro-magnetic power, which is capable of restoring to the system its lost energy; and this is performed alike by the inhalation of its odor, and the outward application of its fluid. Several of our Physicians often employ it for SPECIAL INHALATION, and its curative properties they well understand. We know of many cures it has performed in cases of Bronchial difficulties in Coughs, Colds, and complaints of a similar character, and we are able to give it our full recommendation.
We are informed by our fellow-townsman, John M. Barnard, Esq., that during a fit of sickness last Winter, he had occasion to make use of the OLIVE TAR, and found it even more efficacious than he had ventured to expect. He caused about three table spoonfuls to be placed in a saucer over a basin of boiling water, heated by a night-lamp, and found that its odor was not only a real DISINFECTANT of the sick room, but a most pleasant soother of the irritation of the throat and Lungs. He improved immediately in his health, and now uses the OLIVE TAR as occasion may require, in the reservoir of his furnace, satisfied that its volatile odor is of great service in rendering the atmosphere of his house both sweet and healthy at all times.
THURLOW WEED, Esq., Albany.
WM. B. TOWNSEND, Esq., Staten Island.
ISAAC V. FOWLER, Esq., New-York.
Dr. EDWARD BRIGHT, Esq., New-York.
CHARLES VAN WYCK, Esq., New-York.

Gen. DUFF GREEN, Washington, D. C.
Hon. ELI COOK, Buffalo, N. Y.
A. B. BARNEY, Esq., Cleveland, Ohio.
JOHN F. WARNER, Esq., Chicago, Ill.
And of many others equally prominent.
J. R. STAFFORD'S OLIVE TAR is sold at 50 cents a bottle, by the STAFFORD OLIVE TAR COMPANY, No 16 State st., (East side Battery,) New-York, and by all druggists.

RHEUMATIC, NEURALGIC, AND ALL Kother pains cease when J. R. STAFFORD'S OLIVE TAR is applied, because OLIVE TAR contains electro-magnetism, which it transmits to the body, increasing its VITALITY.
These assertions are verified by testimonials from

And by all druggists.

NEW AND IMPORTANT DISCOVERY IN THE SCIENCE OF MEDICINE.—TRIESEMAR.—None are genuine unless the engravings of the Seals of the Patent Office of England, the Seals of the Ecole de Pharmacie de Paris, and the Imperial College of Vienna, are fixed upon each wrapper, and around each case.
Sold by Dr. H. A. BARROW—Member of the Imperial College of Vienna, and Royal College of Surgeons, London, who may be personally consulted at his residence No. 157 Prince-st., (few blocks west of Broadway.) New-York, from 11 o'clock in the morning till 2, and from 4 o'clock till 8 in the evening, (Sundays excepted.)
TRIESEMAR No. 1.—Is the remedy of general and local debility, loss of virile power, premature decay, and all the distressing consequences arising from early abuse, &c.; all physical impediments vanish like magic before its influence, thus rendering its use invaluable to those entering the marriage state.
TRIESEMAR No. 2—Entirely eradicates all traces of those disorders which copaiva and cubebs have so long been thought an antidote for to the ruin of the health as a vast portion of the population.
TRIESEMAR No. 3—Is the great European remedy for this class of disorders which unfortunately, the English physician treats with mercury to the inevitable destruction of the patient's constitution, and which all the Sarsaparilla in the world cannot remove.
TRIESEMAR Nos. 1, 2, and 3, are prepared in the form of a lozenge, devoid of taste or smell, and can be carried in the waistcoat pocket. Sold in tin cases and divided in separate doses, as administered by Valpeau, Lalleman, Roux, Ricord, &c., &c. Price $2 each, or four cases in one for $5, which saves $3; and in $27 cases, whereby there is a saving of $9.
Special arrangements having been made with the various Expresses, the nine-dollar cases of the Triesmar, and the larger sizes, will be forwarded by Dr. Barrow, carriage paid, immediately on receiving a remittance, to any part of the world, securely packed, and addressed according to the instructions of the writer, thus securing to the public genuine European preparations, and effectually protecting them from spurious and pernicious imitations. The three dollar cases sent as usual, but not free of carriage.

NEW-YORK CITY.

Professor Dana addressed the Farmers' Club on Tuesday, after Mr. [illegible] remarks relative to the subject of [illegible], "Liquid Manures," Dr. WATERBURY delivered some highly interesting observations upon the [illegible] of animals, habit, and chiefly of food, in relation to the physical character of man and animals. Illustrations of this fact were presented, in a forcible, clear and distinct manner, and their application to practical agriculture was made very happily. The hour having expired, the Society begged to postpone the subject at the next meeting.

The Chairman adverted to the importance of the agricultural interest, to the value of their transactions, and the desirableness of more extended reports in the daily papers. The cattle markets were reported rather largely than was consistent with the fair claims of the farmers, who, as a class, were far more numerous than the butchers.

Altered Tens.

Those who are so fortunate as to be in the habit of receiving ten-dollar bills, must be on their guard, lest they be so unfortunate as to receive an altered and [illegible] broken "Hamilton Bank, Scituate, R. I." Several were discovered in circulation in the City, yesterday. They purport to be $10s of the Trader's Bank, Newport, R. I., and as they are well executed, [illegible] are likely to deceive. In altering them, the word "Hamilton" is erased, and "Trader's" inserted; in place of "Scituate," is "Newport." The [illegible] and made of the new issues.

Academy of Design.

The New-York Life and Antique Schools, which opened on the 1st of November, with about 50 students, closed on the 1st of April, when pleasant compliments were interchanged between the Vice-President of the National Academy, Mr. T. S. CUMMINGS, who had charge of the schools, and his pupils. It was announced that the next session will probably open with increased facilities for study, by the restoration of the Professorships of Anatomy and Perspective.

Third Presbytery.

The following Ministers and Elders of the Third Presbytery have been appointed Commissioners to the General Assembly to be held in Cleveland next May: Ministers—Rev. Edwin F. Hatfield, D. D.; Rev. Sam. [illegible]hard, D.D.; Rev. D. D. T. McLaughlin. Elders—Mr. Roe Lockwood, New-York City; Mr. [illegible] C. Foote, Yonkers; John C. Hines, New-York City.

The Presbytery held an exciting meeting on Monday, and the contest was warmly conducted.

☞ In the new Broadway Tabernacle, which is to be erected at the junction of Broadway, Thirty-fourth-street and Sixth-avenue, it is determined by the Trustees to have some 200 pews on the main floor—the house will be so built that seats can be obtained by rich and poor alike.

☞ The town was startled, yesterday, by the appearance of No. 1, price 25 cents, of The Life of Stephen H. Branch, (written by myself,) and "Dedicated to those who rove in virtue's grove." The publisher, with much modesty, withholds his name.

☞ Prepare in time. Considering how dear fire-crackers will be, the heads of families will find it cheapest, next Fourth of July, to take their boys out of town on railroad and steamboat excursions.

☞ The country seat of Mr. BOKER—whose daughter's marriage has so much excited the gossips lately—is offered for sale. It is situated on the back of the Hudson just above Tarrytown.

☞ Shad are plentifully caught in the North River now. They retail at the markets for 25 to 50 cents.

Young Men's Christian Association.

A Special meeting of the Association was called by the Finance Committe on Monday evening. Mr. MANNERS, Chairman of the Committee, made a statement to the effect that they were nearly two thousand dollars in debt. He was proceeding to speak of the connection which the recent action of the Association on the Slavery question had with its financial embarrassments, when the Chairman said he was not speaking to the question, and that no business other than that of the financial condition of the Association could be brought before the meeting. Mr. MANNERS stated he would appeal from the decision of the Chair, and went on to offer a resolution in substance as follows:

That a special committee be appointed to consider the financial condition of the Association, with power to obtain subscriptions and supply its immediate wants.

The resolution was adopted, and Messrs. MANNERS, BOWNE and HYDE were appointed as the Special Committee.

Dr. NOYES then obtained the floor and submitted a series of resolutions to the effect that, inasmuch as the Association had in a measure lost confidence among its friends in consequence of the rule forbidding discussion or action on Slavery, passed on motion of Prof. CROSBY, that rule should be rescinded.

An amendment was offered by Mr. AUSTIN ABBOTT, as follows:

Whereas, It is right that in a Young Men's Christian Association, truth should be freely and openly discussed.

Resolved, That the resolution introduced by Professor CROSBY, on the 26th Jan., 1857, (forbidding discussion or action upon Slavery,) be, and the same hereby is rescinded.

Resolved, That the Association recognizes, as a common right, perfect freedom of speech, within the bounds of propriety and courtesy, both in our meetings and in the Union.

Whereas, The promulgation of resolutions of opinion merely, without a view to action, are not called for by the purposes of our organization, and the right of a majority by to bring the Association to a vote, by which the opinion of that majority may be declared to be the judgment of the Association, is questionable; and, although we must be governed by the majority in respect to action, it is not necessary that we should be so governed in respect of opinion.

Resolved, That hereafter resolutions, declaratory of opinion merely, are not to be put to vote.

These resolutions elicited much debate.

Mr. MARSHALL, the Recording Secretary, was opposed to all agitation of the subject. They mistook altogether the objects of the Association. It was not organized to discuss such questions as that of Slavery, but 1st, to convert the souls of young men in their midst; and 2d, to benefit them temporally. He avowed himself the author of the famous resolution offered by Prof. CROSBY, with the exception of the "meddling" clause, and cited the opinions of seven eminent clergymen of this City that Slavery was a subject with which the Association, as an Association, had nothing to do. He was followed by Messrs. S. G. GOODRICH, who was of the same way of thinking.

Messrs. LABAR, SHERMAN, VERNON, EZEKIEL WILLIAMS, WM. HUNTER, FAIRMAN, CLARK, MARSHALL, OLIVER JOHNSON, (Anti-Slavery Standard,) and Rev. THEO. L. CUYLER, all spoke in favor of the resolutions as a whole. Some of them confessed, however, that they were not sufficiently radical.

Rev. Mr. CUYLER said that the resolutions were right, and what is right is always expedient. They commended free discussion within the limits of Christian courtesy and propriety. The resolution of Prof. CROSBY he considered as arbitrary in its character, and he knew that it had injured the organization. He excepted to Mr. MARSHALL's remark that Slavery was a subject with which they had nothing to do, and while he should be loth to see their rooms converted into a political arena, he felt that it would be vain to attempt the exclusion of such an all-important subject from an association composed of young men of every shade of politics. But Christian forbearance should be exercised, and no uneasiness as to the result need be feared. All the reports in the papers relative to the Association that he had seen, had grossly misrepresented them. One prominent daily paper burlesqued them; another grew spiritual; and one of the weekly religious papers, from whom better advice might have been expected, had told us to go and shut our doors till we grew cold on the Slavery question, and then had the meanness to publish to the world our financial embarrassments. He concluded by asking of the members unabated interest in the organization.

The question being put on Mr. ABBOTT's amendment, it was carried by a large majority. The passage of these resolutions will probably allay the excitement of the past few months.

In compliance with the request of the Association, conveyed in a resolution adopted at the last meeting, Messrs. EDGAR, MOORE, and HUBBELL withdrew their resignations, and are therefore reinstated as active members.

New-York Hospital.

The Governors of the New-York Hospital have no salaries. Hence the following creditable report:

The whole number of patients treated in the New-York City Hospital, during the past year, was 3,399, being 266 more than in 1855. Of this number, 291 died. Among these deaths are included 106 cases of sudden deaths, from accidents on ships, railroads, buildings, in affrays, by sun stroke, or otherwise, upon which Coroners' inquests have been held.

Of the whole number under actual treatment throughout the year, a little less than five and a half per cent. died.

The receipts of the Hospital establishment for the year have been $40,101 93; its expenditures $38,063 51.

At Bloomingdale, 261 patients have been treated during the past year. Among the admissions in 1856, of 86 who had been deranged less than one year, 39 recovered and eight were relieved. Out of 26 others who had been deranged for a longer term before admission, but three recovered and five were improved.

The receipts of this institution during the year have been $20,168 50, and the [illegible] $19,979 44.

Institution for the Relief of Colored Orphan Boys.

This institution is under the charge of the Murray Hill Mission, No. 226 Sixth-avenue. The following is the report of results for the first year since its establishment, ending March 16, 1857:

RELIGION.—Catholics, 72; Jews, 2; Protestants, 188.

MODE OF LIFE IN THE STREETS.—(1) beggars, 25; (2) coal, rag, bone pickers, pedlars, 169; (3) vagabonds or truants, 77.

CONDITION OF PARENTS.—(1) sick, infirm, broken down by misfortune, or ruined by intemperance, 149; (2) out of employment, a large proportion (if those that do street-work be included); (3) reported as having no work, 74.

TRADES OR HANDICRAFTS OF PARENTS.—Basket-makers, chair-makers, day laborers; rag, coal, bone pickers; tailors, scissor grinders, paper box makers, coopers, butchers, watch-makers, blacksmiths, tinsmiths, carpenters, coblers, saddle-makers, pedlers, bricklayers, journeymen in saw mills and in segar and bone factories.

NATIVITY OF THE BOYS.—Born in Germany, 245; natives, 28.

ORPHANS, OR HALF-ORPHANS, 27.

The "School Register" from which these items are taken, is open to public inspection. Rev. HENRY MARONANT is the authorized Agent to collect funds in this city. JOHN H. EATON, Superintendent.

POLICE INTELLIGENCE.

BURGLARIES—CAPTURES BY THE POLICE.

Burglars have been of late quite busy. On Sunday night the store of Joseph Lee, in Murray-street, was robbed of more than $200 worth of broadcloth by thieves, who succeeded in making their escape. A reward of $200 is offered for their detection.

On Monday night, about 10 o'clock, two cracksmen were caught in the tailor store of a man named RYAN, in the New Bowery. The fellows broke a panel in the basement door, and then retreated for a few moments until the noise created had subsided. Soon afterwards they returned, entered the store, and began to select the most valuable goods. But officers BOWYER and Philip FARLEY, of the detective corps, suddenly pounced upon them and captured them both. One of the fellows retreated to the upper portion of the building and raised a window, from which he seemed inclined to leap, but changing his mind, he quietly surrendered. The prisoners gave their names as James H. Watson and James Wiley. Watson hails from Scotland, and says he is a shoemaker by trade. Wiley claims Boston as his home, and says he is an upholsterer. They were detained in the Third Ward Station-house all night, and were yesterday taken to the Lower Police Court and fully committed. One of them is aged 28 years and the other 29. A complete set of skeleton keys was found upon them.

A man giving his name as Andrew Williams was arrested Monday evening for entering the house of Mr. D. B. Wagner, No. 760 Broadway, and stealing jewelry. A number of burglar's tools and a lot of jewelry were found in his possession.

The Eighteenth Ward Police arrested John Conner, a laboring man, and William Donavan and John Murphy, boys ten years of age, for a burglary at No. 274 Avenue A. They were taken before Justice FLANDREAU and held for trial.

HEAVY ROBBERY OF GOLD DUST.

A man named Jacob Levison arrived here on Monday, in the George Law, from California, where he had been for upwards of four years. He brought home with him 280 ounces of gold dust, which he kept in bags in his trunk. He put up at Lovejoy's Hotel. Yesterday morning he had occasion to open his trunk, which was in his bed-room, when he discovered that he had been robbed of every ounce of his gold dust. Inquiry was made, but no trace of the robber could be found.

CHARGE OF ABSTRACTING GOLD DUST.

A broker named Sturges, doing business at No. 2 Wall-street, was arrested yesterday on a charge of stealing a quantity of gold dust from a man named Miller, just arrived from California. Miller took with him 144 ounces of gold dust from California. It was weighed there. He put the treasure in his trunk and did not touch it during the voyage. On his arrival here he wished to dispose of it, and started from his hotel—Lovejoy's—for the place of Beebe & Co., in Wall-street. While on his way he was met by a "runner," who took him to the office of Sturges, where he bargained to sell his gold for $18 per ounce. The treasure was weighed and declared to amount to only 138 ounces. Miller protested, and believing himself cheated, preferred a charge of grand larceny against Sturges, who was arrested and held to answer in the sum of $1,000.

Coroners' Inquests.

SUICIDE BY A SAILOR.

A seaman of the United States NAVY, named JAMES CARMAN, while laboring under delirium tremens on Monday evening, at the residence of his mother, No. 10 Greenwich-street, sent a boy whom he called from the street for laudanum, and on receiving the poison swallowed it. His condition was soon afterwards discovered, and physicians were called, but all their efforts were ineffectual. The suffering man was then conveyed to the New-York Hospital, where he soon afterwards died. Coroner GAMBLE held an inquest upon the body. The verdict of the Jury was: "Death by suicide," &c. The deceased was a native of New-York, and 36 years of age.

ACCIDENTALLY KILLED.

An Irishman, named CORNELIUS COLLINS, was accidentally killed yesterday morning, at the drug store No. 355 Third-avenue, corner of Twenty seventh-street, by a barrel of potash falling upon him and striking him on the head. The barrel and its contents weighed 650 pounds, and he was assisting in its removal from the sidewalk to the cellar when the accident occurred. Deceased was 45 years of age. He was married, and resided in Twenty-seventh-street, near Third-avenue. Coroner GAMBLE held an inquest upon the body, and a verdict was rendered in accordance with the facts above given.

HAVE YOU EVER BEEN POISONED?

The question is almost equivalent to "Have you ever taken physic?" According to certain medical writers, all physic is poisonous, and the endeavor of the system to reject it, produces the special effects which we attribute to the material taken as a medicine. At any rate, where one hundred die now of actual disease, one thousand die of the physic administered by incompetent or reckless physicians. In other words, they are poisoned. The only way, if you are ill, is to take that which you know has cured others when similarly ill. Those who have the consumption, for instance, the scrofula, rheumatism, palsy, fever and ague, heart complaints, or liver disease, should go and see how many of our citizens have been completely cured with Dr. ANDERS' Liquid Iodine, or Pure Iodine Water, and they will never hesitate to take it themselves, confident of its marvelous powers as a remedy. It is sold at $1 a bottle, by ANDERS & FOSNICK, No. 3 Second-avenue and No. 863 Broadway; C. H. RING, No. 192 Broadway; BARNES & PARK, No. 304 Broadway; Mrs. HAYES, Brooklyn, and all druggists.

THE CHURRUS REMEDY.—This new and wonderful medicine is in a forward state of preparation, and in a few days will be obtainable in any quantity by the public. A small lot has been received, and may be procured at No. 46 Beekman-st., $1 per bottle. It is a thing entirely new in the medical world, though used most successfully in private practice for the last four years. It will be found unfailing in all nervous diseases, neuralgia, nervous headache, palpitation of the heart, confusion of ideas, depression of spirits, languor, hysteria, and debility of mind and body. In consumption it has proved the most powerful remedy yet known. It requires only to be tried to be appreciated. There is no known medicine that can compare with it in the alleviation or cure of almost every kind of disease. Apply to Rev. J. A. ARMSTRONG, No. 46 Beekman-st.

KNOX.—A correspondent of the Journal of Commerce, in yesterday's issue, says:

"Almost every one I talk with, feels provoked at the mode of advertising lately to be found in the press. You may feel occasionally deeply interested in an article, and before you know it you reach 'KNOX's Hats.'"

Why should they be provoked? It is impossible to speak of KNOX's Hats except in terms of eulogy, and if these gentlemen would drop in at No. 212 Broadway, and buy one of them, they would find that, like his advertisements, it would prove on trial "deeply interesting."

LONG ISLAND.

☞ The Second Unitarian Society is considering a plan for a new church edifice, which has been submitted. It is intended to occupy the whole of the lot on the corner of Clinton and Congress streets, the church having an entrance upon both streets. It is to be octagon in form, faced with Chicago brick, and surmounted by a cupola. The choir's place will be in the rear of the desk.

Annual Election of Directors of the Long Island Railroad Company.

The annual election for Directors of this Company took place yesterday. There were 36,539 votes polled, and the following-named gentlemen were elected without opposition:

William E. Morris, Coffin Colket, Charles Emory, George L. Willard, Alfred S. Fraser, Charles J. Smith, Thomas G. Talmadge, Charles J. Lowrey, Townsend Jones, Henry W. Titus, Joseph H. Trotter, George Nealis, Henry L. Gaw.

The Board is constituted the same as last year, with the exception of Messrs. TROTTER and NEALIS, who take the places of ABRAHAM B. BAYLIS and CLEMENT A. BUCKLEY.

The annual report to the stockholders will be published in a few days. The total receipts of the Road for the year ending April 1, 1857, were $207,780 41. Its affairs are said to be in a flourishing condition.

A Landmark Gone—Accident.

The old Duffield Homestead on Fulton-avenue, near Duffield-street, Brooklyn, was destroyed by fire at 2 o'clock yesterday morning. It was owned by Col. WM. STEELE and was about being turned into a rum-shop, but at the time of the fire it was unoccupied. Loss $1,000, and it was insured for that amount.

This house was erected nearly, if not quite, 100 years ago, by CORNELIUS DEREVOISE, one of the original residents of Brooklyn. He had it built and presented it to his son JOHANNUS, as a wedding present. Dr. JOHN DUFFIELD, a Pennsylvania Germas, took up his abode in Brooklyn not far from 1790, and soon after married a daughter of Mr. DEREVOISE, and lived in the homestead in which his wife was born. She died seven years ago at 84 years of age. JOHN T. and A. LAWRENCE, Esqs., are nephews of Dr. DUFFIELD, and were also born in this house. Thus four generations of one family have successively lived here.

The house was recently sold, to close the Duffield estate, with a provision that it should be removed, for the purpose of preventing the desecration of the premises. But this was disregarded, and, as we have stated above, it was about being turned into a porter-house, when it was destroyed by fire.

The fire broke out at 2 o'clock, and it was 6 o'clock before the firemen could leave—time enough to burn quite a number of modern buildings.

Mr. CHARLES ROGERS, of Engine Company No. 17, was caught by the falling roof, and had his right leg broken just below the knee. He was assisted at once by Officer WADDY, of the Fourth District Police, and members of No. 17 with him, to his residence, on Lafayette-street. Dr. MOTT was called in, and amputated the limb.

Missionary Meeting.

To the Editor of the New-York Daily Times:

A missionary meeting of great interest was held in the Presbyterian Church of [illegible], L. I., on Sunday evening, [illegible] which was appointed for a purpose which, at least on this part of Long Island, was a novel one. It was to bid farewell to a company of their neighbors, who are soon to leave them and go out as missionaries to the Omaha Indians in Nebraska.

They are CHARLES STURGIS, M. D., for more than twenty-five years a practicing physician here, and long an elder in the church, who expects, in a few days, to be ordained by the Presbytery of Long Island as a preacher. With him and Mrs. STURGIS go Misses HARRIET GOULD, EMILY SMITH and CHARLES SILLECK, from this Church, and JARVIS R. ROLPH and lady, and Miss HELEN ENSIGN, from the Central Presbyterian Church of Brooklyn.

The meeting was opened with prayer by the pastor of the Church, Rev. Mr. MCCAULEY.

Mr. ROLPH addressed the meeting very impressively. He met them now under peculiar circumstances. This was his native place; in this house his fathers worshiped and he had done so likewise until recently. They met to part with an elder; with five, yes, seven members, for seven of the eight had been members here.

Rev. P. LEIGHTON WILLSON, one of the Secretaies of the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions, then addressed the meeting. He alluded first, to the novel and so far as he knew, unprecedented spectacle of a church parting at once with five of her members to go out a mission to the heathen.

Dr. STURGIS followed. With this band now present he was ready to show his love to the Saviour by sacrifices which he must confess were great. He gave a brief and affecting farewell to pastor and people, speaking of his past intercourse with them, and saying that though they might meet no more face to face, they could meet at the Mercy-seat. In the name of their little company he bade all present farewell.

Mr. MCCAULEY, the pastor, closed by an impressive address to them. The exercises were closed by a prayer by Rev. Mr. NIMMO, the singing of the 2 closing stanzas of the Missionary Hymn and the benediction by Mr. WILSON. O.

HUNTINGTON, L. I., April 12, 1857.

Brooklyn Normal School.

The regular Semi-annual promotions in the Brooklyn Female Normal School were made on Saturday by the Superintendent J. W. BULKLEY and the Normal School Committee. Twenty-six young ladies received their diplomas as graduates from the institution, and about one half of the members of the various classes were promoted one grade, while a few of the more studious went up two grades. Considerable feeling was manifested by the unsuccessful candidates, all of whom were subjected to very rigid examination, and part of whom were found to possess the requisite qualifications excepting in some single study.

☞ Rev. Dr. KENNEDY lectured on Thursday evening in the South Second-street M. E. Church, Williamsburg, on "Home Thoughts for Old and Young." There was a good audience and apparent satisfaction. The proceeds of the lecture will be devoted to the liquidation of the debt of the German Mission Church, corner of Stagg and Lorimer streets, under the care of Rev. J. SCHWALEN. A lecture was delivered last week for the same purpose by Rev. Dr. WAKELY.

☞ The Luca family, a band of colored musicians, gave a concert in the Congregational Church, corner of South Third and Eleventh streets, on Wednesday evening, with considerable success.

TUESDAY, April 14—P. M.

The Money Market is without alteration from yesterday; if anything, the supply on temporary loan is easier, and likely to be further increased by the payments into the Foreign banking-houses to-morrow, for exchange. The additional business in Sterling, to-day, was done at 109@109¼ ₱ cent., and in Francs at 5.21¼@5.18¾—the market closing steady. The Discount Brokers are paying prime lists of indorsed paper at 9 ₱ cent., 3 to 6 months, and some prime short bills at 8@8¾ ₱ cent. We hear of no Gold engagements for the Asia beyond the usual shipment to the ROTHSCHILDS.

The Stock Market worked somewhat singularly to-day. The business was quite large—nearly 30,000 shares on the Railroad list, opening weak, and, contrary to the usual course of late, recovering strength as the dealings progressed. The second session of the Brokers left off firm. The principal selling at the decline in the forenoon was in Erie, Michigan Southern, New-York Central, and Panama. The prominent fluctuations of the day were:

New-York and Erie	51¾ to 51¾ and up to 52
New-York Central	87¼@87¾@87¾
Southern Michigan	70@69¾@70
Panama	From 95 rest. to 92¾@¾
Galena and Chicago	101@101¼@103¾
Cleveland and Toledo	72¾@¾@¾@¾
Reading	79¾@¾@80@79¾
Cleveland and Pittsburg	58¾@¾@¾
Illinois Central	130¾@131@¾

The difficulty in delivering Illinois Central on short contracts is unusually marked. Hence the large proportion of 30 or 60 day options put out to-day ¼@1 ₱ cent. below the cash price. Several other Road Stocks continue scarcer for immediate delivery than money itself, and holders are refusing to lend except free of interest on the money advanced. The transfers of the Erie close to-morrow for the Scrip dividend which comes off on the 27th inst. The transfers of the Toledo close on the 20th. The Southern Michigan books are closed for the annual election which takes place at Adrian, Mich., to-morrow week, April 22. There has been, apparently, a strong and consistent support of Reading in this market for a week or two past.

The Sub-Treasury received, to-day, $90,-174; disbursed $173,814, and held, at the close, $15,111,250. Some additional Government drafts from California to the amount of $47,000.

The Hamburg steamer Borrussia arrived, this afternoon, with Hamburg dates to April 1, and telegraphic quotations from London and Liverpool to March 31. The Funds in London were ¼ ₱ cent. higher than by the Niagara, and Cotton firm at Liverpool. The latest Consol quotations, 93⅝@¼.

Many are harping upon the "unprecedented ex-

This is true, and it would [illegible] proper appreciation of the line of Discounts in the Bank Statement for the Street creakers to understand that it will continue to increase with the capital employed in City banking, and the increasing trade of the country centering in New-York. We look, without the slightest misgiving, for $120,000,000 in Loans by the middle of June: for the capital account will then stand $61,000,000, and Deposits undrawn fully $70,000,000, if not $72,000,000. Nor will this increase necessarily imploy a larger reserve of Specie, unless the export demand should require it, in which case the interior will be drawn upon to furnish any deficit that California fails to make good. Such a state of things may not be "conservative," but it will be in pursuance of the uniform Summer practice of the Banks in banking according to their ability for the time being—the condition of the Deposit, as well as the Specie line being taken into the account.

RAILWAY TRAFFIC IN MARCH—ADDITIONAL.

The Cleveland and Columbus Line maintains a steady, reliable traffic, the profits of which are more than equal to to the half-yearly dividend of 6 ₱ cent. cash on the Stock. The Pittsburg and Chicago Line is rapidly looking up. It comprises, by consolidation, the Ohio and Pennsylvania, Ohio and Indiana, and Fort Wayne and Chicago Roads. The last is not yet finished through to Chicago, though in good progress.

In the report of the auction sale of Stocks yesterday, by A. H. NICOLAY, the quotation of 91, applied to Manhattan Life Insurance Stock, not Manhattan Fire Insurance, as printed.

In speaking of the Bank reserve as averaged yesterday in connection with the California arrival, we called the two sums, by mistake, $13,000,000, instead of $12,000,000.

The Elections in Great Britain.

DEFEAT OF THE OPPOSITION.

Speech of Lord Palmerston on Affairs in China.

The Ericsson's mails were received at so late an hour on Tuesday night that we were unable to publish full details of the news in yesterday's issue. Our London files extend to the 1st inst., and we extract from them this morning some additional intelligence of interest.

As already announced, the elections in Great Britain, as far as they have gone, show an unmistakable triumph for Lord PALMERSTON.

Among the most noticeable of successful candidates we find Sir JOHN DUKE, Baron ROTHSCHILD, Lord JOHN RUSSELL, and Mr. CRAWFORD, elected for London; Sir J. PAKINGTON and Mr. J. A. TURNER (Ministerial) for Manchester; Mr. HORSFALL and Mr. S. C. EWART (Ministerial) for Liverpool; Messrs. MUNTZ and SCHOLEFIELD (Ministerial) for Birmingham; and Messrs. ROEBUCK and HADFIELD (Opposition) for Sheffield.

The borough contests have been brought to a close with a net Ministerial gain of about 22 members, and the British nation is now looking forward to the county contests for a full solution of the problem involved in the Ministerial appeal to the country.

The London Times is magnanimous in speaking of the defeat of RICHARD COBDEN; not more magnanimous than just when it says:

Let the constituencies think, not upon what he has done since 1846, but upon the energy, the singleness of purpose, the zeal with which he fought the fight for food for many a long year, when that fight was no easy one. He is not a man to be cast aside like a chipped brick. Unless we much mistake the signs of the times, there is a little cloud upon the horizon—as yet no bigger than a man's hand—which denotes a time when his services may again be called into requisition. For ten years we have opposed these two gentlemen in well nigh every act of their public lives, and yet now we most honestly say that we deeply regret to see erased from the roll call of the House of Commons the names of JOHN BRIGHT and RICHARD COBDEN."

Results of the English Election.

Lord PALMERSTON has been extremely fortunate, not only in his own successes, but in the defeat of his opponents. It is true that his especial rival, Lord JOHN RUSSELL, has been reelected for the City of London—obtaining only third place on the polls, however—but it is equally true that COBDEN, BRIGHT, and the whole set commonly known as "the Manchester Party," have been signally defeated. It was this party who were the means of putting the Government into that recent minority on the China question which caused the dissolution of Parliament. The Manchester Party, the ultra-Tories, and the leading Peelites, united to beat PALMERSTON, in the hope that he would resign. But, astute and experienced, he resolved on a general election, which, although not ended, has literally thrown his personal opponents out of the Legislature altogether.

Mr. GLADSTONE, who backed COBDEN in the vote of censure on PALMERSTON, has succeeded, with some difficulty, in being again elected to represent the intolerance of the University of Oxford. He has been a Parliament-man since 1832, was a decided Peelite, made an indifferent Chancellor of the Exchequer in Lord ABERDEEN's unfortunate Cabinet, and is understood to have looked, in any proximate Tory Ministry, for the office of Finance Minister, with the leadership of the Commons—DISRAELI himself modestly taking the Foreign office, probably on the ground of his personal intimacy with M. LOUIS BONAPARTE. Mr. GLADSTONE is 48 years old, took a double first class at Oxford, was expected to have made a great politician, is a good speaker, but is rather a public failure than otherwise.

Mr. ROEBUCK, who also votes against PALMERSTON on COBDEN's China motion, has narrowly escaped defeat at Sheffield. Able but crotchetty, impracticable but honest, he has had 25 years' Parliamentary experience, but no minister has ever thought of offering him place. He is a little too independent for party-men, and has some weight as an outsider. He is 56 years old, and is looked on as a sort of modern edition of downright and plain-spoken ANDREW MARVELL.

FREDERICK PEEL, who has sadly disappointed public expectation, (which, on his first appearance, hailed him as "a chip of the old block,") has been defeated on the borough of Bury, which he had represented since July, 1852. He had previously sat, since 1849, for Leominster. This young man, second son of the late Sir ROBERT PEEL, is only 34 years old, and has shown considerable ability in retaining office since 1851, under three Prime Ministers. He is simply a red tapist, worthy of being Chairman of the Circumlocution Office. In all likelihood, he will retire from public life, for some time, and can be well spared.

Mr. LAYARD, late of Nineveh, has been defeated at Aylesbury, which he had represented since July, 1852. Rather uncertain in his politics, he voted against PALMERSTON on the China question, which, we dare say, caused his defeat. A good speaker, lively, well-informed, and rather personal, he will be missed. He is 40 years of age, and will probably return to the House of Commons ere long.

Though Mr. GLADSTONE was reelected for the University of Oxford, his friend Mr. EDWARD CARDWELL, a somewhat aspiring member of the Peelite clique, has been dismissed by Oxford City. Four years ago, he was elected without opposition. He was a member of PEEL's Government in 1845-'6, and of the Aberdeen Ministry in 1852-'5. Fifteen years in Parliament had made him somewhat of a debater. He was open for office under a new Derby-Disraeli Cabinet, and is only 44 years old.

PALMERSTON has lost Admiral BERKELEY, a Lord of the Admiralty, who has been cast aside by the electors of Gloucester—notwithstanding the great property influence on that city of his brother, the Earl FITZHARDINGE, better known as the notorious Colonel BERKELEY of a departed generation. The Admiral is beaten, therefore, on his own ground. He is nearly 70 years old, first entered Parliament in 1832, and his political career is probably ended.

As a set-off to the defeat of PEEL and BERKELEY may be placed the defeat of COBDEN and his friends. Aware that the West Riding of Yorkshire would reject him, Mr. COBDEN went to Huddersfield, where he has been defeated by a majority of 246. At the age of 53, after 16 years in Parliament, he is cast aside, and may attribute his defeat to his unpopular Peace doctrines.

In Manchester, in 1852, JOHN BRIGHT and MILNER GIBSON were returned by a majority of 1,300. The other day they were defeated, in the same place, by a majority of between two and three thousand votes.—Their Peace policy has beaten them. GIBSON, aged 58, entered Parliament twenty years ago, and was a good speaker. BRIGHT, aged 46, has had 14 years in Parliament, and was an excellent debater—fearless, eloquent, and hard hitting. No doubt he will soon reënter Parliament, of which he was a very independent member.

Mr. MIALL, able editor of the Nonconformist, the leading newspaper of the English Dissenters, has been thrown out of Rockdale. He went the whole way with the Manchester School, and was a good speaker, as well as an excellent committee-man. He had been in Parliament some five years, and is 48 years of age.

Sir JOSHUA WALMESLEY, one of the most liberal men in Parliament, who has sat for various boroughs since 1847, and has disbursed immense sums in election-contests, has been defeated at Leicester, which he has represented since July, 1852. He is 63 years old, and was one of the best business men in the House of Commons. He made a large fortune in the Corntrade, at Liverpool, and was Mayor of that city some 18 years ago. His plain honesty made him a very impracticable party-man, and perhaps no member of Parliament was so strongly committed to the five points of Chartism.

Another loss to the Manchester party, is Mr. W. J. FOX, late member for Oldham. Very popular as a Dissenting Minister and an eloquent political lecturer, Mr. FOX entered Parliament ten years ago, at the age of sixty-one, but made less impression in the legislature than was anticipated. He mainly devoted himself to the promotion of National Education, and was extremely liberal in all his political views. He was an able writer, also, and formerly edited the True Sun, (a London daily,) and the Monthly Review. For many years past he has written the letters in the London Weekly Dispatch, signed "Publicola." Now [illegible], it is probable that his parliamentary [illegible].

It is [illegible] that there will be over 150 new members in the House of Commons from the present election. As yet, it is difficult to ascertain how Parliament will vote, but the defeat—which is almost the present suppression—of the Manchester party, is an enormous advantage to Lord PALMERSTON. He will play his cards, no doubt, with his usual skill—sometime even assisting Fortune, perhaps!—and is likely enough to have his own way in the new Parliament.

THE NEW PLENIPOTENTIARY—REVIEW OF THE AMERICAN OPERATIONS AT CANTON—SIR JOHN BOWRING SUPPORTED—EXPECTATION OF A SETTLEMENT OF PENDING DIFFICULTIES.

On the evening of the 28th of March, after the election at Tiverton, Lord PALMERSTON attended a banquet to celebrate the reopening of the Athenæum. His Lordship, in answer to a toast proposing the health of "Her Majesty's Ministers," reviewed, in a powerful speech, the foreign policy of the Government, and in relation to the question of the day, said:

It is a mistake to suppose that we are at war with China. As yet, the collision has been purely local, and the Emperor of China may yet disavow the barbarian who has been the cause of it, but, at the same time, I don't expect that when Lord ELGIN reaches China that will have actually happened. I am inclined to think he will find things much in the same state as when the last accounts left, and that the Emperor has trusted to the chapter of accidents to see what will arise out of the collision. The Emperor of China is now in a very singular and critical position. There is a rebellion going on, which having began to the south of Canton, has now quitted the south of the empire—which has now reached its centre—which has now reached Nankin, the ancient capital of the Chinese Empire, and that circumstance adds to the doubt as to what will be the decision of the Imperial Government. But, gentlemen, we have chosen a man of high rank and great experience, who distinguished himself by his government of Canada; [cheers;] who successfully negotiated a treaty with the United States; a man of great ability and conciliatory disposition, with a full knowledge of the intentions of the Government at home; whose mission is intended as no disparagement to Sir JOHN BOWRING; whose mission is founded on the established practice of the country in difficult cases; and I trust that Lord ELGIN, backed, as he will be, by an overwhelming naval force, double that which Sir WILLIAM PARKER had in the late China war—and backed also by a large military force—that he will be able to a effect the objects sought; and if fair means fail he will also be able to make his demands felt and known by means which the Chinese Government will not, I think, be disposed to feel without a mendment. [Cheers.] Therefore it is a most gratifying thing to find the feelings of the country so unanimously expressed on this question, and you may depend upon it the very remoteness of the scene of action and the limited nature of the contest which is going on will make it more striking to foreign countries—will more strikingly manifest the patriotic feelings of the British nation—and be productive of the best results with regard to our future relations with other countries who might otherwise be tempted to encroach and trespass upon your representative with impunity and meet with no resistance, for it is an honorable policy for a country to show itself watchful of its rights, and to stop early beginnings. You may stop beginnings with ease, but if you wait until they have arrived at difficulties of magnitude our exertions must be commensurate with the grievance; and wars which may be stopped in the commencement involve the country in exertions and expense which may be avoided by timely action and more prudent conduct. [Cheers.] And therefore, gentlemen, it is quite a mistake to say that those public officers who take timely measures to stop early beginnings are fond of war; they are the best guardians of peace, for it is only when the matter is known, and has advanced itself, and our representative has been watchful to prevent encroachment, it is only then that we can expect that respect and abstinence from those encroachments upon its rights and from offering it insults. [Cheers.]

We are often told to look to our cousins in the United States as models of conduct, and there are some things in which they might just as well look to us (a laugh), but if we beg of the advocates of the peace to address themselves with "eyes right" to the United States, pray what did their commander-in-chief in this very difficulty in China in comparison with our officers civil and naval? Why, there was a boat belonging to one of their ships of war fired at. Well, that was a great insult, but there might have been an excuse made for it that we were engaged in these hostilities with China, and it might have been said that this American was taken for an English boat. It is true the officers in that boat waved the American flag, but the Chinese might have said that is a well known strategy of war, and you wave the American flag to deceive us; we believed it was an English boat, and therefore fired at it. But did the American commander, like Sir MICHAEL SEYMOUR and Sir JOHN BOWRING, demand an apology and demand that a similar thing should not occur again? Not the least in the world. He inverted the usual course which is said to be characteristic of energy—a word and a blow—he put it thus—a blow and a word (cheers and laughter.) He began to knock down the fort, and after destroying that fort he sent to the Commissioner to say an insult had been offered to his flag, and he hoped for an apology (cheers) and an assurance to the effect that it would not happen again (cheers;) and he gave twenty-four hours for this apology and explanation to be sent to him; but before these twenty-four hours had expired the ship which was lying near this fort saw something or other going on which the officers shrewdly imagined were for renewed defence, if not for renewed attack. Well, this American officer, without waiting and writing to the United States to know what to do—without waiting for orders from Washington—he did not wait even for the 24 hours to expire, but he said, "No, no, Mr. Chinaman, this won't do; you are throwing up batteries and putting in fresh guns," and he commenced the demolition of the fort and took possession of these guns before the time had expired which he had given the Chinese Commissioner in order to make his apology and explanation. [Cheers.]

Well, then, we are told our officers were precipitate; but, gentlemen, they went step by step; there was an interval of time in order to enable the Chinese Commissioner, if he chose, to make an apology and promise of reparation in the future, which at that time had been demanded. [Hear.] But then it was said that Sir JOHN BOWRING and Sir MICHAEL SEYMOUR made a second demand which the officers in China had been forbidden to make in dispatches sent out some eight or ten years ago; and a noble friend of mine, with whom I was talking before the division in the House of Lords, said he should vote against the Government, and that his reason for doing so was a dispatch I had written in 1847. I said don't attach importance to what any gentleman wrote in 1847, but look to the circumstances of the present case. Now, the case at the present is different. We said, in 1847, don't you be on unfriendly terms with the Chinese Government at Canton, but trade in the usual course; don't you commence hostilities to obtain the fulfillment of our rights according to the treaty of Nankin, which gives the British subjects a right to trade in every one of the five towns, of which Canton was one. True, we think there would be advantage in it—a manifest advantage there would be if the British merchant out of the town and the Chinese merchant in the town could hold a direct communication instead of through agents, brokers, and people of that sort, for the British merchant at Canton is at the mercy of the class of people; he cannot carry on his business advantageously as in the other four towns; therefore there is a real value in the thing. Besides, in order to keep the English out of Canton, the Chinese Commissioner had ordered the people to insult them, while the people outside treat the English respectfully. Sir JOHN BOWRING himself, accompanied by two or three gentlemen and two English ladies, walked round the suburbs of Canton, and he says that he found the Chinese themselves a trading people; that they are not a cruel or insulting race, as the mandarins are, and if left to themselves would treat our people with the same civility and good will as outside Canton, or as they are treated at Shanghai; and that everywhere else where the Chinese and English are associated, everything went on the most friendly and comfortable footing. Therefore, I say, the obstacle was artfully created, and its removal would be attended with commercial advantage to the merchants at Hong Kong and Canton. But we said don't interrupt peaceful relations for the sake of this advantage, but it was interrupted on other grounds, and then it was obvious that the personal intercourse between our officers and Chinese officers would and might probably tend to settle the difficulties on the occasion, and if continued in the future, to prevent future misunderstanding also. Well, that which Sir JOHN BOWRING told Sir MICHAEL SEYMOUR to ask for was not for permission which I and my colleagues had desired the Superintendent and Plenipotentiary not to acquire by force of arms—it was not to enter Canton—it was the right to have personal intercourse between our authorities at Canton and the authorities within the town—it was for a freer communication, and not for the indiscriminate entrance of all British subjects. I say it was a proper demand, properly demanded, and there could be no pretence to refuse, and the obvious effect of it would have been to prevent future mistakes, and to heal the present differences, and, supposing Commissioner YEH did not mean to bring about a rupture, I will undertake to say if we had had direct communication at the time the Arrow was boarded and her crew carried away—I say if it had been possible for Sir JOHN BOWRING or Sir MICHAEL SEYMOUR to explain the nature of the question, and to argue the question in a friendly nature with the Chinese authorities—the result which has since taken place would have been prevented. Well, gentlemen, great injustice has been done to Sir JOHN BOWRING, [hear] Sir JOHN BOWRING was chosen by me to go as consul to Canton, and when a vacancy in the government at Canton occurred he was transferred to it by Lord CLARENDON. But what is Sir JOHN BOWRING, and what was he? It has been said to be the fashion to place in responsible situations none but members of the aristocracy—it has been the fashion to say these appointments go by favor, and not by merit. He was not a member of the aristocracy; he had not a powerful influence to protect and support him; he was a man like many others in this country, and as many others will, I hope, continue to be—he raised himself by his own ability and exertions [cheers]—by his industry, his talents, and his attainments he raised himself to the high position in which he is now placed. Was he a man of wild temper—a firebrand? Why he was formerly secretary of the Peace Society [cheers,] a man of the quietest, most kindly and benevolent disposition—a man, I believe, who never had a quarrel with mortal man, who loved peace, whose life had been devoted to questions connected with the social intercourse of nations, with commerce, with trade, with the removal of all impediments which checked and confined the intercourse of nations—he had been employed in conjunction with Lord CLARENDON to arrange a better tariff of duties between England and France, and by him also employed to induce the government of Austria to liberalise their tariff with a view of increasing the commercial relations between Austria and England, and he was therefore peculiarly adapted to the office, which consisted mainly in guarding the commercial interests of this country in our commercial relations with a nation like China, and he was therefore one of the last men to misuse his power or to plunge his country into difficulties and war. [Hear, hear.] And, therefore, it would have been the greatest baseness for the sake of a few votes to try to reverse the adverse verdict of the House of Commons by throwing over an agent who performed his duty to the best of his ability, and whose conduct in our hearts we approved. We felt that every Englishman with a British heart in his bosom would have done exactly the same thing under similar circumstances. [Cheers.] I will venture to say that I could name some gentlemen who are the organs of the peace party who would not have been less vigorous than Sir JOHN BOWRING. It was no disparagement to Sir JOHN BOWRING in appointing Lord ELGIN to go out to settle this difficulty. When special difficulties arise special men are sent out to settle them. Lord ELGIN has thus gone out without superseding Sir JOHN BOWRING, who will continue to be what he is, trusted and confided in by the English Government. Lord ELGIN's mission is for a special purpose, and when it is finished, as I hope it will be in a twelvemonth, or a little more, he will return and leave Sir JOHN BOWRING in exactly the same position in which he is now. Well, gentlemen, I have taken advantage of your kindness. [Cries of "Go on!"] I have made what is a great deal more than an after-dinner speech ought to be, but I am sure you feel a great interest in the events passing, and I felt it my duty to give these explanations, such as they are, for I am satisfied the more these matters are looked into the more they are understood, and the more the details are looked into by the people of this country the more the nation will be confirmed in the choice of representatives, the more we shall feel that we stand upon sure ground, and that this week, and the next week, and the week after will give opportunity of showing us the sentiments of the electors of every part of the country. I beg to thank you on the part of myself and colleagues, and I assure you the moments which official duties enable me to spare among my friends in this town are among the most agreeable and happy. [Loud and long continued cheering.]

THE TRIUMPH OF LORD PALMERSTON AND OVERWHELMING DEFEAT OF THE OPPOSITION.

From the London Times, March 30.

The appeal to the people has been answered with a force and distinctness beyond our anticipations—we may even say our wishes. A mild rebuke and moderate discouragement were the utmost that we hoped or desired for a policy which was rather factious and mischievous than wholly unprincipled, and we certainly did not expect the signal retribution which has fallen on the heads of its authors. The League has disappeared from Parliament. COBDEN has been beaten by 246 votes at Huddersfield; BRIGHT and MILNER GIBSON by from 2,000 to 3,000 votes at Manchester; ARMITAGE is beaten at Salford by a Ministerial stranger only two or three days in the field; WALMSLEY is thrown out at Leicester, and, nearer home, at the Tower Hamlets, we lose the familiar name of Sir W. CLAY. LAYARD loses his seat at Aylesbury, and Sir F. BARING has scarcely saved his at Portsmouth, which he has represented for twenty-five years. Mr. GLADSTONE loses the only support of Mr. R. PHILLIMORE, who has been paired out with his brother, and, for the present, the quieter vote of Sir S. NORTHCOTE. On the other side are two remarkable casualties. Mr. F. PEEL has been beaten at Bury, and Admiral BERKELEY, First Naval Lord, has been turned out of his seat at Gloucester by Sir. R. W. CARDEN. Among the new members, the return of CONINGHAM for Brighton counts at least one against the loss of some strong Liberals elsewhere, and KINCLARKE at Bridewater is compensation for the loss of LAYARD. The results of two severe struggles may be set off one against the other. Lord JOHN RUSSELL has come in third on the poll in the city, throwing out his antagonist, Mr. RAIKES CURRIE; and Mr. BERNAL OSBORNE brought in his colleague with himself against a powerful opposition at Dover. Lord John RUSSELL owes his return partly to the Tories, and partly to the grateful exertions of the community whose political rights he has advocated with so much perseverance and so little success, but whose claims cannot be again postponed after the reiterated decision of the constituency in their favor. Such are some of the incidents of only half the General Election. The Ministerial gain already is over 20, and more may confidently be expected from the counties and other constituencies yet to declare themselves.

Sir DE LACY EVANS is the first-born of the new Parliament. His election was the first declared, and he is consequently entitled to act as Speaker until the regular functionary be appointed. A better representative for Westminster than the gallant General could scarcely be found, and his former colleague, Sir JOHN SHELLEY is returned with him.

From the London Times, April 1.

The elections have changed the whole face of the political heavens. We are no longer as we were a fortnight ago, as regards either this Chinese question or a dozen others of older and nearer interest. People do not now ask who will be in the new Parliament, but exclaim: "What a Parliament there will be out of doors!" The expurgation not only of vicious, but even of some meritorious elements, proceeds almost too rapidly. When the House of Commons meets, it will be with the serious consciousness that a great number of its most active and able spirits are discontented exiles, moving heaven and earth, and ready to go lower still, to obtain readmission. It will be in the case of the Celestial Empire, besieged by "outer barbarians," or "foreign devils," as the vagrant sympathies of some will entitle them to be called. Outside of the House, agitating haranguing, writing, plotting, combining, and all but coalescing, will be COBDEN, BRIGHT, M. GIBSON, MIALL, and W. J. FOX; there will be Sir J. WALMSLEY, A. PELLATT, Sir W. CLAY, WILKINSON, and OLIVEIRA; there will be LAYARD, and other free knights; there will also be absent CARDWELL, ROUNDELL PALMER, the two PHILLIMORES, BUTT, M. CHAMBERS, and a host of others, more or less distinguished, or hoping some day to distinguish themselves.

All of these will be in outer darkness, yet not at all hopeless of readmission. Indoors there will be positive gaps in the debate—cries for COBDEN or M. GIBSON, and no COBDEN to stand up. His own purge has operated too effectively by half, for he has turned the House out of doors. Like the old lady in the nursery rhyme, he has sold his bed and now lies upon straw. In the House we should think the result will be a little more calmness and decency of discussion, and a little less of that peculiar style of oratory which has recently been imported from "the bright region of the setting sun" into the British House of Commons.

We may be sure there will be a prodigious cry for a new Reform Bill. It stands to reason there must be one.

In the present instance it is evident that some of the disappointed candidates must have sadly underrated the force of those feelings which go under the general name of patriotism. Was it reasonably to be expected that the population should rise to advocate the flag of a fellow like YEH to pull down the British flag flying over a peaceful vessel engaged in British trade, and carry away the crew, for the purpose of beheading an old man who was said to be the father of a pirate? Englishmen must be very much altered since we formed our first and freshest impressions of them, if any ingenuity whatever can persuade them not only into allowing this, but even into an enthusiasm for it and its author, his defenders, and abettors. No Parliamentary reform would have made any difference here. No imaginable apparatus, no scale of suffrage, no equality of divisions, nothing whatever short of driving the voters up to the hustings and making them vote for Messrs. COBDEN and GLADSTONE on penalty of death, would have affected the result. It is the old English heart and the simple English nature which have done the work here. From all kinds of constituencies, great and small, popular and close, there has been the same result. For our own part we never desired or even imagined, that an appeal would be made to the people on such a question. To us it seems the height of absurdity that any men professing to be statesmen should force such an appeal upon the Minister. He had no choice, however, but to accept it in behalf of the people, and, confident as we were as to the result, we were satisfied the appeal had been made. That satisfaction increases every day, and England may now be congratulated on a Parliament elected not upon any measure or political difference, but simply on an appeal to the natural feelings and common sense of the people.

OPPOSITION VIEWS.

From the London Star, April 1.

It is, however, not to be denied that by the dishonest outcry which Lord PALMERSTON and his satellites raised about the Canton business, they did succeed to a great extent in so far throwing dust into the eyes of the people as to render them comparatively blind to those great questions of progressive reform so urgently demanding attention. If, as Lord JOHN intimates, the next House of Commons will contain a larger number of earnest Liberals than the last, this result, we may be quite sure, has been brought about, not in consequence, but in spite of the Prime Minister's tactics, his object, most evidently, as appears from his incessant repetition, in very choice Billingsgate, of his violent invectives against Commissioner YEH and the Chinese, was to keep the eyes of the country fixed upon that one object, while with cunning sleight of hand he filched their votes from the constituencies before they were aware. It seems, however, that notwithstanding this dexterous trick of our old political wizard, a larger number than be calculated on of advanced Reformers having slipped into the House, more certainly by accident than by any wise vigilance of the electors, many of whom showed themselves most eager to be deceived. If Lord JOHN's estimate on this point be correct, then we may be very certain that the fate of Lord PALMERSTON's Government is sealed. We believe him to be utterly deveid of both the capacity and the inclination to organize wise and comprehensive measures of organic reform. His experience has been that of the diplomatist; his ability, which is undeniably great, is principally administrative. And what is lacking in the Premier himself will hardly be supplied by the members of his Cabinet.

But will Lord JOHN RUSSELL prove himself equal to the occasion? Will he, eschewing those small peddling compromises which he has hitherto dignified, with the name of new Reform bills, present to the country something likely to arouse its determination and enthusiasm? In the speech which he delivered yesterday, there is a hearty, ringing tone that promises well. He has told the citizens, and most truly, that the battle recently fought for him has been a people's battle. It was the people that came to his rescue and bore him on their shields to victory after he had been abandoned by the pompous plutocracy of Downing-street. And more than this, we trust his lordship will not have failed to observe that the unfranchised people rallied around him with as generous a devotion as the electors, attended his steps as he retired from the Guildhall, and cheered him with the utmost earnestness and fervour.

Indeed we have little doubt that if the intelligent working men of this country had, in any numbers, possessed the franchise during the present election, we should not now be looking forward to a House of Commons without such men as COBDEN, BRIGHT, GIBSON, LAYARD and MIALL. Will Lord JOHN deal frankly and generously with this class by giving them such a share in the rights of Freemen as will rescue the representation from the exclusive power of the shopocracy and the public houses, which constitute, at present, the least intelligent as well as the most timid and corrupt portion of our constituencies? There is a great opportunity open to him. Let us hope that he will not shrink from seizing it with boldness and decision.

Suspension of an American Banking House in Paris.

From the Paris Correspondence of the London Globe.

Messrs. GREENE & Co., the oldest-established American banking firm of Paris, have suspended payment, to the consternation of the United States colony in this capital. The cause of this failure is attributed to imprudent advances made on French merchandise dispatched to Nicaragua and other Central or South American States. The liabilities are not exactly known, but they are heavy. Much inconvenience will be experienced by Americans traveling on the Continent, who are provided with letters of credit from the firm in question. American families residing in Paris, who may have had deposit accounts with the late firm, will suffer less annoyance, as Messrs. MONROE & Co. have, I believe, expressed their willingness to make the necessary advances to this class.

A Policeman Murdered by Burglars—Escape of the Assassins.

STEPHEN P. HARDENBROOK, a Ninth Ward Policeman, was murdered in West-street about 1 o'clock yesterday morning, by two burglars whom he discovered issuing from a clothing store with bundles in their hands, and whom he attempted to arrest. On seeing the rascals emerge from the store No. 495 West-street, he gave the alarm-rap and rushed upon them. One of them fled, but the other stubbornly stood his ground, and with him the officer grappled. The fellow resisted desperately, and before the officer could overpower him, the first burglar returned to the aid of his companion, and during the struggle that ensued the officer was stabbed with a dirk in the left side by one of the burglars, who then fled. HARDENBROOK, unconscious of the extent of the injury which he had received, chased them to the corner of Perry and Washington-streets, where, exhausted by the loss of blood, he fell to the sidewalk. Officers DOWNING and others, who were attracted by the alarm which had been given, soon afterwards came up and conveyed him to the Station House. He was, when found, unable to speak, but after having received surgical attendance he revived sufficiently to give an account of the manner in which he received his fatal wound. He was then taken to his residence at No. 48 Troy-street, where he died at 4½ o'clock in the morning.

A thorough but unsuccessful search was made for the dagger with which HARDENBROOK was stabbed. The sheath was found, and judging from its size, the dagger must have been at least five inches in length. Clothing to the amount of $150 was taken by the burglars from the store from which they were seen to emerge, but all of it was subsequently found upon the sidewalk where the struggle took place, with the exception of a coat and vest, which it is probable the thieves carried away upon their persons.

Mr. HARDENBROOK was a native of this City, and 31 years of age. He leaves a wife and child. He was appointed upon the Police in 1854. As an officer and a citizen, he was much esteemed.

At 10 o'clock yesterday forenoon, Coroner CONNERY proceeded to the late residence of deceased and commenced an inquest upon the body. A few witnesses were examined, but their testimony offered no facts additional to those above given. Drs. FINNELL and WELTJE, who made the post mortem, explained the nature and extent of the wound, which penetrated the lobe of the left lung. The inquest was then adjourned until to-day at 10 o'clock A. M.

The Councilmen last evening adopted a resolution offering a reward of $1,000 for the discovery of the murderers, to whom as yet there is no clue.

Charge of Obtaining Goods under False Pretences—Transactions to the Extent of $90,000.

MOSES BETTMAN, a well-known and extensive dry goods importer, doing business in Liberty-street was arrested on Monday last and taken before Justice DAVIES, of the Supreme Court, on a charge of committing extensive frauds upon his creditors. The complaint was made by Messrs. MITCHELL & POTT, importers, at No. 56 Broadway, who allege that BETTMAN obtained upwards of $90,000 worth of goods on time, within the past three months, for which he never intended to pay, and that he disposed of these goods to parties at a price below that for which he agreed to pay for them himself; and that some of them he forwarded in the original packages to Philadelphia, where they were sold at auction at prices much less than their original cost. It is further charged that the defendant caused fictitious entries of sales to be made in his books, with a view to deceive, and that on the 27th of March he removed from his shelves between $8,000 to $9,000 worth of goods, and hid the same in a hardware store. All these things, it appears, he did with a view to failing and defrauding his creditors. This intention, it is charged, he more than once averred to a certain party to whom also he detailed his plans of proceeding.

The accused was ordered by the Justice to find bail, to appear, in the sum of $5,000, and failing to do this, he was committed to Eldridge-street jail, where he remained over night. Next day, (Tuesday,) Messrs. BERNHEIMER Brothers, furnished the necessary security, and he was thereupon liberated. An injunction was granted, restraining him from removing, or disposing of, in any way, such of the stock as yet remains in his store.

BETTMAN, it appears, is indebted to MITCHELL & POTT in the sum of $31,000, and largely, also, to BOWEN & McNAMEE, and other firms. He has heretofore stood well with business men. The whole affair has greatly exercised the dry goods importers.

Fearful Steamboat Explosion.

SIXTY FILLIBUSTERS KILLED.

WASHINGTON, Wednesday, April 15.

The Steamship Isabel arrived at Charleston on Sunday night, bringing Havana and Key West dates to the 10th instant.

The Steamship Tennessee, from Aspinwall, via. San Juan, had arrived at Key West, bringing very important news from Nicaragua.

Col. LOCKRIDGE, who at last accounts was threatening to attack Castillo, had abandoned the intention and retreated from his position, leaving the whole of the San Juan River in complete possession of the Costa Ricans.

A dreadful explosion had occurred on board the old transit steamer J. N. Scott, and sixty lives (Fillibusters) are reported to have been lost.

The Tennessee had a number of LOCKRIDGE's command on board, including about fifty sick and wounded.

The Tennessee would sail from Key West on the evening of the 10th for New-York, where she may be expected to-day or to-morrow.

Among the arrivals at Havana on the 8th, were the brigs Argo, from Boston, Yankee Blade, from Portland, and schooner R. Curtis, from Boston. 9th, barks N. Place, from New-York, Sophio, do., Abiela, from Portland, and brigs E. A. Reed, New-York, and Cuba, from Portland.

OFFICIAL NOTIFICATION OF THE FAILURE OF THE NEGOTIATIONS WITH NEW-GRANADA—THE NAVAL COURTS OF INQUIRY, ETC.

WASHINGTON, Wednesday, April 15.

The Administration have been officially advised by Messrs. MORSE and BOWLIN of their unsuccessful efforts to treat with the Government of New-Granada. The affairs of the Isthmus were, to-day, a matter of Cabinet consultation, and excluded all other subjects. Our Government resolved that American rights in that quarter shall be respected. It will shortly send thither four or five vessels with such instructions to their commanders as will, it is believed, consummate the object and lead to the settlement of the existing difficulties. The Administration are determined to take a decided stand.

The third Naval Court of Inquiry will meet next Monday. It is composed of Captains ENGLEBY, NEWTON and STRINGHAM, neither of whom was promoted by the late retiring Board.

The Secretary of the Navy, owing to a pressure of other business, has not acted on the findings in the four cases decided by the Naval Court of Inquiry. The seals are not even broken.

Mr. HARRIS' salutatory as Editor and Proprietor of the Union appeared in that journal this morning. He says he brings to the duties of his position considerable experience in editorial service, and no small share of zeal and faith and devotion to the great principles of the Democratic Party.

The Union will appear to-morrow under the auspices of its new editor. Colonel CARVER, of Pennsylvania, has been retained as assistant editor. The reports that EDMUND BURKE and others were engaged is altogether untrue.

Three houses on West-street, Georgetown, including that of Commodore CASSIN, were destroyed by fire, this afternoon, and another considerably damaged. Loss, $30,000. The fire is the most destructive that has occurred in Georgetown for 30 years.

SHIP PANTHER ASHORE IN THE HARBOR—BANQUET TO THE OFFICERS OF THE MERRIMAC—CASE OF REV. O. P. FARRINGTON.

BOSTON, Wednesday, April 15.

The ship Panther, BISHOP, from Calcutta Jan. 13, for Boston, went ashore yesterday at 4 o'clock P. M., near the west head of Nahant, at the entrance of Lynn Bay. She has seven feet of water in the hold. She lays in a good position, and will get off after lightening. The steamer R. B. Forbes will go to her this morning with men and a steam pump.

The members of the City Government gave a dinner to the officers of the steam-frigate Merrimac last evening, at the Revere House, at which speeches were made by Mayor RICE, Capt. PENDERGRAST, and other officers and gentlemen present.

The Church Council at Cohasset, after investigating the charges of adultery, &c., against Rev. O. P. FARRINGTON, voted six for acquittal and three for conviction. It is understood that Mr. FARRINGTON will vacate the pulpit.

Death of an Editor.

CHARLESTON, Tuesday, April 14.

H. M. CUSHMAN, assistant editor of the Charleston Courier, died last night.

☞ The American Institute had an informal meeting last evening to receive nominations of officers for the ensuing evening. The annual meeting for the election of officers takes place on the first Thursday in May.

☞ Where are the garroters? Only two months ago somebody enjoyed their attention every night of the week. What has so suddenly choked them off?

The Great Fire in Baltimore.

SEVERAL WAREHOUSES DESTROYED—HEARTFUL LOSS OF LIFE.

From the American, of Wednesday.

At 8 o'clock last evening the bell of the Mechanical sounded the alarm for a fire in the home district. On reaching the vicinity of Charles and Lombard streets, the streets were so densely clouded with smoke that the locality of the fire could not be discovered for some moments, and it was with great difficulty the firemen could proceed with their work in laying hose and stationing their apparatus. In about five minutes, however, a dense volume of flame rose from the roof and rear of the three magnificent five-story warehouses recently erected on Charles-street, a few doors above Lombard, and which were owned by Mr. ELIAS LEWIS, of Harford County.

The centre warehouse, occupied by R. EDWARDS, Jr., & Co., as a wholesale glass-ware establishment

COURT OF COMMON PLEAS—GENERAL TERM.

THE LIEN LAW—TO WHAT EXTENT THE FURNISHER OF MATERIALS HAS A LIEN.

John F. Cunningham vs. David Jones.—F. INGRAHAM, Judge.—The plaintiff seeks to recover from the defendant, under the mechanics' lien law, for work done by him for the contractor with the owner.

The referee has found that the defendant (the owner) made a contract with George W. Burwick to erect on his land an addition to his brewery.

That there was no stipulation in respect to the sum or price to be paid, except that the labor was to be days' work.

That the plaintiff did furnish the materials as claimed by him.

And that before the building was completed, Burwick absconded and discontinued the work.

From the evidence it appears that the work was abandoned before the building was inclosed.

The right of the plaintiff to recover depends upon the question whether the contractor had a claim which he could have enforced against the owner at any time before he absconded. If there was nothing then due from the owner, there is no fund out of which the claim can be collected from the defendant.

If there was any contract in the cause (as to which I express no opinion, the referee having found that there was one) it was an entire contract and not divisible as to the time of payment. The agreement was to erect an addition to a building, without any specification as to the time of payment. The law in such case requires the whole work to be done before the contractor can call for his payment. A mere voluntary payment on account does not alter the rights of the parties.

Performance of the entire contract was a condition precedent to payment, and the plaintiff was bound to show such performance before the defendant became liable to the contractor.

McMillan vs. Vanderlip, 19 J. R. 156. Jennings vs. Camp, 13 J. R. 94. Faxon vs. Mansfield, 2 Mass., R 147. Champlain vs. Rowley, 18 Wend. 187.

There are cases where a substantial compliance has been held sufficient to take the case out of the rule, but I know of no case where that has been extended to cases of contracts left half finished, and exposing the contracting party to great injury from such abandonment. In the language of Judge Spencer, it was never intended to embrace the case of a wilful dereliction of the contract when partly executed by one of the parties without the assent and against the will of the other."

In White vs. Hewitt, 1 E. D. Smith p. 395, this question distinctly arose, and the Court say it is not law that a party contracting to perform a specific job, may prosecute it so far as he thinks proper, and then abandon it unfinished without the fault or assent of the party with whom he contracts, and then sue and recover for so much labor as he has chosen to devote to the undertaking. See also Neville vs. Frost, 2 E. D., Smith 62.

The omission to state the compensation in the contract does not alter the rule. The defendant would be bound to pay what the work and materials were worth, but he had a right to insist that the contract should be first completed. If the contractor wanted any other terms of payment, he should have stipulated for it in his contract.

The judgment must be reversed.

Before Hon. Judge I. Graham.

A PERSON CANNOT BE ARRESTED FOR MALICIOUS PROSECUTION TILL THE ACTION IS TERMINATED

Gustavus A. Mazer vs. Amant Duplant.—INGRAHAM, F. J.—The order for arrest was founded on an affidavit showing that plaintiff had been arrested in an action against him, and averring that such action was malicious.

The supposed false imprisonment is merged in the alleged malicious prosecution, and the remedy, if any, is for the latter cause.

The affidavits in reference to this matter are defective in not showing that the action in which the plaintiff was arrested has been terminated—such fact should appear either to hold to bail or to sustain the plaintiff's case on the trial. I understand from the counsel that the action is still pending.

This is conclusive on this motion. (4 Wend, 501.)

William Lane vs. David McLellan.—Referred to James Maurice.

Elizabeth Clarke vs. John Clarkson.—Motion for leave to issue execution granted.

Antonia Mota vs. William R. Foster.—Commission granted; application to put off cause, if reached before, to be made at Trial Term. No stay granted.

COURT OF GENERAL SESSIONS.

Before Hon. Recorder Smith.

The Jury in the case of Rost and Kohler, charged with rape, after having been twenty-one hours in deliberation, came into Court yesterday morning and returned a verdict against the prisoners, of "Guilty of assault and battery, with intent to commit rape." The prisoners' counsel asked for time to prepare a bill of exceptions, which the Recorder granted, and sentence was accordingly deferred.

A man named Henry Faben, who was arrested on the night of the 5th instant, as he was leaving the store of Mr. William Hartye, corner of Washington and Liberty streets, into which he had broken, with a quantity of stolen property in his possession, was arraigned and pleaded not guilty. He was immediately tried and convicted of burglary in the third degree, as his was not known to the police as an old offender, the Recorder was consequently lenient towards him, awarding him only two years and six months in the State Prison.

AN ORATORICAL BURGLAR—A NOVEL SCENE IN COURT.

A man well known to the authorities as a hardened thief and burglar, but whose education and natural abilities are far above the average, was tried yesterday for burglary. Mrs. Catharine Merwin dwells at No. 196 Madison-street, and on the same floor with that lady, in an adjoining room, dwells Miss Stewart, who, in Mrs. Merwin's absence, keeps the key of her apartment. On March 27, Mrs. Merwin intrusted her key to her friend, as usual, and went out. She had not been long gone when Miss Stewart, having occasion to go in, and opened her door to ascertain the cause. To her astonishment, she saw the prisoner in the act of quitting Mrs. Merwin's room, which he had opened with a false key. The courageous lady seized him by the collar, but he tore himself from her grasp, leaped over the bannister of the stairs, and fled into the street, hotly pursued by Miss Stewart, who soon put two Police officers on his track. After a long chase, he was overtaken and captured. On being examined at the station-house, six skeleton keys were found in his pocket.

On his trial, yesterday, although he had a lawyer to defend him, he ignored that gentleman's presence altogether, and insisted on pleading his own cause. On a former occasion, on a trial for burglary, he addressed the Jury in a speech of two hours' length, which was characterized by those who heard it, as really a fine affair. It did not, however, save him from going to the State Prison for five years. He spoke for about three-quarters of an hour. He said he was born in Philadelphia, and was 26 years old. His last place of residence was Williamsburg. By profession a book-agent, his pride and profit were to disseminate knowledge, and to sow in good soil the blessings of learning, and the starry truths of science. He understood the technicalities of the law, and would not suffer himself to stand in that Court as a burglar. He had committed no burglary, but he was guilty of another offence, that of a "first intent to commit a larceny"—an intent which he abandoned after entering the complainant's room, when he found that there was nothing there worth stealing. The Court would instruct them (the Jury) that when there was no evidence that a burglary had been committed, they could not convict of burglary, and when nothing had been stolen, where was there any larceny? Let them look rationally at the situation as a defendant, and say if he did not stand in the position of an injured man. He merely looked into the complainant's room—was there any harm in looking? He took nothing—there was nothing worth his while to take.

The professional care with which all this and a very great deal more was said would have been creditable to the best lawyer at that or any other bar. The Jury listened attentively, as did everybody in the Court, but without leaving their seats they remorselessly found him guilty. On being asked what he had to say why judgment should not be pronounced upon him according to law, he replied that there was one circumstance which he had forgot to mention. After his committal to the City Prison on this charge, he had sent a petition to a Justice of the Supreme Court to obtain another examination the commission having been violated on his first examination. The petition was not attended to, but in a day or two afterwards, a lawyer came to the prison, and said that he had been sent by that Justice of the Supreme Court, to take charge of his defence. Into his hands he (the prisoner) resigned his case, but not being able after that to communicate with him, he could not say how it would have been conducted. Upon his arraignment last Monday, he had intended to have pleaded guilty to an attempt to commit larceny, but his counsel advised him not to do so, and having so advised, refused now on actual trial to offer any defence. Consequently he (the prisoner) had had to take up the thread of his defence and conduct it alone. His counsel had promised that his numerous witnesses should be forthcoming, but not a witness was there in Court. If this account of things was inconsistent with a new trial he had nothing more to say. It only remained for him to bend to the verdict of the Jury and the sentence of the Court.

The Recorder, in passing sentence, told the prisoner that his counsel had acted judiciously in not offering any defence. "Your character," said his Honor, "is too well known. You have outraged justice for a long time, having been previously twice convicted, and on each occasion serving out your prison term. Had the abilities which you undoubtedly possess been devoted to honest purposes, you would have been placed in a far different position. You are one of those persons who are entitled to no sympathy. The ignorant, the uneducated, those whose minds have received no enlightenment, are often objects of compassion when they commit crime; for you no pity can be felt." The Recorder sentenced Mr. Harsen to five years in the State Prison.

A case of grand larceny was then called on. John Donnelly, a young and good-looking Irishman, was charged with stealing a cart, the property of John Cualne. The cart had been exposed to the weather for a long time, and it was doubtful whether it was of sufficient value to make the offence one of grand larceny. The prisoner was undefended. He made, perhaps, the best defence he could, by pleading for mercy for the sake of his family. The Jury did not disdain the plea, but found him guilty of petit larceny only. The Recorder was lenient also, and sent him six months to the Penitentiary. The prisoner, with tears in his eyes, thanked the Jury for the moderation of their verdict.

The Court adjourned for the day.

KINGS COUNTY COURT OF SESSIONS—APRIL 15.

Before Hon. Samuel D. Morris, County Judge, and Justices Emmons and Schoonmaker.

Dennis Haggerty, indicted for assault and battery with intent to kill Samuel C. Felt, was placed upon trial and convicted. The offence was committed on the 7th of February last, at the house of prisoner on Flushing-avenue. Mr. Felt was a Deputy Sheriff, and went to dispossess prisoner, when he attacked him with an axe.

Ann Martin pleaded not guilty to an indictment for assault and battery, with intent to kill, and was sent back to jail to await trial.

Wm. Smith, indicted for burglary in stealing a coat from House No. 301 Navy-street, was convicted of petit larceny under the instruction of the Court.

In the case of Francis O'Donnell and James McGinness boys, indicted for burglary, a plea of guilty of petit larceny was accepted. The former was sentenced to 8 and the latter 30 days' imprisonment in the Penitentiary.

BROOKLYN CITY COURT.—APRIL 15.

Before Hon. S. D. Culver, City Judge.

The Contempt Case.—H. B. Fenton, Esq., purged himself of contempt this morning by affidavit.

Vincent Faben vs. John Morrison.—This suit was brought to recover money alleged to be due under a contract. The case was commenced yesterday, but this morning, finding that a long account would have to be examined, by consent the case was referred to Alexander Haddan, Esq.

NEW-YORK LIVE STOCK MARKET.

Prepared every week, expressly for the NEW-YORK DAILY, SEMI-WEEKLY, and WEEKLY TIMES, by a careful and experienced Reporter.

WEDNESDAY EVENING, April 15, 1857.

The principal Market Places are the WASHINGTON DROVE YARDS, 44TH-STREET, Browning's, on Sixth-street; Chamberlin's, on Robinson-street; and O'Brien's, on Sixth-street. Our reports refer to these regular markets. Irregular sales are sometimes made at Bergen Hill, N. J., and from the Hudson River Boats.

The great sales day at the Washington Yards is on WEDNESDAY of each week. The reports from all the yards are made up for the preceding week to the evening of that day.

Cattle	1075	Sheep	641
Hogs	8350	Horses	22
Calves	643

Ohio	796	Massachusetts	—
New-York	609	Pennsylvania	—
Illinois	985	Texas	—
Kentucky	—	Connecticut	—
Indiana	308	Michigan	—
Virginia	—	New-Jersey	—
Iowa	—	Wisconsin	—

Beeves are sold by the estimated dead weight of the four quarters; the so-called "fifth quarter" (hide and tallow) is not reckoned in here as it is in Boston and some other cities. When cattle are weighed or estimated alive, the dead weight is reckoned at a certain number of pounds to the 100 lbs. of live weight, as agreed upon. The general rule in this market for medium cattle is 56 lbs. to the 100; 44 lbs. being allowed for the "fifth quarter" and offal.

The average prices to-day, as compared with last week, are about the same—that is for stock of the same grades.

We quote:

REMARKS UPON THE BEEF MARKET.

Contrary to general expectation, the yards on Forty-fourth-street were pretty well stocked with Cattle this morning. Including a few sales of last evening there were 2,483 for to day's market, and 2,770 for the week, which is 200 above the total City receipts for the preceding week. The total receipts at the four City markets have been 3,286, or 3,326, including 40 retailed at Bergen....Owing to the light stock last Wednesday and the increased demand incident to the close of the Lenten Fast, most of the animals found purchasers to-day at prices about equal to those obtained on last market day. The average of all sales we place a little higher, not on account of any advance of the same grades, but from the decidedly superior general quality of the Cattle offered to-day....The highest rates were obtained early in the day, as there was a gradual decline towards evening, especially on the poorer grades....The Cattle did not show well, owing to the frequent rains of late....The yards were in a very muddy condition, and the frequent showers throughout the day, helped to render the market dull and anything but pleasant. There were, however, but few animals unsold at the time we left the yards. Eastern dealers bought freely at Albany this week. We learned of sales of some 700 for Brighton, Providence, &c.

The following are the principal lots on sale to-day, including a few disposed of last evening:

We present, as usual, a few extracts from our copious notes of the transactions of this day:

EGESTEIN & WESTHAMMER sold on their own account 140 fair Indiana Cattle, estimated at 650 lbs., at about 11c. average. Also, 48 good distillery Beeves, rated 700 lbs, at 12c. ₩ lb.

JOHNSON & TEMPLETON furnished 80 Indiana Cattle, a portion of which were of fine quality; selling by BEACH & SMITH at 11c.@13c. C. GWINN bought five at $117 each, or 13c. ₩ lb.

GEO. AYRAULT was selling 103 good Illinois Cattle for D. A. YOCOMB, judged 825 lbs. net, at an average of near 12c., a few of the best at 12½c. They were running out at about $100 each. Also, for PRUYN & RING, 31 coarse, New York still-fed Cattle, at about 11¼c; estimated 850 lbs. B. WEBER took 13 at $100 each.

J. H. WILLIAMS sold, on his own account, 60 Ohio Cattle, most of which classed as first quality. J. IRWIN bought 20 of them, rated at 1,300 lbs., net, at $180 each, or more than 13c. ₩ lb. The balance were bringing 13c.@13¾c. ₩ lb.

ALEXANDER & VIRGIN contributed 270 good Illinois Cattle, 110 of which were selling by S. ULLERY, at about 11¾c. ₩ lb Estimated 750 lbs., net.

BROOMER & SILLECK sold, on their own account, 18 New-York and Connecticut Cattle, of prime quality. One five year-old Steer, fed by Col. FIELD, of North Salem, Westchester County, N. Y., weighed at home 2,960 lbs., and sold to B. WEBER, at $165, or about 13c. ₩ lb. One pair of six-year-old Oxen, fed by J. SCOTT, of Ridgefield, Conn., was taken by the purchaser of the Steer at $320. They were native stock, weighing at home 4,470 lbs.

PURDAM & WHEATON were selling on their own account 20 Blue Ohio beeves, which they estimated 750 lbs. net, at 12@13c ₩ lb.

MILLER, HARING & GURNEY sold for J. SHOUP 64 medium Indiana steers, rated 625 lbs., at 11@12c. Also for H. OLIN 46 New-York distillery cattle, a part of which were quite common, at about $72 each; average weight 625 lbs. net.

MEAD & HOLCOMB were disposing of 48 pair Ohio cattle, rated at 725 lbs., at an average of 11¾c. Also 25 New York distillery steers, estimated at 850 lbs., at about the same price. They were owners of both lots.

PRATT & REED contributed 109 Illinois cattle, estimated 750 to 775 lbs. net, which were sold by C. G. TEED at 12c.@13c. These were fine bullocks, and went off readily.

WELLS & HOXIE sold 44 good distillery cattle for F. LACKEY, of Wayne County, N. Y., rated at 700 lbs., for 11¾c.@12¾c. Also, one large pair of bullocks, fed by I. CHAPMAN, of Wayne County, for $290. These latter were estimated to weigh 1,900 lbs. each in the beef, and were bought by L. MARTIN.

R. R. SEYMOUR forwarded 61 more of those fine cattle fed by himself in Ross County, Ohio. They came to a good market, and brought 12¾c.@13c. ₩ lb; B. BARTRAM salesman. The owner estimated them to weigh here 925 lbs. net. B. WEBER took five of the best at $150 each, or fully 13c. ₩ lb. They were the best large lot in the yards to-day, and were sought by buyers of prime beef.

VAIL and CARY were selling on their own account 30 Ohio and 43 Illinois Cattle. The former were rated 775 lbs. of good quality, bringing 11c@12½c. The latter estimated 700 lbs. were coarser, bringing 11c@12c.

D. BELDEN sold on his own account 90 head of fine cattle from STEWART'S Chittenango distillery, at an average of $105, called 850 lbs. net. Also, 88 Ohio Cattle bought of S. M. BAKER, at 11½c@12¾c.

S. M. BAKER had several lots of cattle on sale. One of which, consisting of 88 good Ohio cattle, called 800 lbs. net were wholesaled to D. BELDEN, at about $12 ₩ 100. S. SHERMAN was selling another lot of 53 Illinois cattle, bought by BAKER, at Albany, for 11c.@12¾c. They were fair bullocks, estimated 775 lbs. net. S. M. B. also bought 33 Ohio cattle at Albany, which he wholesaled to H. ESENER.

Captain HUTCHINSON brought in 69 good beeves from Henderson County, Ill. Forty of these were fed by himself, and weighed at home an average of 1,538 lbs. The balance averaged 1,350 lbs. home weight. J. C. HOAG sold them at 11¾c.@13c. Five of them brought $110 each; three sold for $115, and four at $117 50 ₩ head.

MILCH COWS WITH CALVES.

Milch Cows are sold at each of the above yards, usually with their Calves at their sides. The prices vary somewhat with the supply and demand, and very greatly, of course, upon the milking value. The particular fancy of the buyer has also considerable to do with the price. Not unfrequently a Cow is sold at $90@$100, or even $120. The general price throughout the year for ordinary Cows is $38 to $40 or $50. Quite a number sell above $50; and more, perhaps, below $30. We often see apologies for Cows go at $20 @$25. The weekly reports from the different yards will give the weekly fluctuations.

The receipts show a slight gain over last week. Prices are nearly the same, and good cows are in fair demand.

ALLERTON reports 70 Milch Cows received during the week, selling at $30@$35 for common, $40@$50 for good, and $60@$60 for extras. But little variation since last report, with a fair trade.

BROWNING reports receipts of 73 Milch cows, selling at $25@$30 for common, $40@$50 for good, and $60@$70 for extras. Supply equal to the demand. Much of the stock is common. Selling as last week.

CHAMBERLIN reports 101 Milch Cows, selling at $25@$30 for common; $65@$45 for good; and $50@$65 for extras. A few as high as $70.

Fresh Cows continue in good supply, with a more active demand.

O'BRIEN reports 144 Milch Cows, selling, at $30@$40 for common, $40@$50 for good, and a few at $60@$65.

Market fully supplied. Quality generally good. Selling same as last week, only not as brisk.

VEAL CALVES.

Veal Calves are sold by live weight, each animal being weighed alive at the time of sale. The principal places of sale are ALLERTON'S, BROWNING'S, CHAMBERLIN'S and O'BRIEN'S.

Receipts for the past week have been large, but prices of good animals, owing, in part, to a scarcity of beef, remain unchanged. Poor young calves continue to be sent in.

ALLERTON reports 578 Veal Calves, selling for 6c.@7c.; a few at 7¾c. Market abundantly supplied. "Bobs" are plenty and sell at nominal rates.

BROWNING reports 115 Veal Calves, selling generally at 5c.@6c., live weight; a few at 6c.@6c. Supply large, especially of "bobs," which are dull at low rates.

CHAMBERLIN reports 164 Veal Calves, selling at 5½c. @7½c. Supply large and quality generally fair. Selling well at quoted prices.

O'BRIEN reports 108 Veal Calves, selling at 5½c.@7c.; a few at 7¾c. A fair supply of good ones which sell well. Medium or common calves are dull.

SHEEP AND LAMBS.

These are chiefly sold at ALLERTON'S, BROWNING'S, and CHAMBERLIN'S, at so much ₩ head for a particular lot of Sheep or Lambs, or of the two together. They are also frequently sold by live weight, as this is readily ascertained. The actual prices at the different yards seldom vary greatly. The difference in reputed prices is generally due to variation in the quality. When they are sold by weight, it is usually the net weight, which is ordinarily one-half what they weigh when alive, the pelt and offal making the other half. If fat and small-boned, they will dress 55 lbs., and in some cases 60 lbs., ₩ hundred. The average run is about one-half the live weight.

The receipts continue to fall off. After "shearing time" they will probably be more abundant. The greater portion of those brought in have been clipped, although it is too early to deprive them of their Winter clothing. The middle of May is soon enough, in this latitude.

ALLERTON reports receipts of 527 Sheep, which brought $5@$8 ₩ head, or from 12c.@14c. ₩ lb. dressed weight. A few at 15c.@16c. None in market this morning. They have been bringing high prices.

BROWNING reports receipts of 1,420 Sheep, selling at 12c.@14c. Short supply, especially for to-day.—Stock nearly all sheared, and of good quality.

CHAMBERLIN reports receipts of 1,341 Sheep and Lambs, selling at $5@$7 ₩ head, or 11c.@14c. ₩ lb., dressed weight. Short supply, especially for to-day's market. Stock held back in the country for their fleeces.

REPORTS OF BROKERS' SALES AT BROWNING'S FOR WEEK ENDING APRIL 14, 1857.

HUME & BALDWIN report sales of 600 Sheep at 12¼c. @ 15c. ₩ lb. Clipped Sheep bring the former, and those with wool on, the latter price.

SWINE.

These are sold alive at so much ₩ lb., gross or live weight. Considerable numbers are sold at ALLERTON'S, Forty-fourth-street, and at various other yards, while large droves are sold direct from the cars or boats, and driven immediately to the various slaughter-houses.

Arrivals have been more free of late, and a downward tendency is perceptible. The quality of those now in market, at least what we have seen, is an improvement on previous consignments.

ALLERTON reports receipts of 3,590 hogs during the past week. Prices for live hogs ranged during the week from 7¼c. to 7¾c. ₩ lb. Market well supplied with fat hogs, and prices are declining. One lot of 254 hogs are now held at 7½c., live weight.

CORN-FED.

Live.....7¼c.@7½c. | Dressed.....9¾c.

DISTILLERY.

Live.....7c. | Dressed.....9¼c.

Arrivals more free, and market well supplied. No demand for stock hogs at the present time.

Markets...Carefully reported for N. Y. Daily Times.

NEW-YORK, Tuesday, April 15, 1857—6 P. M.

ASHES—Are in limited demand at former prices. Pearls, $7 56¼@$7 62½; Pots, $7 81¼@$7 87½ ₩ 100 lbs. Stock in the Inspection Warehouse, to day, 423 bbls. Pearls and 223 bbls. Pots—together 646 bbls. Saleratus, 7¼c. ₩ lb.

BOOTS AND SHOES—The trade lacks vigor; the supply is not heavy, but is generally in excess of the requirements of buyers. Prices are depressed and languid.

CANDLES—Are salable and steady.

COFFEE—Is very moderately dealt in at our quotations. Java, 15c.@16½c.; Laguayra, 13c.@14¼c.; Maracaibo, 12c.@12¾c.; Rio, 9¾c.@13c.; Jamaica, 11¾c.@11¾c.; and St. Domingo, 11¾c. ₩ lb. Stock in first hands, yesterday, of Rio Coffee on the 14th April, 1857, 76,196 bags; Java, mats, 27,520; do. Gov. bags, 1,104; Ceylon 2,879 bags; Bahia, 4,200 bags; other descriptions, 1,340 bags—Total, bags and mats, 113,239.

Middling Fair	14¾	15	15¼	15¾

DRY GOODS—The market is unsettled. Jobbers are selling a fair amount of Domestic Cottons and favorite imported goods, more chiefly to dealers from the interior of this State and the Northwestern States, at what they deem satisfactory prices. Domestic Woolens are partially neglected and are declining. Importers of foreign fabrics are effecting sales of any magnitude only through the auction rooms, where very poor prices are obtainable, except for really choice articles needed by jobbers to complete assortments, and to meet the wants of their customers. Most factors are eager to dispose of their supplies, and the effect of this is injurious to the stability of the market. The West and Southwest pay up very tardily. The South is more prompt. Creditors are not satisfied with their experience in this respect, and will not be so accommodating to purchasers, for some time to come, as they have been during the last six or eight months.

FISH—Dry Cod are in fair demand, and are firm, at $3@$3 87½ ₩ cwt. Pickled Cod, $3 87½@$4 25 ₩ bbl. Mackerel are in light supply and good request, at $11@$22 for large No. 1; $11 50@$12 for small do.; $11 for large No. 2; $10 25@10 75 for small and medium do. 1 $8 25@$8 50 for large No 3; and $6@$6 25 for medium do., ₩ bbl. Pickled Salmon, $31@$33 ₩ tc, and $32@$33 ₩ bbl. Shad at $5 50 for Connecticut No 1, and $5 for No. 2, ₩ half bbl. Pickled Herrings are plenty and heavy at $3@$3 25 ₩ bbl. Smoked Herrings are in fair supply and demand, at 35c @40c. for scaled, and 26c.@28c. for No. 1, ₩ box.

FLOUR AND MEAL—State and Western Flour is brisker and dearer, with sales reported of about 11,300 bbls., in lots, mainly at prices within the annexed range:

Ordinary State	$5 65@$5 75
Straight State	5 75@ 5 85
Extra State	5 85@ 6 00
Common to Good Indiana and Upper Lake	5 65@ 5 85
Common to Good Superfine Ohio	5 70@ 5 90
Fancy Michigan	5 80@ 5 90
Extra Indiana and Michigan	5 90@ 7 50
Extra Ohio	6 00@ 7 75
Fancy Genesee	6 05@ 6 25
Extra Genesee	6 75@ 8 25
Extra Missouri	6 25@ 8 50

Canadian is steadily improving. Superfine extra is worth $6@$7 50 ₩ bbl, 7,000 bbls. were disposed of within the range. Southern continues in good request, at strengthening prices. The transactions since our last, comprise about 2,850 bbls low Mixed to fair Extra, and choice Extra at $6 22@$7 75, and $7 75@$8 50 ₩ bbl. Rye Flour is quiet, yet steady, at $3 50@$4 65 for Fine to Superfine, ₩ bbl. Corn Meal is in moderate supply and demand, at $3 20@$3 25 for Jersey, and $3 60@$3 65 for Brandywine, ₩ bbl. The latter brings $17@$17 25 in puncheons.

FRUIT—The market is quiet and steady. Sales of Messina lemons at $3 25@$3 62½ ₩ box. Sales were made by auction to-day, of 730 boxes of Messina Lemons, at $2@$3 15; and 3,055 boxes do. Oranges, at $3 25@$3 65 ₩ box.

GRAIN—Wheat is very sparingly offered and is in moderate demand at uniform rates. Sales have been reported of about 6,500 bushels—including good Southern White at $1 36; Southern White mixed at $1 44; and ordinary Southern Red at $1 30 ₩ bushel. The range for all kinds is from $1 50@$1 65 for White, and $1 25@$1 48 for Red, ₩ bushel. Rye is in request and is steady at from 86c.@90c ₩ bushel. Barley is worth $1 55@$1 75, for inferior to choice, in lots, ₩ bushel, being very scarce and in demand. Barley Malt is rare and quoted up to $1 85 @$1 95 ₩ bushel. Oats are more inquired for, and firmer at 52c.@57c. for Western and 53½c.@55c. for State; 51c. @53c. for Jersey, and 49c @51c. for Southern, ₩ bushel. Corn continues in good demand, at strengthening prices. We have heard of sales of about 40,000 bushels at 72c. for old Western mixed, in store; 71c.@75c. for new and old yellow, and 72c.@78c. for new and old White, ₩ bushel. White Beans, $1 7½@$1 87½; Canadian Peas, $1 05 ₩ bushel; Black-eyed Peas, $3 87½@$4 ₩ 2 bushels.

GUNNY CLOTH—Calcutta, 12¾c @13¼c. ₩ yard.

HAIR—South American Mixed, 34c @36c. ₩ lb.

HAY—About 800 bales River found buyers, mainly at 75c.@80c. for shipment, and 87½c @$1 for local use, ₩ 100 lbs.

HEMP—Rules dull and heavy, as before quoted.

HIDES—Are inactive and drooping. Prime Buenos Ayres, 36c.@31½c.; Rio Grande, 26c.; Orinoco, 33½c.; Maracaibo, 31c.@31½c.; Porto Cabello, 31c. for booked, and 32c. for open; African, 27½c.@29c.; Dry Western, 26½c.@27c.; do Southern, 21½c.@23c.; and City Slaughter, 11¾c.@12½c. ₩ lb. Stock, 68,340, against 54,869 same date last year.

HONEY—Cuba, 8½c., in bond, and 97½c @$1, free ₩ gallon.

IRON—Is inactive, yet firm, with a very limited supply available, especially of Foreign.

LEAD—Is selling slowly at old figures.

LEATHER—Sole is in rather better request, and is without any further change in price.

LIME—Rockland rules dull and nominal. It was last sold at 90c. for common, and at $1 15 for Lump, ₩ bbl.

MOLASSES—The demand is still good, prices favor factors. Porto Rico, in hhds., 37c.@38c.; Cuba Muscovado, 33c.@31c; Clayed Cuba, 30c.@33c.; and New-Orleans, 34c.@36c ₩ gallon.

NAVAL STORES—Crude Turpentine remains scarce and quiet at $3 37½@$3 43¾ ₩ bbl. Spirits of Tar is still brisker and firmer, at 48c.@48¾c. ₩ gallon. Tar is lower, yet steady, at $3@$3 50 ₩ bbl. Resin is in fair demand, and is worth $1 75@$1 80 for common ₩ 310 lbs., delivered; $1 87½@$2 3½ for No. 2; and $3@$4 for No. 1 and White ₩ 280 lbs. Pitch brings, in lots, $2@$2 25 ₩ bushel.

OIL-CAKE—City thin oblong, $31@

LIFE PICTURES;
FROM A PASTOR'S NOTE-BOOK.
BY ROBERT TURNBULL, D. D.,
Author of "Genuis of Scotland," "Christ of History."
1 vol. 12mo. 342 pp. Price $1.
The author's intention has been to develop in a natural, vivid way, by means of narratives, portraitures of characters, conversations, letters, &c., the Divine or inner life.
The characters are real; such as the author has met in his extended observation and experience, among all classes of persons. Some of them of great intelligence and worth, and others of an inquisitive, skeptical turn, including students, lawyers, merchants, literary characters, mechanics, and others.
Some of the "Life Pictures" are of young men reclaimed from skepticism. These will be found to possess a thrilling interest. Some of the sketches are of character remarkable for their gifts and graces. Those of William Bentley, (the baker boy,) and Harvey Miller one of the noblest men that ever lived, will be hailed with pleasure by all who ever knew them. As it touches upon Harvard University, Theodore Parker, Cambridge and Boston life, it will be read, no doubt, with great interest.
GRACIE AMBER,
BY MRS. MARY A. DENISON,
Author of "Home Pictures," "What Not," "Carrie Hamilton," &c.
The numerous friends of Mrs. D. will, we doubt not, heartily welcome this new book from her pen.
THE ROMAN CATHOLIC ELEMENT IN AMERICAN HISTORY.

Prince Frederick of Prussia ..... Miss Laura Keene
Her fourth appearance since her indisposition.
To conclude with, for the 22d time,
THE ELVES,
with all its beautiful scenery and dresses.
N. B.—The mountain forests of Pasteria are inhabited, it is said, by Pixies, Sprites and Elves, who, like the Phantom Dancers of Germany, delight to entrap travelers into their realms and torment them with their mischievous antics. Having the power of transferring the spirit, they often, in their malicious gambols, give life to the newly dead. Statues, rocks and trees are seen fantastically moving in the forest, but it is only during the DAY they retain their fictitious existence; at the approach of NIGHT they resume their immobility.
THE MONEY QUESTION, by Dumas, fils, will be produced immediately.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

The present tense of General WALKER'S power in Nicaragua is inevitably drawing to a close. From the brief telegraphic summary of the news by the Tennessee, published in this morning's TIMES, it will be seen that our advices, previously received by the George Law, are confirmed in every particular. Col. LOCKRIDGE has not taken Castillo; but, on the contrary, finding it impossible to do so with the force under his command, he has retreated from his position at Serapiqui, and has left the whole of the San Juan River in the possession of the Costa Ricans. Whether Col. LOCKRIDGE was moved to this step by failure to receive expected reinforcements, or by the sickness of his men, or by the quarrels and disputes of his officers, we know not; but it is apparent that all chance of reopening communication with WALKER has now disappeared, and that the fate of the some-time President of Nicaragua is a problem which a few weeks, or perhaps days, may finally solve. As if to crown the disasters that have befallen the fillibusters, their only steamer, the J. N. Scott, has exploded, and sixty of their number are reported to have been killed.

The additional news from Europe which we publish this morning is interesting and important. About one-third of the elections in Great Britain and Ireland have been held, and, so far, Ministers have gained considerably. The sense of the country is unmistakable, and Lord PALMERSTON'S success will be great—much greater than even his friends anticipated, for the head and front of the Opposition, RICHARD COBDEN, with such eminent men as BRIGHT, GIBSON, and LAYARD, have lost their seats through the mistaken course they have seen fit to pursue. After the election at Tiverton, the First Minister delivered a forcible and effective speech on the foreign policy of his government, reviewing the late events at Canton, and dwelling with special emphasis on the participation therein of the American squadron. We have reproduced such portions of the speech as will interest our readers.

The hundred days, to which the session of the Legislature is limited by law—or rather for which only the members can receive pay—expired last night, at 12 o'clock. The indications are, however, that the session will be prolonged until to-morrow, and possibly until Saturday, as there is still a great deal of business to be done. The Senate yesterday, after considerable discussion, agreed to all the Assembly amendments to the Excise bill, and it now is in the hands of the Governor. The bill appointing Commissioners for the erection of the new City Hall was reported complete. The gentlemen named are R. M. BLATCHFORD, G. A. CONOVER, ROBERT EMMET, E. D. MORGAN, and HENRY EVERSON. The bill providing for the payment of Special Committees appointed by previous Legislatures, was sent back by the Governor to the Assembly without his signature, and it was passed over the veto by 83 to 18. It was also passed in the Senate. The Assembly refused to concur in the Senate's amendments to the Central Park bill, and a Committee of Conference was appointed. A second Committee of Conference was also appointed in reference to the bill providing regulations for the Harbor of New-York. The bill making appropriations for State and charitable institutions, was ordered to a third reading in the Assembly, after amendment. The Senate concurred in the Assembly's amendments to the bill repealing the Railroad Commission act.

The Administration has been officially notified by Messrs. MORSE and BOWLIN of the failure of their efforts to treat with the Government of New-Granada relative to the required indemnity for the Panama Massacre, and the Cabinet were, yesterday, exclusively engaged in the consideration of the subject. It is stated that four or five vessels of war are to be dispatched to the Isthmus with such instructions as, it is believed, will lead to a settlement of the existing difficulties. A decided position is to be taken—the Government being resolved that American rights shall be respected.

The Secretary of the Navy has sent an order to Capt HUDSON, of the U. S. frigate Niagara, to receive on board Capt. SWARTZ and Lieut. KOBLITZ, of the Russian Imperial Navy, who, by the request of the Russian Minister, are permitted to go out in that vessel to witness the laying of the telegraph cable.

In overhauling the ruins of one of the buildings burnt at the recent fire in Baltimore, the bodies of seven persons, principally apprentice boys, have been found, and it is thought that still others will be discovered. One of the injured has also died, making eight lives already known to be lost. The value of the property destroyed is estimated at $492,000.

The Cattle markets, contrary to general expectation, were quite well supplied with good animals yesterday. The receipts for the week were 3,326 bullocks, generally of very good quality and weight. Owing, however, to the small supply at the preceding market, and the extra demand incident to the close of the Lenten Fast, prices were well sustained, and the yards were nearly cleared last evening at about the rates of the previous week. Veal is quite abundant. Mutton is very scarce and high. Only 3,288 sheep and lambs are reported for the week, while the yearly weekly average exceeds 10,000 or 11,000.

In the Board of Councilmen last night it was resolved to ask the Mayor to offer a reward of $1,000 for the discovery of the murderers of HARDENBROOK, the policeman. The question of pay of members was again agitated. A Committee was appointed to report "what bureaux will be necessary," and what will be their powers and duties under the new Charter.

In the Court of General Sessions, yesterday, a man named HARDEN, a book agent, but a noted burglar, though possessed of good education and considerable oratorical powers, was placed on trial for burglary. He pleaded his own cause in a speech of nearly an hour's length, with all the skill of an accomplished and practised lawyer. It was a rich scene, and not soon to be forgotten by those who were present. On conviction, he was sentenced to five years imprisonment; he has already been twice in the State Prison.

STEPHEN P. HARDENBROOK, a Ninth Ward policeman, was stabbed fatally about 1 o'clock yesterday morning, in West-street, by one of two men whom he detected in the act of leaving a tailor's shop upon which they had committed a burglary, and whom he attempted to arrest. He died in a few hours afterwards. He was a native of New-York, and 33 years of age. He leaves a wife and one child.

MOSES BETTMAN, an extensive importer of dry goods, doing business in Liberty-street, is under arrest on a charge of obtaining upwards of $90,000 worth of goods from various firms, under false and fraudulent pretences. He was taken on Tuesday before Justice DAVIES, who held him to answer in the sum of $4,000, and granted an injunction restraining the transfer or removal of any of the stock in the accused's store.

The Police Commission.

Governor KING has done himself and the people of this City less than justice in the appointment of the Police Commission:—and what, perhaps, is still worse, he has seriously embarrassed and imperiled the practical working of a great, and what must have been at the best a doubtful, experiment. Under any circumstances, the transfer of authority over the Police of this City to officers not elected by our Citizens, but appointed by the State Government, would have been a proceeding full of difficulty and of hazard. There is nothing of which communities are more tenacious than political power;—and such a step as this, even under the most favorable auspices, would have been regarded with distrust and apprehension. Every consideration of prudence, therefore, required that the utmost pains should have been taken to disarm censure, and especially to prevent any well-grounded suspicion of the motives which had prompted the change. To these considerations, obvious as they are, Gov. KING, judged by his action, seems to have given not the slightest weight.

The conviction that the City Police has been a tool in the hands of politicians,—that instead of being organized, governed, and directed with exclusive regard to the preservation of peace and public order, it has been the weapon by which party politicians have acquired or perpetuated their power, has reconciled the great body of our citizens to the change of system which has just been effected. We have been told from Albany,—what we very well knew,—that a Partisan Police was the curse of our City,—that the Board of Police Commissioners was made up of party men, and controlled by party considerations,—that the department was filled with the tools of faction, and that all its powers and duties were prostituted to the perpetuation of partisan ascendency. The good of the City, we were told, demanded a Reform. We wanted a Police which should be free from politics,—which should be organized with sole and exclusive reference to the public good. And upon this plea, and by promises of this sort, our people were in the main induced to look with forbearance, if not with favor, upon the change proposed. They put faith in the assurances that were given that we were to have a Board of Police Commissioners whose character and position before the public should assure us against the radical evil which has infected the Department hitherto. We looked for the appointment of men whose names should carry the conviction to the public mind that political and party considerations should no longer control this important branch of the City Government.

This expectation, we are compelled to say, has been disappointed. Instead of such a Commission as we have one made up thoroughly and exclusively of active, zealous political partisans. We shall not be suspected of any personal disparagement of the gentlemen who are its members when we say that there is not one of them whose most prominent distinction has not been won by active and earnest effort in the field of party politics. With one exception, moreover,—and that one of but little weight,—they are all members of a single political party, and that the one which is largely, however undeservedly, in the minority in the locality where their official duties are to be performed.

Now if this change in the law was made, and this Commission created, solely and exclusively for the benefit of the Republican Party, then perhaps it was prudent and just to put none but active Republicans upon it. But we have never advocated the change upon any such basis, and we shall never justify such a perversion of its duties and its powers to party ends. We believe that the public good demanded some change in our Police Department,—and that the main thing required was that it should be lifted out of the degradation into which political partisanship had sunk it, and placed in the hands of men who were not, primarily and conspicuously, party men. Such a Commission would have commanded public confidence in the practical working of the new law, and that confidence would have gone very far towards insuring its success. As the matter now stands, we have very serious apprehensions as to the result. The mass of our people will see in the change only an adroit trick by which the Police Department ceases to be the tool of one political party, only to become the tool of another. It will enlist against it the active hostility of the powerful party whose ascendency it is designed to subvert, and will at the same time be distrusted by that large and influential class of our citizens who look upon the peace and good order, the lives and the property of a million of people as of greater importance than the selfish ends of any political party whatever. From the very day on which the new law takes effect, we shall have a vigorous crusade for its repeal; and the appointment of this Commission, we fear, has done much to hasten its success.

SEVERE BUT PARDONABLE.—Our Provincial neighbors on the banks of the Delaware have been nursing their pride in having an Italian Prima Donna to sing to them who had not been heard in New-York; and they naturally kept their ears pricked up to watch the first reports of her reception in this City, for they do not appear to have been quite sure that their own judgment was to be relied upon in respect to her merits. They had exhausted themselves in praising her, and were fearful of having made a mistake. It was, therefore, perfectly natural that they should be on tip-toe to know what was thought of her in this metropolis. Unfortunately for the lady, she was not in voice on the night [illegible] therefore, our critics did not sacrifice their own integrity of judgment to make their opinions accord with the reports of our provincial friends, whereat they have been filled with feelings of unutterable disgust. One of them, the Bulletin, says:

"Mme. GAZZANIGA does not seem to have delighted the audience particularly; but that is the fault of the audience and not of the lady. It is rather too much to expect her to furnish them with a fine performance and the taste to appreciate it both at once. No one doubts that, among people of cultivation and knowledge of musical and dramatic talent, Mme. GAZZANIGA must succeed. But the question is, are there enough of such people in New York?"

This is as cutting as a northwest wind, severely sharp, but silly withal. The Philadelphians should encourage such a public-spirited writer by tendering him a service of plate, or a public dinner. It is almost equal to the effort of another Editor who announced, a few weeks ago, that Philadelphia was about ten days nearer the West than New-York. If our provincial friends choose to indulge in such niaiseries for our amusement, we shall be the last to find fault with them.

The Palmerston Victory.

Our previsions of the Parliamentary contest in England have been amply vindicated by the results of the election. Although returns from all the constituencies of the Empire have not yet been received, yet those which reached us yesterday by the Ericsson are more than sufficient to prove that the health of Lord PALMERSTON'S Ministry has been materially improved by their sudden trip "into the country."

Lord PALMERSTON appealed from the House of Commons to the people on a question of common sense and English feeling, and the answer of the people is less an approval of the course and an indorsement of the character of the Premier, than a condemnation quick, hearty and irrepressible of the spirit displayed by the Opposition. The policy of the Government in China was hardly the nominal issue made in the conflict, for the condition of the Chinese question was, and is, such as not to admit of any just and positive comprehension of its merits by any body, whether in or out of the Government; the battle was joined as a simple question of political principle and political conduct. There can be no doubt that the astute mechanicians who limbered up a factious, incoherent and unpatriotic combination of Tories, Radicals and Liberals against the Palmerston Government, expected to achieve nothing more than a check upon the Premier. But Lord PALMERSTON, with equal felicity of eye and firmness of hand, saw and seized the occasion thus offered him for renewing his lease of power. He knew perfectly well that a dissolution could not in the nature of things be long delayed, and his political instincts were sufficiently sharp to satisfy him that he could hardly hope again to catch his enemies at such advantage. Everything was in his power. The Government had been attacked at a moment when, to destroy its integrity of action was to endanger the honor of England, already embroiled in war, and, perhaps, the lives of Englishmen who were doing their duty under the national flag. The attack had been made, too, by such a party coalition as is alike repugnant to the prudential and the party feeling of Englishmen, and it had been made, as the speeches of some of the most prominent of the combined leaders proved, as a manœuvre, and not as a bonâ fide storming of the Downing-street fortress. Lord PALMERSTON grasped the golden opportunity, and he has reaped its golden fruits.

As an illustration of the history of power in Constitutional England, the elections of 1857 are full of significance and of interest. The rumored disavowal by the Chinese Emperor of the acts of High Commissioner YEH, doubtless contributed to the brilliant triumph of the Ministry; but the vital value of the victory to the party in power coëxists in the unqualified condemnation which the country has passed upon factitious and unpatriotic opposition, for oppositions' sake. If Lord PALMERSTON'S wisdom be at all equal to his sagacity, he will guide himself by the perception of this fact, and the world at large may expect that the conduct of public affairs in England, for some time to come, will be marked not by more but by less of vaporing and violence than ever. For the constituencies which have pronounced most severely against the conduct of the Cobden-Disraeli-Derby coalition, have not indorsed the Palmerston policy. Manchester has rejected MILNER GIBSON and Mr. BRIGHT only to return Mr. TURNER and Sir J. POTTER, who are equally opposed with their predecessors to any defiant and demonstrative policy abroad, and any retrograde or stationary views at home; but who, unlike their predecessors, will set the maintenance of the honor of England, and the safety of English interests above all questions of party tactics; the West-Riding, which was represented by the ever-pacific COBDEN, has elected the gallant, liberal, and far-sighted GODERICH, who represented Huddersfield, which has now rejected COBDEN; and the complexion of the whole House will be more earnestly and intelligently liberal than that of the last. The upshot of the verdict of England indeed seems to be just what we expected that it would be, a distinct repudiation as well of peace-at-any-price, as of PALMERSTON-at-any-price, and a renewal of the Premiership to its actual incumbent, under circumstances which will exact of him a higher bearing, a more honest policy, and a more comprehensive statesmanship than ever. It is a verdict, therefore, over which the United States as well as Great Britain may rejoice, for it promises a continuance of the fairest auspices to whatever righteous and reasonable negotiations may be in progress now, or may hereafter be set on foot between us, while it is another splendid proclamation in the face of all mankind, of the peremptory vigor and the swiftly available force which inhere in the representative institutions of a free people.

ADVANCE WAGES.—The Chamber of Commerce has at last taken the subject of shipping seamen into consideration, and appointed a Committee to investigate the matter of advance wages, the object being to see if the character of seamen cannot be improved by making them earn their wages before they receive them. This would be a desirable arrangement for our shipowners, and there can be no question of its having a good effect upon seamen themselves, if they could only be prevailed upon to accept it. But the system of advance wages has grown out of the necessities of the service, and to abolish it would be abolishing the class of men who are lured by it on board of ships. Winter before last our [illegible] necessary to give two, instead of one month's advance to sailors; and Government is under the necessity of giving three months' advance to seamen who are enticed on board of our national ships. The system of advance wages at first grew out of the necessity of furnishing the most reckless and improvident class of laboring men with the necessary means to procure them an outfit of clothes for a sea voyage, and unless a radical and entire change can be effected in the character of seamen, the system must necessarily be continued. In the whaling service where no wages are given, the owners are obliged to furnish the crews of their ships with clothing, tobacco and small stores. The nature of a sea-going life is such that while men have money in their pockets, they will not go to sea; and, if they are driven to the point of earning their wages before they receive them they will go to work at some business where the pay is better and the work lighter.

The number of hearty, sober men, who follow the sea from a natural inclination to that kind of boisterous life is extremely small, and hardly suffices to furnish officers for our merchant ships. The love of a maritime life is confined almost entirely to men of Scandinavian descent. The Celts are not sailors, and it is only the Anglo-Saxon or Norselander who takes naturally to the sea like a web-footed fowl.

The shipowners of our Atlantic ports are shrewd men, who study economy, and many of them have been sailors themselves. They ought to be pretty well acquainted with the ways and wants of seamen by this time. They have learned from long experience that advance wages are absolutely necessary for seamen, and the Chamber of Commerce will doubtless decide that, however desirable the proposed change may be, it is not possible to make it now. But, nothing can be easier than to try the experiment. Let the proprietors of the leading lines of European packet ships combine together for this purpose, for a week, and they may satisfy themselves of the practicability of the plan; and, by way of encouraging sailors to adopt it, they might, with advantage to both shipowners and seamen, add two or three dollars a month to their wages when they are not paid in advance.

The Business of the Country.

The "great revulsion" in commercial affairs for which we have been so long taught to look, doesn't seem, somehow, to be approaching with as great rapidity as some of our cotemporaries would have us believe. In spite of the deplorable fact that people go on building houses, and making railways, and importing goods, and paying for them either with bills or gold, whichever happens to suit them best at the time, the "great crash" has not yet visited us. To what providential circumstance we owe this respite, it is not our present purpose to inquire. If the morals and manners, and business talents of the merchants, farmers, and manufacturers, be such as the Tribune and Herald represent them to be, the wonder is, that New-York is not to-day in the condition of Old Virginia, or even in the well-known state of "the province of Onde after the death of SUJAH DOWLAH," as described by SHERIDAN. That it is not so situated, is one more added to the thousand instances in which progress, inspired and stimulated by self interest has proved the wisdom of wise men to be the sheerest folly and the most solemn vaticinations to be but the croaking of ravens. We are no doubt in the opinion of many good people getting rich against all rule; but still we are getting rich.

The head and front of the offending of the commercial world is, in the opinion of their censors, the enormous extension they are giving to the system of credit and the great reliance they seem disposed to place on it. Now we think this might very justly create alarm, if this expansion were sudden and were based simply on an idea, hastily adopted and propagated with furor. "Manias" of various sorts have been very common incidents in commercial history. There has been nothing about them much more remarkable than about delusions of any kind. They have, one by one, vanished, to the great ruin and great misery of their dupes, as soon as ever the test of time and experience was brought to bear on them. They have had no more to do with credit in general, or, in other words, with faith in things not seen, than tumors and excrescences of various sorts have to do with the healthy growth of the human body. The disposition to perform all sorts of enterprizes on credit, which is so marked a characteristic of commercial life in America, is not evinced in any greater degree in one direction than in another. It has, therefore, no sort of claim to the appellation of a "mania." Credit is the very soul of modern commerce. It has grown with the increase of the means of production and communication, and with the increase of security for life and property.

Acts that would now be characterized as cautious to the verge of timidity, would a hundred and fifty years ago, have been looked upon as the wildest rashness. In proportion as ships sail more swiftly, as mails arrive more regularly, as men travel more securely, as markets are more easy of attainment; in proportion, in short, as the obstacles opposed by nature and bad laws to the growth of civilization are overcome, in exactly the same proportion does the disposition to trust increase. The category of unavoidable accidents, or "acts of God," which in former times were likely to intervene to prevent a merchant fulfilling his engagements, is now so much diminished, by steam, by lightning, by insurance, that their effect upon commercial transactions is scarcely appreciable. The two things which now-a-days have to be most carefully taken into account are his good judgment and his honesty. Both of these, we venture to assert, are on the average each year improving. Geography is better known than ever it was; the capabilities, products, and wants of every country and people on the globe are better known than ever they were. Intelligence from all quarters may be relied upon every day. The laws of political economy are better understood. There is more interchange of thought than ever there was. No man can grow up in this country, unless more than ordinarily stupid and imbecile, without having his faculties sharpened to a rare degree, if only by the habit of dealing, or hearing others deal, every hour he lives, with commercial questions of the highest importance. The credit system in the main makes honesty a necessity. If dealings were all carried on by cash payments in hand a man could [illegible] deal by being a rogue. As it is, his good name is a great deal more valuable to him than specie. With specie, and nothing less, he can only command what he can really pay for at the moment. With a good reputation he commands twice or three times as much as he is actually worth. A man is rarely a knave in our day without being a fool as well.

Bearing all these facts in mind, to allege that our mercantile men are guilty of overtrading, and of making use of media of exchange which lead to mischievous results, very nearly amounts, whatever may be intended by it, to charging them and their fathers with Boeotian stupidity and ignorance. The wisest and acutest men will occasionally fall into lamentable delusions, and be carried away by them momentarily in times of great excitement. Every year has its public follies, great or small; but they never last very long. People awaken out of them, repent, and amend. But the prodigious activity, the boundless ambition, the daring speculation by which modern commerce is characterized, are the growth of three centuries. It has progressed steadily in Europe as well as in America, but really more rapidly here than elsewhere, because our unoccupied territory is all but boundless, our resources inexhaustible, our natural advantages of all kinds such as no other country can boast, and moreover because our population increases in geometrical ratio, whilst that of the old world increases only in arithmetical ratio. If these be legitimate sources of lamentation and foreboding, we are certainly the most unfortunate people on the face of the earth.

Mormonism in our Midst.

While the disciples of Jo. SMITH are firmly planting themselves in the very centre of our territory, and engendering a population who will be permitted to receive no religious instruction except that which is taught by Mormon priests, the wily emissaries of the Mormon prophet are busily at work in all parts of the earth, sowing the corrupt seeds of their unclean superstitions, and leading astray an alarming multitude of simple-minded people. The object of the missionary enterprises of the Mormons is not so much to spread the doctrines of the Salt Lake Saints, as to gain proselytes to swell the population of the future Mormon State, and secure for them the political power which is doubtless the great aim of the ruling Saints in Utah. In this City the number of professed believers in the Book of Mormon is alarmingly large; but it cannot be the purpose of the sect to build up a large congregation of worshipers anywhere except in their own Territory. The churches among the "Gentiles" can only be designed for recruiting stations, the neophytes being hurried off to Salt Lake, where they will not be amenable to the civil law. The weekly paper published in this City every Saturday, as the organ of the Saints, gives a good many interesting details of the movements of the Mormons in the Eastern States. There was held in East Brooklyn, last week, a meeting of the Presidents of branches of the New-York Conference, at which there were representatives and reports from twelve different towns in this State, Massachusetts and New-Jersey. The reports all speak very encouragingly of the excellent spirit which prevails at all the different "branches." Among the rest of the Elders who gave an account of their labors at this conference was Elder MCCUNE, who had recently returned from Burmah, where he had been preaching Mormonism among Indian idolators. President JOHN TAYLOR was presented with a testimonial as "a high appreciation of his labors in the Eastern States," several Saints were admitted priests, a new local editor was appointed for the weekly paper, money was appropriated to defray the expenses of certain brethren who are to be sent out with the Spring Emigration to Utah, and a new President was elected for the New-York Conference in place of President TAYLOR, who goes out to join BRIGHAM YOUNG in Salt Lake City. The late President delivered a plain address to the priests and elders, in which he set before them the results of his labors, and directed them how to proceed hereafter. Of course there must be a good many things which the Society will not put in type, which are necessary to be known to fully comprehend the designs and operations of these people. Like nearly all other sects, societies and organizations, the Mormons are occasionally hampered and restricted by the lack of money, and "Brother TAYLOR" delivered some impressive injunctions as to the importance of prompt remittances.

The religious exercises of the "Saints" in conference, appear to have occupied a good deal of their time; but they have their occasional merry-makings, and, on Monday week, they had a social party at their Assembly, rooms in Broome-street, on which occasion the attendance was large notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather. "Judge DULIN," we are informed by the Mormon, "presided over the refreshment department, assisted by eight young ladies dressed in white, with head dresses and beautifully-arranged bouquets." The festive party was opened by a prayer by Elder MILES, after which there were hymns, speeches, refreshments, and one of the Saints sang a comic song called "The Quack Doctor." Elder MCCUNE, the Missionary from Burmah, favored the Saints with the "Laird O'Cockpen," and several sisters sang both comic and sentimental songs. Elder WM. WALKER danced an Indian dance in costume, armed. Among the toasts the "Daughters of Zion" were forgotten; the Mormon ladies were drank as "emblems of purity, virtue, and innocence; the companions of man, the sharers of his joys and sorrows, the ministering angels in sickness, and the perfection of his glory and exaltation in a celestial world." The only sign of that belligerent spirit which the Mormons exhibit so lustily in their own "Zion," was indicated in a toast by Judge APPLEBY, who gave—

"Deseret, the Hive of the Saints, whose bees, while they gather honey for their friends, have always a sting for those who seek to crush them."

But the sharpest sting of the "Saints" is not for those who seek to crush them, but for the unfortunate imbeciles who are induced to become their proselytes.

Mormonism is not one of those evils that we can afford to tolerate because it is a good way off; it is in our midst; its temples are in the same streets with our churches; its priests preach within sound of our church-going bells; its deluded proselytes live next door to us, ride with us in our omnibuses, meet us at other men, [illegible] children, and [illegible] to pour chronicles of their daily [illegible] papers and bibles are [illegible] our Tract Houses, Bible Houses, [illegible] ary Offices. Mormonism is no longer a cattery, it is no longer a small cloud, [illegible] fact which is daily growing [illegible] formidable. If it cannot be repressed here, where there are so many counteracting influences at work, how is it to be crushed out in Utah, where it has so long reigned supreme, monopolizing the civil authority and enchaining the minds of the people by its [illegible] superstitions?

The Tehuantepec Turnpike.

It would form a highly important addition to our stock of information, should something disclose the actual condition of the Tehuantepec Transit. Four years ago the indefatigable Mr. SLOO procured a grant for a plank-road and railroad—the former preparatory to the latter, and to be completed before the close of four years. Seven years were allowed for the railroad. The term of four years expired on the 25th day of January last. Upon the day before, according to the agents of the Company, reporting to their principals in New-Orleans, a wagon road was completed from tide-water on the Atlantic to the Pacific Ocean, a team with two passengers having thus traversed the entire route, as a practical demonstration that the condition of the grant was complied with. Was it complied with? We are told of an ordinary wagon road, [illegible] as all that had been completed. Our correspondent at Washington is informed that upon this wagon road is but a slight advance upon a bridle-path, long stretches of it being no more than a resumption of an ancient cattle or mule track, and much of the remainder impassable without serious danger and difficulty. There is unmistakably large room for suspicion that the requirements of the contract have not been performed, and that the Mexican Administration will hesitate about accepting so indifferent a substitute for the article exacted. In the latter case, the $600,000 paid into the hands of Gen. CONSOMEGO'S predecessors might as well be under ground in Davy Jones' locker. To the most unquestionable claims the Mexican treasury opens tardily and presents a vacuum: its [illegible] a doubtful reclamation, such as Messrs. [illegible] HARCOUS, and their associates would [illegible] with, in the event of a forfeiture of their contract, would be an absolute and contemptuous denial. The cash, we fear, and the cost of the road, might be promptly passed to the account of profit and loss.

It is a matter of surprise that the Tehuantepec Company, after its experience of the Garay grant, where the Mexican Government, without any reasonable pretext, disowned its own concession, should afford it a very decent excuse for doing the same thing again. It is also a matter of serious regret. The wagon-road, at its best estate, cannot answer any practical end as a transit route. The Coatzacoalcos River is only navigable for the ocean steamer as high as Minatitlan, twenty miles from the mouth. At that point the passengers, baggage, freight, and all, would have to be transferred to light flat-bottomed steamers like those used upon the Cumberland River, and carried ninety-five miles to Suchil, the point of departure for stages. Another transfer here, and a journey across the Cordilleras, along an unfinished mule-path, at the rate of not exceeding, consistently with safety, three miles an hour, and the Bay of Ventoza is reached, on the Pacific side, an open roadstead, to which a breakwater is indispensable, and where there is no village, rancho, or roof of any description, to shelter the travelers. If we accept the table of distances supplied by Major BARNARD, the time table of the transit would stand nearly thus:

	Hours.
From the Gulf to Minatitlan by steamship, 20 miles	3
From Minatitlan to Suchil, by river steamers, 95½ miles, 6 miles an hour	[illegible]
From Suchil to Ventoza, by stages, 118 miles, 3 miles an hour	[illegible]
Detention for necessary causes, transfer to the Pacific steamer, and awaiting the slower movements of the freight	[illegible]
Total, hours	[illegible]

Traveling day and night, therefore, [illegible] days would be consumed in the transit from steamer to steamer, with no allowance for [illegible] or meals. All the inducements of a shorter oceanic passage could not make this [illegible] The Panama route would still carry the passengers, and the New-Orleans enterprise result in a severe loss of capital invested in the costly rolling furniture and live stock of the Tehuantepiko.

Evidently the railroad is the thing, for which there is no plausible substitute. That finished from Minatitlan to the Pacific, every advantage of competition with the more southerly route will be with the Tehuantepec interest. Nine hours from ocean to ocean may be readily achieved by the iron horse. Let him [illegible], and everybody will ride behind him. But have you not lost the chance, gentlemen of the Tehuantepec Company?

THE ERA OF COMMISSIONERS.—It is a long time since the Governor of the State had any patronage to bestow upon his political friends, the abolishment of the old inspectorships having deprived the office of some of its best perquisites. But the present Legislature has done something towards restoring the old order of things at Albany. The Governor has now the appointment of Commissioners of Police, Commissioners for building the new City Hall, and the power to name the compensation of the Commissioners of the Central Park.

SPEAKER BANKS.—A large number of the most prominent and influential citizens of Boston have tendered Speaker BANKS the compliment of a public dinner. In their letter of invitation they award him the highest praise for his discharge of the difficult duties of the Speakership, and also for his share in the important change made in the Tariff "by which the great industrial and commercial interests of the country will be largely benefitted." Mr. BANKS, in reply, [illegible] gratulation, in consequence of [illegible] and speaks of the new Tariff as certain to [illegible] advantageously all the great interests of the country. He also pays a very high tribute to the industry, intelligence and ability of the last Congress,—the legislation of which, he claims, is not likely to receive from the people the full measure of credit to which it has just claim.

Concerts, &c.

Miss MARIA S. BRAINERD, a [illegible] serving and talented [illegible] gives a concert this evening at NIBLO'S Saloon, assisted by [illegible] EDWARD MOLLENHAUER, [illegible] and Mr. C. W. BRAINE. The programme contains a great variety of choice pieces.

Correspondence of the New-York Daily Times.

ALBANY, Wednesday, April 15, 1857.

It is the hundredth day, and, hereafter, all but the officers of the Legislature are on short allowance. Pay stops at 12 o'clock to-night. And yet there is no abatement of this fever of legislation. The current runs more rapidly than ever through the arteries, and with almost every pulsation there breaks upon the Executive Chamber a new enactment, perfected, so far as Senate and Assembly may perfect anything, ...de and unshapely as the unhewn marble.

...that universal belief that makes certainty of belief ...about 4 o'clock we shall be scattered to ...quarters of the State.

...important New-York bills are now in such ...wardness that they cannot easily be de-...The Central Park bill has passed both Houses. ...Supervisors bill is through the Assembly and to ...third reading in the Senate. The City Hall bill was ordered to a third reading in the Senate, but was re-ferred back to the Committee for the purpose of hav-ing some amendments. There are to be added some more names. I suppose it will be reported this evening and read to-morrow.

The license bill is a foot-ball kicked between the two Houses. Now it is up and now it is down, much after the fashion of a dancing Jack. It passed the House last evening, after an exciting contest—but much amended—so much indeed as that it could hardly be recognized by its most intimate friends. ...some of these amendments the Senate gave its ...currence, but many of them were rejected with great unanimity. A conference committee and a ...ding up will be the result, in all probability.

The Exterior Water Line bill was ordered to a third reading in the House last evening, but the negatives ...were more numerous than was generally anticipated. ...less the House is very full when it comes up, it will be defeated.

The bill for providing Port Regulations for the Harbor of New-York, was passed through the Senate. ...Cheerfully it seemed a very proper and legitimate ...ment. When it reached the House, the Com-mittee on Commerce struck from it two sections plac-ing the Harbor Masters and Port Wardens under the control of the Commissioners of Pilots—an irresponsi-ble body appointed by the Chamber of Commerce and the Board of Underwriters. The bill also con-tained a provision giving to each Commissioner from the State Treasury, a salary of $2,500 a year—in all $10,000 a year. This section is the knob of the entire ...for all the other provisions now exist on the ...book, as they also exist as municipal regula-tions. In other words, it is a very quiet way of pro-viding four old gentlemen with snug berths and good salaries. After all, I do not know as we ought to ob-ject to this—especially as in no other way can they be expected to earn that amount per annum—and per-haps charity demands the sacrifice from the State Treasury. But the Senate insists on having in the two sections rejected by the House, and has sent back the bill with the objectionable features rein-stated. It is supposed the House will recede.

The Supply bill is the special order in the House this afternoon at 4 o'clock. It will probably absorb the entire attention of that establishment for the re-mainder of the day.

Trinity Church hangs by the eye-lids for the Gene-ral Orders of the House. Several attempts have been made to advance it, but they have been thus far un-successful. How long the opponents can hold it, is a doubtful problem. Perhaps they may endure to the end. There has been a change made in the Port Ward-ens and Harbor Masters. The name of JOHN FEIND as a nominee for Port Warden was withdrawn, and W. SMITH substituted.

In place of Mr. SMITH, who had been named for a Harbor Master, the name of JOHN COOPER, was sent up.

The Senate enters Executive Session at 4 o'clock, probably to consider the nominations made yesterday —together with the nominations for Canal Appraiser, which will no doubt be forwarded to-day. There has been a trifle over the average amount of profanity ex-pended by the disappointed, but the anger seems gradually to subside. The "swearing train" went off last evening, heavily loaded. It left a blue wake, but that is probably traceable to the gases evolved.

NEW-YORK LEGISLATURE.

SENATE....ALBANY, Wednesday, April 15.

Mr. SPENCER presented a remonstrance against allowing JOHN A. KENNEDY the right to run cars through the Seventh-avenue.

Mr. BROOKS presented a resolution of thanks to HENRY R. SELDEN for his efficiency and impartiality in discharging the duties of President of the Senate.

The resolution was adopted unanimously.

Messrs. BRADFORD and RICHARDSON were appointed a Committee to revise the Poor laws of the State, without compensation.

The bills to amend the charter of the Fulton Fire Company and to incorporate the Tracy Female Insti-tute were ordered to a third reading.

Mr. NOXON moved that the bill relating to the re-demption of Country Bank notes by country banks be referred to a Select Committee to report complete.

After remarks from Mr. UPHAM, in which he de-nounced the action of City Banks, the motion was adopted, and Mr. NOXON and UPHAM were named as the Committee.

On motion of Mr. UPHAM, five copies of the Census were appropriated to each member, officer and re-porter.

PASSAGE OF THE EXCISE BILL.

After considerable skirmishing the Excise bill was then taken up as it came from the House.

Mr. C. P. SMITH moved to non-concur in the amend-ment which struck out the section pfohibiting groce-ries from selling liquor. Motion carried by Ayes 17; Nays 7.

Mr. NICHOLS moved to non-concur in the amend-ment relative to the number of beds to be kept in a tavern. Motion lost.

Mr. HOFFMANIAS moved to non-concur in the amend-ment allowing the sale of liquor on election day at the distance of a quarter of a mile from the polls.

Motion lost, by 13 to 14.

Mr. LEE moved to non-concur in the House amend-ment reducing the number of freeholders required to be attached to a license petition from 30 to 20.

Motion lost by 13 to 14.

On the motion of Mr. BRIGGS the vote non-concur-ring in the Grocery provision was then reconsidered, and the whole Assembly amendments were concurred in.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

Mr. KELLY presented a communication from the City of New-York respecting the indebtedness of that City.

Mr. LEE reported complete the bill appointing Com-missioners to erect the new City Hall in New-York. The names R. M. BLATCHFORD, G. A. CONOVER, ROBERT EMMETT, E. D. MORGAN and HENRY EVERSON, as the Commissioners.

A second Committee of Conference was appointed on the bill for the regulation of the harbor of New-York.

The bill amending the Banking laws, relative to the redemption of Bank-notes, and defining the du-ties of the Courts of General Sessions, were ordered to a third reading.

Private claims were then considered till the recess.

The Senate held a short Executive session, but confirmed only Notaries Public.

EVENING SESSION.

Nearly the entire session was occupied in consider-ing private claim bills.

The bill authorizing the establishment of the Peo-ple's Ferry between New-York and Staten Island, was considered, and progress reported.

The Governor's veto on the bill providing for paying the Committees of former Legislatures was received.

The Senate passed the bill over the veto by Ayes, 19; Nays, 6. Adjourned.

ASSEMBLY....ALBANY, Wednesday, April 15.

There is no prospect of the Legislature adjourn-ing to-day.

Mr. FOOTE moved to suspend the third reading of bills, and to go into Committee of the Whole on the resolutions and bill reported from the Committee on the Dred Scott Decision. Motion lost.

Relating to Companies transacting the business of Life Insurance in this State.

To legalize the action of the New-York Supervisors, in relation to the fitting up of the Superior Court-room.

To authorize the Second-avenue Railroad to discon-tinue a certain portion of their track, and lay a new track.

Amending the Revised Statutes relative to the as-sessment and collection of taxes.

To amend the Salt Laws and authorize the removal of leases on the Onondaga Reservation.

To authorize the reduction of Canal tolls on certain articles at the discretion of the Canal Board.

For the protection of emigrants by licensing low boats for landing emigrants.

Mr. IRVING made an effort to get in an amendment authorizing all tow-boats, whose owners were of good character, to be employed in the same business, but failed.

The bill repealing the act creating a Board of Rail-road Commissioners. It authorizes the appointment of a Deputy Surveyor at $2,000 per annum, and an ad-ditional clerk in the Surveyor's office.

Mr. ADAME made an ineffectual attempt to get up the International Bridge bill. The attempt failed for want of a two-third vote.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

The consideration of the Supply bill was postponed.

BILLS PASSED.

To amend the general Plank and Turnpike law.

To incorporate the Brooklyn Industrial School Association and Home for destitute children.

To authorize the Indemnity Insurance Company to change its name.

To incorporate the Western Education Society.

The first Committee of Conference with the Senate on the Bill providing regulations for the Harbor of New-York having disagreed n second Committee was appointed.

On motion of Mr. SHERMAN the House went into Committee of the Whole on the International Bridge bill.

Mr. CLINTON, of Buffalo, opposed the bill and offered several amendments which were lost.

Mr. LITTLEJOHN moved that a provision be inserted that subscriptions shall be made for the Salp Canal around the rapids at Fort Erie, and that eight per cent. shall be paid before the bridge is built. Car-ried.

The Committee then rose and the bill was ordered to a third reading.

The bill to increase the salaries of the Judges of the Court of Appeals and Justices of the Supreme Court was considered in Committee of the Whole, and on motion of Judge SCOTT ordered to a third reading.

Recess till 7 P. M.

EVENING SESSION.

The House concurred in the Senate's amendments to several bills.

The bill for the regulation of the Government of the Central Park, New-York, came down from the Senate amended in several particulars, among others by the insertion of the names of the following, as Commis-sioners: Robert J. Dillon, James E. Cooley, Charles H. Russell, John H. Butterfield, John A. C. Gray, Waldo Hutchins, Thomas E. Field, Andrew H. Greene and Charles W. Elliott.

The House refused to concur in the latter amend-ment, and n Committee of Conference was appointed.

The Governor's Secretary here appeared with n mes-sage from the Executive Chamber. The Governor returned without signature the bill providing for the payment of the Committees appointed by former Leg-islatures. The Governor stated that alterations in the phraseology of the bill could not alter its uncons-titutionality, and although there might be some equi-ty in the claims he could not sign an unconstitntional bill.

The House then passed the bill over the Governor's veto by ayes, 83; nays, 19.

The special order was then taken up.

The bill to provide means for support of the Gov-ernment by levying n mill and one-quarter tax for the fiscal year, commencing Oct. 14, 1857, was read through and ordered to a third.

The bill making an appropriation for the payment for certain lands purchased for the manufacture of salt and for other expenses connected with the Salt Springs for the year 1857, was also ordered to a third reading. It appropriates in gross $79,765.

The bill making appropriations for State and chari-table Institutions for 1857 was then taken up as re-ported. It appropriates a total of $73,500.

Mr. PAUL moved to strike out the $1,000 nppropri-ated for the State Inebriate Asylum.

Mr. JONES hoped the motion would prevail. The institution was but an experiment at present, and it was by such expenditures that an increase of the State tax was necessary.

Messrs. VARNUM and IRVING supported the appro-priation.

Mr. ABBOTT thought the only argument in favor of the appropriation was that, as the State makes ine-briates by her laws, she is bound to take care of them. He was opposed to both.

After further debate, the amendment was stricken out.

Mr. HOGEBOOM moved to strike out the appropria-tion of $6,000 to the Marshall Infirmary of Troy, and Lunatic Asylum of Albany.

After debate the motion was adopted.

Mr. WOOSTER moved to strike ont the $30,000 for the completion of the Institution for the Deaf and Dumb.

Mr. MANON moved to amend by also striking out $3,000 for the improvement of the Idiot Asylum nt Syracuse.

Both motions were lost, and the bill was ordered to a third reading.

Supply bills were then considered until the ad-journment.

Confirmation of Police Commissioners.

ALBANY, Wednesday, April 15.

The Senate, in Executive Session, confirmed, unanimously, JAMES BOWEN, of Westchester, as Po-lice Commissioner. Also, confirmed all the Brooklyn appointees. The others were not acted upon.

MARINE MATTERS.

Change in the Pilot Laws.

The amended laws, passed by the State Legis-lature April 4, governing pilots, require that all ves-sels of the United States, of 300 tons, sailing under a coasting license, shall be required to employ a pilot. Captains who are competent to pilot their own ves-vels, can do so by obtaining a license of the Pilot Commissioners, for one voyage or for one year, by paying thsrefor four cents per ton of the vessels register. All foreign vessels, or American vessels' sailing from foreign ports, are compelled to receive n pilot, if spoken, or pay pilotage. The first pilot speaking a vessel must receive the fees. All persons who are not regularly licensed, and all steam-tugs, are prohibited from acting as a pilot in or out of the harbor, by the way of Sandy Hook, under a penalty of $100, and imprisonment for 60 days. Steamers, or propellers, licensed for the coasting trade, are exempt.

SERVICES REWARDED.

During the troubles which befel ehe fleet frozen in the Chesapeake, in February last, Mr. FREDERICK JETT, the keeper of the Light at Old Point Comfort, rendered important services in relieving the crews and passen-gers of distressed vessels, of which mention was made in our reports at the time. For these timely and dis-interested attentions to the shipping, Mr. LYMAN, of the firm of A. A. Low & BROTHER, has sent Mr. JETT a complimentary letter and a check for one hundred dollars.

The ship Wild Pigeon has been sold by OLI-PHANT'S SONS to Messrs. JOHN RANDAL & Co. for $40,000, and is to be withdrawn from the China trade, in which she has achieved so many rapid passages, under command of Capt. HANSON, and is to be placed in the trade of the West Coast of America, under command of Capt. MAYO, late of the ship G. B. La-mar. The Wild Pigeon on a late voyage made the trip round the world in nine months and 15 days; leking a full cargo to San Francisco vid Cape Horn, where she discharged and proceeded to China for a full cargo of teas, which she hronght to New-York. One of the shortest passages ever made.

GREAT REPUBLIC.

The following is an extract from a letter from the first officer of the ship Great Republic, written after the arrival of the ship at San Francisco:

"Our passage ont is considered here a most splen-did triumph, and pcoplo crowd down to the dock in thousands to see 'the monster.' Considering the light weather, which with scarcely any variation, we experienced after crossing the Equator in the Atlan-tic, the run is certainly the quickest and most re-merkable ever yet made.

"As it is, we think we stand number three in the record of quick passages from New-York to San Fran-cisco, and I do not believe that our run from New-York to the Equator will ever be approached, much less be beat, by any ship that now floats on salt water.

I have logged her on two occasions as high as 19 knots, ship running with the wind abeam under sky-sails, royal staysails and fore and maintopmast stud-ding sails. She is very easy, and chafes aloft less than any vessel I ever saw. Not a crack can be found on the paint between decks, even in the joints of the beams and knees, and they say here that no cargo was ever delivered in California looking so bright and clean, and so entirely free from damage of any kind.

Our run to the Equator in the Atlantic, from New-York, was 15 days and 19 hours; to the Equator in the Pacific, 72 days, and to San Francisco, 91 days.

The ship has not leaked so much water on the pas-sage ont as we have used for the ship's use."

A fine ship of 1,000 tons, named the Bunker Hill, was launched on Wednesday from the ship-yard of Mr. Jas. O. CURTIS, at Medford, Mass. She is built of oak, is diagonally cross-braced with iron, and finished in superior style.

The beautiful screw steamer Circassian, for Liver-pool, vid Halifax and St. Johns, N. F., will sail from Portland, Me., on Thursday, 16th inst., at 4 P. M.

Personal.

The Evening Post has the following: ROV. HENRY W. BELLOWS, of the Church of All Souls, in this City, having accepted an invitation to speak at the ap-proaching Dramatic Fund dinner, in defiance of the stage, we understand Mrs. KEMBLE has written him a letter protesting against such a course, and pronounc-ing the moral influence of the stage evil, and only evil. Mrs. KEMBLE speaks ex cathedra, but what a declaration from the family who owe so much to the histrionic profession!"

The State Register, of last evening, states that Mr. BOKEE has offered his place for sale, and that as soon as he has disposed of this country seat and his other real estate, he will depart for Germany, as the late events have completely destroyed his nervous system. He regrets that he did not come to this de-termination several years ago.

Hon. EDWARD EVERETT started for St. Louis on Monday, where he has appointments to deliver an address on the occasion of the foundation of the Washington University of the State of Missouri, and also to repeat his oration on the character of WASH-INGTON.

Gov. GEARY is preparing from his diary, faith-fully kept during his administration, a summary of events in Kansas, as they came under his own per-sonal or official observation.

ELIHU BURRITT is lecturing in Canada, on a peaceable way of getting rid of the troubles of North and South in the United States.

Hon. THOMAS L. CLINGMAN, at the earnest so-licitation of many citizens of the mountain District has consented again to be a candidate for Congress.

NEW-YORK, Monday, April 13, 1857.

SIR: You do such injustice to Captain DILKS, of the Fifteenth Ward, in to-day's TIMES, that I fee constrained as a resident of the Ward to make a few corrections. First, Captain DILKS has never be-longed to the American Party, nor has he had a "leaning" that way. On the dissolution of the Whig Party, with which he formerly voted, in 1855, he joined the Republican Party, and since then has always openly been a Republican, although, of course, as a Captain of Police under the present administra-tion, he could not do much service on that side of the house.

Secondly, Captain DILKS did not exhibit affidavits that last Fall he "stood by" his honor. He certainly did "stand by" his own honor, but did not "stand by" His Honor the Mayor. Last Fall, when the Po-lice were obliged to carry the Democratic Primaries, Captain DILKS and some others were left out of the bargain. I was with him during that afternoon, and we both were merely lookers on how the Fourth Ward Police and the Fourteenth Ward Democracy "put through" the Wood ticket in our Ward. Capt. D. was reappointed because FERNANDO WOOD did not dare to oust him, his "papers" having names on them not exceeded in influence even by the famous "merchant's circular" which the Mayor and Captain WILEY got up last Fall. Besides there was only two applicants, JOHN VANDERPOOL, formerly President of the Fifteenth Ward Know-Nothing Council, and now a good "Democrat," and WILLIAM HILLIARD, formerly a Whig. HILLIARD promised his friends that he would call the roll in the Fifteenth Ward Station-house, on Friday afternoon, but I have not heard of his doing it as yet. All the officers in the Ward are Americans or Republicans, with the ex-ception of a very few Democrats, whom FERNANDO wisely keeps "detailed," lest they might be con-verted.

Thirdly, I can say on good authority that it is not true that Capt. DILKS gave an entertainment at Del-monico's to some of his brother Captains, "including Captains WEEKS and MANSFIELD, at which Mayor Wood's health was frequently drank." The state-ment must have originated in the fertile brain of your informant, as no entertainment was given.

It may interest your readers to know to what party the various Captains of Police belong. The Captains of the First, Second, Fourth, Sixth, Seventh, Ninth, Tenth, Thirteenth, Fourteenth, Sixteenth, Seven-teenth, Eighteenth, Nineteenth, Twentieth and Twenty-second Wards are all "good Democrats." Captains HOPKINS of the Third, PORTER of the Twelfth and DILKS of the Fifteenth Ward, have been open Republicans, and Capt. SQUIRES of the Eleventh Ward, has always leaned that way. Capt. CARPEN-TER of the Fifth was n Buchanier last Fall, and went so far as to threaten that FREMONT "should not have a ticket in the Ward." Since the probable passage of the Police bill, I understand he has become a Republi-can. Capt. TYRRNELL, of the Eighth, was a Fillmore-ite, though it is said he voted for FREMONT. He, too, is now a strong Republican. Capt. SPEIGHT, of the Twenty-first Ward, was formerly a Whig and last Fall a Fillmoreite. What he is now I cannot say. Of the recently decapitated Captains, HALPIN and RUSSELL were Democrats; but the latter never supported WOOD in an energetic manner, or rather worked against him. Hence his removal. Capt. HART was formerly a Whig. He has been "bolding over" since January, 1856. A VERY BLACK REPUBLICAN.

The Turf for 1857.

The Spring campaign of Trotting has com-menced with trotting over the Union and Red-House Courses. The prospect for sports of the turf, from all appearances, is such as to warrant the assertion that they will have interesting meetings on Long Island The character of the assemblages for the past few years has been depreciating. The cause is obvious enough. The trotting courses had fallen under the control of men who made use of them to subserve their own private and pecuniary ends, and from the unfair practices of these men, many were deterred from attending the course through fear of being fleeced; and many owners of fast horses would not allow them to appear on the turf. One reason for this was, probably, the want of a law legalizing trotting, the old law having expired some years ago, and the proprietors being unable to enforce proper regula-tions. But with the passage of the new law, a differ-ent state of things may exist.

Several Southern stables will arrive here in June to contend for purses and stakes that will be given by the proprietors of the Fashion Course for racing horses. Numbers of trotting horses are already in training on Long Island, among which may be enu-merated many first-class horses, with some that are entirely new to the turf. Great improvements and unusual preparations are making on the Fashion, Union, Centreville and Red House Courses, in order to insure every advantage that can be derived from superior tracks and first-class accommodations.

UNION COURSE, L. I.—Trotting, Wednesday, April 15.—Match, $1,000—mile heats; best 3 in 5, to wagons, and drivers weighing 300 lbs.

J. WHELPLEY'S s. s. William Tell	2	2	2

Time: 2:46; 2:43; 2:44.

Messenger won the race in three straight heats. There were a great many reports flying around, to the effect that Messenger was lame. This made Tell the favorite—$100 to $80. Messenger won the pole. After two or three scorings the word was given, and they dashed off at a tremendous gait. Messenger led to the quarter-pole in 41½ seconds, gaining at every stride. He trotted very finely, and won the race easily.

RED HOUSE COURSE, HARLEM, N.Y.—Trotting, Friday, April 10. Match $250, mile heats, best 3 in 5 under saddle:

Time: 3:01; 2:52; 2:59½; 3:03.

UNION COURSE, L. I.—Trotting, Tuesday, April 7. Purse, $50 for road horses, mile heats, best 3 in 5, to wagons.

J. WHELPLEY, g. Gelding	4	4	1 4
J. S. AUSTIN, b. g. Bence McGowan	2	3	3 2
S. D. HOAGLAND, b. g. Deacon	3	2	4 3

Time: 2:54½; 2:55; 2:51; 2:59½.

Time: 3:06; 3:10; 3:00.

RED-HOUSE COURSE, APRIL 9.—Match $400, mile heats, best 3 in 5 in harness:

J. GILLIANE, b. m. Lady Varian	1	1	1
E. LUFF'S br. m. Mary White	2	2	2

Time: 3:03½; 2:58½; 3:05.

The Track was very heavy on account of the rain.

The Target Parade.

The Colonels of the great target force, which is to parade next Monday, had a meeting last night, to complete their organization. They estimate that from 10,000 to 11,000 will turn out at the parade. HENRY WILSON is their General-in-Chief. The main line will be formed on Fourteenth-street, under Adjutant-General W. H. DISBROW, and Major-Generals WILSON and CREIGHTON. All companies from Brooklyn, Wil-liamsburg, Jersey City, Sing Sing, Philadelphia, and all other cities, who will participate in the parade and visiting companies, will be formed in an independent division on Washington square, under command of Inspector-General SAMUEL G. THOMPSON and aids, and escorted by such companies as the Commander-in-Chief shall detail from the City organization for that purpose, to the extreme right of the line. The line of march will be through Broadway, the Park, Chatham-street, East Broadway, Grand-street and the Bowery.

NAVAL GUNNERY.—The fine sloop-of-war Plymouth, now at the Navy Yard, Washington, is to be fitted out for gunnery practice, and for this pur-pose an appropriation of forty thousand dollars was made at the late session. The experiments in ord-nance are made under the direction of Lieut. DAHL-GREN, an officer of great skill in naval gunnery.

Naval.

Orders have been received at the Navy Yard, to have the steam frigate Mississippi get ready immedi-ately for the East Indies. She will, consequently, not be employed, as contemplated, as a convoy to the Niagara in laying the telegraphic cable. She will be ready by the 15th of May. The steam frigate Pow-hattan, now lying at the Philadelphia Yard, it is sup-posed, will be detailed for that service, if it is found possible to get her ready in time. The new steam-frigate Minnesota, also lying at the Philadelphia Navy Yard, has also been ordered to be got ready immedi-ately to take out the newly appointed minister to China.

The steam-propeller Despatch is having two new tubular boilers of MARTIN'S make, put on board; she will probably be employed as a transport to convey provisions, &c., to the Southern Naval Stations.

The filling in of the Wallabout flats is progressing rapidly, and the work of laying the foundations for the buildings will soon be commenced.

Captain HUDSON of the Niagara, was yesterday summoned to Washington, with Surgeon SMITH of the same ship, to give their testimony before the Court of Inquiry in the case of Captains OGDEN and GILLIS, and, if they should not be able to return in season, it will prevent the ship from going to sea on Saturday. The Wabash was to leave to-day on a cruise as the flag-ship of the Home Squadron, under the command of Captain PAULDING.

OUR EAST INDIA SQUADRON.—The reinforce-ment which is fitting out, as we learn, for our naval force in the China Seas, will consist of some of the most powerful ships in the world. Amongst others, the frigate Minnesota, one of the six new steamers, has been designated. In view of the importance and distant theatre of service, we cannot but express our pleasure at the selection of the Minnesota, because the noble ship herself and her substantial machinery were built at the Washington Navy Yard. In this fact we have a guarantee that, when the Minnesota goes to sea, we shall not hear the almost invariable story of broken machinery or of the ship having put back or into some port to repair damage. The immense bat-tery of the Colorado, another of the new steamers, is to be transferred, it is said, to the Minnesota at Nor-folk; and it is further stated that Mr. REED, our new Minister to China, will take passage in this magnifi-cent ship.—National Intelligencer.

The United States sloop-of-war Falmouth, from New-York, 42 days from Rio Janeiro, was spoken (date not reported) in lat. 6.45 S., lon. 34.42 W.

Correspondence of the Baltimore Sun.

WASHINGTON, Tuesday, April 14.

The Navy Department, as well as the War Depart-ment, is unusually active. It is getting up steam for the China seas, and, barring any more bursting out of cylinder-heads, a respectable naval force, under the command of Commodore PERRY, may soon be equipped for this important service. As Mr. REED, our Envoy, is to have the choice of a ship for his con-veyance to China, he will, perhaps, take the Minne sota. It is to be borne in mind that he will find no accommodations for his residence in China so good or so safe as those which he will find on shipboard. Lord ELGIN will reside at Hong Kong, an English colony, but Mr. REED would not reside there, except as the guest of the English. He could live at Macao, but not without the assent of the Chinese and of the Portuguese also.

The factories at Canton are all destroyed, and it is possible that if the war continues the English will be driven from Hong Kong. The report that the "Son of Heaven" had censured the acts of his Governor of Canton, YEH, is likely to be true, for the Chinese cen-sured were disgraced officers who were so unfortunate as not to be able to chastise the barbarians, but it is not at all probable that he has disapproved of the seizure of the Arrow. The war with the British had served to bring a large portion of the rebels over to his support. ION.

ALWAYS READ THIS—OLD AND YOUNG.

PROFESSOR WOOD'S
HAIR RESTORATIVE.

Is, no doubt, the most wonderful discovery of this age of progress, for it will restore, permanently, gray hair to its original color, cover the head of the bald with a most lux-uriant growth, remove at once all dandruff and itching, cure all scrofula, and other cutaneous eruptions, such as scald head, &c. It will cure, as if by magic, nervous or pe-riodical headache, make the hair soft, glossy, and wavy, and preserve the color perfectly, and the hair from falling, to extreme old age.

ST. PAUL, Jan. 1, 1855.

PROFESSOR O. J. WOOD—Dear Sir: Unsolicited, I send you this certificate. After being nearly bald for a long time, and having tried all the hair restoratives ex-tant, and having no faith in any, I was induced, on hear-ing of yours, to give it a trial. I placed myself in the hands of a barber, and had my head rubbed with a good stiff brush, and the Restorative then applied and well rubbed in, till the scalp was a-glow. This I repeated every morning, and in three weeks the young hair appeared and grew rapidly from August last till the present time, and is now thick, black and strong—soft and pleasant to the touch; whereas, before, it was harsh and wiry, what little there was of it, and that little was disappearing very rap-idly. I still use your Restorative about twice a week, and shall soon have a good and perfect crop of hair. Now, I had read of these things—and who has not? but have not seen hitherto any case where any person's hair was really benefited by any of the hair tonics, etc., of the day; and it really gives me pleasure to record the result of my ex-perience. I have recommended your preparation to others, and it already has a large and general sale throughout the Territory. The people have known its effects, and have confidence in it. The supply you sent us, as whole-sale agents for the Territory is nearly exhausted, and daily inquiries are made for it. You deserve credit for your discovery; and I, for one, return you my thanks for the benefit it has done me, for I certainly had despaired long ago of ever effecting any such result.

Yours, hastily,
J. W. BOND,
Firm of Bond & Kelley, Druggists, St. Paul.

BOSTON, No. 27 School-st., March 20, 1855.

DEAR SIR: Having become prematurely quite gray, I was induced, some six weeks since, to make a trial of your Restorative. I have used less than two bottles, but the gray hairs have all disappeared; and although my hair has not fully attained its original color, yet the pro-cess of change is gradually going on, and I am in great hopes that in a short time my hair will be as dark as formerly. I have also been much gratified at the healthy moisture and vigor of the hair, which before was harsh and dry; and it has ceased to come out as for-merly.

Respectfully yours,
Professor WOOD. D. C. M. RUPP.

CARLYLE, Ill., June 19, 1855.

I have used Professor Wood's Hair Restorative, and have admired its wonderful effect. My hair was becom-ing, as I thought, prematurely gray, but by the use of his Restorative, it has resumed its original color, and I have no doubt, permanently so.

They are all in fine order, and those with names attached are warranted originals, and many of them purchased at the sales of the famous collections named in the catalogue; and the modern ones chiefly from the artists themselves, among them will be found fine examples of Creswick, R. A., J. B. Pyne, Sharer, Turner, Fraser, George A. Williams, J. C. Hornby, Glover, Vickers, Opie and others. Also a few very choice and rare pictures of the Italian schools, and some very fine cabinet pictures of the rare Dutch and Flemish masters, viz.:—Ostade, Denners, Janstean, Molinaur, &c. Also, the celebrated pair of landscapes, known in Europe as the Perch Zaccarelli, being the finest landscapes, with figures by that celebrated master, and purchased at the sale of Cardinal Fesch in Rome. Also a pair of cabinet-sized pictures by Hogarth, with pedigree. Also superb pictures by H. J. Boddington, Salvator Rosa, Velasques, Moocheron, Grauze, Titian, Rembrandt, Old Kuyp, Chimbeaux, Phillips, Lauri, Patzi, De Gaully, F. C. Brown, Panini, Bartolino, Bartholden, Horsley and many others. Catalogues with full descriptions are now ready, and the pictures will be on exhibition on Monday, 13th instant. The sale will positively take place on the day specified; and the public generally, as well as connoisseurs, are invited to examine them, as they may rest assured that the collection is the most rare and valuable one ever offered in this City.

HENRY H. LEEDS & CO. WILL SELL BY AUCtion on WEDNESDAY, April 22, at 12 o'clock at the Merchants' Exchange, important sale of an elegant country seat and building sites, situated along the western and central portions of the extensive and highly picturesque estate of "Hill Park," on Staten Island, 4½ miles from Vanderbilt's Landing, on the Richmond Plank Road, and near the New Drop Station, on the new consolidating Staten Island Railroad. The estate is situated on the range of hills extending from Toad Hill. The portion offered at present comprises 103 acres, and includes the first-class country residence of "Hill Park House," with about 7 acres of ground laid out at great expense, in the most superb style of English landscape gardening; and containing a beautiful lake stocked with gold-fish. The house is newly built of the best material, by days' work, and forms, with offices and outbuildings, a complete residence of a large and wealthy family. The remaining land has been laid out in the style of an English park, in which two public parks, of about 6 and 2 acres respectively, have been set aside for use of the residents on the estate, and the surrounding space has been laid out and fenced in for 16 building sites, containing none but useful and appropriate land, and made accessible by wide and handsome park roads. For further particulars and maps, and, also, for free omnibus tickets to view the estate, apply at our office, No. 28 Nassau-st.

J. R. STAFFORD'S OLIVE TAR.—WE COPY the following from the editorial columns of the Boston Daily Ledger, of Feb. 19, 1857. Mr. Barnard, the gentleman alluded to, is a prominent citizen of Boston:

J. R. STAFFORD'S OLIVE TAR.—In the multitude of curatives that are almost daily offered to the public, it is very difficult to make a selection of any one that will prove valuable for all the purposes for which it is recommended. But in our opinion one specific has been discovered for complaints of the Throat and Lungs that seems to be of inestimable worth. It is J. R. STAFFORD'S OLIVE TAR. From a pamphlet setting forth its many claims on those inflicted with the diseases above named, we learn that this Remedy is net to be taken internally, after the ordinary methods, but is used by INHALATION and APPLICATION. In this subtle way it performs its soothing and healing offices on the THROAT, LUNGS, NERVES, MUS

NEW-YORK CITY.

United States Agricultural Society.

A meeting of the Implement Committee of the National Society was held yesterday, at the Astor House, and the arrangements for the Summer trial of reapers, and mowers, and the grand exhibition at Louisville, Ky., were completed. Hon. Hiram Ward, of Rome, New-York, formerly President of the New-York State Society, was added to the Committee.

It was found, on reference to the appointments for the reaping trials of the great Western States, that the United States Society could not hold their trial in that section of the country, as they had at first decided to do, without conflicting with the arrangements of the local Societies: and they have, therefore, selected this State as the next best locality; or, if this should not be found practicable, will go to Delaware.

Mr. Joseph E. Holmes, of Ohio, has been engaged to superintend the two trials and carry out the details.

The Society have decided to offer a Gold Medal of Honor for articles of the greatest importance to the farmer: one for the machine which shall, in the most thorough manner and with the greatest saving of time and labor, accomplish the disintegration of the soil—performing the labor of the plow; another for the best motive power for farm use; another for the most important invention relating to Agriculture, patented within the last two years.

A gold medal, valued at $175, will be awarded to the successful machines at the Reaper and Mower trial.

The United States Society intend that their decision on the merits of any machine or improvement offered at their Fair shall be made under every safeguard as to competency of judges, fair trial of qualities and strict impartiality. All applications for entry at either trial should be made to H. S. Olcott, who is Secretary of the Committee, and will forward a list of regulations and premiums to applicants. His address is American Institute, New-York City.

Board of Education—Heavy Appropriation.

The Board of Education held a stated meeting last evening, Andrew H. Green, President, in the Chair.

A resolution offered by Mr. Waterbury was adopted, appropriating the sum of $32,771 for the erection and furnishing a new School Building on Twenty-eighth-street, between the Ninth and Tenth avenues, in the Twentieth Ward.

A communication from School officers of the Third Ward, offered by Commissioner Lacompte, relative to the selection of a suitable building in said Ward for the establishment of a Primary School, was referred to the Committee on Sites and School Houses.

A resolution offered by Commissioner Reese, was adopted, appropriating the sum of $7,575 for alterations in School House, No. 32, on Baxter-street, in the Fourteenth Ward.

A resolution offered by Commissioner Sinclair was adopted, appropriating $16,392 for the erection of a new Primary School building on Mott-street, near Walker, in the Sixth Ward, $7,442 being for carpenter's work, and $8,950 for the mason work.

On motion of Commissioner Neilson the rules were suspended, and the Board entered into an election to fill four vacancies in the Finance Committee. Messrs. Albert Smith and Nelson J. Waterbury were elected by a handsome vote on the first ballot; Richard C. Fellows was elected on the second ballot, and Mr. George H. Clark on the third ballot.

A resolution offered by Mr. Hooper, of the Finance Committee, was adopted, appropriating for various purposes $102,846 14.

A resolution was adopted approving of plans submitted by the School officers of the Twelfth Ward for a new school-house at Tubby Hook.

The sum of $126 was appropriated for extra work on School house No. 5, on Mott-street.

Some other unimportant business was passed upon, closing with a resolution offered by Commissioner A. V. Williams, asking for the naming of a Committee of Seven to examine into the working of our School laws, with a view to securing such alterations, if any upon the whole, it shall be deemed advisable to make, in a bill to be submitted to the next Legislature.

The President called Commissioner Tuthill to the Chair, and read a statement about the bill now before the Legislature, appointing a Commissioner to examine into the existing condition and working of our City School system.

The following sections of the proposed bill were read by the Clerk:

Sec. 1. The Governor of the State of New-York shall appoint five residents of the City of New-York as Commissioners to examine the School system of that City. It shall be the duty of such Commission to visit such of the institutions for public instruction in that City, as they may deem necessary, to confer with the Board of Education, the Boards of Trustees in the several Wards, and the other officers connected with the School system, or such of them as may request such conference, and also with other parties desiring to make suggestions in relation to the matter; and to thoroughly examine the organization and operation of the system of public education in that City. And the said Commission shall make a written report to the Governor, previous to the 1st day of January next, upon the matters aforesaid, and annex to such a report a draft of a bill making such changes and improvements in the laws relative to public education in that City, as they may considered advisable.

Sec. 2. Neither of the said Commissioners shall receive any compensation for his services but the necessary and reasonable expenses of the said commission shall be paid by the Board of Education out of the School moneys of said City.

Sec. 3. This act shall take effect immediately.

After which, on motion of Mr. White, the Board adjourned.

Board of Councilmen.

The Board of Councilmen met on Wednesday, the President, J. N. Phillips, Esq., in the Chair.

A resolution was passed to print 10,000 copies of the New Charter. Another directing the Street Commissioner to advertise for proposals for the completion of the Battery enlargement, was referred to the Committee on Wharves.

It was resolved to hoist the City flags on the day of the forthcoming parade of the target companies of the City, April 20.

Councilman Boole submitted, that,

Whereas, The State Legislature has passed an act amending the Charter under which certain departments of the City Government are abolished, and their powers distributed among other departments; and whereas, it will be necessary to frame a number of bureaux for those departments which have increased powers; therefore be it

Resolved, That a special Committee of five be appointed to consider and report what bureaux will be necessary, and what powers and duties shall be designated for them.

Adopted.

A resolution to increase the pay of members, was proposed by Councilman Waugh. It states, that "public opinion labours under the impression that the members are in receipt of $4 per day the year through, together with pay for services on Committees, "instead" of $391 00 per annum Forty Eight settings, at Four Dolls each—& at times of four & five hours duration

& NOTHING for Committees services whatever. Wherefore be it resolved that the members of the standing committees of the board of aldermen and councilmen be allowed and paid for their services the sum of $4 for each meeting, to take effect on & from the 1st of Jany. 1857."

This resolution is copied accurately.

Referred to a Committee of the Whole.

A petition for the extension of Leonard-street was referred. So also was a resolution for a special Committee relative to the expediency of selling Washington and Franklin markets.

Petitions were received against the proposed widening of Frankfort-street; for a sewer in Jones-street through to Sixth-avenue; also from the Catholic Orphan Asylum, asking that the demised premises now occupied by the Asylum may be leased anew to the petitioners, to be used for the purposes for which they were incorporated.

A resolution was referred, the object of which was to raise the salary of the Street Commissioner to $5,000, and that of the Deputy to $2,500.

A resolution was proposed requesting the Mayor to offer a reward of $1,000 for the discovery and arrest of the murderers of Stephen P. Hardenbrook, the Policeman who was killed in an affray with burglars in West-street. Various amendments were made. Councilman McCahill wished to substitute $500, and was more than usually energetic. A member proposed the substitution of $2,000. After long and noisy discussion, the original resolution was adopted by a vote of 11 to 4.

A number of reports of Committees, chiefly as to [illegible] &c., were referred to the Committees [illegible].

The Board then went into Committee upon the [illegible] and, after the transaction of some unimportant business, adjourned to Friday, at 5 P. M.

Gas-Light Company.

A meeting of the Board of Aldermen on the [illegible] and gas, (Alderman McConnell in the chair,) was held at the City Hall on Wednesday.

Mr. Akerman, President of the Harem Gas-light Company attended; also, Mr. H. P. McGowan, the [illegible]. The [illegible] gentleman entered into a detailed statement of the operations of the Company, [illegible] to the City, and an estimate for lighting the streets above [illegible]-street. The Committee to [illegible] the public lamps and [illegible] 80 per annum [illegible] the necessary [illegible]ping in proper [illegible]p posts, fur[illegible], and make

Mr. McGowan stated that the facilities of the Company for the production of gas were such as to enable them to manufacture 450,000 cubic feet per day, having 60 retorts, of which only six are now in use.

A letter was submitted from Mr. Esling, calling attention to the bids. They had been advertised, according to a resolution of both boards, and only one [illegible] been received, namely, the one above recited. As the only bidders, he regards the Harlem Company as entitled to the contract, and upon their informing him he states that the company are ready to commence work at once. The Comptroller (by direction of the Common Council) are already lighting the lamps in front of all the churches in Harlem district.

School Property Unopened.

There are sealed proposals for a variety of work to be done for the City, now lying unopened in the office of the Commissioner of Repairs and Supplies. The parties having proposals there are indignant, because the Comptroller will not attend that they may be opened. His reason for refusing can hardly be looked upon as a bad one by citizens generally. The Comptroller says as soon as the new charter goes into operation, it will seriously affect any contract made at this time; and therefore to prevent suits for damages, for non continuance of work contracted for, he thinks it best to "wait a little longer." The principal jobs for which proposals have been received are: For building a Station-house for the Fifteenth Ward Police; rebuilding the Eleventh Ward Station house; making additions to and alterations of the Hall of Records; building and repairing engine houses; altering two bell towers and putting up the fire telegraph in the two upper Districts of the City.

Seamen's Churches.

Floating Bethels will do where there is no convenient locality on the land for a church for seamen; but sailors after all are very much like other people, and prefer, when not at sea, to be ashore. When they go to meeting they like to do as other people do, and worship with a good steady foundation under them.

The Mariners' Church, at the corner of Madison and Catharine streets, under the pastoral care of Rev. Charles J. Jones, which formerly belonged to the M. E. Church, was purchased by "the Society for Promoting the Gospel among Seamen in the port of New-York," for $40,000 of which sum $26,000 has been paid, leaving a debt of $14,000, which the Society are now endeavoring to raise to relieve their embarrassments. There is a flourishing Sabbath school and Bible class, a reading-room, a temperance society numbering 80,000 members (hope they are all good ones) connected with the Society. Norwegian and Swedish missionaries are employed by the Society, and services in the Scandinavian tongues are held in the church.

☞ At the quarterly meeting of the Board of Directors of the New York Ophthalmic Hospital, held Tuesday evening, the 14th inst., at their rooms No. 6 Stuyvesant, the surgeons, Drs. Stephenson and Gaebrie, reported that they had registered 238 patients afflicted with diseases of the eye since the 1st of January last, making 1,000 patients who have received the services of the surgeons since the organization of the Institution in April, 1856.

The New-York Five Points.—What a world of wickedness has been enacted here! What untold sin and suffering committed and endured! Who has not shuddered at the recital of high crimes perpetrated at the New-York Five Points? It has been a nest for drunkards, thieves, robbers, murderers and pirates—a hiding place for gamblers and bad women—in short, the very worst place on this Continent. To-day's Life Illustrated gives some interesting facts connected with this notorious place. Only four cents. Newsmen have it.

☞ Whoever buys a hat of Knox, corner Broadway and Fulton-street, not only never regrets it, but is always proud of it. There is something so peculiarly becoming and gentlemanly in his styles—particularly in his last issue—that it imparts to the handsomest additional elegance and grace, and redeems the most ugly head from the semblance of homeliness. His hats are, indeed, the most becoming and distingué of all.

LONG ISLAND.

Spring Floral Exhibition.

The regular Spring Exhibition of the Brooklyn Horticultural Society is now in progress at the Athenæum, on the corner of Atlantic and Clinton streets. The tables were spread yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock, for the inspection of the judges who award the premiums, and the doors were open to the public at 5. A brilliant concourse of visitors, consisting principally of ladies, who often outvie even the best floral specimens, thronged the hall last evening.

They are Ludwig Huseman for City Treasurer; Mr. Brandis for City Clerk; Andrew Mount for Collector; George L. Hull for Collector of Arrears of Taxes; Chas. P. De Grijse for Superintendent of Markets; James Curran for Street Commissioner.

The Councilmen elect are Chas. Chamberlain, from the First Ward; Wm. White, from the Second Ward; and James H. Wilson, from the Third Ward—all of them for two years. The Council will be composed of three Democrats and three Reformers.]

Wednesday, April 15—P. M.

The Street demand for Money to-day was generally light, and the supply offered on temporary use quite free. Discounts outside of Bank, also, tend to greater ease, and strictly prime lists of paper are wanted at 8½@9 ₱ cent. A few closing transactions in Sterling for the Asia's mail early in the forenoon were made at 109¼@¼. The exact amount of Bullion sent forward is $322,382. The Sub-Treasury reduced its balance to day $94,680. The receipts were $134,211; the payments $228,891. Balance at the close $15,016,580. From this date forward to the 30th June the proportion of Foreign Imports at this port going into Bond to await the action of the new tariff will rapidly increase, and the Cash duties paid into the Sub-Treasury correspondingly fall off. Under the Ericsson's news from England to the 1st April, the Cotton and Corn markets were both firm to day. The first symptoms of reaction in the Grain trade at Liverpool will be warmly welcomed by the West. If the improvement continues it will be of vast service to the Railway traffic in May and June. The English Funds improved on the Election results and the official report on the Government revenue for the past year. Consols were called 93¾@¾ at the close on the 31st March. The French Bank is rapidly gaining in Bullion. The total is now $48,000,000, a gain of three and a half millions of dollars in the fortnight. The Bank has given notice that after the 3d April only four-tenths ₱ cent. instead of six-tenths premium will be paid for Gold, and after the reserve in the Bank shall reach $60,000,000, or three hundred million francs, artificial purchases are to be entirely discontinued. The quotations by this arrival of American Funds in London are not materially varied from the last regular mail. Illinois Centrals are called 33 to 35 premium, and the Bonds 90 to 92 ₱ cent.

There is an improved tone in the Stock Market, and although some heavy parcels of one or two of the leading Road shares were pressed on sale, buyers operated with a good deal of confidence, and prices at the close in the afternoon left off firm. This was particularly the case with New-York Central, after 5,000 or 6,000 shares had been sold through the day at 88@⅛; and Reading, of which 4,000 or 5,000 shares were taken after the official list was printed, at 80⅛ ₱ cent. Toledo left off 73⅝ ₱ cent. New-York and Erie sold in the afternoon, ex-dividend, at 48@47¼ ₱ cent., equal to about 52⅝@¼ before the dividend, counting the 10 shares Scrip to be divided to each 100 shares Stock as worth 4.80@4.75 ₱ cent. cash. Panama improved 1 ₱ cent. Michigan Southern, Galena and Chicago, Illinois Central, and Rock Island steady. Erie Convertibles of '62 advanced to 82¾ ₱ cent., and the '71s to 77¼ ₱ cent. Illinois Central Bonds a fraction lower. Large sales of Missouri State Sixes at 84.

The Fulton Bank has declared a half-yearly dividend of 5 ₱ cent.; the New-Jersey Central Company a half-yearly dividend of 3½ ₱ cent.; each payable on the 1st of May.

The Money reports from Boston and Philadelphia are in favor of increased ease in rates. The Boston Banks have recently strengthened themselves with Specie. They are lending on call at 6 ₱ cent. In the Street prime paper is scarce, at from 7@10 ₱ cent. Exchange on this City is again in our favor—New-York funds being scarce.

The failure of Green & Co., of Paris, is thus referred to in the London papers. It is probable the inconvenience to American travelers on the Continent from the failure is exaggerated. The house has not enjoyed a first-rate credit for some time past.

Paris letters mention the suspension of Messrs. Green & Co., American bankers, in that capital. The cause of this failure is attributed to imprudent advances made on French morchandise dispatched to Nicaragua and other Central or South American States. The liabilities are not exactly known, but they are heavy. Much inconvenience will be experienced by Americans traveling on the continent who are provided with letters of credit from the firm in question. American families residing in Paris who may have had deposit accounts with the late firm, will suffer less annoyance, as Messrs. Monroe & Co. have expressed their willingness to make the necessary advances to this class.

The recent failure of Train & Co., of Liverpool, has no relation to the firm of G. F. Train & Co., of Melbourne, Australia.

The extension of this interest west of the Mississippi River is the Burlington and Missouri line. A joint circular has been addressed to the Chicago and Burlington and Michigan Central stockholders, offering the privilege of subscribing to the Burlington and Missouri in the proportions of one share to four in the Chicago and Burlington, and one share to six in the Michigan Central. This privilege, if availed of, is equal to raising a million of capital for the prosecution of the Western Road. The calls upon this are not to exceed 4 ₱ cent. a month, or about 50 ₱ cent. in a year, and the plan of prosecuting the work is such that the stock may not require to be assessed beyond one-half. The terms of the Government land grants are extremely favorable. Seventy-five miles on the eastern end, of which 56 are already opened, will entitle the Company to 800,000 acres of land in the southern tier of counties of the State of Iowa. Beyond this 75 miles, the Company are not required to finish the line faster than 30 miles a year, beginning with the year 1860, and this work will secure an additional appropriation of six sections to each mile of road. The practical fact which we gather from the circular in connection with the terms of the land grant, is, that the value of two or three, and, possibly, four or five million dollars in choice land is secured by building 89 or 40 miles additional road, to reach the Des Moines River, 75 miles west of Burlington. The subsequent obligation to finish the remaining 208 miles, to reach the Missouri, is placed at the entire option of the Company over a period of seven years from the 1st January, 1860.

In March, 1857, the earnings are not yet officially reported, but are understood at the office to reach $75,000, or $80,000 against $40,949 for the corresponding month last year. The managers estimate that the gross earnings for the current year will be from $1,000,000 to $1,200,000. This result, though achieved through many difficulties and delays, and some financial trouble, is highly gratifying, as placing the security of the loans of the Road which were selling very cheap in the market, beyond reasonable question.

The Cotton Trade.

From Wright's New-York Circular, April 14.

Crop.—The continued decrease in receipts confirms and justifies the opinion that the crop will result in less than 3,000,000 bales. The frost, alluded to in my last circular, extended throughout the entire cotton region, and we are informed that replanting will be necessary in the Southern and South-western portion to some extent. I do not attach any consequence to this frost, beyond the fact that it disposes of the chance for an unusually early season for the next crop. We yesterday received by telegraph from Mobile and New-Orleans, dispatches announcing the occurrence of another severe frost on the morning of the 13th. It is, of course, too early to say what effect this cold weather may have upon the new crop beyond making it back ward, but it should not be overlooked in calculating the probabilities that the frost of 16th April, 1842, cut off the crop of that year fully 700,000 bales.

Receipts at the ports are decreasing rapidly. The total for the week under review amounts to 55 000 bales, against 89,000 same week last year, and 63,000 in 1853. Included in the receipts for this week, are 6,000 bales correction in taking stock in Charleston, and which causes the total deficit at the ports to amount to 322,000 bales as compared with last year, and 208 000 as compared with 1853. Next week's table will exhibit a falling off of over 350,000 bales as compared with last year.

The following is a statement of the movement in cotton since the 1st September last, as compared with the previous four years:

Trade in France.

From Paris Letters to the London Press.

The letters from Paris state that the bullion in the Bank of France had increased £710,000 within the last fortnight, the total now held being £9,600,000. Under these circumstances, it has been resolved, from the 3d of April, to reduce the premium offered for gold from 6 per mille to 4. As soon as the stock of bullion shall amount to £12,000,000, artificial purchases are to be entirely discontinued.

"The trade at Paris," says a commercial review, "shows a gradual tendency to revive from the state of atrophy into which it has been plunged for many months. Stocks have become so low that dealers can no longer postpone making purchases, and the consequence is that many articles which have long been stagnant have experienced a sudden rise in price. The nouveautés shops have begun to show their Spring patterns, and an active sale may be looked for within the first fortnight of April. Business is still paralyzed at Rouen and Mulhouse, on account of the dearness of raw materials, but advices from Roubaix, St. Quentin, Rheims and Amiens are satisfactory. Woolen stuffs mixed with cotton now come into very serious competition with Rouen goods, so much so that some of the Rouen houses are thinking of changing the nature of their manufactures. Very few orders for America have as yet been received at Lyons, but most of the factories have work in hand for six weeks to supply the Paris demand. The rise in raw silk is checked. Large purchases have been made in China silks in London, and this commodity is now pretty abundant, both at Lyons and Marseilles. There is a considerable fall in leather in the Paris market. Corn is again lower."

The traffic receipts of the Great Western Railway of Canada, for the week ending March 13, amounted to £10,468, being £2,160 more than in the corresponding week of 1856.

Cleveland and Toledo Railroad Company.

No. 18 William-street, New-York,
April 16, 1857.

A dividend of four per cent. out of the earnings of this Road for the last six months, ending the 1st of April, has this day been declared, payable on the 25th instant. Transfer books will close on the 20th, and open on the 25th inst. By order of the Board.

E. B. LITCHFIELD, Treasurer.

In apprizing the stockholders of the dividend declared as above, it has been deemed proper to accompany the notice with the following brief statement:

The undersigned, appointed at the late meeting of the Board of Directors of this Company, a Committee to make the usual examination as to the financial condition of the Company, and to prepare a circular to the stockholders, in anticipation of the regular report to be made at the annual meeting in June, report that they have entered into a critical examination of the securities of the Company held by the Treasurer, and of the funds of the Company in his hands, and the condition of his accounts, and that they find them correct and satisfactory.

They would also state that the securities of the Company, including the Sinking Fund and other bonds, &c., not necessarily required by the Treasurer in the transaction of the Company's business, will, at his instance, be transferred and placed in the vaults of the Home Office in Cleveland.

The floating debt of the Company to-day is.. $380,000
The cash resources on hand in New-York and Ohio, to-day, are, in round numbers..... 150,000

The Company holds real estate not necessary for the purposes of the road, now being disposed of at prices above cost, and other assets not immediately available, that are good, nearly equal to the amount of the floating debt.

The road and equipments are in excellent working condition.

There are no large construction expenses hereafter to be made.

The following is an approximate statement of the earnings and running expenses of the road for the six months ending March 31, 1857:

STATEMENTS FROM RETURNED FILLIBUSTERS

The steamship Tennessee, Capt. PATTERSON, arrived yesterday morning from Aspinwall and San Juan, vid Key West. The Tennessee arrived at Aspinwall on the afternoon of April 4, landed her passengers and left for San Juan the same evening.

April 9, 10 miles north of Cape Antonio, the Tennessee signalized ship Clara, standing north; forty miles from the Cape passed the bark Cienfuegos, standing north.

April 10—The propeller R. Waterman, from Philadelphia for New-Orleans, arrived at Key West.

The news from Nicaragua is important and confirms the advices received by telegraph.

Col. LOCKRIDGE advanced to Castillo on the 28th of March, with 300 men on board the steamers Scott and Rescue. He found the enemy had fortified Nelson's Hill, 250 yards in rear of the Castle, with strong breastworks, ditches, several large guns and 500 men. He retreated without making an attack and destroyed all the fortifications below Castillo, abandoning all hope of opening the River. He disbanded the two battalions of recruits and formed another from those who were willing to go to WALKER, vid Panama.

April 2—The boiler of the Scott exploded near Serapiqui, killing and wounding about fifty of the officers and men. The sick and wounded were immediately sent to Punta Arenas upon the Rescue.

The Tennessee brought away all who were able to be removed.

Col. LOCKRIDGE was up the River with a portion of his force and a large supply of provisions.

The Tennessee left in the harbor of San Juan, April 6, H. B. M. war steamers Orion, Cossack, Archer, Tartar, Pioneer, and Intrepid.

SAN JUAN DEL NORTE, NICARAGUA,
Monday, April 6, 1857.

The news I have to send you by this mail is of the highest importance. The events that have occurred within the past few days, have been utterly disastrous to the fillibuster cause. Col. LOCKRIDGE, finding the Costa Ricans too strong for him, has disbanded the force under his command, and, having given up all hope of reestablishing communication with WALKER by the San Juan, he has left that river in the complete possession of the Allies. The Colonel himself, with something less than one hundred men, still devoted to the cause, proposes to join WALKER at Rivas, by way of Panama. I retrograde somewhat in date in order to give your readers a succinct outline of the important events that have occurred here.

After the taking of Serapiqui on the 14th February, Col. TITUS, flushed with the prestige of success, demanded the right of proceeding with his party to attack Castillo, and on the 15th, aided by Gen. WHEAT, and by three companies, amounting to about one hundred and sixty men, with provisions and ammunition, Col. TITUS was taken up the river, and landed one mile below the fort, upon the same side of the river. He then proceeded round to the rear of the fort, when, upon his approach, the Costa Ricans set fire to the boats and the buildings in the place, and retired within the fort. The Colonel remained for several days, occupying Nelson's Hill in the rear, and overlooking the fort, without any damage being done to either side.

Finally Col. TITUS raised a white flag, which was immediately answered from the fort, and the representative of each belligerent party met. Col. TITUS demanded an immediate surrender, and he had five hundred men to back him. The Costa Rican officer then read an order from the President of Costa Rica, that all Americans who should fall into his hands should be forthwith put to death; that he could not surrender without consent of Gen. MORA, but that within twenty-four hours he would decide. Col TITUS gave him the time to consider.

Just before the expiration of the twenty-four hours, a small body of Costa Ricans came through the woods from up the river, and fired upon one of the piquet guards, who came running to TITUS, saying that the Costa Ricans were coming upon them. He was told to go back to his company and give them fight. "But," says the guard, "there are more than five hundred of them." Col. TITUS replied; "The h—l there is! Then we had better run—save yourselves, boys," and started upon the run, with one company with him, some of them before and some behind him. One of these reported afterwards that he never saw so fat a man run so fast before! Gen. WHEAT had left before him.

In the meantime the other two companies had not heard the order to retreat, but fought the Costa Ricans well, and after killing some of the enemy, and losing themselves a few men, they succeeded in driving the enemy back. The Costa Ricans were, in fact, retreating, when some one asked, "Where is Col. TITUS?" Another replied, "Why, he left us some three-quarters of an hour ago,"—whereupon they all retreated, and followed the lead of TITUS, leaving their provisions and ammunition in the rear.

They found Col. TITUS about two miles down the river. When they all met, Col. TITUS said, "Now, boys, let us stand and fight the enemy like brave men, or die in the attempt." Not a Costa Rican essayed to pursue them.

The whole strength of the Costa Ricans in the fort when TITUS went there, and of the reinforcements who drove him away, was ascertained by an American, neutral as to party, who visited the fort a few days afterwards, to be just twenty-one men. Sixty came through the woods, and from these Col. TITUS fled. The steamer Scott, which had been taken from the enemy during the first day by some six or eight men, who swam to the boat and cut her out from under the guns of the fort, was then floated down the river and paddled ashore near where TITUS and his men were stationed. They all then went on board and floated still further down, to Machuca Rapids, and there remained till the arrival of the Rescue, on the morning of the 20th, with men and provisions.

Col. LOCKRIDGE, who had been down the river during this time, with the little boat, went on board the Scott and inquired of TITUS what it all meant—why he had left Castillo, &c. He told him that he could have taken it with 50 men, easily, and that he (Col. TITUS) was a coward. Whereupon Col. TITUS replied that he allowed no man to call him coward; that LOCKRIDGE played the coward at Serapiqui, and seizing LOCKRIDGE by the throat, was about to throw him overboard, when some friends interfered and separated them.

Col. LOCKRIDGE apologized to TITUS, and for the sake of keeping the men in subordination, the difficulty was hushed up. Soon after this event, however, LOCKRIDGE sent Col. TITUS as special messenger and bearer of dispatches to Gen. WALKER vid Aspinwall.

TITUS lost four men, killed at Castillo: James Peacock, B. C. Lang, Potter Mann, and L. M. Washington.

On the 21st March, the steamers Scott and Rescue took the recruits, then just arrived by the Texas, and numbering about 150 men, up the river, and landed them at Machuca Rapids, twelve miles below Castillo. On the 23d the steamers returned to Serapiqui, and after destroying all the breastworks, barricades and buildings belonging to the fort, took the 1st Battalion, which had been stationed there, together with their provisions and ammunition, and landed them also at Machuca. The same disposition was made of the 2d Battalion at Fort Slatter. The whole army upon the San Juan River, with their sick and wounded, ammunition and provisions, were now concentrated at Machuca, in all a little less than 400 men, with about 300 fit for duty. The Scott could not be got over the rapids, while the Rescue, by lightening her of every possible thing of weight, was with difficulty taken above.

The men were now set to work with hungos to take provisions, ammunition and artillery over the rapids. After accomplishing this, on the 28th, about 300 men, being all the able-bodied in the expedition, were landed upon the right bank of the river about one mile below the fort preparatory to an attack upon Castillo the next day. A party of thirty men were sent out to reconnoitre and examine the enemy's position. When they returned they reported that, upon Nelson's Hill, in the rear of the fort, there were but slight barricades thrown up, and these could be easily overcome.

Early on the morning of the 30th, the whole party advanced to attack the enemy, and proceeded to within 50 or 75 yards of the Costa Ricans, within sight of their fortifications on the hill, and remained upon their arms, while the principal officers and their staff reconnoitred the force and strength of the Costa Rican fortifications from different positions. After three hours spent in this way they became satisfied in their own minds that it would be impolitic and imprudent to attack so strongly a fortified place and so many men as there seemed to be within the enemy's lines with so small a force as 300 men, end with no artillery which could then be brought to bear upon the enemy entrenched on Nelson's Hill.

The old fort of Castillo is situated upon the bank of the river, while Nelson's Hill, so called, is in the rear, is much more elevated and quite commanding the old fort itself. This hill was in the possession of Col. TITUS and his party about six weeks before, and then there were no entrenchments or barricades upon it. The officers who now inspected the premises were of opinion that Nelson's Hill was too strongly entrenched and barricaded, and every access to it completely obstructed except at one point, through which it would be impossible to advance without too great a sacrifice of life; and that there were at least 400 Costa Ricans within the entrenchments. So the project of taking Castillo was again abandoned. The recruits now returned to their landing place and encamped for the night, having spilt no blood or expended any ammunition in this last effort to take possession of Fort Castillo Viejo.

The next day, March 31, the party with all their goods embarked on board the Rescue, and came down the river to Muchuca, where lay the Scott with the sick and wounded.

APRIL 1.—To day Col. LOCKRIDGE called a meeting of the officers and men upon the upper deck of the Scott, to whom he made a speech, saying, among other things, that circumstances beyond his control compelled him to admit that the expedition for the opening of the San Juan River must now be given up and abandoned, and that there would be a disbanding of the military organization heretofore existing among them. Col. L., said, however that he had a proposition to make to them, which was this: "that he would like to have them all accompany him round to WALKER by the wey of Aspinwall and Panama, and to all who would go he would give a free passage. Many of the men expressed a desire to go back to the States. He said that those who did not feel enough of patriotism for Nicaragua to go with him, he would give orders to have returned home by the Tennessee which would sail in a few days.

He then called for a division of the men to see how many would go with him, whereupon a number something short of one hundred signified their readiness to join him. He then ordered those who would not go with him to be put on board the Rescue, their arms taken, from them, and then threatened them for their cowardice, to land them across the river and let them go to — if they would not go with him.

The same day both boats left Machuca, and proceeded down the river. Next morning the Scott, being ahead, and about a mile from Serapiqui, came to anchor near the shore, and sent a bungo down to Serapiqui, to see if the Costa Ricans had taken possession in their absence. The bungo returned, finding all safe. The Rescue had just arrived with the defenceless and home-sick soldiers, who, through the mercy of Col. LOCKRIDGE, were now left without attendance, to die of starvation, or be devoured by crocodiles. The Scott was on the point of starting again, when her boiler burst, tearing in pieces all the front part of the boat, scalding to death and blowing overboard a large number of the men on board. But for the timely aid of those on board the Rescue, many more would have been lost.

Twenty-four were killed and missing; 14 of whom were collected and buried in one grave. The following among the killed are all the names we could learn from some of the scalded and wounded men at Point Arenas, just as the Tennessee was ready to sail, viz.:

Major W. Morris,	H. M. Tunstall,	—— Alexander,
Capt. F. Schlitcht,	Jas. Wilson,	—— Butte,
Lieut. J. Coughlin,	Joseph Murray,	—— Beatlemen,
Lieut. Fulger,	J. L. Phillips,	—— Higgins,
	J. Buffington,	—— Thomas.

Among the badly scalded are:

Lt. Col. Doubleday,	Lieut. Cesdier,	Charles Burt,
Capt. M. French,	James McCrea,	Chas. Crawford,
Capt. Berrington,	James Rowan,	E. S. Baker,
Capt. Kenedy,	Thos. M. Smith,	—— Lansing.
Lieut. J. Monholion,	Edwin Raymond,

Some of these scalded cannot recover. The boat was lying with bow to the shore, and many managed to pass to the shore over the wreck before she sank. Some of the provisions and ammunition was saved. About 300 muskets were thrown into the water, with other materials of war, when the Scott sank in night feet water, a total wreck.

The Rescue, with about 150 men, including the sick and wounded, came immediately down the river, and landed them at Punta Arenas, on Friday, April 3, and just after the Tennessee had left for Aspinwall, bringing the first news of the disastrous turn of events up the river. The Rescue left again soon after for the balance of the men. She did not return till Monday, P. M., just as the Tennessee, which had that morning arrived from Aspinwall, was about to sail for New-York. Colonel LOCKRIDGE did not return to Punta Arenas in the boat with the men.

All, sick or well, were anxious to return to the States by the Tennessee. They had seen the elephant. Colonel LOCKRIDGE had promised them an order by which they could return home. Captain SCOTT, agent of the Transit Company, asserted Colonel LOCKRIDGE had left word for all who wished to go home in the steamer. The military organization had been broken up; they were no longer of the Nicaraguan army and should they be left at Punta Arenas to starve, or become an easy prey to the Costa Ricans, or any party who might appear against them in arms?

Captain PATTERSON of the Tennessee was in a dilemma. These men, perhaps, were not American citizens, but citizens of Nicaragua, and to take them away without the consent of the Government of Nicaragua, or some one thereby authorized, he might become liable to Nicaragua. Colonel LOCKRIDGE was the only person acting under the authority of WALKER directly; and the men say he purposely remained up the river to avoid the responsibility of ordering or refusing them a passage in the Tennessee.

The men were moneyless, and if taken on board and conveyed to the States, must be taken at the charge of somebody, and who? The Captain decided not to assume the responsibility, and would take only 43 of the sick on board as a matter of charity, and one of the Doctors belonging to their crowd to take care of them while on board.

The late recruits were loud in anathemas and threats against Col. LOCKRIDGE, and when he does come down to Punta Arenas, his chance for personal safety will be very small.

Thus there seems to be an end for the present to all prospect of opening the navigation of San Juan River to the Transit Company and to Gen. WALKER.

Besides the letters which were forwarded at the taking of Serapiqui and published, there were also other letters found at the same time, which Colonel LOCKRIDGE informs me were of such grave importance that it was deemed impolitic to make their contents publicly known until they had been submitted to Gen. WALKER, and perhaps sent also to the United States Government at Washington. Among other things, they indicate an arrangement by which the Transit route is to be given to the British Government. The latter, in return, promises to furnish aid to Costa Rica to drive WALKER out of Nicaragua.

Up to March 22, the following have died in the hospital at Serapiqui, viz.: ADOLPHUS MOTTE, JAMES JONES, SAMUEL JOHNSON, NATHAN TULLY, HARRIS, GUNN, CABANA, BALDWIN, and LORD.

The following order was read to the First Battalion at Serapiqui on the date thereof:

HEAD-QUARTERS, SAN JUAN RIVER,
March 22, 1857.

GENERAL ORDERS, No. —

The 1st Battalion of New Recruits now commanded by Col. F. P. Anderson, will be called the 1st Rifle Battalion, and will be composed of the following Companies:

Company A, Capt, F. A. Thompson.
Company B, Capt. R. A. Harris.
Company C, Capt. B. A. Reynolds.
Company D, Capt. F. Schlitcht.
Company E, Capt. W. W. Berrington.
Company F, Capt. M. French.
Company G. Capt. R. McGriff.

All officers acting as Lieutenants will remain as at present assigned.

Major Charles Doubleday is hereby appointed Lieutenent Colonel, and Major Capers, Major of the Batallion, Major Baldwin, Aid to the Commander-in-Chief. N. A. will act as Volunteer Aid to the Commanding Officer on the San Juan River. Col. Geo. B. Hall, Capt. J. E. Farnum and Lieut. James Smith are this day dismissed from the command for intemperance and for conduct unbecoming officers and gentlemen, and charges have been preferred against them and forwarded to the Head-Quarters of the Army. Also, Drs. Anderson and Richardson, of the 2d Battalion, are dismissed for absence without leave. Signed S. A. LOCKRIDGE, Col. N. Army Commanding on San Juan.

This completes the summary of the disastrous news that I have to send you by the Tennessee.

Experiences of Returned Fillibusters.

STATEMENT OF GEORGE W. SITES, OF PHILADELPHIA.

THE RETREAT FROM CASTILLO AND EXPLOSION OF THE J. N. SCOTT—ATTENTION TO THE WOUNDED BY THE SURGEONS OF THE BRITISH FLEET—MOVEMENTS OF LOCKRIDGE—DISCOVERY OF $40,000 AT SERAPIQUI.

Mr. SITES informs us that he went out to Nicaragua in December last, in the steamer Tennessee holding the position of Lieutenant, and after arriving acted as Orderly. He took part in the attack on Fort Serapiqui, and was wounded in both thighs and knee by a Minié rifle ball and buckshot, since which time he has been unable to do duty, and now returns with other wounded and disabled men.

Mr. SITES is quite a young man, and went out in pursuit of adventure, which he confesses he has had enough of, for the present, if not for the remainder of his life.

After the repulse of Col. TITUS at Castillo, our informant says, the works at Serapiqui were totally destroyed, and all the buildings burnt. The troops then at that point embarked on board the river steamers, March 22, and proceeded to Fort Slatter, a place about 20 miles below Castillo, and named after a gentleman of New-Orleans who had largely contributed to the fillibuster cause. The forces at this point joined those from below on board the two steamers Rescue and J. N. Scott, making about 400 able men, besides about 100 sick and wounded. This included the 150 recruits who had just previously arrived from New-Orleans under command of Major CAPERS, and a number of whom were taken sick soon after reaching San Juan. From Fort Slatter the steamers ran up to KELLY'S store, about eight miles below Castillo, where the greater portion were landed and marched around the rapids. About eighty men under Capt SCHLITCHT were left at the store to hold the position. Above the rapids the men were again taken on board, and the steamers proceeded to within view of Fort Castillo, when it was discovered that the enemy had more strongly fortified the place by the construction of water batteries, and more particularly by throwing up works on Nelson's Hill—an elevation on the same side of the river, a little below Castillo. According to appearance, the Costa Ricans had concentrated all their available forces at Nelson's Hill and Fort Castillo, and the general opinion was that it would require not less than 2,000 men to dislodge them. The steamers halted during the survey within two-thirds cannon-shot of Nelson's Hill, where they could see men passing to and fro on the hill, but no fire was opened upon them.

After a prolonged consultation, it was decided that to make an attack would be highly imprudent, promising no successful result, and that nothing remained but to retire at once. The steamers then headed down stream, and stopped at KELLY'S store, where they took on board the men left at that place under Capt. SCHLITCHT. On the 31st of March, got up steam and headed for San Juan, with a sort of scow-built craft in tow, carrying the cannon, arms, equipments &c. When about a mile above Serapiqui, the Scott ran on to a sand-bar and stuck fast; and it was here the explosion occurred. The Scott, it will be recollected, was a stern-wheel boat, and the boiler and machinery were located towards the after part. At the time, a large number of men were gathered about the furnace, roasting crackers, and otherwise cooking. Our informant was in the act of descending the cabin stairs, with the aid of crutches, when the explosion happened. He was thrown on his back, but sustained no serious injury. About twenty men were killed outright, missing included, and eight or ten have died since: not far from thirty men were more or less scalded in addition. The cause of the explosion was the supposed defective condition of the steam apparatus, and the carelessness of the engineer. From the blackened condition of the faces of the scalded, some thought, at first, that powder had been maliciously placed in contact with the furnace. There was a larger quantity of powder on board, but luckily it was stowed forward, and was not ignited.

Immediately after the explosion, the scalded were placed on board of the launch, and the Rescue taking it in tow, started for Punta Arenas. A number of the men were left on the Scott for the time, as that vessel, being partly aground, did not entirely sink. On arriving at Punta Arenas, some eight or ten surgeons from the vessels composing the British fleet came on board, and tendered their services to dress the wounds of the disabled. They contributed all the kind attentions in their power, and are entitled to much praise for the same.

The Tennessee left San Juan on the 6th inst., and our informant went on board of her in company with about fifty others, all of whose passage had been provided for, as he supposes, by LOCKRIDGE. Just as the Tennessee was leaving Greytown, Col. LOCKRIDGE arrived from up the river, and when within hailing distance, with a wave of his hand, exclaimed, "Go on now, that's all we are going to give you;" implying that there were no more sick to be sent home then, and no deserters. Col. LOCKRIDGE had been busy up to the time of the departure of the Tennessee, in preparing to leave for Aspinwall, with a view to join Gen. WALKER. At KELLY'S store he had appealed to his men to know how many would accompany him—as the British fleet would permit no fillibuster to leave under restraint. About 150 declared their readiness to follow him, but a number of these were killed or severely wounded by the explosion. It was thought, though by no means certain, that he would take not far from 100 men with him to join WALKER. LOCKRIDGE seemed to have means enough at his command, but was slightly economical in disbursing. In all probability he procured a vessel and left San Juan within a few days after the departure of the Tennessee. When our informant left, Col. ANDERSON was on the sick list, having been scalded at the time of the explosion; Gen. WHEAT was in prime condition and fat as a mackerel. The general conviction was adverse to the capacity of Col. LOCKRIDGE as a commander, but it was believed that difficulty would be removed when the San Juan forces arrived at WALKER'S quarters.

Mr. SITES informs us that a rumor was current after the capture of Serapiqui, that some $40,000 in American gold was found in the fort, said to have been furnished by Commodore VANDERBILT for the use of the Costa Ricans; the money was supposed to be distributed among the officers; at all events, the men in the ranks saw nothing of it. Whether this story is true in whole or in part, it is only given as a rumor.

STATEMENT OF TWO OFFICERS IN THE NICARAGUAN ARMY.

SUFFERINGS OF THE FILLIBUSTERS ON THE SAN JUAN RIVER.

Lieut. J. W. GAGE and Dr. GEO. S. WEIR have furnished us a detailed account of operations upon the San Juan River, closing with the first and second attempt upon Castillo, the explosion of the steamer and the withdrawal of LOCKRIDGE from the river; but as these details are published above, we omit all but the closing portion of their narrative.

Upon the retreat of Col. TITUS from Castillo down the river the force was divided, one-half being left at San Carlos Island and the other half at Serapiqui, where they each remained until the 28th of March. The condition of the men was most pitiable, without suitable food; their clothing was worn out or torn to shreds, and they were exposed to all the inclemency of the season without shelter. In consequence of the heavy duty, as piquets, at long distances from the camp, where they were compelled to stand knee deep in mud, with sun and rain alternately pouring upon them, many became discouraged and gave up: the German portion soon succumbed: fifteen died at Serapiqui and one or two at San Carlos, besides three who were accidentally drowned while bathing. The absence of Col. TITUS had the effect to dishearten the men.

The arrival of the Texas, on the 27th of March, brought 160 recruits from New-Orleans, among whom were Gen. HORNSBY and NORVAL WALKER, brother of WILLIAM, and Major MORRIS, of Philadelphia; the latter of whom was killed by the explosion of the Scott. With these reinforcements an immediate attack on Castillo was determined on, and the entire force was carried up the river. This attack began with a reconnoissance, continued by a council of war, and ended by a retreat, the generals being disgusted with the look of the place.

The disastrous explosion upon the steamer, the disposal of the dead and wounded, and the final retreat of the fillibusters from the San Juan River, closed the sad narrative.

Lieut. GAGE and Dr. WIER have read the statements of Col. HALL and Capt. FARNHAM, and affirm their truthfulness in full. Among the relics of the campaign brought home is the identical coat of Col. TITUS, left at Serapiqui, which he wore in Kansas—buttons and all.

THE RETURNED FILLIBUSTERS.

The following are the names of the returned soldiers from WALKER'S Army in Nicaragua: Dr. Geo. S. Weir, Lieut. J. H. Tivis, Privates J. D. Borlan, J. M. Holden, J. W. Borlen, J. G. Starr, J. Butt, E. Williams, Joseph Taylor, Frank Wilson, Edward Duncan, G. W. Sites, A. Smith, Alfred Goff, James Fitzgerald, J. Tuliay, M. Schruber, A. Wolf, N. Smith, J. Mchegow, J. B. Blunt, M. Riley, W. W. Johnston, Wm. Bradergold, J. Bleeker, Wm. Gondover, R. Hamilton, A. Huntman, Wm. Wright, J. W. Gage, W. Carrolle, Thos. Ferris, J. D. Fenn, M. McKlosky, J. W. Billing, H. G. Rousseau, C. Brown, J. McClinton, J. Eckstein, J. Logan, S. Shennissen, E. S. Baker, J. O'Connell, C. J. Judkins, N. B. Teylor, F. Kline, F. E. Chorlton, T S. McNeely, S. A. Ward, Wm. Neef. Total, 50.

Reception of Returned Fillibusters.

On the arrival of the Tennessee, yesterday morning, Mr. J. E. ANDERSON, brother of Col. FRANK ANDERSON of WALKER'S Army, with one or two other gentlemen, repaired to the steamer in two carriages, and took two loads, sixteen in all, of the returned soldiers who were represented to stand the most in need of assistance, and conveyed them to the Washington Hotel, whose proprietor, Major BARTLETT, supplied them with a breakfast gratis. The poor fellows had had no food for the preceding twenty-four hours, and restraint was necessary to prevent them from eating too much. The sum of $45 was also raised at the Washington, and other contributions were received from the Metropolitan, St. Nicholas, St. Charles, and from several other sources. More than $100 was collected altogether, with which the unfortunate "emigrants" were supplied each with a suit, consisting of a hat, shirt, pants, and coat. Ex-Councilman VAN TINE of No. 2 Dey-street, provided them with a dinner free, and PHALON gave them all a free bath. It is understood that applications have been or will be, made to the railroad and other companies to provide them, (since most of them have been wounded or disabled by sickness in Nicaragua,) with free tickets to their homes in other sections of the country.

A very curious case was brought to light yesterday at the Lower Police Court. CHAS. J. KANE, a banker doing business at No. 33 Pine-street, and residing at No. 32 East Teirty-first street appeared before Justice CONNOLLY, and made an affidavit, in which he states that he was called upon by "a very suspicious character, calling himself SCATCHARD (which he acknowledged to be an assumed name") who represented himself to be engaged in a scheme to effect the liberation of CHAS. J. HUNTINGDON, some time since convicted of forgery in this City and at present confined in the State Prison at Sing-Sing. He divulged his plan of operation, which was to forge the Governor's signature to a pardon for HUNTINGDON, and by means of the same, effect his liberation, and then hurry him out of the country (to Cuba or the Isle of Pines) before the fraud could be discovered or bench warrants issued for his re arrest on the twenty-six other indictments found against him, and upon either of which he can at any time be brought to trial.

SCATCHARD added that HUNTINGDON was aware of the plot, which he had been some time maturing, and that it met the cordial support of various parties (whose names he refused to mention) who had given him material aid towards its consummation. Mr. KANE, however, did not assist or encourage SCATCHARD in any way, but, on the contrary, soon after preferred a complaint against him of felony, in aiding and assisting to effect such escape, and of a misdemeanor in conspiring with other persons to commit an act for the prevention or obstruction of justice in the due administration of law. Upon this complaint a warrant was issued, and placed in the hands of Officer JOHN LORD, of the Sixth Ward, who shortly succeeded in arresting the accused party, who, on being brought before the Magistrate, was detained, by his own request, for an examination.

The arrest was made at the suggestion of HUNTINGDON'S late counsel, who allege that HUNTINGDON was not at all cognisant of, or in the least manner connected with, "SCATCHARD'S" alleged designs.

The accused party appears to be between 35 and 40 years of age, of genteel address, and decidedly "smart" looking. It is stated that he lately came from New-Orleans, but any further particulars concerning him appears not to be known.

It is said that one-half of this queer transaction is not yet known, and that some singular developments will be made on the examination, which will take place at an early day.

The Late Murder of a Policeman.

The inquest upon the body of STEPHEN P. HARDENBROOK, who was murdered in West-street on Wednesday morning by two burglars whom he was attempting to arrest, was resumed yesterday. A number of witnesses were examined. The boatmen who on Tuesday purchased articles of clothing in the store upon which the burglary was committed, were brought before the Coroner and immediately dismissed, their innocence being clearly proven. Policemen KELLY deposed that on the morning of the murder he was on duty in Fourteenth-street and Seventh-avenue, and that between the hours of 1 and 2 o'clock he was accosted by two men, who inquired of him the name of the street. He informed them the location, whereupon they walked away up Seventh-avenue, and into the Sixteenth Ward. They appeared agitated, and behaved so suspiciously as to attract his attention. He therefore looked at them sharply, and took particular note of their accent, looks, and attire, and feels sure of being able to recognize them again. They looked like sailors, had on twilled monkey jackets, each appeared to be about 34 or 35 years of age, and one of them 5 feet 10 inches and the other 5 feet 8 inches in height. "They appeared like Germans or Jews." This description corresponds with that given of his assassins by the deceased. This was the most important evidence. The inquest was adjourned till 10 o'clock, A. M., this day.

The British mail steamer Arabia, from Liverpool at 3 o'clock on the afternoon of Saturday the 4th inst., arrived yesterday morning.

In Britain the borough elections are over and the county elections are progressing. Lord PALMERSTON'S success is undoubted.

Some more arrests have taken place in Paris of persons charged with a plot against the Emperor.

The Neufchatel conference has held its sixth meeting, at which, it was supposed, the first protocol was paragraphed. The Paris correspondent of the London Times gives the following as the conditions upon which the King of Prussia will renounce his sovereignty:

"A full and complete amnesty for those who took part in the insurrection of September; conservation of the title of the Prince of the Prince of Neufchatel; payment to the King by the Helvetic Confederation of 2,000,000, as a compensation for the revenues of Neufchatel; restitution of the property of the church, incorporated in the year 1848 with the property of the State; payment by the Helvetic Confederation of the expenses occasioned by the events of September, and by the occupation; contribution by the population to the expenses at the charge of the State; amnesty for all political offences anterior to the events of September; guarantee by the State for the capital and interest of pious establishments, hospitals, &c., particularly of the sum bequeathed by the Baron DE GURY; and suspension of all discussion relative to the Constitution of Neufchatel until after the expiration of a term of six months.

The Belgian Government has voted to admit the importation of coals at a duty of 1f. 40c. per ton. An anti-free-trade riot had occured at Tournay.

From Madrid, March 21st, it is reported that even in case of an arrangement with Mexico, a Spanish force will occupy some portion of the Mexican territory "to protect Spanish subjects."

A letter from Cadis states that, pursuant to orders sent by telegraph from Madrid, a corvette and two brigs, part of the Mexican naval division, left for Havana on March 26.

Respecting Neapolitan affairs, the Naples correspondent of the London Times says;

"The police are more unbridled and arbitrary in their action than they have been at almost any previous period of their history, but it would be tedious to enumerate instances of it.

Austria has issued a new circular complaining of Sardinia's continued insulting conduct. England and France have made a strong remonstrance to both Austria and Sardinia to preserve peace.

The Prussian Government has announced that Prussia will persist in her course respecting the Danish Duchies, and the Prussian ports and coast are to be pisced in a state of defence.

The Russians are concentrating a large force at Anapa. The rumor of successes by the Circassians is again repeated.

The British fleet has finally left the Bosphorus,—thus evacuating the Turkish waters. The inquiry into the fillibustering expedition to Circassia, in the steamer Kangaroo, is terminated, and FERHAD PASHA and ISMAEL BEY are to be tried as the instigators.

According to the Constantinople correspondent of the London News, the Russian Government persuaded the Shah of Persia to conclude peace with England, because Russia has not yet succeeded, either by force or guile, in subduing the Circassians, so that if the had continued between England and Persia, Russia would not now have been able to give Persia any effectual support, since her forces proceeding southward from the Caspian would have been exposed to a flank attack from Circassia.

Details of the battle at Bushire, between the British and Persian cavalry, are received; it appears to have been a complete victory for the British.

Details of news from China are also received, confirming the previous telegraphic summary. The report that the Chinese Emperor has ordered Commissioner YEH to conclude peace with the British on any terms is repeated.

"The Etna packet, from Asia, brings intelligence that the Emperor of China has disavowed the acts of the Governor of Canton, and ordered that all means should be used to effect a reconciliation with England."

The Times also publishes the following dispatch from Turin, giving another version of the China news above quoted: "A steamer has arrived from Malta at Cagliari, bringing the intelligence for the British Government that peace with China was certain."

In regard to the British expedition against China the London Times, of April 3, says:

The embarkations of troops from Portsmouth, for China, will commence on Monday. The Transit, iron steam-troopship, Commander GERRARD, and the Himalaya, Commander HASWELL, are ready. The Transit will take in on Monday 11 officers and 265 men of the 59th Regiment, 16 officers and 271 men of the 95th, and a large party of the medical staff corps. The Himalaya will embark on Monday 36 officers and 804 men of the 99th, and other troops. The Furious, steam-frigate, Captain OSBORN, is also ready for service. The Melville, two-decker hospital-ship, Commander TROLLOPE, is also being equipped for the China service with all dispatch.

It was reported from Hong Kong, Feb. 15, that an American ship, supposed to be the Highflyer, was wrecked in the Fall of 1856 at Formosa, where the crew were massacred and the hull burned by the natives.

The steamer Emeu arrived at Liverpool on the 31st, and the Kangaroo on the 1st. The Leopold I. arrived at Southampton on the 2d, and the Hermann on the 4th.

The Bank of England had advanced its rates of discount to 6½ per cent. CONSOLS closed, on Friday, at 93¾@93¾, and on Saturday they declined to 93½@93¾ for money, and 93½@93¾ for account. The Bullion in the Bank showed a decrease of £335,000.

The Elections in Great Britain.

GREAT MAJORITY FOR LORD PALMERSTON—PECULIARITIES OF THE PREMIER'S POSITION.

From the London Times, April 4.

It is possible to have too much of a good thing,—too much time, too much money, too many friends, too much support, and so to have them too cheap and throw them away. Who does not know what it is to have half a day to get ready for a short journey, and to lose one's train in consequence? Lord PALMERSTON will start with too good a majority. He will have too large a margin to draw upon, and it will be a matter of indifference to him whether half a dozen or so become careless, or sulky, or queer, and leave him for somebody else or nobody else. A majority is a thing that must be used. "There is a tide in the affairs of men." A good majority is high water, which will carry you safe out to sea if you have everything ready, and can use it without a moment's delay; but will strand you at the sill of your own dock, or break your back on the mud before its gates, if you are five minutes too late. A Parliamentary majority is nothing on earth but a snow giant. It looks big and strong, but is melting and crumbling away from the hour it was made. PEEL started in 1841 with an imposing and overwhelming majority of 90, and people seemed to think it must last for ever, and that Conservatism was to usher in the Millennium. But, whether a majority be great or small, it may be observed that in the third or fourth year of a Parliament the Minister finds increasing difficulty in keeping his men together. Certain feelings, not quite on the surface, are evidently at work, which undermine the whole outward form of things, and the Ministerial Party is apt to become like a ship, the timbers of which are whole to the eye, but rotten within. The majority must be worked; it must be committed; it must be animated and raised in self-respect by the consciousness of doing something and being a working and meritorious majority. An idle majority will leave you or bring you to grief, as surely as an idle son, or an idle servant, an idle horse, or anything that is idle. So Lord PALMERSTON must immediately find work for his majority. Too mere recondite question of reward and encouragement we willingly leave to more knowing advisers. The warmest love requires tokens, and no doubt a Minister must dispense keepsakes, mementoes and sweet suggestive gifts of all kinds. That, however, is not by any means so important as work. Better to be in debt to a number of Parliament than have no account at all with him; no services given or received. In fine, Parliament must be worked; the larger the majority the more it must be worked; and the sooner it is fairly in harness the better.

So, before the majority flags, or splits, or rots, or melts, and takes to some deliberate iniquity not yet revealed by time, but always to be apprehended particularly when there are such able suggestions Lord PALMERSTON must provide it with measures. He can be at no loss for them, as there are about as many arrears in Parliament as there used to be in Chancery. For example, there is the law of Joint-stock Banks to be put on a proper footing. There is another more solemn form of partnership, the law of which is most lamentably deficient for all reasonable purposes. Every day shows more and more the miseries and wickedness resulting from the present state of the law of Marriage and Divorce. It is only a question of time, for nobody can doubt that before very long we shall have a Court to do that for all classes which Parliament now does by special acts for the few who pay. The announcements made in the beginning of February seemed to cut out some work on various other subjects, and that work ought by this time to be in a still better state of preparation. But, by the confession of all parties foreign affairs have comparatively suspended domestic legislation for the last three years, and there is an unusual number of remanets. While we maintain to be an advantage rather than a difficulty to a Minister who takes a fresh start with a new Parliament. He has to employ them, to keep them out of harm's way, to occupy their interest and even their affections. Schoolboys don't care a straw for an idle master. They neither love him nor respect him. If he works them hard they respect him, at all events as they know they do this, and they like him even more than they are aware of. Now, here not only is a majority, but, we believe, more than a hundred men who were not in the last Parliament. There seldom were so many new men, and, let people talk as they will about the unnecessary character of the question on which Lord PALMERSTON took the sense of the nation, the nation evidently is of another opinion on that subject: for it has responded to the mere slaverer and flatterer is one who comes forward, as it were, with flash notes, and pays with false coin his tribute to CESAR [Cheers.] I don't disguise that I feel somehow, on my trial here for loyalty, for honest English feeling. ["No, no!" and cheers.] I do not hold any dangerous revolutionary opinions. I am sure there is many a Conservative here who might follow my opinions, or at any rate who might hear them out, and not be very much alarmed at them when I had got to the end. As far as I knew of my political opinions, I belong to the class that I see around me here, the class of lawyers, and merchants and scholars, and men who are striving on in the world, of men of the educated middle classes of this country. And, belonging to them, my sympathies and my affections are with them. If it happened that we had all here an assembly of noblemen and earls, we should no doubt form a Viscount's Government, and think it the best of all Governments possible. [Cheers.] His difficulty arose in China, for instance, we should look for my Lord Duke A. to go out and settle the difficulty, or we should ask Earl B. to go if my Lord Duke A. were not inclined. If a Minister were wanted at Washington, we should send my Lord A. to fill the place; or if a Minister were wanted elsewhere; there would be some other lord who would be quite ready to accept the office If we had a war, we should select a noble lord from the Horse Guards to fill the place of Commander in Chief, we should select a couple of noble earls to command the cavalry, [laughter and cheers,] and we should find out a number of gentlemen of the best families to go on the staff of these noble lords. [Cheers and laughter.] If I, for example, were the noble lord who occupied a high position at home, and especially if I should possibly have a relative in a far distant land where the war was going on, I should most undoubtedly and most justifiably write out to those in authority at head quarters to take care of my relative. [Great laughter.] Against that system I could scarcely protest, because it is perfectly natural. I think it is quite fair that a noble lord should send out and say, "for heaven's sake, take care of Down" [renewed laughter;] but for us on our side, I think that we are bound also to look after Tull and Mac. [Loud cheers.] Tull and Mac belong to our family; they are of the working, sturdy, middle classes. [Cheers.] They are men in whom lie, as I believe, the safety, the hope, and the main part of the intelligence of our country. It is to their party that I would like to say that I belong, and I hope that my confession will carry no disloyalty with it, and will meet with no very sincere disapproval from the strongest Conservative present. [Applause.] Of the kindness with which you, my Lord NEAVES, have been pleased personally to speak of me, and the esteem in which you hold my works, it does not become me to speak; but I assure you that I am most grateful and thankful to think if I can have in the course of my life's labors merited such an encomium as I have had from you—[Cheers]—and if, after the night is over, you, gentlemen, are pleased to confirm the sentence which my kind judge here seated has passed upon me, it will always be a source of great gratification to me to think that he has made a righteous award, and it will be a source of immense pleasure to my children to remember how very kindly, and how very hospitably, and how very generously you have treated me. [Long continued cheers.]

Mr. TEACHERAT, in proposing "the Fine Arts and the Royal Scottish Academy," said: It is now my duty to ask you to drink a toast, which I am sure you will drink without any pressing, and I am glad, in doing so, to speak my thanks to ten artists who have held out their hands to me this evening. I assure you that I have been a constant visitor at the building with the Doric pillars now for off. for I have spent no less than 1s 6d for various catalogues, [laughter,] and I have come away with the strong idea that the distinction between the lion and unicorn is not altogether decided, (a laugh,) and that I do not know what colors ought to have precedence on the pallet, and whether it should be those of England or of Scotland. I am perfectly certain of this, however, that the President of our Academy could not paint, and would own himself that he could not paint, so good a portrait as the President of yours. I am perfectly certain that there is a certain FRANCIS GRANT in London who could paint a picture as well as any Scotchman out of London, or any man in almost any other country. I know that one of our chief painters—one of our naturalistic school—comes to draw his inspiration from Scotland, and that he finds his most noble rocks, his most beautiful lakes, his most splendid deer and his most wonderful heather here. I know that a week ago I shook hands with a young painter, a leader of the Young England school in Perth, and that he last year found his Autumn leaves, and his beautiful grass, and his glorious sunset, worthy of GEORGIONE himself, by the banks of the Tay. I know the young Queen of the French naturalistic school came into your country and has fallen in love with it, and has taken away from it a little ark of her own, carrying with her many of your animals. [Cheers.] I cannot say what particular power it may be in your country which creates this immense attachment, but I begin, I assure you, to feel it myself. [Cheers] What vitality is it in the air which causes all you Scotchmen to have such an intense nationality? Not that your artists cannot go to other places than to Scotland. Yesterday, in the course of one of those visits of which I spoke to the Royal Academy's Exhibition, I was taken by LAUDER into the sacred garden of Olives. I wandered also with HARVEY back into old times, and saw dear old JOHN BUNYAN standing at the gate of Bedford Goal. I passed a little door, and there I was away from JOHN BUNYAN, but HARVEY was carrying me on still, and I stood on the deck of COLUMBUS's caravel, and we looked out and saw land across the Atlantic. Then I went with NOEL PATON, who led me on to the moonlit regions of fairyland, and looked at the beautiful crowds of creatures that danced, and frisked, and gambolled around Oberon and the beautiful Titania. Then he brought me away from that fairy land into love land—and I beheld a young couple sitting in uncommonly close conversation under the gleams of Hesperus, that bright star, who I am sure would wink at what that couple were going to do next. [Laughter.] And I thought to myself how delightful, and how calm, and how pleasant, and how superior is your calling as your business—the mistress you worship—to the noised and the turmoil, and the struggle, and the excitement which have been going on all over Scotland—except in your studios and in your galleries—to that immense noise and hustle of elections, which, I am sure Mr. COWAN is very glad to think is over. [Laughter.] Your mistress is always young. It does not matter to you what dark conspirators are attempting to oust Mr. COWAN from his seat. [Much laughter and cheering.] I have heard of several. Your city is standing there, calm and grand, and bright, and beautiful; the great Castle looks down the great street that leads to Holyrood; and Arthur's Seat is enveloped in mist, or is covered with cloud, or is golden with sunshine. What matters who is elected at Leith, and whether Mr. MILLER or whether the Lord-Advocate triumphs there? The waves, as before, come rolling into the Firth from the sea. What matters it at Aberdeen whether Colonel SYKES or Mr. LEITH is elected? The great calm, old gray city of Aberdeen, and its University, with its crowned towers, still sits calmly on the sands, and looks towards the ocean; the Don rushes by Seaton Woods, and under the slim arch of the old bridge, away towards the sea. (Cheers.) As I was musing upon the vast superiority of your calling over other callings, I was met by a couple of friends of mine—politicians, in this city—and I heard these gentlemen engaged in the deepest consultations about the last return from the Lochtin burghs, or about John o'Groat's House, or about who was to be the member for the Orkneys [Laughter.] And passing away from their conversation, I thought I would go into your Gallery, and there, to my surprise, I found that the painters had been working, and had been candidates for public applause too. The landscape painters had been at their work, and, as I looked round, I saw that FERRAGON in Perthshire wore HARVEY'S colors in spite of the Act (laughter and cheers) that Lochaline Castle, and Inveriochy Castle, and Irvine Mill were admirably represented by MCCULLOCH (cheers); that from the large Cumbrae had been most triumphantly canvassed by MILNE DONALD (cheers), and that though EDWARD ELLICE may certainly sit for St. Andrew's in the next Parliament, D. O. HILL has achieved a much greater triumph, and made St. Andrew's sit for him. (Laughter and prolonged cheering.)

THE CHINA WAR.

Trial of Allum for Poisoning—Movements of Ships of War—Attempt to Burn the British ship Comus—Engagement with Junks—the Americans advised by Yeh to remove from Canton—Trade, &c.

Hong Kong, (Dec. 15,) Correspondence of the London Times.

Since I wrote to you on the 30th ult., the occurrences have been unimportant.

ALLUM's trial commenced on the 3d instant, and after an investigation which lasted five days he obtained a verdict by a majority of the jury of "Not guilty."

The evidence is given at full length in the local papers. It was chiefly circumstantial, and although it did not prove sufficient to lead to a conviction, a strong feeling exists as to the guilt of the principal persons tried. The case was conducted on the part of the Crown by the Attorney-General, the Hon. Mr. ANSTEY.

On the prisoners leaving the Court-house they were re-apprehended as suspicious characters under a late Government notification, and ALLUM, I believe is to be detained in the meantime.

At Hong Hong all remains quiet. The addition to the forces that has lately taken place has allayed any uneasiness that previously existed in case the place should be attacked by the Chinese. The private steamer Sir James Brooke arrived here on the 31st ult., taken up by the Government of Singapore, and brought on from the Straits about 210 men of the 29th and 36th Regiments Madras Native Infantry, (Major CAZALET, Commander,) and some gun Lascars and Madras Artillerymen.

Her Majesty's sloop Elk, 12 guns, and brig Camilla, 16 guns, arrived here on the 10th inst. The Company's steamer Auckland is also here.

The United States steamer San Jacinto and sloop Levant are still in harbor.

The French mail steamer Catinat has gone on a cruise. The Virginie went out I believe, in consequence of advices being received of a disaster to the French ship Anais, with Coolies on board. The vessel left Swatow on the 29th ult., bound for Havanna. The following day the Coolies rose, murdered the captain, mate, and supercargo, and ran the ship ashore near Breakers Point, where the remainder of the crew landed. They were taken charge of by the authorities, and would be, I hear, forwarded to Swatow.

Admiral SEYMOUR left here on the 6th inst., in Her Majesty's steamer Barracouta, and came down for the mail last evening in the Hyer.

There is little to report of occurrences up the river.

An attempt was made at the end of last month to burn Her Majesty's ship Comus, which was nearly proving successful. Two junks were sent down upon her. They were on fire, and alongside very quickly. One cleared the vessel without doing much injury; the other was got clear with difficulty, and at one time the danger appeared imminent, the flames being over the fore part of the ship. No serious damage was done.

Numerous junks still keep in proximity to our ships; there are no means at present of following them. Two small river steamers have been fitted with guns, but even these will scarcely prove of sufficiently light draught of water to allow them to follow the junks.

The comparative impunity with which the junks have fired at the steamers on one or two occasions apparently induced the Chinese to act with less caution on the 10th inst., when Her Majesty's Steamer Hornet, Capt. FORSYTH, and a small river steamer, under charge of Lieutenant DENT, were attacked by a fleet of about 200 junks. Capt. FORSYTH anchored the Hornet ahead of the junks, and opened fire, which, we hear, was very precise, and must have done a great deal of damage.

A Chinese report of the affair stated that the junks suffered severely.

Night coming on the fleet could not be followed up the creek. One large junk was cut out by the Hornet's boats, two sunk, and two blew up.

Pekin Gazettes to the 6th of January report several successes gained over the rebels, and the retaking of some of the towns in the province of Hopeh. The retirement of the rebels from some of their posts to reinforce their body at Nankin, where disorder still continued, is stated as the origin of these reported Imperial successes. Yu-Yaou, a town about 90 miles from Ningpo, is said to have been taken by the insurgents, the head Mandarin killed, and about 300 of the Imperial soldiers.

The report is correct of an edict having been issued to the high officers of the coast provinces not to interfere with the quarrel at Canton.

YEH is said to have orders to establish peace, but nothing is said of opening Canton.

At Ningpo considerable excitement prevailed towards the end of last month, and the missionaries left the place; but at the last date, 1st inst., all was quiet. The cause of this apprehension appeared to be a permission from the Intendant to the Canton men to make an attack on the Ionchia men. The permission, however, was withdrawn, and no disturbance took place.

Shanghae advices are to the 7th inst.

Trade had not been renewed since the Chinese holydays—26th of January. Previous to that date a large business had been done in imports, but the settlements of produce had been small, owing to short supplies and the high prices asked.

The currency remained in the same unsatisfactory state.

LONGCLOTHS.—Grays quoted $1 78@$2 05; whites, $1 35@$1 90. Supplies heavy.

SILK.—About 2,500 bales settled at an advance of fully $10 ₱ picul; No. 2 Taatlee quoted $375@$380; No. 4, $360; Teysaam, middling to fair, $290@$310; inferior to middling, $250@$280. The total export from China since 1st of July, 1856, to date is 69,000 bales.

TEA.—Twelve chops of new Ningchow had been settled, after considerable competition, at about 3 taels advance on last month's prices. There were on the market eight chops of similar tea, of the same quality, held for 18 to 20 taels. About 25 chops Ningchow, yet to arrive, would finish the season's crop.

The export from China shows a decrease on that of last year to the same time of 4,000,000 lbs.

Dr. PARKER, the United States Minister, addressed YEH, asking him to allow Americans to remove their property from Canton. YEH replied that all approaches to the City were commanded by the British vessels, and recommended that the Americans should move to the other ports to trade.

THE LATEST NEWS.

From the Hong Kong Register, Feb. 17.

The Auckland, with the Eaglet in company, ran down outside Ling-ting on Saturday last. When off Toong Chung they sighted four large heavy armed mandarin junks, which, it is said, have been intercepting provision and other boats coming to Hong Kong. The steamers saw the boats were heavily armed and manned, and they therefore ran into them. The Auckland unfortunately got ashore on a bar, but the Eaglet ran in with the boats. The junks opened fire, and continued it very briskly, but without doing any damage; the steamers and boats returned the fire, and the junks were captured and burnt, and the boats then pushed for shore. On landing, they captured a battery mounting 16 guns, which they spiked, and, as far as we could make out, set fire to a village near it.

The Emperor of China's Views of Affairs at Canton.

Hong Kong (Feb. 11) Correspondence of the London News.

The steamer Fiery Cross leaves for Calcutta at 3 P. M. to-day, and in full expectation of this catching the mail steamer Cadiz, at Singapore, I give you the latest particulars from this place and Canton. It is very generally credited that Commissioner YEH has received the Imperial commands as to his conduct and policy for the future. It is said that the Emperor has expressed the highest confidence in YEH's ability to deal with foreigners, and although recommending clemency, yet, that failing, the barbarians are to be driven into the sea.

From the China Mail, Feb. 15.

We understand that a paper has been forwarded hither from Canton as well as from the north, purporting to be a decree of the Emperor. It directs the high authorities of the coast provinces to be on the alert, but not to alarm the people; expresses confidence in YEH's knowledge of the barbarian, and his consequent capacity to settle this affair with the British, on whom, if their loss in the engagements reported, viz., of 400 men, including the admiral, has discouraged them sufficiently to cause a cessation of hostilities on their part, YEH is not to be over severe, but they are not to be met half way, lest a concession in the present case lead to a demand for other concessions. That is to say, it must not be supposed that the Government of China is not ready to resist barbarian encroachment; but, with rebellion in the land, warlike preparations in the provinces might be turned against it. It has enough otherwise on hand now to talk of exterminating the barbarian, and, doubtless, YEH will be able to settle this quarrel, which is as yet local, and the Emperor desires may continue so. There will, of course, be no sign of yielding so long as Canton maintains its character as a city not to be taken.

From the London Times, April 2.

Nothing whatever that the Emperor of China has done, or is likely to do, in his most politic or most penitent mood, can affect our operations. It is quite certain that he is not at present prepared to compel YEH and the Cantonese to give us and all the foreigners ample compensation for all losses, reparation for all indignities, and compliances with such other terms as we may now think it necessary to impose. Nothing that has happened so far is likely to have had such an effect on the Chinese mind as to induce submission. Even were the Emperor to insist upon it, he would find the Cantonese still refractory. So, we never for an instant imagined that the affair could be settled without operations, or, at all events, demonstrations of a strong and forcible character. There is a certain process which we will have to go through. We shall have to present ourselves with an adequate force in sufficient proximity to the Celestial Court, or whatever point may be thought the most propitious for the object, and, after a proper amount of blows, or words, or both, we shall most probably obtain terms that would now be utterly impossible. We shall have to do all this work. There is no such great hurry about it. Trade is not interrupted at the other ports. Both sides, then, feel it their interest to abstain from the quarrel, and positive efforts are made, with success, to allay any temporary excitement or alarm. There is, then, nothing to prevent our taking our own time about the measures best calculated to repair and improve our condition with the Chinese. For this a large armament is required, and it will be twice as large, so Lord PALMERSTON informs us, as that employed on the former occasion.

It appears to be thought a matter of indifference whether we retain our position at Canton, which is very far removed from the producing districts, and has only become by the merest accident the chief point of trade. Accordingly, what the merchants desire is to obtain pecuniary compensation for their losses, and transfer their establishments to Shanghae or the other free ports. But, whether we maintain our position at Canton or give it up, that is the place where the example must be made, and we trust that the expedition now preparing will have orders to that effect. The city is, in fact, in the hands of a species of Prætorian Guard, called the "Braves," whose claim to that honorable title consists in the practice of brutal murder and treacherous assassination. They are said to be 6,000 or 7,000 strong, and to be extremely elated by their recent successes, in which they claim to have achieved a great slaughter of the foreigners. Nothing whatever can be done at Canton; the populace will never be civil, and the lives of the British residents never be safe, till these invincible "Braves" have been made to respect us, and this is a lesson which can only be impressed by the severest measures. The more thoroughly the work is done the better, not only for ourselves and other foreigners, but for the Chinese themselves, who are in fact, kept in a state of misery and degradation by corrupt officials and brutal soldiery. We shall emancipate them while we redress ourselves.

Military Organization of the Chinese.

From the Journal de St. Petersburg.

The military forces of China are estimated at more than 800,000 men. In their army rank is hereditary. A soldier can retire from the service only when his son is in a position to replace him; if he has no son of his own he is at liberty to adopt one. It is allowable to enter the service at as early an age as 15. Gunpowder has been in use among the Chinese from time immemorial; nevertheless the Chinese artillery is far from being as perfect as that of Europe. The balls originally used by the Chinese artillerymen were made of clay dried and hardened.

In time of peace the soldiers are dispersed over the whole empire, and, in addition to their pay, they are at liberty to cultivate the portions of land that are allotted to them. They are generally employed by the State in public works, or making roads, and in repairing the banks of rivers. Their arms consist of sabres, swords, pikes, muskets, bows and arrows.

The Russian traveler TIMKOWSKI, who visited a large portion of the Chinese Empire, states that the soldiers are clothed the same as the other inhabitants, with the exception of the tunic, which they wear over all, and which is always of the same color as that of the flag under which they serve—that is to say, yellow, red, or blue, with or without border. In times of war they receive helmets of iron, cuirasses that are quilted and wadded, and shields of bamboo wickerwork.

From the very commencement of a campaign the Chinese endeavor to get possession of the hostile commanders, either by force or by stratagem. OU-TSE, the author of a treatise by AMOIL, recommends that the drums and the cymbals should be confined to the most valiant warriors that can be found—"For the drums and the cymbals," says he, "have to speak to the ears, the flags and the standards to the eyes, recompenses and punishments to the hearts."

COMMERCIAL INTELLIGENCE.

London Money Market.

From the London Times.

THURSDAY, P. M., April 2, 1857.

The Bank of England have raised their rate of discount to-day from 6 per cent., at which it had stood since the 15th of December, to 6½ per cent.

The measure created general surprise, although the gold withdrawals and the extreme pressure for discounts during the past week might have suggested its probability. The next Gazette returns will, it is believed, prove that the decision is in harmony with recent precedents. Those who are dissatisfied with it urge that, as the payment of the dividends will shortly take place, and there is also a prospect of good supplies of gold and silver from Australia and Mexico, and of the drain for the Bank of France and India diminishing, a delay of a week or two should have been allowed. The true policy of the Bank, however, is not to trust to contingencies in any case, and in the face of a removal of half a million of bullion in the course of a few days, not for any exceptional and temporary object, but to meet requirements from France, Brazil, India, China, the Cape of Good Hope, and the West Indies, there was certainly no reason for hesitation. It is true there are grounds for assuming that this unfavorable state of our balances with foreign countries cannot much longer continue, since, if our extraordinary trade is really sound and profitable, its profits, unless they are dispersed by an extravagant expenditure, must some day exhibit themselves; but the most experienced persons have now for several weeks looked confidently for a turn, and have found only that the pressure is increasing. Still, should the anticipation of a more easy period be suddenly realized, the Bank are not tied to their present rate even for a single week. That in adopting it they have not gone beyond the point which the natural condition of the market dictated has already been proved by the fact that the demand this afternoon at 6½ ₱ cent. has shown scarcely any falling off.

The increase announced to-day applies alike to discounts and to loans upon securities.

The discount establishments have increased their allowance for money at call from 5½ to 5¾ ₱ cent. The rate of the joint-stock banks for deposits will be 5½ ₱ cent.

FRIDAY, April 3.—The English funds opened this morning at a further decline of ¼, and experienced great heaviness towards the middle of the day, from which there was ultimately a partial reaction. The first transactions in Consols were at 93¼@¼, and, after having touched 93⅛, they closed at 93¼, at which price there were buyers. For the 7th of May the quotation was 93¾@⅞. The transactions were unimportant, and money was obtainable for short periods on Government securities at 6 ₱ cent.

	FOR MONEY.			FOR ACCOUNT.

Fri. 3.....	93⅜	93⅞	93¾.....	93⅜	93⅞	93⅝

The payments falling due to-morrow (the 4th) are unusually heavy, but at the Bank to-day the demand was moderate. There have been no withdrawals of gold during the past three days.

The final quotations of the French Three per Cents. on the Paris Bourse this evening were 69f, 50c. for money and 70f. 20c. for the end of the month, showing a fall of a half per cent. It appears that the rate paid during the recent liquidation for carrying over transactions ranged from 10 to 12 per cent.

It is stated that Mr. HOSKINS PALMER is about to resign his post as director of the Bank of England, which he has occupied for 46 years. No one connected with that Court or with British commerce has ever occupied a more honorable position in the estimation of the public.

The return from the Bank of England for the week ending the 28th of March gives the following results when compared with the previous week:

Public deposits.....	£9,681,951	Increase.....£124,960
Other deposits.....	10,18[illegible],460	Increase..... 344,615
Rest.....	3,826,600	Increase 13,615

On the other side of the account:

Government securities.....	£11,646,018	The same as before.
Other securities.....	21,242,752	Increase....£1,544,040

The amount of notes in circulation is £19,056,870, being an increase of £472,420; and the stock of bullion in both departments is £9,887,569, showing a decrease of £334,738, when compared with the previous return.

Liverpool Markets.

Per Arabia.] LIVERPOOL FRIDAY, April 3, 1857.

We have to report a quiet COTTON Market, with steady prices for the middling and better qualities of American, but at rather easier rates for inferior classes. The sales for the week ending last evening, are estimated at 43,050 bales, speculators taking 4,160, and exporters 4,370 bales. To day they are 6,000 bales, principally to the trade, the business closing without animation at the following quotations: Fair Orleans, 8¾d.; Fair Uplands, 8d. ₱ lb. Middling Orleans, 7 13-16d.; Middling Mobilles, 7¾d.; Middling Uplands, 7 9-16d. ₱ lb. Total Cotton in stock of this port, 429,000 bales; American, 366,000 bales. Total stock same time last year, 497,000 bales; American, 283,000 bales.

The demand for YARNS suitable for Germany has improved, at slightly advanced rates, and there has been more doing in some descriptions of CLOTH for India, but generally the market is dull.

The MONEY Market is dearer. the Bank of England having raised the minimum rate of discount to 6¾ ₱ cent.

The CORN Market is quiet. WHEAT being in retail demand at 8s. 6d.@8s. for White, and at 7s. 6d.@8s. ₱ 70 lbs., for Red. FLOUR slow of sale at 27s. 6d.@28s. for Western Canal, 30s.@31s. for Philadelphia, and 30s.@32s. ₱ bbl. for Canada. INDIAN CORN a shade lower, and in moderate demand, at 30s. 6d.@31s. 6d. for White, and 33s. @34s. ₱ qr. for Mixed and Yellow.

3,000 bbls. of common American RESIN have been sold at 5s. ₱ cwt. No change in TURPENTINE

BROWN, SHIPLEY & CO.

Another Circular about Grain.

LIVERPOOL, Friday, April 3, 1857.

The arrivals from America since Friday last are limited to 1,690 quarters WHEAT, 5,814 quarters INDIAN CORN, and 13,893 bbls. of FLOUR. The weather continues mild and open. There has been a decided improvement in our market during the week, and a considerable extent of business has been done in WHEAT, both for consumption and holding over, at a general advance of 2d.@4d. ₱ bushel, although upon the forced sales of the previous week the improvement is still greater; common red American, for instance, was sold at 7s. 6d., being now worth 7s. 6d.@7s. 8d. ₱ 70 lbs. FLOUR has also been more inquired for, but no actual improvement in price can be quoted. INDIAN CORN has improved about 6d. ₱ quarter, but the demand has been exceedingly limited, the prospect of very large arrivals, with the first favorable change of wind, inducing buyers to hold off. The Continental demand has entirely ceased. The following were the farmers deliveries of WHEAT for this week, 98,874 quarters, at 15s. 6d.; ditto corresponding week last year, 98,307 quarters, at 6s. 10d.

At to-day's market there was a thin attendance of both town and country dealers, who bought sparingly of Wheat at an advance of about 3d. ₱ bushel upon the prices of Friday last: there was, however, much less disposition on the part of buyers to operate than on Tuesday, the advance having checked the demand. American Red Wheat ranges from 7s. 6d.@8s. 4d., and White from 8s. 4d.@9s. ₱ 70 lbs. Flour was in fair request, at about last week's prices, Westerns bringing from 30s. 6d.@32s. 6d., and Ohio from 30s.@31s. ₱ barrel, according to quality. Indian Corn was by no means active, and the slight improvement established during the week was partially lost; prime mixed was sold at 30s. 6d.@30s. 9d.; yellow 31s. 6d.; and white from 33s.@34s. ₱ 480 lb.

A. P. & R. MAXWELL.

LAW INTELLIGENCE.

Is Mrs. Cunningham the Widow of Harvey Burdell.

STRONG TESTIMONY AGAINST HER CLAIMS.

New and Curious Developments by Dr. Parmly.

SURROGATE'S COURT.

Before Hon. A. W. Bradford.

WEDNESDAY, April 16.

The taking of testimony in the case now being investigated before the Surrogate as to the right of Mrs. Emma A. Cunningham to a widow's portion of the estate of Dr. Harvey Burdell, deceased, was resumed to-day.

The case against the claimant was opened in a brief speech by Samuel J. Tilden, Esq. Instead of making a statement in detail of the facts which they expected to prove, he simply indicated in a general manner the nature of the process by which they hoped to evolve the truth of this case. This process, he said, was to compare the statement of the fiction set up to establish this claim with the greatest possible precision and in the greatest possible detail; and then, collecting from extraneous sources and studying carefully the true history of the transaction, to present in a connected and combined form those facts from which they should be able to infer what the truth was as to the particular fact which, in its nature, did not admit negatively of being the subject of direct testimony.

The first witness called was Peter P. Voorhies, Ex-Alderman of the Ninth Ward, who testified that he had two different conversations with Rev. Uriah Marvine, (the clergyman who performed the marriage ceremony between Mrs. Cunningham and this gentleman who it is claimed was Dr. Burdell); the first conversation occurred during the same week on which Mr. Marvine was examined before the Coroner, and prior to his having seen Eckel; the second conversation took place on a Monday, a week, as witness thought, after Mr. Marvine had been up to Goshen to preach for Rev. Dr. Snodgrass. Witness remarked to Dr. Marvine that he did not seem to identify Dr. Burdell as the party he married, and the Doctor said No; all he could perceive that looked like him was a slight resemblance about the mouth. The Reverend gentleman further observed that, when people were married, the attention of those who performed the ceremony was occupied with other things than identifying the persons; that the man was slow-spoken and stooped; that he stood rather back from the woman and not quite fair up by the side of her; and that the man noted queer; on the second occasion, after Dr. Marvine had returned from Goshen, he stated to witness that he had been up there to preach, and saw Mrs. Snodgrass, and he could now explain why Mrs. Cunningham had come to him to get married; it was because Mrs. Snodgrass had given Mrs. Cunningham his address; and then he added that he began to think it was Burdell to have had married after all. Witness then said, to him, "You don't then bring anything to your recollection to identify the man more than before?" wickerwork.

The witness was subjected to a confusing cross-examination as to his powers of memory, which resulted in his saying that though he believed he could remember many of the words of a conversation, and the whole of it substantially, yet this particular expression of Mr. Marvine's was only stated on the best of his knowledge and belief.

To the Surrogate, however, he answered that he was sure Mr. Marvine had used the word "feared."

The witness testified positively that the conversation which he had held with Mr. Tilden and Alderman Voorhies in Wiley's store, took place before Dr. Marvine was examined in the Surrogate's Court and not afterwards.

To Mr. Tilden he said he did not recollect whether Mr. Marvine had been examined on separate days; he did not read the testimony as published in the newspapers; sketched some of it, however.

Mr. Tilden put in evidence the deposition of Mrs. Augusta Cunningham.

Benjamin F. McGuire—sworn and examined by Mr. Tilden—I reside at No. 2 Union Square; am 30 years of age; am a dentist; am a cousin of Dr. Burdell; I conversed with Mr. Marvine in respect to this marriage first at his house on Sunday, February 1, about 2 o'clock; also on the same day at the house No. 31 Bond-street; I was at his house before he went to see the body; Mr. Marvine told me in conversation that the man he married was a thin, spare man; placing his hand under his chin, Mr. M. said his beard extended down here (witness placed his hand about 4 or 6 inches below his chin); he said the man's whiskers were very full. I did not "preach" into Mr. Marvin that the man he married was Eckel.

Q. Did you not reply to Mr. Marvine's description by saying that it could not be Burdell? (Objected to—question ruled out as irrelevant.) Have known Dr. Burdell 12 or 18 years; the last time I saw him previous to his death was on the 9th of May last; then his whiskers were short and quite sandy and grey, mixed, and he had no moustache; they were always very thin at the sides of his face; very few whiskers there at all; the Doctor was naturally quick of speech; he could not be anything else; quick also of movement; I always regarded him as a straight man, never as a stooped man.

Cross-examined by Mr. Clinton—Part of the time during the past twelve or thirteen years I have not been on intimate terms with the Doctor; was intimate for the past two years, then for the three following years not so; the two brothers, John and Harvey, were not on good terms during that time, and knowing that fact, and being with John, I had nothing to do with Harvey; after the death of John in 1849, I was more or less intimate for about three or four years then on account of a suit that he had with me which he withdrew; I refused to associate with him; I think that was three years ago; from that time I was not on speaking terms with him; he did not get a judgment against me, but withdrew the suit and paid the costs, I paying him what I told him I would pay; he was at my house perhaps three times during that time, when I spoke to him merely because he had called on me; I reminded him of my resolution not to have anything more to do with him; would not have spoken to him but for the fact that he called; I asked him what he wanted, and he said he had called in; said I, I will have nothing to do with you; Dr. Burdell, while I knew him, usually wore whiskers, very short, perhaps half or three-fourths of an inch long; a portion of the time he shaved the sides of his face; he had so few whiskers there that he could shave them off; I remember him looking in the glass, and rubbing his hands on the side of his face, and saying that was rather a poor show; his whiskers then were rather gray; I think usually he wore whiskers on the side of his face, but I have seen him a few months ago with his face shaved on the sides; I never saw him with a moustach until his death; about five years ago, just before he started into the country, he let it grow, and when he got to Sackett's Harbor he shaved it off; never knew him wear a moustache with that exception; black whiskers would show plainer than sandy; do not know that he was remarkably straight; he was straighter than some people; don't know that I would call him a remarkably erect man, or very erect, which is about the same thing; he was a straight built man, there was no stooping; his carriage was, perhaps, drooping; his position was generally pretty straight, but he had a habit when talking or listening of drooping his head; he was not round shouldered or stoop shouldered; did not observe him particularly with a view to see whether he sometimes stooped when walking or standing; have not thought of noticing that; have not observed him when he talked slow; he was very uniform in his speech and movement; have known him when excited speak much quicker than usual; his face would color and he would speak fast; he had an excitable temperament; his ordinary speech was considerably quicker than mine; (witness spoke rather quickly;) my mother and Dr. Burdell's mother were sisters; my mother is still living; am acquainted with Dimis Buhhard; have seen her three or four times; she is my cousin; her mother was also a sister of my mother's and of Dr. Burdell's mother; have known her about two years, but have seen very little of her; she was married as I am told to Mr. Voorst and is now divorced; do not know whether Dr. Burdell procured that divorce; was not on visiting terms with her at the time of the divorce; never saw his handwriting; am on good terms with William Burdell and always have been; he is in court now.

Q.—State whether at the time William and Harvey were quarreling each with the other in relation to John Burdell's wife you took the part of William and John against Harvey and John's wife.

This question was objected to by Mr. Edwards, in which the subject matter of that divorce was discussed at length, and various assertions made by the counsel in regard to the facts attending it. Mr. Clinton proposed to show that Dr. Burdell was the means of divorcing his brother's wife, which caused a violent quarrel among the parties, and that Mr. Evans, now in prison at Baltimore, was concerned in the affair.

Mr. Edwards protested against dragging one of his clients into this case in the improper and indecent manner. He was counsel in the divorce case. Mrs. John Burdell had never received a cent of her husband's property; and as for Mr. Evans, he was simply a boarder with Mrs. Burdell, and simply offered his services to her to introduce her to him as counsel. Evans was not the only man in prison charged with crime. He was sorry these side issues were brought in.

Mr. Clinton said that Dr. Burdell applied to him to act as counsel in that case.

Mr. Edwards—He did not so apply to me. Mrs. Burdell was the complaining party.

Mr. Clinton proceeded to state what Judge Edmonds charged in the case, but was interrupted by Mr. Edwards, who objected to it.

The Surrogate allowed the counsel to proceed.

Mr. Tilden—I want it understood that I don't appear in the divorce case. [Laughter.]

Mr. Clinton—Judge Edmonds said it was remarkable that Mrs. John Burdell could not close her connection with a man who then enjoyed the reputation of being a thief.

Mr. Edwards—I deny it, it is not so.

Mr. Clinton—(Continuing)—That even at the time of the rendering of the decision in Court, she could not refrain from coming into Court upon his arm. And being in doubt as to the custody of the children, he concluded that it was better they should be brought up coldly than corruptly, and awarded the custody of them to the father.

Mr. Edwards said the gentleman had grossly colored what occurred in Court.

Mr. Tilden, in the course of his discussion, suggested that both the counsel be sworn.

The Surrogate admitted testimony as to any difficulty between Dr. Burdell and William or John or any body else, but would exclude all particulars.

Witness—I never heard of any difficulty between William and John; there has always been more or less friendship between Mrs. John Burdell and Harvey; John and Harvey were not friendly, and William and Harvey were not, latterly; have seen William and Harvey converse together, I think they were never friendly within my recollection; I do not know of any difficulty in which William and John sided against Harvey and John's wife; Harvey sided with Mrs. John Burdell when it was her interest, and when it was not, he sided the other way; Harvey and William were engaged in litigation for five or six years, when I think the suit was settled; in that matter, if anything, I did not favor Wm. Burdell. I thought both in the wrong; the Doctor to my knowledge never made a criminal complaint against me, nor threatened to; I first saw Mr. Marvine after the Doctor's death at his house on Sunday about a quarter past twelve; Mr. Bulen, Dr. Burdell's brother-in-law, was in the hall; I saw Mr. Marvine again at No. 31 Bond-street, about two o'clock; Mr. Bulen was in company with him; there were two persons conversing with him, us two together; Mr. Bulen took part in the conversation; that was in the front parlor, first floor, while the proceedings were going on; the room was rather crowded; I saw several persons with whom I was acquainted talking; Mr. Denelson, Mr. Thayer, and I think Judge Spaulding; Mr. Bulen and myself were taking with Mr. Marvine in a tone not loud enough for all to have heard it; if only one was speaking in an ordinary tone probably he could be heard by all in the room; the room was not more than one-third full, that is if they were to stand as close as they could get; persons could walk about; I think Dr. Main was there; think Mr. Marvine remarked that the man's whiskers covered his cravat; he said they were very long.

Direct resumed—There was no special intimacy between myself and Wm. Burdell; he did not have the least participation to my knowledge, with the controversy in reference to the divorce; (to the Surrogate) there was something peculiar about the Dr.'s enunciation; a sort of twang to his voice which I could not mimic; I would know him by his voice; it was a sort of barking; any person acquainted with him would remember his voice that didn't remember his countenance.

Dr. Samuel W. Parmly sworn and examined by Mr. Tilden.—I am a dentist, residing at No. 30 Bond-street; am fifty years of age; have known Dr. Burdell for 15 years or more; his residence nearly opposite mine; saw him very often in the street in front of my house; had conversation with Rev. Mr. Marvine in respect to this marriage at No. 21 Bond-street, and in walking with him from there to the prison to see Mr. Eckel; conversed with him at least an hour, perhaps more; he said he was not good in remembering persons; I think he said that he did not at the time of the marriage particularly notice the man whom he married; he expressed the idea that death changed the countenance so much, and he not being very ready to recognize a person by sight that he was not very familiar with, that he didn't know that he could have recognized the corpse even if it had been the man he did marry; he expressed no suspicion even that it was Dr. Burdell that he married; he dwelt upon the matter of his whiskers.

Q.—Did he say that the man stooped so much and was so slow in his speech, and his walk, and his general appearance was such

By the arrival of the Tennessee at this port, we receive full confirmation of the telegraphic summary of Nicaraguan news published in our impression of yesterday. It appears from the letter of our special correspondent, who witnessed the events he records, that, after ascending the San Juan River to Castillo, and reconnoitring that Fort, Col. LOCKRIDGE came to the conclusion that his force, some three hundred strong, was wholly inadequate for a successful assault. He then disbanded his men, and left the Costa Ricans undisputed masters of the river and the transit. Col. LOCKRIDGE further expressed his determination to join WALKER, by way of Panama. About a third of his men volunteered to go with him, but it is more than doubtful whether they will be able to escape the vigilance of the Allies between San Juan del Sur and Rivas. The remainder of the filibusters, some two hundred in number, were very anxious to return home in the Tennessee, but the Captain refused to assume the responsibility of bringing any others than the sick and wounded. In our correspondent's letter will be found full particulars of the explosion on the J. N. Scott, with the names of those who were killed and injured. The accident was terrible enough, but not so fatal as was at first reported. About thirty men were killed, and as many more were badly scalded. The report is again revived that dispatches were captured at Serapiqui, proving the Costa Ricans had disposed of the transit to the British Government. The story lacks every element of probability.

The Cunard Steamship Arabia, with three days' later advices from Europe, arrived at this port yesterday. In Great Britain the elections are progressing favorably for Lord PALMERSTON, and it was supposed that, by the 10th of April, a tolerably correct estimate could be formed of the general result and of the political organization of the new Parliament. There are three candidates for the speakership of the New House—Mr. M. T. BAINES, Ministerial; Mr. WALPOLE, Opposition, and Mr. FITZROY. The choice will be between the two former; and this, the first act of the New House of Commons, will test the strength of the Government, which, there is little doubt, will be able to command a large working majority.

The intelligence from the Continent of Europe, by this arrival, is scanty. Neapolitan affairs remain in statu quo. Some further arrests of persons charged with conspiracies against the Emperor had taken place in Paris. A letter from Cadiz states that part of the Spanish fleet, destined to operate against Mexico, left for Havana on the 26th of March.

Details of the China news are received. The report that the Emperor had disapproved of the proceedings of Commissioner YEH is repeated, but requires confirmation. It is scarcely borne out by the extracts which we give elsewhere from the North China Herald. There had been several conflicts between British war vessels and Chinese junks, but the occurrences generally are not of importance.

The Senate yesterday, in Executive Session, confirmed the nominations for Police Commissioners and Port Wardens, and all the Harbor Masters but two. The exceptions are JACOB V. DODGE and W. J. A. FULLER. Both Houses continued hard at work yesterday in finishing up the business of the session. The bill providing regulations for our harbor was finally passed, the Senate aggreeing to the Assembly's amendments. The New-York and Brooklyn Ferry bill was reported upon unfavorably, but a favorable report was made upon the petition for a bridge across the East River. A great amount of legislation was consummated yesterday, as will be seen by our report. We are forced to go to press without the conclusion of the proceedings.

Mexican affairs, as we learn by a dispatch from one of our Washington correspondents, have engaged the serious attention of the Administration recently, in consequence of the danger, said to be imminent, of the loss of the right of way across the Isthmus of Tehuantepec. Some trouble has arisen concerning this matter, and the Attorney-General is engaged in drawing up a report on the history of the Transit and GARY and SLOO claims, which report will constitute the basis for the action of the President. In view of the money and labor already expended by our citizens in perfecting this Transit, the most effectual measures should immediately be taken to secure all the rights guaranteed to them by the Mexican Government under the Eighth Article of the GADSDEN Treaty, which has express reference to this matter.

The Philadelphia North American states that it has the best authority for saying Mr. REED has positively accepted the mission to China, tendered him by the President; and that he will sail in the Minnesota, so soon as she can be got ready for sea.

The large hat manufactory and store of Messrs. STRONG & RUGGLES, with a large quantity of wool, and other stock, at Ashland, Greene Co., was entirely destroyed by fire a few days since. Loss to Messrs. S. & R., $8,000 to $10,000; insured for $5,000. Several other buildings were also consumed. Loss, $800; no insurance.

The French Railroad fraud case was on again yesterday, before U. S. Commissioner BETTS. On the opening of the Court, Mr. TOWNSEND asked for a suspension of business until all the prisoners should be present. He noticed that Mr. CARPENTIER was not present, and he had understood that Mr. CARPENTIER had been seen at liberty in the streets while the other prisoners were kept closely confined. He wished to ask whether the Commissioner had given any order liberating him. The Commissioner said he had not, and while the conversation continued, Mr. CARPENTIER appeared with his counsel, and was conducted to the witness stand, when he was asked whether he had any knowledge of the charge against him. When asked what he had to say, his counsel answered that he pleaded guilty to the charge. Mr. BUSTEED then attempted an explanation of his conduct in the case, but was not allowed. The case is progressing.

A man calling himself SCATCHARD (a name alleged to be assumed), was arrested yesterday on a charge of conspiring to effect the release of HUNTINGTON the forger, from the State Prison, by forging the name of the Governor to a pardon. He was brought before Justice CONNOLLY who detained him for an examination. His arrest was made at the suggestion of HUNTINGTON's late counsel. The complaint is by CHARLES J. KANE, a Pine-street banker, upon whom the accused called and made known his plan, stating at the same time that they had met the approbation of HUNTINGTON, and that he had received assistance towards this consummation from various parties. "SCATCHARD" appears to be between 35 and 40 years of age, and of genteel address. His antecedents are not known.

The examination of witnesses before the Surrogate as to the truth of the alleged marriage of Mrs. CUNNINGHAM and Dr. BURDELL, was resumed yesterday before the Surrogate. The case against the claimant was opened by Mr. TILDEN, who called and examined several witnesses. Some startling evidence was given by Dr. SAMUEL W. PARMLY, of No. 30 Bond-street, who testified to having seen on the afternoon of the 28th of October, (the day of the marriage,) a man in the third-story front room of No. 31 Bond-street, in the act of dressing,—the windows being open. As he (Dr. P.) was leaving the house, upon looking up he was struck with the man's changed appearance about the head and face "as if he had been transformed." The circumstance led the witness to suppose he was a theatrical character.

A very interesting case was decided by Judge THOMPSON, of the Marine Court, yesterday. KATE REIGNOLDS, the actress, made a contract to play at the Bowery Theatre with MURPHY and HOWE, on the part of the proprietor, BROUGHAM. She was to receive $30 a week and one-third of the receipts of a benefit. After she had played a week some trouble arose, and Miss K., having with much difficulty recovered her wardrobe, left and engaged at LAURA KEENE's at $20 per week. She now assigned her claim to one LOCKLOW, who sued for the $30 for the week during which she played, the difference between the $20 now received and the $30 contracted for, and the one-third receipts of a benefit. Judge THOMPSON gave judgment for the plaintiff for $190 60 against the defendant, BROUGHAM, MURPHY, the other defendant, it appearing by the evidence being merely an employe.

The Board of Aldermen adopted a resolution last evening, requiring the Harlem Railroad Company to take up their T rail south of Twenty-seventh-street, and lay down grooved rail instead, in connection with the Third-avenue Railroad Company. In the event of the Harlem Railroad Company not complying, the Third-avenue Railroad Company is to lay both tracks, and the immunities extended to the Harlem Railroad Company withdrawn. Alderman MONAHAN found fault with the Legislature for its action on the new Charter and Police bill. After which Alderman WILSON offered a resolution appointing a Committee of five to test the constitutionality of the acts. After some debate the whole subject was referred back to the Committee on the new Charter.

In the latter part of last week a man named THOMAS RADIKEN was robbed in a den in Cow Bay, by one JAMES HARTLEY, and a female associate named MARY HARTLEY, alias MARY MANNING. RADIKEN, while wandering through the Five Points, was enticed by the woman HARTLEY into an apartment occupied by her, when he was immediately set upon by the man HARTLEY, who suddenly made his appearance, and robbed him of his wallet, containing a considerable sum of money. The woman assisted in the act. RADIKEN complained; a warrant was issued and the robbers were captured on Monday night by Sergeant JOURDON, in places to which they had fled to avoid arrest. On Tuesday the prisoners were brought before the Lower Police Court and fully committed. The Grand Jury found a true bill against them on Wednesday, and on Thursday (yesterday) they were brought before the Recorder of the Court of Sessions; RADIKEN was put upon his trial and was convicted, and sentenced to five years imprisonment in the State Prison. The woman demanded, and was accorded, a separate trial. Her case will probably be disposed of to-day. This convict HARTLEY killed some months since a young man named GREELEY, whom he found in company with his woman on returning home one night. For this he was recently tried before the Recorder. The artful dodge of a "wife's honor," "crayed husband," "blasted affections," &c., was resorted to with great success by the prisoner's counsel. The Jury brought in a verdict of manslaughter in the fourth degree, and "judgment was suspended" in consequence of the "peculiar circumstances" of the case. HARTLEY, "the injured husband," thus released, resorted again to his old haunts, and in company with "Mrs. HARTLEY," "the heart-broken wife," resumed his old calling. The poor fellow will now probably be permitted to do the State some service, unless the sympathizing should soon succeed in restoring him once more to his Cow-Bay home and MARY HARTLEY alias MARY MANNING.

The Coroner's investigation into the late murder of Policeman HARDENBROOK by burglars, was continued yesterday at No. 48 Forsyth-street. Policeman KELLY deposed that he was spoken to by two men in Seventh-avenue, between 1 and 2 o'clock Wednesday morning, who accord with the description given by the murdered man of his assassins. KELLY feels confident of being able to recognize these men. The investigation will be continued to-day.

A discussion took place last night between the "spiritual medium," Mrs. CORA L. V. HATCH, and Rev. C. H. HARVEY, on the subject whether the human soul was or was not a part of Deity. The spirits, through Mrs. HATCH, at first declined being affirmative or negative, but Mr. HARVEY's negative having warmed them up a little, they took the affirmative.

The Ninth Annual Session of the New-York Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church commenced on the 15th inst., in the Fleet-street Church, Brooklyn. About 100 of the 120 members are present.

During the three days past over 6,000 immigrants arrived at this port. 14 cases of ship-fever, of a mild type, were sent to the Quarantine Hospital from the ship Isaac Webb.

AN ABUSE CHECKED.—Gov. KING, it will be remembered, in the early part of the session of the Legislature, vetoed the Supply bill, providing for the expenses of last year, because it contained provisions for paying certain members of the Legislature for serving upon Committees during the recess, whereas the Constitution expressly provides that the compensation of no member shall exceed a fixed sum. The Supply bill was afterwards passed without this provision; and still later a separate bill was passed to provide payment of the members of the Committees. This also was vetoed by the Governor upon the same ground as before. But the Legislature passed the bill, in spite of the Governor's objections, two-thirds of the members present in each house voting in its favor.

We are glad to observe, however, that the action of the Governor has had the effect to prevent the appointment of similar Committees for the coming recess. This had grown into a derided and grave abuse. It was a regular practice at the close of every session for half a dozen members to move the appointment of as many Committees to investigate various subjects and report upon them to the next Legislature,—the object being to secure payment for such services. In some cases such investigations are very proper and desirable, though they have seldom resulted in any very decided benefit. As a general thing they have involved large expense without any corresponding advantage. We are very glad to perceive that the habit of appointing them has been, for the time, at least, abandoned.

The Defeat of Mr. Cobden.

The result of the general elections in England affords a remarkable illustration of the dangers of supposing that either great talents or great services will forever cover blundering obstinacy with the shield of impunity. We took occasion to remark two or three weeks ago, upon the lamentable lack of judgment which Mr. COBDEN and his Free Trade colleagues have displayed in dealing with nearly every great question in the foreign policy of England since the triumph of the League. He displayed, in the discussion of a purely commercial matter, a sagacity, energy, and clear-headedness, which drew down on him the applause of the whole civilized world, and which enabled him to make head against the most formidable combination with which any politician has ever had to contend. He came out of the free-trade agitation, while still in his prime, and found himself amongst the foremost men of his age, with wits sharpened by ten years of vigorous controversy, and with an ambition which might justly have aspired to anything which the State could bestow. Had we been asked in 1847, who, of all the public men of England held the most enviable position, we should undoubtedly have fixed upon COBDEN as that one, whose lot was most desirable and whose future was most brilliant, as on that famous night, he heard PEEL repudiate in his favor, all claims to the victory just won by Free-Trade over Protection. Twenty millions of people in that eventful year, blessed, as they sat down to each meal, the dauntless tribune whose fortitude and eloquence had cheapened their daily food in a season of unexampled severity and suffering. All England was at his back. He entered the House of Commons with a prestige to which no aspirant to Parliamentary honors within this century could lay claim, and what is still rarer, his success in the House justified all that had been said of him out of doors. Unfortunately he fell into the snare by which wiser and better men than himself have been ruined before now. Foreign politics exercised on him the fascination which they exercise more or less on every man who dabbles ever so little in public affairs. But his meddling was more mischievous than that of people of meaner talents. He had seen the triumph of speechifying and pamphlet-writing, and bazaars, and petitions over a powerful and united aristocracy, over a policy consecrated by tradition, and glorified by the allegiance of great genius and great eloquence. He rushed headlong to the conclusion that what had vanquished the lords and the country gentlemen, would prove equally efficacious in dealings with the Czar. He had spent the flower of his days in glorifying cotton and preaching the omnipotence of bills of lading. He fell into the delusion that these arguments were as potent in the Winter palace or the Tuileries, as in the Free-Trade Hall in Manchester. He has remained under the influence of these hallucinations, till in ten years he has lost the last shred of his popularity and prestige, and finds himself kicked out of the small borough in which he had taken refuge from the indignation of his former admirers of the West Riding of Yorkshire, by an ignominious majority of 246.

The immediate cause of the expulsion of the whole of the leading members of the Anti-Corn Law League, COBDEN, BRIGHT, MILNER GIBSON and WALMSLEY, from the new Parliament, is certainly not so much the course they have thought fit to pursue on the Chinese question as that which they pursued with such insane pertinacity during the whole course of the Russian war. Their speeches figured every week in leaded type in the columns of the Russian journals, as fair expositions of the sentiments of the English people, filled with laudations of Russia, and with denunciations, not only of the management of the war, but of the cause of it, of the objects of it, and of the army which was dying by inches in the trenches of Sebastopol. Peace, at any price, was openly preached, not simply in a country whose dearest rights and proudest glories have been won at the point of the sword, but preached, in a country which was pouring forth blood and treasure in lavish tide to save its honor. The English would very well have borne a great deal of criticism and rebuke from tongues which condemned in sorrow. But COBDEN and BRIGHT, not simply condemned, but condemned with the malignity of an enemy, and turned their very popularity and reputation into weapons to be used against the very people who had made them what they were.

Lord PALMERSTON owes a great deal of his present triumph, we are well aware, more to the folly and stupidity of his enemies than to the strength of his own position. But he represents an idea which has a still more powerful hold upon the national mind in England than any other, an idea too which, let us add, lies at the base of all national greatness and prosperity—that a people to be great and respected, must owe nothing to either the generosity or forbearance of others. He has made heavy blunders and done much mischief. He has excited amongst the liberal party in Europe delusive hopes which have resulted in the ruin of thousands, and the misery of many millions. But, notwithstanding all this, the man whose name is an offence in the nostrils of every despot between the Atlantic and the Caspian, fills a hundred palaces with foreboding, and sheds gleams of expectation, let them be ever so faint, into a thousand cells, is a man whom we should be sorry to see England repudiate, and over whose recent and most signal triumph we most heartily rejoice.

JUDICIAL JOKING—A CALL FOR EXPLANATION.—A paragraph appeared in the Evening Post several days since which we have been anxiously waiting to see denied or explained. It was stated that Judge DAVIES having been designated to hold the Oyer and Terminer Court for the month of April, upon taking his seat a few minutes after the usual hour, was told that Judge ROOSEVELT had already opened the Court and ordered it to be adjourned over until May. The reason alleged for this extraordinary proceeding was that Judge ROOSEVELT desired to preside at the Eckel and Cunningham trial which is set down for the May term, when it will be his turn to hold Court. And this conduct on the part of Judge R. was treated as a piece of excellent practical waggery,—as a "judicial joke."

If the statements referred to are true, and Judge ROOSEVELT actually did what was ascribed to him, it strikes us that it was quite too grave and too important a matter, both as a question of legality and of professional courtesy, to be regarded as a "joke." We find it difficult to suppose that the occurrence was not in some way misrepresented, or at all events that some more creditable motive than the one assigned did not exist for whatever course Judge ROOSEVELT saw fit to pursue. And our principal object in referring to the matter now is to afford an opportunity to some party who may be familiar with the facts either to confirm, deny or explain the statements that have been made in regard to it.

The harbor of New-York is the most important haven on the sea-coast of the United States; and yet, so little care has been taken of it that its present condition promises little for the future prosperity of our City. We have had legal enactments enough to protect our harbor from every encroachment tending to destroy its value; but the report lately made by the Commissioners to our Legislature, shows that these enactments have been constantly violated in every manner, even by those whose interests are naturally opposed to anything which can harass or destroy the commerce of New-York. Upon this commerce the prosperity of our metropolis, and of all the adjacent country, depends; and yet, the simplest physical or economical causes can destroy it. These causes are already at work, and unless their progress be arrested, and the suggestions of the Commissioners who have investigated them be heeded, we may believe that the day is not far distant when the commercial greatness of New-York, having passed its zenith, shall decline and fall rapidly into decay. The same causes that destroyed the commerce of Venice and transferred its maritime trade to Trieste, that destroyed the commerce of Bristol and transferred its maritime trade to Liverpool and other neighboring ports, are ready to work the commercial ruin of our own metropolis.

To those who have never given a thought to this subject, it may seem absurd to predict the possibility of such an event. But it must be remarked that the only stimulus to commerce is individual gain, and just in proportion as this gain is diminished by any local influences, so will commerce decay. The trade of New-York is not encouraged or maintained by the mere fact that there is an easy access to our City from the ocean; nor that we have an ample harbor secure from storms; nor that we have convenient communications with a fertile country in the rear. These are physical advantages, possessed by many other seaports on our coast. But, these existing, it is necessary, in order to attract and sustain commerce, that there should also exist economical advantages in a corresponding degree. If we have a good harbor and destroy it, or allow it to go to ruin, or if we impose burdensome taxes upon all the property seeking a haven here—we are certainly insuring our own commercial destruction.

Now, how is it, in these respects, with the harbor of New-York? The Report of the Commissioners on Harbor Encroachments, to which we have alluded, gives us reliable information. We find evidence that local abuses of every kind exist in this harbor, whose aggregate is imposing a heavy tax upon all the ships and merchandise seeking this port. Prominent among these are abuses connected with the piers and docks of the City. No adequate provision is made either for the accommodation of shipping, or for the receipt and delivery of goods landed on the wharves. It is estimated that an average of 300 vessels are always awaiting in this port for berths. This includes only the larger class of vessels, on which the loss, from inability to load or discharge their cargoes, estimated at $30 a day each, is $9,000 a day, or $3,700,000 a year, of 300 working days! But this is taking no account of interest and other losses on the cargoes of these vessels, caused by this detention. So disastrous is this loss that it is frequently represented by both foreign and domestic shippers and shipowners as a serious objection to coming to this port, and on this account the trade of other cities has been largely increased at our expense. Nor is this to be wondered at; for there are other losses besides those arising from this perpetual detention. Lawlessness and Filth reign supreme on our wharves, and every cargo landed on the foul and dilapidated piers which fringe the East and North rivers is more or less injured by these causes. The testimony taken by the Commissioners upon this subject is, that flour is generally damaged a shilling a barrel, and pot and pearl ashes, whisky, and similar articles are rendered less merchantable by being deposited on these piers. Nor is this the only evil. All property thus deposited is constantly exposed to the depredations of thieves and pirates, who swarm like locusts about the abutments of the rivers. It is ascertained that the value of the property annually stolen from the piers of New-York is not less than a million of dollars!

Moreover, in the absence of warehouses upon the water's edge, all cargoes landed in New-York must be transported by teams to a place of storage. The average cost of this transportation is not less than 50 cents a ton, and 50 cents more if the cargo is moved back to the piers for exportation. It is easy to see that the aggregate of all these abuses is a heavy and odious TAX upon all the commerce seeking this port; which, if a wholesome reform is not accomplished, will eventually drive it to other and more accommodating harbors.

But these evils along the shore are not the only agents which are blighting the prosperity of New-York. By various encroachments, the harbor itself is losing many of the natural advantages which it has possessed as a haven for shipping. Piers and wharves have been projected into its channels without any regard to consequences. The slime of the City sewers, and the wash of the ever-filthy streets of New-York and Brooklyn is deposited in every dock on the two rivers, shoaling the water at an average (according to testimony before the Commissioners) of one foot a year. When this deposit has accumulated so that the shipping cannot float in the dock, the mud is dredged out and dumped into the stream, whence it is gradually worked back into other docks, or off on to the Jersey Flats, by the action of the tides. Sand and ballast stones are thrown into the Harbor indiscriminately, from vessels at anchor. Bricks, paving-stones and bundles of hay are carelessly tumbled overboard every day from vessels lying at the piers. Night-soil, earth, shavings, decayed vegetables, the offal of markets, and oyster shells, are dumped into the slips on either river with impunity. A dredger testified before the Commissioners that, in the slip between Dey and Fulton streets, he once dredged up "ten feet vertically of oyster shells, which had been thrown in from the oyster boats that came into that slip." Another testified that the water in the slips of the North River shoals "about five feet in three years," and that, at the Cunard docks in Jersey City, where 23 feet of water is needed, he is accustomed to take out "ten feet of mud annually," which has been deposited there by various causes.

But the channels of the Harbor are shoaled as well as the docks. It is ascertained that about 500 tons of cinders are thrown into the rivers every day from steamboats, and navigation is seriously obstructed by thousands of shad-poles, concealed, like Mississippi snags, in all parts of the Harbor, in water from 10 to 60 feet deep. The steamship Arago, when coming into port not long ago, had a hole knocked through her bottom by a shad-pole, causing a damage to the ship of two thousand dollars.

But we have only hinted at the evils which are causing the destruction of our Harbor and its commerce. They are fully set forth in the report to which we have alluded, and are truly gigantic. Such lawlessness, such an utter disregard of all the interests of a great seaport City can neither be found nor imagined any where else but in this very City of New-York;—a City which has long been destitute, not only of a decent Government, but of that local pride and public spirit which should properly characterize the natural metropolis of the New World! Is it not time for a reform?—time for our merchants and traders to take the affairs of the City into their own hands, to drive out the swindlers and pot-house brawlers who have so long disgraced our legislative councils, and to rescue New-York from the commercial ruin to which it has been doomed!

The Panama Railroad Company.

The editorial article in your issue of the 15th inst., under the head of "The Difficulty with New-Granada," is calculated to produce an erroneous impression in regard to the attitude of the Panama Railroad Company, in connection with the controversy between that Government and the United States.

The article is incorrect in its direct statements, as as also in its implications, and I am sure you will take pleasure in correcting both. The "special dispatches from Mr. MORSE" were not sent home by the Superintendent of the Railroad," nor by any officer of the Company. The Railroad Company has never called upon the Government to "adjust its own difficulties with its creators," nor has it exercised any "pressure purely selfish," or otherwise, upon the Government, to induce it to take any particular action to obtain redress for the outrages committed at Panama in April last. The Directors know too well what is becoming on their part even to recommend to the Government what course should be taken to vindicate its own honor, fully satisfied that it is safe in the hands of the Administration at Washington. H.

In giving place to the above we take occasion to add that it comes from a source which entitles it to the fullest and most implicit credit. And we have assurances in which we confide that, so far from urging or advocating the exclusive policy which has been ascribed to them, the leading Directors of the Panama Company look upon the Isthmus of Panama as a territory which should be under the control of no one nation,—that it should be neutral ground and consecrated to peace forever,—so that in the event of war between Great Britain and the United States the ships of war of both nations might lie side by side in the bays of Aspinwall and Panama in perfect amity and security. The policy is eminently creditable to the Company, and in excellent keeping with the interests and the spirit of commerce. We trust that in spite of the failure of Mr. MORSE's mission, it may yet be recognized and established by the nations concerned.

A PROMISING SUCCESSOR TO COLONEL BROOKS.—A chivalric son of the Old Dominion, by the name of LIPSCOMB, who is ambitious to represent the Third District of Virginia in Congress, has published an address to his fellow-citizens in which he most certainly offers some very cogent claims to their sympathy and support. Mr. LIPSCOMB declares himself a "progressive Democrat," though we must say that he seems to attach himself rather strongly to the old order of things, for a progressivist. He tells his fellow-citizens, if they will but send him to Congress, he will "cowhide the first Northern rascal who dares to insult his constituents by making an offensive speech on the subject of Slavery," and that "he would like to have the pleasure of stripping the back of BURLINGAME." He promises to "treat the Northern bully worse than the lamented BROOKS did his colleague in the Senate, old SUMNER." We fear that this barking dog will not be able to secure a majority of the votes in his District; his fellow-citizens will know how to estimate the promises of such wind bags. But Mr. LIPSCOMB does not rest his claims to consideration alone on his promises to cowhide Northern members. He goes in for a division of the public domain. "If you send me to Congress," says this Jack Cade of the Old Dominion, "and I succeed, you will have no taxes to pay, you will have your children educated, your roads made, and all without cost to the poor man." These must be tempting promises to the people of a district, where, according to Mr. LIPSCOMB, "every court day the Sheriff sells some poor fellow's cow or horse, perhaps the only one he has, for taxes."

The Virginians make a great outcry when a fair-minded traveler, like Mr. OLMSTED, for instance, publishes an account of his observations in their State; but nothing can equal, for severity, the pictures which the Virginians paint of themselves, when, like Mr. LIPSCOMB, they make an appeal to their fellow-citizens for the purpose of exciting their sympathies.

TERRIBLE NEWSPAPER MORTALITY.—Within a few years fifteen daily papers have died in Boston, and the proprietors of three of those still in existence have failed. This does not speak well for the "Athens" of the New World. There are but four daily papers in Boston now owned by their original proprietors. There are still ten daily papers in that city, which must be at least five too many. There are but thirteen in New-York.

IMPORTANT FROM WASHINGTON.

REVIVAL OF THE NEW-YORK DIFFICULTY IN AN AGGRAVATED FORM.

THE CHINESE WAR AT OUR DOORS.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Daily Times.

WASHINGTON, Thursday, April 16.

The best friends of Mr. BUCHANAN are beginning to feel seriously alarmed at the turn affairs are taking in your City politics; and Mr. HOWELL COBB in particular expresses deep mortification at the course your new Collector has entered on. The speech made by your Mayor in his caucus at the Mercer House on last Tuesday night was imprudently reported here by some admirers of more zeal than discretion; and the announcement therein that the Wilson-Small Committee were to be revived through the aid of the so-called Union Caucus, advertised at the Chinese Rooms for to-morrow evening, has caused a good deal of discussion inside the Cabinet and outside,—Gov. FLOYD, of Virginia, in particular declaiming vehemently against the movement, as if with the intention of being heard and reported, in Willard's.

Mr. BUCHANAN having so strongly expressed himself in favor of the reform and reorganization of the Democratic Party in New-York, when visited by the Sachems just previous to the New-York appointments, it is felt that the course upon which Mr. SCHELL is entering, under Mr. CROSWELL's tutelage, is directly at war with the declared policy of the Executive, and if persisted in must lead to results similar to those which distracted the party on the accession of FRANKLIN PIERCE. Gov. FLOYD wound up his extemporary speech on the subject, to-day, by observing that if Mr. SCHELL revived these distractions before entering on the actual duties of his office, what might be anticipated when he came to wield the full power of his position, or words to that effect.

The chief difficulty is, that SCHELL not having yet taken office, is not subject to instructions; but Mr. COBB has to-day written to him an advisory letter of the strongest tone, in deprecation of his course. The attempt to revive the Wilson-Small Committee which has been at the bottom of all the disorganization, excites the worst forebodings of those who, like Mr. BUCHANAN, look to New-York to give an example of Democratic purity; and the evident tone of triumph which pervades the Mayor's speech of last Tuesday night—going, in fact, to show that the new Collector would be made the instrument for the revival of his power, and his declaration that he would crush the opposition by the patronage of the Custom House, which, he says, CROSWELL is ready to place at his disposal,—these ominous hints have created great bitterness of feeling, and many serious doubts as to the wisdom of Mr. BUCHANAN's choice. No doubt is entertained of SCHELL's integrity, but every doubt of his inexperience in public affairs and incapacity to cope with the New-York difficulty.

Telegraphic dispatches have been sent to Messrs. HART, FOWLER, and SANDERS, the new officers in commission, and therefore liable to instructions, to have have nothing to do with the Chinese movement. The letter addressed from the Treasury Department to-day to these gentlemen, states in strong and suggestive language that the present Executive favors reform both in the administration of Government and the party.

The Administration and Mexican Affairs—The Tehuantepec Transit—Danger of Losing the Right of Way—The Garay and Sloo Claims, &c.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Daily Times.

WASHINGTON, Thursday, April 16.

The Administration have been engaged for two days upon Mexican affairs, which have assumed a new and serious aspect in consequence of the imminent danger of the loss of the right of way across the Isthmus of Tehuantepec. There is some trouble concerning this. Attorney-General BLACK is engaged in drawing up a report upon the history of the Tehuantepec transit and the Garay and Sloo claims to it, and the legal effect of the 8th article of the Gadsden Treaty, which warrants our interference for the protection of any contract rights of our citizens in respect to that transit. This will be a guide for the action of the President.

FORSYTH will not be recalled at present. Instructions are to be sent out to him immediately on the subject above-named.

The second Assistant Postmaster-General is considering bids for the mail service, which will soon be contracted for.

OBSERVATION OF FAST DAY—REV. MR. KALLOCH—MARINE DISASTER.

BOSTON, Thursday, April 16.

Our annual Fast was observed to-day in the usual manner. With the exception of bar-rooms, all places of business were closed. The churches were all well filled at the day services, and the theatres are crowded this evening. A steamboat excursion to Plymouth by the members of the Legislature and the officials of the State Government, was somewhat of a novelty in the observance of the day, but the party are reported to have enjoyed the excursion highly.

The friends of Rev. Mr. KALLOCH rallied in great numbers, at Tremont Temple, last night, and contributed about $1,000 to defray his expenses in his late trial.

The schooner Mercy Taylor, CHASE, from Philadelphia for Boston, put into Newport in the afternoon of the 15th in distress. On the night of the 13th inst., at Point Judith, N. N. W. distant about four miles, was run into by the ship Plutarch, from Boston for New-York, in tow of the steamer Peach Train, and had carried away the bowsprit, figure head, flying jib and topsail, and other damage done. The damage to the ship is unknown. The schooner must repair before proceeding.

ITALIAN OPERA.—We are extremely sorry to announce that the health of Mme. GAZZANIGA is not sufficiently restored to justify her appearance to-night. The Opera is consequently postponed until Monday—a disappointment to the public, as well as a severe loss.

The American Music Association give their third concert to night, at Dodworth's Saloon, assisted by Mrs. LEACH, Mrs. JAMESON, Miss SHEPPARD, Mr. RICHARD HOFFMAN, Mr. WM. A. KING, Mr. ANTHONY REED, Dr. GUILMETTE, and a vocal and instrumental [illegible] party. Twelve pieces are on the programme [illegible] of them the productions of the country. The [illegible] should support, and make it in a straight-[illegible] business way. We trust there will be a good audience to-night. Fifty cents in the cause of American music is not an extravagant outlay.

Miss BRAINERD's Concert last night was liberally attended, and gave very general satisfaction. The lady was in good voice, and sang a variety of operatic pieces in an acceptable manner. Purely vocal pieces, that require delicacy and sweetness, are rendered very agreeably by Miss BRAINERD, but in the [illegible] declamatory style of the German composers she is not so effective. She is a good concert singer, and we are sorry she is not more often heard in public. Sig. MORELLI assisted, and sang faultlessly, as he always does. Herr GOLDBECK, a pianist who impresses on acquaintance, played several of his own compositions—beginning with an inimitable Fantasie on "Le Prophete." He is a fine artist, who must make his way in public esteem. An apology was made for a couple of violin solos which were not performed. The audience bore the disappointment with [illegible] equanimity.

Personal.

There has been a lively time in the Illinois College, at Jacksonville, arising from an exceedingly improper attempt of a young student to speak of political topics in his exercise. Mr. SPRINGER, the student, was rebuked by the Faculty, and was denied a hearing. Failing to find redress within the walls of the College, he went outside and published a statement of the case. Then the Professor of Rhetoric made a counter-statement, but was put down by the class with contemptuous hisses. Next day, the of fending student was expelled. The excitement in the College was intense, and the young gentlemen are in transports of wrath.

The Massachusetts clergy are certainly "improving" Governor GARDNER's text for Fast Day sermons, (says the Boston Traveller,) but whether to his liking may well be doubted. INTERESTING FROM ALBANY.

The Police Commissioners and Port Wardens Confirmed—Two of the Harbor Masters Not Confirmed—Recklessness in Passing the Supply Bill—Unfavorable Report on the Ferry Bill, &c.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Daily Times.

ALBANY, Thursday, April 16.

In Executive Session, this evening, the Senate confirmed the nominations for Police Commissioners and Port Wardens. All the nominations for Harbor Masters were confirmed, except those of JACOB V. DODGE and W. J. A. FULLER—these were rejected, and the Executive Session adjourned. LEO.

Correspondence of the New-York Daily Times:

ALBANY, Thursday, April 16, 1857.

The House was in session until after 3 o'clock this morning, the Supply bill being under discussion. By some strange circumstance, the consideration of the Supply bill is carried on under the greatest confusion possible. It is the signal for a disregard of all the rules, and almost an entire disregard of the common decencies of every-day life.

Last night was no exception—rather, I think, the precedents were exceeded amidst the greatest confusion possible; thousands of dollars were voted out of the State Treasury. Members were rising to questions of privilege, making out-of-the-way motions, offering ridiculous amendments, until the Assembly Chamber more resembled Pandemonium than it did a legislative body.

The Supply bill, as adopted by the House, or rather as it has passed, exceeds in deforming any of its predecessors. It out-Herods Herod. Only after a most desperate struggle, was the $100,000 to pay for the Averill Ore Bed wiped out, and there was little or no effort made to strike out the $20,000 inserted for the Deaf and Dumb Asylum. The first of these was an attempt to make the State pay $100,000 for property that is entirely worthless. The second gives ostensibly to a noble charity, but in reality is continued a contribution to a sink of iniquity that should long since have been cleaned out.

The appropriations contempleted by the bills passed through the Committee last evening, taken in connection with the mass of claim bills which have been put through, overrun the amount in the State treasury from $1,200,000 to $1,400,000. The Comptroller is beginning to wonder where the "stuff" is to come from. He looks down into the depths of the empty boxes, and seeing there "a nary red," he folds his arms complacently, and has made up his mind that it is no use trying to keep a supply on hand sufficient to meet the requirements of all those statutes that are and are to be. He says he won't try to borrow, and he knows nobody will offer to lend. I rather suspect those who fare well in the supply and other bills, will have to learn to "watch and wait" for some time before they will find funds in the treasury not otherwise appropriated.

The City Hall bill is again to a third reading in the Senate, having inserted therein a new set of names—five of the "olden sort" now being tucked away for $5 a-day places.

The Central Park bill has had several "histe." I believe it has at last come down in a shape satisfactory to most of the combatants for the honor of being Commissioners. With most of the names I am slightly acquainted. I believe in this and one or two other similar bills, we have embodied all the gentlemen "whose rights" our friends "were bound to respect."

The Governor sent in a veto message last evening, embodying his objections to the bill to pay certain Committees for services rendered. The House, by something more than the constitutional majority, passed the bill, notwithstanding the objections of the Governor. It was immediately sent up to the Senate, and the Senate followed the action of the House. So the bill is now a law, in spite of two vetoes.

The Exterior Line bill passed the House this morning. It is the only fruit which the Harbor Commission has yet ripened.

The bill to take $10,000 a year from the treasury of the New-York Hospital, and give it to the Commissioners of Pilots, to be divided equally between them, has got to a Conference Committee. It may work its way out, but it will be somewhat emasculated before it emerges.

The centre of interest—now is the Senate, especially when it sits with closed doors.

One Executive Session was held yesterday. The names of Messrs. HULL, WASSON and PARMELEE were sent up for confirmation as Canal Appraisers. They are the present incumbents.

It was said that during the session, the Police Commissioner for Westchester, Mr. JAMES BOWEN, was confirmed—as were also the Harbor Masters and Port Wardens resident in Brooklyn.

I believe the committees having in charge the remaining nominees were not ready to report.

At 12¼ o'clock to-day the Senate again "shut fan" on the outsiders, and took pattern after the dark lantern fraternity. I cannot ascertain that anything was done, beyond receiving reports, and some indulgence in generalities. The process indicated cross purposes, with a very general purpose to be cross.

It may be storm—it may be sunshine. In three Spring days we may look for either. Happy they who are prepared alike for either.

At present those who threaten and those who are threatened seem equally ready to "embrace" the opportunity."

I learn that the great weather gauger, "E. M.," is seriously indisposed. His complaint, as I am told, is erysipelas, aggravated by three physicians. LEO.

NEW-YORK LEGISLATURE.

SENATE....ALBANY, Thursday, April 16.

Mr. C. H. SMITH reported favorably the Assembly bill for the protection of Emigrants, and amending the law establishing the Commissioners of Emigration; also, the bill relative to taxes and assessments in Brooklyn.

The bill allowing the Industrial Schools of New-York to participate in the distribution of the School money was reported upon unfavorably, and the report was agreed to.

BILLS PASSED.

To appoint Commissioners to erect a new City Hall in New-York.

To incorporate the New-York Harbor Steam Tow Boat Company.

Relative to the Courts of Special Sessions.

For the protection of emigrants and amending the law relative to Commissioners of Emigration.

Amending the Charter of Buffalo. The bill gives the Mayor control of the Police.

Mr. WADSWORTH moved to bind the New-York and Buffalo Charters in one volume.

Mr. NOXON—They will be so bound.

Mr. SICKLES—They ought to be framed in brass.

The Governor returned, with his veto, the bill for the payment of certain Senate Committees. The bill was then passed, over the Governor's veto, by Ayes 20, Nays 7.

For the relief of the Franklin Academy.

To enable the New-York Supervisors to raise money by tax.

To incorporate the Excelsior College, New York.

Mr. RICHARDSON reported favorably in writing on the petitions for a Bridge over the East River.

The Senate agreed with the report of the Committee of Conference on the bill for the regulation of the harbor of New-York.

Mr. BROOKS moved to reconsider the vote on the City Hall bill, and to lay that motion on the table. Motion carried.

The Committee of Conference on the Central Park bill reported that they had agreed to add the names of W. K. STRONG and JAMES HOGG to the Commissioners. Agreed to.

Executive Session.

Senate P. M.—The Senate continued in Executive Session until the recess for supper. Not one of the Harbor Master appointments was confirmed. The fight is supposed to be on them. Mr. FULLER is likely to be rejected.

The prospect is that there will be a protracted Executive Session. There seems to little doubt of all the New-York Police Commissioners.

As none of the Supply bills have yet been acted upon in the Senate it is not likely that an adjournment will take place before to-morrow night or Saturday.

ASSEMBLY....ALBANY, Thursday, April 16.

The Assembly remained in session all last night and until 3 o'clock this morning, perfecting the Supply bill.

Mr. JONES made an effort to cut down the pay of all officers to the same standard of the majority, who had declared, when reporting the Supply bill of 1856, that they would strictly adhere to the law in framing their own bill.

Mr. PRENDERGAST held that when the Committee had cut down the Supply bill of 1856 to these sums, the House had overruled them.

The amendment was lost. Some new items were then added, and others stricken out.

The bill, as reported, appropriated a little over $320,000.

On motion of Mr. VARNUM, the appropriation of $100,000 for the purchase of the Averill Ore Bed was stricken out.

The bill was then ordered to a third reading.

MORNING SESSION.

BILLS ORDERED TO A THIRD READING.

Making the Auditor of the Canal Department a State officer.

Raising the salaries of the Judges of the Supreme Court and Court of Appeals.

To legalize the widening of Bettery-place.

For the appointment of Commissioners to inquire into the purchase of the lands of the Averill Ore Bed.

To provide for the payment of labor done on canal.

To amend the Lien law.

Relative to Commissioners of Deeds in other States.

To found a Woman's State Hospital.

The New-York and Brooklyn Ferry bill was reported upon unfavorably, and the report was agreed to.

Mr. TALLETT offered for the consideration of the House a series of resolutions relative to the Dred Scott case, as published in the New-York Tribune yesterday.

Laid on the table.

The Committee of Conference on the bill to establish regulations for the port of New-York, reported that the Senate had receded from the non-concurrence in the Assembly amendments, and that the bill stood as it passed the House.

The House concurred in the Senate amendments to the bills for the formation of Town Insurance Companies, and for the protection of emigrants.

BILLS PASSED.

To incorporate the New-York Harmonic Society.

To amend the Constitution of the Jews' Hospital.

Making provision for payment for certain salt lands purchased by the State, it being one of the Supply bills.

To provide means for the support of Government, being the Million-and-a-quarter tax bill.

In relation to the Turnpike roads in Queen's County

The bill making appropriations for certain expenses of the government, it being the main body of the Supply bill, was read for the third time.

Mr. JONES moved to recommit it with instructions to strike out all the appropriations not authorized by law.

Mr. WOOSTER defended the appropriations mainly on the ground that they had been always allowed in former Supply bills. He declared that the motion was only made by Mr. JONES as a leader of the Democratic party in the House, to make capital.

Mr. JONES repudiated any such intention. He made the motion in good faith.

The motion was lost—Yeas 25, Nays 64—and the bill was then passed.

Mr. WOOSTER rose to a question of privilege. He understood that the bill which passed yesterday over the Governor's veto had been mutilated in its passage between this House and the Senate by having its first page torn out. He moved for a Committee of Investigation, but it was subsequently discovered that the first page of the bill had fallen out, and so the matter was dropped.

Mr. FOOTE moved to take up the Dred Scott resolutions and bill. The motion was lost.

The bill making appropriations for State and charitable institutions was passed by Ayes, 90; Nays, 5.

The bill incorporating the International Bridge Co. was called up for a third reading.

Mr. HUTCHISON moved to strike out the enacting clause—lost and the bill was passed.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

BILLS PASSED.

For loans to the Susquehanna, Onondaga and Ovid Academies.

In regard to the expenses of emigrants and appropriating certain moneys to the use of the Commissioners of Emigration.

The Senate returned the bills providing for the payment of certain expenses of Senate Committees, with the message that the Governor had vetoed the bill, and that the Senate had passed it over the veto. The House then, also passed the bill over the veto.

The House went into Committee of the Whole and took up the resolutions on the Dred Scott case.

Mr. JONES offered an amendment that the resolutions did not intend to apply to persons passing through the State with their slaves, nor to invalidate the Fugitive Slave Law. He (JONES) sustained the amendment by remarks denouncing, in severe terms, any incendiary attempt to place in contempt the decisions of the Supreme Court or laws of the United States. Amendment lost.

Mr. HARPENDING offered a substitute for the second resolution reported by the Committee. He thought the Committee's resolutions went too far in declaring that the Supreme Court had forfeited the respect of the people, and that they should have decided to confine the expression of their disapprobation to the dicta of the Judges on political questions, in which they had falsified history and maligned the framers of the Constitution.

Mr. FOOT warmly approved the substitute on the ground that it did not express enough, and that this was not the time to mince words.

Mr. GEORGE thought the second resolution of the Committee too extravagant in words, and that the sense of the people would not indorse it.

The substitute was lost.

Mr. VARNUM offered a substitute condemning the practice of the Judiciary in going outside the question which they were called on to decide.

Substitute lost.

Messrs. HOORDOOM, WAKEMAN, and B. OWEN sustained the Committee and the resolutions.

Messrs. HANFORD and WOODS opposed the resolutions.

Mr. KIVLIN denounced the resolutions as revolutionary, in their attacks on the Supreme Court and the laws of the United States. He held that the Southern States were not sectional, because Slavery was guaranteed them by the Constitution. These States were sectional only that would violate the Constitution.

Mr. SCOTT moved to add to the resolutions a provision, authorizing the Republican members to hold a session during the recess, at Hartford or elsewhere, to express the opinion of the Republican Party on the propriety of seceding from the Union. Motion lost.

The Committee then rose, and, on motion of Mr. FOOT, was discharged from the further consideration of the resolutions.

A motion to adopt the resolutions was laid on the table.

Recess till 7 P. M.

POSTSCRIPT.

SENATE....EVENING SESSION.

Twelve o'clock P. M.—The Executive Session closed about 9 o'clock P. M. W. J. A. FULLER and J. V. DODGE, nominated for Harbor Masters, were rejected. All the remaing nominees were confirmed.

On the reopening of the doors the following bills were passed:

To amend the New-York Common School Law.

To confirm the location of the Canal through Port Byron.

To increase the pay of the Brooklyn Marshals.

The bill relative to the redemption of notes of country banks coming up for a third reading, M. KELLY moved to recommit it, when a long debate ensued.

ASSEMBLY....EVENING SESSION.

The House concurred in the Senate's amendments to the bills relating to the New-York Harbor Steam Towboat Company, the New-York Excelsior College, amending the Charter of Buffalo, and for the regulation of the government of the Central Park.

An attempt to take up the Trinity Church bill failed.

The House then went into Committee of the Whole on the bill to secure freedom to all persons within this State.

Mr. JONES moved to amend the second section of the bill by adding that that section shall not be deemed to discharge from service any person held in Slavery in any State under the law thereof, who shall escape into this State, nor apply to any person while passing through this State, who shall have been lawfully decided to owe labor or service in any other State under the laws thereof, in conformity with the Constitution.

Mr. JONES said this would deprive the section of any appearance of interfering with the Fugitive Slave law or the Constitution.

Mr. FOOTE opposed the amendment.

The amendment was lost.

Mr. WOOSTER offered a substitute for the bill, which when amended by Mr. HOGEBOOM, provided in substance that all persons in the State should be free, and nullified the operation of the Fugitive Slave law.

Messrs. WOOSTER, H. BAKER, and VAN VALKENBURGH spoke on the question.

The Speaker took the floor, and in an eloquent and impressive speech urged the adoption of the bill. He boldly took the ground that New-York should take the first step in the great and bloodless revolution of public opinion, by declaring that no person held as a slave under the pretence that human servitude could rightfully exist, should be delivered up by this State. He took that ground and yet stood upon the Constitution. He did not preach treason, but he held that no laws could make a slave of a human being.

Mr. VARNUM replied in equally warm terms. He declared that the Speaker did preach treason; that here, on the floor of the Assembly of the State of New-York, he set at nought the Constitution and the laws, and preached nullification and treason.

During Mr. VARNUM's speech there was loud applause from the galleries, which were densely crowded.

Mr. LEWIS said that he did not fear declaring that he set at naught the provisions of the Fugitive Slave Law. The people of Herkimer hath set it aside long ago. If that was treason, make the most of it.

Mr. IRVING denounced the treasonable conduct of members on the floor, who had declared themselves nullifiers and disunionists. He had supposed the Republican Party to be the Free-Soil Party, but he found they had been led into the ambush of Abolitionism. If this was Republicanism he did not believe the people would endure it.

Mr. POMEROY defended the Committee's bill as in no wise inconsistent with the Constitution. He deemed the occasion one calling for a strong expression of the sentiment on the part of the present Republican Legislature.

Mr. KIVLIN spoke against the bill, and after remarks from several other members of the Committee

In the House, Mr. JONES resumed his motion to add a constitutional proviso to the bill, and called for the ayes and nays.

The motion was lost, by ayes, 28; nays, 57.

The original bill, as reported by the Committee, was then ordered to a third reading.

The bill providing for the keeping of the records in the Executive Department, and fixing the salaries in the Department was ordered to a third reading

Adjourned.

Marine Matters.

The Life Saving Benevolent Association of New-York have presented their gold medal to Capt. WM. C. DICKEY, of the bark Mary R. Barney, for the rescue of the crew of the schooner Jarvis Lyon, when in a sinking condition at sea, on the 3d of March.

The United States ship St. Louis arrived at Isle St. Iage, African Coast, in January last, having spent five months on a cruise along the Coast, having been so far south as Little Fish Bay. They report having had some employment in intercepting slavers, and also in looking after the interests of our commerce generally. The officers and men were well. The flag-ship Jamestown was also at Porto Praya, and the Dolphin at Porto Grande. Officers and crews well. The St. Louis was to sail for Cape Palmas on the 6th to look after the Africans there who were reported to have burned the property of some Americans, and committed other depredations. Accounts of these difficulties have already been given.

The U. S. ship Cyane was at Aspinwall on the 3d inst. awaiting the determination of our difficulties with the Isthmus Government. Some of her officers are impatient for an opportunity to distinguish themselves by landing with a force of two hundred men, and taking this side of the Isthmus, which it is thought could be easily done! The weather was very warm, and no rain had fallen for some time. Water was procured at a cost of ten cents per gallon. The Saratoga had sailed for Havana.

KEY WEST, Tuesday, April 7.—The ship Empress, of New-York, ran ashore within one hundred yards of Sambrito Reef, at 4 o'clock morning of 30th ult., having mistaken the platform and quarters for a ship, and at 8 o'clock got afloat. The following notice is given to mariners: A platform and quarters for a working party have been erected on the Florida Reef, about 45 miles to the eastward of Sand Key lighthouse. These works have been erected for the purpose of constructing a first order lighthouse tower, and will remain until the structure has progressed so far that they can be dispensed with. The quarters are about 25 feet above the surface of the water, and should be visible in good weather 10 nautical miles.

NASSAU, N. P., Saturday, March 28—The brig Nabenaha Hand, of New-York, has completed her repairs, and is now ready for sea.—[By letter to LEE WOOD WALTER, Esq.

BEAUFORT, Thursday, April 9.—The schooner W. B. Jenkins, Capt. PATERSON, with a cargo of cotton and naval stores, from Washington, N. C., bound to New-York, got ashore, on the 3d inst., on a ree near Harbor Island, in the Sound.—[By letter to ELLWOOD WALTER, Esq.

Advertising Patronage and the "Irish" Weekly Newspapers.

No. 102 NASSAU STREET—April 15, 1857.

To the Editor of the New-York Daily Times:

SIR: In an article yesterday you mention the Celt as among the recipients of Governmental advertising patronage. This is a mistake. Not only have we not enjoyed any such patronage, but our course "last Fall," in insisting on fair play for Col. FREMONT, was visited by GEO. W. JONES, and others of "the Democracy," with "a stop my paper" penalty, of which we feel as proud, as the authors ought to feel ashamed. Very respectfully yours,

McGEE & MITCHELL,
[Publishers of the American Celt.

From the Philadelphia Daily Evening Bulletin

CIRCUIT COURT, UNITED STATES.—THE CONGRESS RUBBER COMPANY vs. HENDRY & HARRIS.—This was a motion for injunction to restrain the sale of certain India Rubber goods. The following order was made by the Court:

Petition of the American Elastic Cloth Company filed, praying for relief to become parties defendants, and to be permitted to take defence therein; and on motion of St. George T. Campbell the prayer of the petitioners is granted, so far as respects the goods manufactured by them, and they are permitted so to appear and defend.

On motion of C. A. Seward, Esq., for complainants, the Court permit complainants to amend their bill and affidavits filed so as to strike therefrom all reference to the goods manufactured by the American Elastic Cloth Company with like effect, as though no such charges had ever been inserted therein, and that the said bill stand with like effect as though the same had only been filed for or in respect to the other goods therein referred to and alleged to have been manufactured in England or France—this amendment to be without prejudice to the residue of the bill or to the rights of any party; and thereupon leave was given to the American Elastic Cloth Company to withdraw their petition and any appearance or participation in said cause.

So ordered by the Court, April 15, 1857.

Signed, ISAIAH T. SMITH,
Pro. Clerk Circuit Court of the United States.

The cause was then argued by Mr. Seward for the complainants against the English and French goods. The proceedings against the goods manufactured by the American Elastic Cloth Company having been thus withdrawn, no counsel argued the cause for the defendants.

HENRY H. LEEDS & CO. WILL SELL BY AUCTION ON WEDNESDAY, April 22, at 12 o'clock at the Merchants' Exchange, important sale of an elegant country seat and building sites on Staten Island, being the western and central sections of the extensive and highly picturesque estate of "Hill Park" on Staten Island, 4½ miles from Vanderbilt's Landing, on the Richmond Plank Road, and near the New Dorp Station, on the now constructing Staten Island Railroad. The estate is situated on the range of hills extending from Toad Hill. The portion offered at present comprises 103 acres, and includes the first-class country residence of "Hill Park House," with about 7 acres of ground laid out at great expense, in the most superb style of English landscape gardening, and containing a beautiful lake stocked with gold-fish. The house is newly built of the best material, by day's work, and forms, with offices and outbuildings, a complete residence of a large and wealthy family. The remaining land has been laid out in the style of an English park, in which two public parks, of about 6 and 3 acres respectively, have been set aside for use of the residents on the estate, and the surrounding space has been laid out and fenced in for 18 building sites, containing none but useful and appropriate land, and made accessible by wide and handsome park roads. For further particulars and maps, and, also, for free omnibus tickets to view the estate, apply at our office, No. 32 Nassau-st.

OFFICE OF THE ILLINOIS CENTRAL RAILROAD COMPANY, NEW-YORK, April 2, 1857.—Notice is hereby given, that the Directors of the ILLINOIS CENTRAL RAILROAD COMPANY have resolved to increase the Capital Stock of the Company, from One Hundred and Seventy Thousand Shares to Two Hundred and Fifty-five Thousand Shares, which new shares will be allotted to the holders of the present stock, at the closing of the books on the 20th June next, and to such persons as may become stockholders by the conversion of bonds, which may expire before the 1st day of January, 1858, in the proportion of one share of new stock to two shares of the old stock.

The Transfer Books will be closed on the 20th day of June next, and reopen on the 1st day of July next.

The holders of the present stock are required to receive one-third the number of shares to which they may be entitled on the 1st day of July, 1857, and to pay an instalment of ten per cent. per share on the Capital Stock, for the remaining two-thirds will be issued. One-half convertible into the stock of the Company, on or before the 1st day of February, 1858, and the remainder on or before the 1st day of July, 1858; such instalments to as may then have been called in, on the present Stock to be paid to the Company at the time of conversion.

Those persons who shall become stockholders by the conversion of bonds, receive Optional Rights into Stock, on or before the second day of January, 1858, and after the first day of July next, will be required to receive, and pay for one-third of the new stock to which they may be entitled, at the time of such conversion. Optional Rights for the remaining two-thirds of the new Stock to which they may be entitled, will be issued to them, of the same tenor as those issued to parties who shall appear as stockholders, at the closing of the books on the 20th June next.

Parties converting Optional Rights will be required to pay to the Company all accrued interest on the instalments from the time that interest shall have been paid on the installments to the holders of the present shares.

All stock which is not applied for before the 10th day of July next, and the installment paid thereon, will be forfeited to the Company, together with all rights which attach thereto.

The Directors have resolved to extend the time for the conversion of the existing Optional Rights, which, by their terms, expires on the 1st of January, 1858, so as to include the 2d day of January, 1858.

Information, pertaining to the details of this issue, can be obtained by inquiring at the office of the Company.

Interest will be paid, as usual, upon the Stock of the Company, on the 1st of July next.

By order of the Board of Directors,
J. N. PERKINS, Treasurer.

TO THE STOCKHOLDERS OF THE GALENA AND CHICAGO UNION RAILROAD COMPANY.—The Board of Directors of the Galena and Chicago Union Railroad Company passed the following resolution on the 24th inst:

Resolved, That the balance of the second mortgage bonds of this Company (about $1,000,000) remaining unsold on the 1st day of May next, be offered to the stockholders of the Company until that date, at seventy-five cents on the dollar, each Stockholder being at liberty to subscribe for as many $1,000 bonds as he may choose, without reference to the amount of stock held by him; but should such subscriptions amount in the aggregate to more than the amount of bonds unsold on the 1st day of May next, the same shall be apportioned among the subscribers in an equitable manner, as the circumstances of the case will admit of, reference being had to the amount of stock owned by each on that day

Subscribers will be required to pay for the bonds awarded them respectively, at the office of Messrs. Strachan & Scott, in the City of New-York, or at the office of the Secretary of the Company, in Chicago, Illinois, in Drafts on New-York at par, or their equivalent, as follows:

25 per cent. on the 1st day of June next.
25 per cent. on the 20th day of June next.
25 per cent. on the 20th day of July next.
25 per cent. on the 1st day of Sept. next.

Any subscriber may be entitled to receive, from time to time, such number of bonds as the payments made will cover; the coupons and interest on payments to be equitably adjusted, as is customary.

All subscriptions for bonds must be forwarded to the Secretary of the Company, at Chicago, Illinois, and no subscriptions received after the 1st day of May next will be recognized.

The bonds offered in accordance with the foregoing resolution, are the second mortgage sinking fund bonds of this Company, for $1,000 each, with coupons of $35 each attached, payable on the 1st days of May and November of each year at the American Exchange Bank in the City of New-York, and the principal reimbursable on the 1st day of May 1867, at the same place.

Annexed hereto you will find a blank subscription paper, which you are requested to fill with such number of the bonds as you desire, and to return the same to the undersigned, at this office, without delay.

Revivals.

There are in progress revivals of more or less extent in the Plymouth Church, (Mr. BEECHER's;) the Church of the Pilgrims, (Mr. STORRS';) the Park Congregational, (Mr. RACHELER's;) the Strong-place Baptist, (Mr. TAYLOR's,) where nearly 100 have been converted, 73 been added to the church, and 52 baptized; the Atlantic-street Baptist, (Mr. HODGE,) where seven persons united with the church by baptism on the 5th inst.—all thass in Brooklyn. In New-York there is special religious interest evident at the Fourteenth-street Presbyterian, (Dr. A. D. SMITH's;) at Dr. CAMPBELL's, Spring-street, where 26 have just been admitted to the church by profession of faith; in the Shiloh Presbyterian, (colored, Mr. GARNET's,) where seventy have recently professed their faith; in Dr. REESE', (O. S. Presbyterian,) in Rutgers-street; in the Laight-street Baptist, where 35 are hopeful converts; in the Lexington-avenue Baptist, where 17 were baptised at the last communion; in the South Baptist, (Mr. BURLINGHAM's,) where seven persons were lately baptized; in the Berean Baptist, (Dr. DOWLING's;) in the Central Park, (Mr. JONES',) where seven were baptised on the last Sabbath af March; and in the South-street Baptist, Mr. NORTON, pastor. In the Lee-avenue Sabbath School (Brooklyn) several conversions have lately occurred. Several Methodist churches are also enjoying revivals.

Immigrants Coming.

More than six thousand immigrants have arrived at this port during three days past. We append a list of the ships arrived, with the number brought by each:

ON THE 13TH.

Ship Leontine, Bremen	909
Ship Isaac Webb, Liverpool	686
Ship Elb, Hamburg	114

ON THE 14TH.

Ship William Tapscott	665
Ship J. A. Wetherell	559
Steamer Bremen, Bremen	400
Bark Sarah Parks, Havre	192
Bark Enterprise, Liverpool	272

ON THE 15TH.

Bark Jno. J. Boyd	665
Bark Manhattan	659
Bark Middlesex	328
Bark Harriet Queen	491
Bark Margaret Evans, London	85
Bark Tornado	750
Total	6,075

And there were, also, six packet ships below with a proportionate number.

All these large cargoes of immigrants arrived in fair condition as to health, with the exception of the Isaac Webb, from which fourteen were sent to the hospital with a mild type of ship fever. Some of the ships arrive in a comparatively clean condition whilst the rest are filthy in the extreme.

Policemen's Politics.

In a communication in your widely circulated journal of the 16th, by a "Very Black Republican," there are numerous errors, somewhat affecting myself, which I desire to correct.

It is stated, that "Captain DILKS has never belonged to the American Party, nor has he had a "leaning that way."

In the Summer of 1855 Captain DILKS was regularly initiated into the American Order in the Council of the Fifteenth Ward. The records of the said Council will furnish satisfactory evidence on this subject.

It is stated, in the said communication, that I was an applicant for the Captaincy of the Police in the Fifteenth Ward. This is equally untrue. In no manner or form did I ever offer myself as a candidate for this office; nor was my name ever presented to the appointing power, for said office, to my knowledge.

If the other statements of fact, in this article, are as fictitious as those denied above, there may be much truth in the rumor relative to certain affidavits there referred to!

JOHN VANDERPOOL,
Not a very Black Republican.

Fatal Accident.

JAMES HOUSEMAN, employed as carman at No. 35 Murray-street, was run over by his own horse and cart about 6½ o'clock on Wednesday evening, at the corner of Hudson and Leonard streets, and fatally injured. His horse became frightened, and was running off, and he went to stop him with a pail in his hand; but was thrown down, the horse stepping on his head—the cark of a new shoe making a considerable gash near his ear. The wheel went over his back. He was taken to the New-York Hospital, where he died yesterday. The deceased resided in Twenty-fifth street. He was a native of Ireland, and 29 years of age.

Board of Supervisors.

The Board of Supervisors met yesterday afternoon—Supervisor TUCKER in the Chair. Several bills of small amounts were favorably reported on, and the reports were accepted. The bills of the Coroners, for the quarter ending April 1, were passed, and a resolution increasing the salary of C. Beamish, Clerk of the Supreme Court, from $500 to $1,000 per annum, was adopted. Other bills were passed, when the Board adjourned to Monday next.

Board of Aldermen.

The Board of Aldermen met yesterday evening—Alderman CLANCY, President, in the Chair. A report was received from the Committee on Railroads, on complaints against the management of several railroads. After due consideration, the Committee reported the following resolutions:

Resolved, That the Harlem Railroad Company be and they are hereby directed and ordered to remove the T rail, wherever now laid, south of Twenty-seventh-street, by the 1st day of July next, and substitute therefor the grooved rail; and the same shall be laid under the direction and supervision of the Street Commissioner, and subject to the approval of the Common Council; that the part of their route situated between Grand and Fifth streets in the Bowery, be built in conjunction with the Third Avenue Railroad, at their joint expense; the Third Avenue Railroad Company to lay down the west track and the Harlem Railroad Company the east track; and the same shall be hereafter owned, used and maintained jointly by the two Companies in like manner, and in the event of the Harlem Railroad Company not complying with these provisions, that the Third Avenue Railroad Company be required to lay down both tracks, and the immunities heretofore extended to the Harlem Railroad Company shall cease. Further, that the Harlem Railroad Company be required to discontinue the use of the large passenger cars south of Twenty-seventh street on and after the first day of July next; and that they also discontinue the use of the large freight cars south of Twenty-seventh-street, between the hours of 5 A. M. and 9 P. M., in one month after the passage of this report; and that at the expiration of one year from the date of the passage, this privilege shall cease, and all large cars shall stop north of Twenty-seventh-street thereafter. Nothing in this resolution shall be so construed as to permit the New-Haven or any other Company to run large cars on this track, otherwise than provided in this report.

The report was laid on the table and ordered to be printed in the minutes.

THE NEW CHARTER AND POLICE BILL.

Alderman MONAHAN arose to a question of privilege. He wished to speak with reference to the New Charter recently passed by the Legislature. As President of the Aldermanic Committee, he had been in Albany, and while there he had appeared before the Committee on Cities and Villages. There was no member of that Committee who had a word to say in favor of the new Charter. He had spoken to Mr. POMEROY, President of the Legislature, and he had said, you know our party is young, we have nothing to expect from the General Government, and if we do not make some openings for our own friends in your County, we cannot do anything for our friends. He had presented the reported Charter of the Aldermen, but they did not receive the courtesy of having it opened.

There was not a man there who could not be bought and sold like cattle in the market, and he wished to protest against their action. Mr. BLUNT, a citizen of New-York City, had been up there and stated that the citizens of New-York were not capable of self-government. The object was to throw out Democrats and put in Republicans. He believed the whole action to be unconstitutional and wished the question might be tested.

Alderman TUCKER said he thought when the Committee went up it was a farce. When they returned he asked one of them what they had done, and he said "they had a good sleigh ride, pulled each other out of bed, and raised hell generally." Now they said they were not well received before the Legislative Committee. Perhaps they were not, and if not, their own report of what they did might account for it. It had been said that they were going to turn out bad Democrats and put in good Republicans. Well, he was glad of it. If the Democratic members behaved themselves they would doubtless be reelected, and therefore they had no reason to be alarmed.

Alderman MONAHAN denied that the Committee went sleigh riding or on a drunk. He had received a respectful hearing, notwithstanding they had not opened the charter taken up. The whole action was to bolster up the Republican Party, and he believed the very action they had taken was the very thing that would destroy them at the next election. They had passed them, notwithstanding all the remonstrances that had been sent.

Alderman TUCKER denied that any remonstrances had been sent up, except those that emanated from the Common Council. The people desired the new Charter, and it would prove beneficial.

Alderman BLUNT said the new Charter had been concocted by about thirty gentlemen, representing all parties, who met at the Astor House. So was it with the Police bill; and he was satisfied with it.

Alderman DRAKE was in favor of the new Charter and the Police bill, if the people wanted them, but if not why not.

Alderman WILSON offered a resolution appointing a Committee of five, to test the legality of the acts of the Legislature affecting the interests of the City; and to devise means by which the rights of citizens of the City of New-York living under the Constitution of the State of New-York might be protected.

A motion was made and carried to recommit the whole subject to the Committee.

A report was received and adopted from the Committee on Lamps and Gas, in favor of awarding the contract for lighting the streets of the City above Seventy-ninth-st. to the Harlem Gas Company.

An invitation was received and accepted, to witness the anticipated great parade of the City Target Companies.

After passing upon a number of papers from the Board of Councilmen, the Board adjourned.

POLICE INTELLIGENCE.

A SHAMEFUL DESERTION.

A pretty, modest young German woman came to the Central Police Station, yesterday, weeping most bitterly, and beseeching aid and advice. She stated that on Saturday last she married a man named AUGUSTUS STARK, in New-York City, who represented himself to be a clerk in the Post-Office of Dayton, Ohio. On Saturday she arrived with him, on their way to Dayton, as she supposed, and took lodgings at the Washington House, Chesnut street, above Seventh. Yesterday morning the husband told her to remain a short time until he could procure tickets for their passage to Pittsburg. Not returning at the time anticipated, she made some inquiry, and ascertained that he had paid his own bill and had gone to New-York in the 10 o'clock line, the porter having taken his trunk to the New-York boat. So adroitly did "Augustus" conduct himself, that not the least suspicion was excited in the bosom of any one about the building.

The young lady in question said her maiden name was AMELIA FRITZ, and that she had been acquainted with AUGUSTUS for nearly a year and a half, and of course supposed his intentions were honorable. She was thus left penuless and a perfect stranger in this city, and during the recital of her sad story seemed to be almost insensible. A telegraph dispatch was written out by Lieut. BULKLEY, and a private subscription having been raised, it was sent to the Chief of Police of New York, to detain the fellow.

It is suspected that the marriage on Saturday was a sham. We indulge a hope that success will attend the efforts of the disinterested friendship manifested on behalf of the unfortunate young woman. At two o'clock yesterday afternoon, the poor creature started for home, a free pass having been obtained for her.—Phil. Inquirer, April 14.

MARINE COURT.

Before Judge Thompson.

INTERESTING THEATRICAL SUIT—KATE REIGNOLDS AND THE BOWERY THEATRE.

Lockrow vs. Brougham and Murphy.—The plaintiff sues as assignor of Kate Reignolds, the actress, upon a claim arising from a breach of contract alleged to have been made with her by the defendants, as proprietors of the Bowery Theatre. Miss Reignolds testified that, on the 9th of February last, she made an engagement with Murphy & Howe, in Brougham's name, to perform at that theatre for four weeks, at a salary of $30 per week, and one-third the proceeds of a benefit; that in pursuance of this agreement she commenced performing on Monday evening, the date of her contract. She continued her nightly performances until Saturday of the following week, when, in the afternoon of that day, she went to the Treasurer for her salary. She had not been paid for the first week, and demanded, and insisted upon having, $60, as it had been the custom of the establishment to pay salaries on the morning of Saturday for the week ending with the evening. The Treasurer declined to accede to this request, and gave her only thirty dollars. At this time Howe, the stage-manager, asserted that she was only to receive a salary of twenty-seven dollars and a half per week—saying that she ought not to be permitted to take more money out of the treasury than himself, who was getting but twenty dollars per week. Miss Reignolds thereupon left the theatre, returned to her residence, wrote and sent two letters of similar import to each of the defendants, wherein she complained of having been insulted by Howe, and of the non-payment of her salary, stating that if Mr. Brougham would to break his engagement with her she would have no objections, provided he would send her the salary then due her, and name a night for her benefit. She received no reply to either of these notes, and, accordingly, at about 6 o'clock in the afternoon she presented herself at the door of the theatre, as usual, but was refused admittance, the door-keeper announcing that he had received orders from the stage-manager (Howe) not to admit her. With the assistance of several police officers she finally, at about 9 o'clock, succeeded in effecting an entrance, when she took possession of her wardrobe and left. A few days afterwards she saw Brougham and demanded of him her salary and the promised benefit. He replied to her that he had nothing to do with the theatre, and he thought it a matter of doubt who had. The plaintiff called Brougham and Murphy to the stand, when both of them testified that at the time of this engagement Brougham was, and still is, the sole proprietor and lessee of the theatre. Murphy testified that, in July last, Brougham's interest in the Bowery theatre was sold by the Sheriff upon an execution against him, and that he, the witness, was the purchaser thereof, paying the amount from the treasury of the theatre; that he still held that interest in his own name. He swears, however, that he was only an employe of Brougham's, receiving a weekly salary for his services.

On the 25th of February, three days after Miss Reignolds left the Bowery, she made an engagement at Laura Keene's theatre at a salary of $20 per week. A benefit was given to Miss Reignolds at the Bowery Theatre, under the same management, a short time prior to the present engagement, the proceeds of which amounted to $182 75. On that occasion the evening was unpleasant and stormy. Miss Reignolds testified that her benefit, under the present contract, was fixed for Tuesday evening of the week succeeding that on which she left. It appears, however, that the stage manager, Howe, took a benefit on that night, the proceeds of which amounted to $463 37. This is substantially the evidence on the part of the plaintiff. Howe testified, on the part of the defendants, that on the Saturday evening when Miss Reignolds was refused admittance in the theatre she did not remain the house till long after the curtain had arose; that the performers were required to be in the green-room and dressed for their parts before the curtain was to be rung up; that there were rules, regulations and customs governing these matters in the theatre, but they were never observed to any extent or treated with much consideration. Murphy testified that it was in consequence of the contents of the notes sent to himself and Brougham, that Miss Reignolds was not admitted to the theatre on the Saturday evening before referred to, and which induced him to engage Miss Ingalls to take the part assigned to Miss Reignolds for that evening. This witness further stated that he never had any joint interest with Mr. Brougham in the management of the entertainments of the theatre, further than as a mere employe.

The plaintiff claims that he is entitled to recover thirty dollars for the week's salary on Feb. 21; ten dollars for the two nights preceding Miss Reignolds' engagement at Laura's Keene's; sixteen dollars and sixty cents, the difference in the salary under this contract and that fixed at Miss Keene's, for ten days, and the damages sustained by the failure to give her the promised benefit. The defendants contend that—First, There is no proof of any joint liability on their part; and second, that the assignor of the plaintiff first violated the contract by sending the letters referred to, and, not appearing at the theatre at a proper hour of the evening, she was refused admittance.

Judge THOMPSON rendered a lengthy decision. He did not consider that there was any evidence of a partnership between the defendants, and that Murphy not being one of the proprietors, judgment must be given in his favor. In regard to the damages which he thought to be defendant Brougham liable to pay, he found no difficulty. He, however, adjusted them at $196 50, and gave judgment for the plaintiff against the defendant Brougham for that amount.

COURT OF GENERAL SESSIONS.

Before Hon. Recorder Smith.

THE BROADWAY BURGLARY CASE.

On the night of March 22 the store of Willard, Wood & Co., No. 77 Broadway, was entered by burglars, and $300 worth of cloth, technically known as doeskin, was stolen therefrom. Mr. John Hyde, the private watchman of the block in which the store is situated, found the side door open, and on notifying the members of the firm ten pieces of cloth were missed. In the sailor's boarding house in that wretched street known as Trinity-place, in the rear of Trinity Church, kept by Peter Johnson, seven pieces of the cloth, and a portion of another piece were found, and Peter was therefore arrested, examined and committed to the City Prison. The Grand Jury having found a true bill against him, he was placed on trial yesterday. Mr. Ingles, of the firm in question, was the first witness. He identified the cloth found in Johnson's house; also, two other pieces which he saw at the Tombs, which were taken from a man named Charles Robinson.

The private watchman, Hyde, deposed that he met Robinson about two o'clock on Monday morning, the day following that on which the burglary was committed. Robinson was passing along Trinity-place, and had two pieces of cloth on his shoulder. The watchman accosted him—asked him where he was going and what he carried, &c. Robinson said he had picked up two pieces of cloth on the sidewalk. The watchman refused to believe him, and took him to the station-house, which was only a few doors distant, where he was locked up for the night.

Lieutenant Burns, of the First Ward Police, testified that, on the following morning, from information which he received from Robinson, he went to Johnson's house, woke him up and asked him about the cloth. Johnson at first denied all knowledge of it, then said that he had seen some cloth in his cellar which had been broken into, but did not know to whom it belonged. On examining the cellar he found seven pieces. He took Johnson to the Tombs, and brought Mr. Ingles to see the cloth. Mr. Ingles identified it.

The District-Attorney called Robinson, who was indicted as an accomplice, as a witness for the prosecution. He said that he boarded with Johnson, who asked him to take a piece of cloth to the house of Mr. Brown, who kept a liquor store near by. He consented, took one piece, and left it. Brown not being at home; took a second piece, when Brown was at home. Brown, indignantly accosting him off, cloth and all; and it was while carrying back the cloth, that the watchman arrested him. He owned up to living on the occasion, but attributed it to fright. However, he gave the requisite information the next day.

Mr. Brown and his bar-keeper testified—Robinson brought the cloth as stated; Brown would not have anything to do with it, but incontinently ordered Robinson to take it back.

Several witnesses were called to character. They said Johnson bore a good character.

The Jury were absent nearly two hours. The prisoner was indicted on two counts, one for burglary, the other for receiving stolen goods. They found him guilty on the latter count. Sentence deferred till Saturday.

AN INFAMOUS ROGUE CAUGHT—SPEEDY JUSTICE.

In the February term of this Court, a young fellow named James Hartley pleaded guilty to a charge of manslaughter. A man named Greeley was found dead in his house. He was accused of the homicide, and owned that he had killed the man, but said in excuse, that he had found him sleeping in the same bed with his wife, and of course was satisfied that he had sustained a deadly injury. In the first flash of his indignation, he struck the man and killed him. The Recorder believed his story, as did all who heard it. Judgment was suspended, the Recorder telling him, that under the circumstances, the public interest did not demand any further punishment than he had already undergone, in his incarceration in the City Prison, except to the arraignment. There was no person in the Court when that scene occurred, that did not mentally applaud the Recorder. For the fellow was good-looking, decent in appearance, and his cheeks had a careworn expression which elicited sympathy. The Recorder was sold. Everybody was sold. The scamp was one of the greatest villains in the City. He had several times been in trouble. On Monday last, the 14th inst., he accompanied with the woman he called his wife, and whose appearance is thoroughly disgusting, a man was inveigled into his den in Cow Bay, by a beggard, ragged, debauched woman, named Fitzgerald, and robbed by him of a pocket-book containing $74 in gold. The man's name was Raddigan. He was a laboring stone-mason, intoxicated with gin. While in Fitzgerald's room, in company with the fellow Hartley and his so-called wife, he dropped his wallet, which Hartley seized and handed to the woman who ran off with it.

The Jury found Hartley guilty without a minute's delay. The prisoner committed the crime on Monday, was arrested on Tuesday, the Grand Jury found a bill on Wednesday, and yesterday he was tried and convicted.

The Recorder, on sentencing him, said that he had no doubt that the man Greeley, for whose manslaughter he had been previously arraigned, was inveigled into this den for the purpose of robbery and then foully murdered, and that the alleged criminal intercourse was wholly a falsehood. All that the Court could do in the present case was to inflict the highest penalty of the law, which was five years in the State Prison.

DEATH VISITS ALL.

But it visits some sooner than others. Those who have the consumption, who have the scrofula, or rheumatism, palsy, heart complaints and liver diseases, need not die earlier than other people, for these maladies are not necessarily fatal. But they do, because they trust themselves to the hands of quacks and of those better educated physicians who have less exoneleecc, and so kill when they attempt to cure. One thing is certain—death never visits those consumptive, rheumatic, and scrofulous and other patients who take ANDREAS' Liquid Iodine ar pure Iodine Water That medicine cures all who take it. THURSDAY, April 16—P. M.

The steamship Arabia, from Liverpool, Saturday, April 4, (taking the trip of the Persia, detained at Liverpool for repairs,) arrived at this port at 2 o'clock this afternoon. A brief summary of her news was telegraphed from Sandy Hook, and was known in Wall-street about 1 o'clock. The most important financial item is the sudden advance in the rate of discount at the Bank of England to 6½ ₱ cent. This change was ordered by the Court of Directors on Thursday, April 2, in consequence of the drain of Bullion for various quarters; which, in the absence of receipts from Australia—about $3,750,000 being overdue—had brought the reserve below ten millions sterling, or $50,000,000. This step, though unexpected, caused comparatively but little disturbance to the Funds, the whole decline, for money, being from 93¾ to 93⅛@⅜, the quotation leaving off the same as by the Niagara of the 28th March. At the same time, in connection with the continued active request for money, the change had induced a feeling of caution in trade as well as financial circles, while the propriety of the movement by the Bank Direction, under all the circumstances, was rather commended than questioned. At Liverpool, Cotton was steady at previous prices; the sales of the week, being almost wholly to the trade, amounted to 53,000 bales. The Grain and Flour market, for American descriptions had assumed considerable firmness, though the actual business done at the latest semi-weekly market day, Friday, April 3, was less than on the previous Tuesday. Provisions are all quoted firm, and the supplies of American Beef and Pork light. Bacon met an increasing demand; the arrivals liberal. Lard, 71e. 6d.@71s. the ton. Tallow in good request. The London market for Sugars had a further upward tendency. Very large transactions at private sale at 6d.@1s. ₱ cwt. advance. Coffee was also dearer. The American Stock quotations are not essentially different from the previous reports. Messrs. BELL & SONS repeat the same quotations. Messrs. BARING say the movement is unimportant. Messrs. BENSON & Co. report sales of Illinois Construction Bonds at 90¾; Michigan Southern Sinking Fund, 72@71, and Pennsylvania Railroad First Mortgage, 88½. No business of importance in State Stocks. The shares of the Illinois Central are quoted 32@34 premium. Erie 3d Mortgage held for 86; Convertibles of 1871 for 78, and Ohio and Pennsylvania Incomes 71. New-York Central Shares, 88@85; Six ₱ cents., 88; and Seven ₱ cents., 95 ₱ cent. Among the passengers by the Arabia are Mr. LAMSON, of GEORGE PEABODY & Co., London, and Mr. BANCROFT DAVIS, of this City. Mr. SATTERTHWAITE, Broker in American Stocks, writes from London:

"Since our advices of the 27th ultimo there has been a dull market for public Securities, influenced by the constant withdrawal of bullion from the Bank. The Directors yesterday raised the rate of discount and advances on Stocks to 6½ ₱ cent. It is remarkable how slightly this has affected Consols, which close at 93½@¾ for Money, and 93¾@⅞ for the new account, May 7.

In the early part of the week just elapsed there were some large purchases of Illinois Central Shares at from 34@35 premium; they yesterday were done at 33 premium on the lower quotations from New-York. Construction Bonds were in firm demand at 90¾@91, but since yesterday are not inquired for. The general market for American Securities is dull. We note, however, some small transactions in New-York Central 6 ₱ cent. and 7 ₱ cent. Bonds, and in Pennsylvania First Mortgage Bonds. Michigan Southern Sinking Fund Bonds have declined to 71. The continued absence of any official report is causing a great want of confidence amongst the holders of the various Securities of this important Company."

In our own market, to-day, the Street demand for Money is again very light, while the offering is extremely liberal on temporary loans at 7 ₱ cent. The light demand from the Stock Brokers is the more remarkable, as the only business at the Stock Exchange, throughout the week, has been large and quite animated. Much of it, however, is on contracts ahead, and a good portion of it in Stocks, the transfers of which are temporarily closed. Discounts on prime paper are readily had on the Street, when declined at Bank, or of longer date than Bank practice, at 8½@9 ₱ cent. There is no movement in Exchange since the sailing of the Asia. The news to-day is calculated to increase the value of sight or short-sight sterling, without materially influencing 60-day bills, which are still called 109½@109¾ ₱ cent. The next English steamer is the Niagara, from Boston on Wednesday. The Washington, for Bremen, sails from this port on Saturday. The Sub-Treasury balance fell below fifteen millions to-day. The receipts of the day were $122,586; disbursements, $197,616; balance, $14,941,550.

In Stocks, the transactions of the day, including the Street calls after the news by the Arabia, were over 30,000 shares. The market showed much firmness at the early session of the Brokers, and an advance of ¼@½ ₱ cent. was had on several descriptions on the closing rates of Wednesday. But after the first intimations of the English news, with the usual mercurial and Bearish spirit of the Street, there was a general rush to sell, and the extreme decline at one time was equal to ¾@1, and on Erie 1¾ ₱ cent., from which point there was quite a decided reaction, the general list leaving off steady. The prominent fluctuations were

THE POLITICAL CURTAIN.

The Washington Edition—Clouds Past and Gathering.

[Special Correspondence of the New-York Daily Times.]

WASHINGTON, Thursday, April 16, 1857.

Before commencing a second letter, allow me, in the good fellowship, to advise the respected Father and Grand Warrior of the Tammany Sentence to be a little more careful of their money. The anxiety they evince as to the subject may be flattering, and their offer to stake money shows that they have great reliance on their own critical judgment; but bets of the kind herein referred to never lead to any good, and might by possibility provoke more than a little bloodshed. And now to business.

MR. BUCHANAN AND "ALDERMAN WOOD."

Not belonging to that new style of historians who draw on imagination for history, and make fact of every calumnious fungicus, truth compels me to admit that the Mayor's triumphal entry into Washington, duly chronicled in my last, was followed by a precipitate and disgraceful flight on the very morning of the appearance of my letter—Messrs. SMALL & TUOMEY dispatching the telegraph to his Honor's coachman to have his Honor's carriage in readiness at the Jersey City depot. This coincidence may seem strange to the curious inquirer—as may also the fact that his Honor then holding a council at WILLARD'S, and first got news of his utter repudiation by Mr. BUCHANAN at that very hour, on the Sunday previous to the New-York appointments, when I sat down to make my memoranda for your benefit. Mr. BUCHANAN has a curious turn of the neck, and a curious way of looking obliquely from under the corner of his half-closed eyes, but all his obliquities, mental, physical and political, seem concentrated when his Honor's name is mentioned; and, in spite of all that can be said or remonstrated, he will insist on alluding to his Honor as "Alderman Wood," and contrasting Alderman Wood with Alderman LIMAY—a mistake which some ill-natured people have supposed to be not altogether unintentional.

THE SUNDAY COUNCIL IN WASHINGTON.

Bear with me a few moments while I sketch that Sunday Council; it is dead and gone, to be sure, but its effects are still vital in our City politics, and the designs then and there enunciated are the designs of to-day. WILSON SMALL was there; he and Mr. MICHAEL TUOMEY, Commissary of the Liquor Department in his Honor's Staff, had been down that morning to inspect the Washington Post-office, with a view to introducing all the latest improvements from the capital into our New York establishment, when Mr. SMALL assumed the control. Messrs. TUOMEY and SAM BRADHURST were there, as also Mr. JOSIAH SUTHERLAND, Jr., his Honors candidate for District-Attorney, ISAAC BELL, Jr., with "documents from leading New-York merchants" in favor of TOWNSEND for Collector, and Mr. WM. J. BRISLEY, formerly Alderman of the Ninth Ward, whose peculiar accentuation of the word "sour," as the qualifying adjective after "Brandy" excited a good deal of laughter at WILLARD'S bar, where "Brandy Syrups" was the general request.

This council assembled at 11 o'clock A. M., that memorable Sabbath morning, and at noon precisely (just as I sat down to write) the scouts came in with positive information that his Honor was completely [illegible]—Mr. BUCHANAN declaring that if "Alderman Wood would be kind enough to look after our Federal affairs, he (Mr. B.) would endeavor to do without his valuable and disinterested advice in matters of State." There was also a hint about those two letters from Wheatland, which his Honor had traded on as political capital during the past election; but that story is so good that we must reserve it for a separate paragraph. When the scouts had delivered their message, his Honor rose and paced the room in visible agitation, using expletives still legally finable under the blue-nose laws, and exclaiming—"I wish to God I had remained on my own dung hill! I can never get over the disgrace of having come to Washington for such a result as this." After this his ideas of Mr. B. underwent a sudden change for the worse, and the late god of his political idolatry fell so low that he wound up a long string of expletives (omitted as a matter of taste) by declaring that he "would not walk on the same side of the street" with a certain elderly bachelor who has the peculiarity, as regards our city, of confounding the potential mayor with the aldermen of his nomination and appointment. Should any one doubt the exact verity of this scene and language, we refer them to Mr. SAM BRADHURST, who, along with some others, was disgusted, and leaving his Honor's council, went elsewhere and formed a council of their own.

HIS HONOR'S PLAN TO RECOVER LOST GROUND.

Prompt to recover his disaster, the Mayor now unfolded a plan, afterwards perfected in New-York, by which all his losses, he said, could be retrieved. He would gain Mr. HART's support by pretending that he had signed no letter for any other candidate, and, in fact, that Mr. HART's appointment was made at his special solicitation, and as a personal favor from the Executive. He confessed he could do nothing with Mr. SCHELL—the head of his "natural enemies," as he calls the Hards—directly; but he knew that ENOCH CROSWELL has a mania for intrigue and combination—a thirst for stratagem and the spoils; and as CROSWELL and MATHER were SCHELL's next friends at Washington, he hoped by playing on the former to pocket a good share of the Custom-House appointments for his followers. "CROSWELL and I have made it all up," he said; "you see CROSWELL's old regency experience makes him death on combinations, and I've persuaded him that the welfare of the party will depend upon our union. I will be enabled to excite his most serious apprehensions of a league between SANDERS, HART and SICKLES. I know CROSWELL well—quick as a fox at the scent, and he jumps at a sound. SCHELL must not be driven with too firm a bit, you see, but, between us, must be made to believe that I am dead, and that he can inherit my power; we can thus manage him, and, since CROSWELL's on my side, you may say that I hold the Collectorship." A faint gleam of hope illumined the desponding faces at the Council Board, and then it was that his Honor sat down and wrote that particular letter to the President, on the subject of the New-York appointments, which BRISLEY and Sancho Panza SMALL endeavored, with tears in their eyes, to deter him from sending. But his Honor's blood was up, and the letter was written and sealed, though not delivered till next morning, about an hour after his Honor's departure. Before leaving Washington, however, he had a grand row with Mr. BUCHANAN, for having signed IKE FOWLER's recommendation; and, if we were at liberty to relate his conversation with a certain quiet gentleman who traveled back with him in the cars, and who, his Honor may remember, exhibited extreme surprise on seeing a copy of your paper, of that date, at Camden—if that conversation were not sacred, what a laugh the report of it would raise around the City.

On arriving in New York the whole grand conspiracy was found to be disorganized, and another council was held, at which the ever-faithful SMALL, JOSIAH SUTHERLAND, BELL, TOWNSEND, Judge RUSSELL, and three others (names reserved by request) assisted. Threatened from Albany, and utterly routed at Washington, it was lugubriously resolved, nem. con., that his Honor must die the death if he hoped to live; and that the only chance of weathering the storm was to lower all sail, cut away the masts, (reserving timber for a jury-rig,) and pretend to have abandoned the helm forever. MIKE TUOMEY came in during the debate, and it was then, and in answer to his useful question, that our Municipal Chief first unfolded his plan for the "management" of the resisting Sachems. "You know JOHN KELLY is honest," he said, giving a knowing wink, "and can't be engaged in any scheme of deception; but it would better him if I concealed my hand in the matter, and let him take all the credit for having restored the party to harmony. We cannot break the seven sachems as they are, but we can bring them," continued his Honor, placing the fore finger of his right hand in the palm of the left, and shutting down the fingers of the latter, "then, gentlemen, I have them there! KELLY will call PURDY the 'old War-Horse,' and promise him the Mayoralty under the new Charter; and as for DUNCAN, he's after the Deputy Collectorship, which KELLY can either give or promise him."

THE DEAD MAYOR IS LAPPED UP IN A PALMER VEIN AND POTOSI WINDING SHEET.

The line of policy thus decided on, his Honor and Judge RUSSELL hurried across to a certain corner-house in Nassau-street (not corner of Beekman where is issued a certain veracious print, over whose editorial columns, the Judge boasts unlimited sway. The Mayor then dictated a veracious announcement of his own decease, accompanied with many regrets for the loss of such ability and integrity at such a crisis of our municipal affairs: and to make the matter of the death more certain, our "historical" cotemporary suggested of his own accord that the dead man should take a trip to Babylon, Jerusalem, Jericho and other abandoned cities, to see if he could find any city more abandoned than the one he had forsaken for its sins. That article finished, His Honor went home, and took a powerful narcotic. Next morning he was as dead to all appearance as any mackerel ever barrelled: and Doctors KENNEDY, FREMONT, MARSH, DELAVAN DUNLAP and others, being called in to the post mortem, declared him really "a corpse:" even PETER B. SWEENEY examined his hands, and feet, and pronounced them perfectly cold—an exclamation which came near waking up the Mayor, who has since confessed that he could scarcely keep down the chuckle which threatened to agitate the counterpane. PURDY then chaunted the burial service, touching tenderly on the frailties of the dead, and those two letters from Wheatland in particular: and under cover of this "fictitious funeral," the programme of the seven Sachems was altered, and ELIJAH (F.) was seized up from the embraces of the seven-man league in the New York Hotel to the seventh heaven of a prospective mayoralty.

MR SCHELL IS HOCUSSED BY JOHN C. MATHER.

Finding that the "Old War Horse" had been too many for him, his Honor determined to hocus SCHELL by a poisonous draught, which JOHN C. MATHER was selected to administer—the poison consisting of the revival of all SCHELL's bygone political animosities; it, therefore, became MATHER's duty to present to the excited imagination of the new Collector terrible visions of a domestic "Ostend Conference," between SICKLES, SAUNDERS, HALE, DEAN RICHMOND, LUCLOW, CAGGER (not Codger) and the Sixts throughout the State; and the seven Sachems were represented as subterraneous conspirators, concocting a hell broth, (like that made by the witches in "Macbeth,") instead of preparing oil and spikenard for the gaping wounds of the party. In vain was it demonstrated to Mr. SCHELL that the Seven had been his earliest, firmest, staunchest friends, and that it was they who had broken down the Wilson Small Committee, who were prepared (under Wood's directions) to have denounced and resisted his (Mr. SCHELL's) appointment "as a curse to the party;" in vain was it remonstrated that he was disgracing a long life of political purity by an allegiance with Mr. PURDY's "Pirate Chief;" his "Dutch" was up—no arguments could reach him; and thus was accomplished, through the procuration of JOHN C. MATHER, of immortal impeachment memory, the most unfortunate act of political prostitution that ever was allowed to throw discredit on the closing career of so quiet, so eminent, so virtuous and so entirely respectable a citizen. The particulars of the arrangements, supposed to have been made while the "subject" was under the influence of the poisonous draught, must be reserved for another letter—when the results of the Westchester and Chinese caucuses shall have transpired.

NAPOLEON'S OWN ACCOUNT OF AUSTERLITZ.

At least so thought his Honor, but we shall see, as events proceed, whether the old Napoleon of "the unterrified" was really circumvented. Down to this time all efforts had failed to get the Wilson Small Committee pledged to the movement of the seven Sachems for reform; only four Wards of the Twenty-two in their Committee having appointed Inspectors. The old "war horse" ruefully contemplated the failure of this portion of the programme; and as he pondered it within the shades of the big wigwam, fifty-three thousand eight hundred and seven additional wrinkles puckered the seamed and knotted features of his venerable, but rather india-rubbery face. The idea presented by JOHN KELLY, of a Convention made up of delegates, selected equally from the Savage and Small Committees, with umpires selected by the Sachems, committed both sides to the movement, and gave the control to the Seven. The proposal really tickled his veteran ribs almost to death; but to hamboozle the outsiders, and to lull his Honor in false security, he pretended to be "acting independently," and so grandly did he manage his game, that the enemy did not know of the military manœuvre until they found themselves hood-winked, surrounded and taken prisoners, with arms in their hands. This is "Napoleon's" own account of his latest Austerlitz, and thus the Wilson Small Committee, having appointed delegates for every Ward, they stand before the community—with their blood on their own hands—a memorable instance of political suicide!

WHAT HIS HONOR HOPED TO GAIN BY MESMERIZING PURDY.

By the Kelly-Purdy change of programme, his Honor hoped to get control of the Tammany Society and wipe out all previous action of the hostile seven. He was very busy getting up opposition tickets amongst all other parties, and expected to create divisions in the Hard Shell camp through ULYSSES D FRENCH, Commissioner of Jurors—concerning whom he boasts of holding important secrets—JARED W. BELL, of the News, who has been mesmerized by GEO. F. THOMPSON, his Honor's Aide de-Camp at Washington, and JOSEPH COENELL, our present Deputy Sheriff, whom he has dazzled by the promise of a prospective Shrievalty. By securing the new Council of Sachems, he could give omnipotence to the Wilson-Small Committee; and through this organization, if once recognized as the voice of the Party, he could dominate SCHELL with as firm a bit as he might please to use—yea, a curb-chain and snaffle, if necessary—or have him removed if utterly refractory. CROSWELL understands this manœuvre well enough; but has been quieted by Wood's remark that "even if SMALL's Committee be restored, it will be no longer mine. SCHELL can make it do whatever suits him by the golden coercion of his Custom House appointments" But Messrs. DILLON, SWEENY, SAVAGE, and the other "Hards-of-Principle," seem to imagine that the experiment would be a dangerous one, and its result is likely to confirm their views.

THE STORY OF THOSE WHEATLAND LETTERS—HOW THE "UNTERRIFIED" WERE SCARED.

Give me a minute's space for the story of those Wheatland documents—a story which was the story that settled Mr. BUCHANAN's opinion of "Alderman Wood." A poor Irishman, acquainted with the present Executive, had got injured in some manner, and wrote to Wheatland for relief. Mr. BUCHANAN, liberally inclined, but hurried with the press of the election, wrote to the man to call on Mr. SICKLES, and to SICKLES to give him such relief as might seem needed. His Honor heard of this, and at once took a deep interest in the sufferer. "Give me BUCHANAN's letter," he said, "and on that I'll raise a subscription that shall amount to something." The letter was, accordingly, transferred—a subscription raised—a fleming account of the affair sent to Wheatland, stating what "a pride and pleasure" it was to his Honor to "have the happiness of assisting a really worthy man, and one of Mr. BUCHANAN's friends." The expected answer came—a formal letter, thanking "FERNANDO WOOD, Esq.," for his "good opinion," "deep interest," and so forth; and on the strength of these two letters, one to himself and one to Hon. DAN. SICKLES, our adroitest master of deception terrified all obstreperous opponents, and these were the letters that he flourished in his hand when stating, at a meeting of the Finance Committee in Tammany Hall, (when FOWLER refused to turn over the $1,700 collected in the Post-Office, to meet the deficit of $5,000 for printing,) that "from the day and hour of JAMES BUCHANAN's elevation, as they might all see for themselves by the letters which he then held in his hand, he would be in a position to punish all such insubordinacy and force the recusants either to submit or lose their heads." For further amusing particulars of this matter refer to Ex-Senator MCMURRAY, (now expecting to go Minister to the Hague,) who was one of the earliest and most frightened victims of this grand confidence policy. And now to return to my subject:

LIFE WON BY DEATH—CAPTAIN WHITTER AND OTHER MACHINATIONS.

While his Honor's loudly-trumpeted death was giving him back all the life he wanted, to be dangerous again, the plan was conceived of making the Police a unit in his favor, and handling the department over in this condition to the new Police Commissioners. Judge RUSSELL and the Mayor held a Board (!) and decapitated the few remaining officers still retained, to give some semblance of impartiality: Mr. MATSELL was also induced to place his resignation at his Honor's disposal, and this vacancy was to be filled by the appointment of Capt. WHITTER of the Twenty-second Ward—one of the most supple, and perhaps the most unscrupulous partizans that the Mayor has in the force. This is the same WHITTER who encouraged the gutting and sacking of the house of GEORGE DAVIS, where an Anti-Wood meeting was advertised to come off—the Captain remarking, as proved in Court, that "it would be a shame to allow any opposition to his Honor in his Honor's own Ward."

Several policemen and one Dr. O'TOOLE, as officer-holder along with SIR IRVING in SMALL's department headed the outrageous riot; and the captain, to show his appreciation of their motives, neither reported the affair to the Chief, nor would report the policeman complained of to the Board. Dr. O'TOOLE, however, was arrested by the Recorder and held to bail in $1,000, but the charge has been since let drop, and the Doctor still roams that uptown Ward, as free as were the freest and most easy of his ancestors since the days of St. Lawrence O'TOOLE, first cousin to the great King Fion of that name. Can the Recorder throw any light upon this mystery? It surely occurred subsequent to his quarrel with the party most interested in its suppression. Judge RUSSELL declares that he "cannot ruin himself" by consenting to WHITTER's appointment; but his HONOR and the "Historian" between them can pretty much coerce the Judge into doing whatever they please; and thereby, and in connection with the late removals and appointments, hangs a most astonishing tale which will be wagged in the public face the very day after the new Police Bill gets fairly into operation. FISHER WEEKS must have got some hint of this, for in no other way can his conduct be accounted for.

ROW BETWEEN HIS HONOR AND THE RECORDER—MONEY LEVIED ON POLICE.

Speaking of the row between his Honor and the Recorder, it arose in the first place from the latter's resisting on the appointment of Capt. TUOMY, of the Nineteenth Ward, complicated by a breach of faith on his Honor's part, as to a certain carte blanche for the operation of the police guillotine, signed by Mr. SMITH, in return for a promise of the Mayoralty, when his Honor was aspiring to be, and confident of being, Governor—a scheme for the disappointment of which may the ashes of LORENZO B. SHEPARD rest in peace! SMITH signed a power of attorney before leaving town, enabling his Honor (?) to vote for him by proxy at the Board—thus overruling Judge CARDOZO's vote, and making Wood a veritable autocrat. It was under this, and contrary to a verbal stipulation that no police captains should be meddled with until the Recorder's return, that the Mayor coerced CAPRON, by the promise of some minor appointments, to remove Captains WALLING and HANNIGAN, of the Eighteenth and Twentieth Wards—two officers, strange to say, against whom no charges had ever been made, replacing them with Messrs. JOYCE and WIKOFF, who have since evinced their gratitude in many practical forms.

Then followed the grand banquet to all the Captains at his Honor's house out of town; and next morning, at muster roll, these "favored guests" produced each a subscription-paper for the expenses of their entertainer's reelection—his Honor having lost the Governorship, and therefore breaking his promises to J. M. SMITH, ex-Congressman TWEED and Mr. GREENE, President of the Board of Education, to each and all of whom he had solemnly sworn to "give" the derelict Mayoralty—we citizens, of course, having nothing to do but to vote as his Honor's Nominating Committee should appoint. The Captains subscribed from $15 to $25 a-piece; and the men had to follow suit in order to save themselves from a "black mark" on his Honor's list. A complaint, no matter how trivial, was equivalent to a dismissal of any officer so "made a note of"—and complaints against these became wonderfully and curiously frequent. One recusant in the Second Ward, was kept on duty for twenty four consecutive hours, to open his eyes to the ingratitude and want of appreciation displayed in his refusal; others were eliminated and weeded out by a more summary process, and the upshot of that al fresco entertainment was, that between $8,500 and $10,000 were collected within a week, (Capt. WHITTER's contribution being peculiarly heavy) and the Mayor, receiving money from his creatures, became bound on his Honor's honor to support them.

EMIGRANT RUNNERS AND TICKET SWINDLERS—MONEY LEVIED ON OTHER PARTIES.

But the Police were not alone in their submission to this tax, as we shall now make a note of two specimen circumstances, giving a further insight into the sources from which the party funds have been drawn. Justice CONOLLY about ten days ago applied to the Mayor for policemen to stand before the doors of the emigrant running and swindling offices—so ably exposed in your paper—for the purpose of enforcing verbally your printed and published caution. But his Honor who leans to the journalistic side of Parker Vein and Potosi, either did not wish to let your influence or public opinion be felt, or may have feared that the runners and emigrant shoulder-hitters, knew a good deal too much about that "Traveling Committee of five hundred," who, at last election, contested by the multiplicity of their votes, in all Wards where the Inspectors were safe, the laurels won by the swords of the three hundred at Thermopylæ. From whatever reason, certain only is it, that he refused Justice CONOLLY's request with an angry caution to beware of interference with the most active and trustworthy politicians of the City; and so, as the runners have been let alone, we must fall back on our friend JOHN EGAN, of the Nineteenth Ward, who knows all about the said Five Hundred and their connection with the "snow-flakes"—and who has grown so angry of late at a certain disappointment that he threatens to speak right out in meeting. You will remember, also, that when the ruffians, PETTY and HANLEY, had been given the wink by his Honor's sergeant-nephew, that the Recorder had issued his warrant against them for their murderous assaults on all citizens who attempted to approach the polls of the First Ward with any other than "the right Mayoralty ticket" in their hands,—on that occasion, the Mayor flinging all pretence of law to the winds, allowed the ruffians to go at large again and return to their work on no other valid security or main prize than JOHN E. ENRIGHT's "word of honor" for their appearance when called for. As this ENRIGHT is and has been for years the most notorious ticket and policy swindler in the City, the Sheriff entertains some not unjustifiable fears that the forfeited recognizances (PETTY and HANLEY having of course absconded to spend the earnings of that day in security) may be difficult of collection.

BOOZING KENS AND BROTHELS—MONEY AND INFLUENCE BOTH.

That case will do for the emigrant runners and swindlers;—now turn to another class. A reprobate called DAWSON keeps a brothel and boozing ken, both of the worst description, and in the Fourth Ward; he is an active politician on "the right side," and has been complained of more frequently than any other villian of his class. SMITH held him in $1,000 on one of these charges—all previous complaints having been mysteriously quashed—and sent for policemen in the neighborhood to obtain further evidence against the house, but he might as well have asked the bleating lambs that browsed for their graminiverous ideas of the internal politica economy of Borrah-boolah-gah. The police of the Ward became suddenly seized with the profoundest silence and ignorance; and when another charge against this DAWSON, for having nearly murdered a man with a slung-shot, was brought up before the City Judge—that luminous authority who condemned two non-political citizens to States Prison, for having attempted to rob a man of sixpence who had not one, and knocking the said man down when he was too drunk to stand—the City Judge, I say, in that summary fashion, praised by the Herald as "practical justice," interrupted the proceedings to discharge the man, and say we would'nt believe one word that the (uncontradicted) had sworn against him. DAWSON now boasts that he "don't care a d—n for the complaint-charge," as he will postpone it until he can get before the same magistrate, and then, he hopes that his political "faith" may save him. Keep your eye on the case, and bear in mind that a policeman of the Ward called on complainant's attorney, and stated that he (the policeman) could get $100 the day the case was dismissed—thereby intending to imply, as said attorney thinks, "how much might not you get for allowing the affair to drop?"

"Upon the dewy herbage of Hermon's Holy Hill,"

WHAT HIS HONOR DOES FOR THE POLICE WHO DO SO MUCH FOR HIM.

Take another case—or one or two of them of a different class, and let them be read as a commentary on the new Police Bill. A herculean policeman and machiavellian politician called Duffy, of the Fourth Ward, was dismissed for habitual drunkenness after a stock of complaints had been on file against him. About a month ago, a man came before the Recorder with his head all bloody and bandaged—the parts bended the outrageous riot; and the captain, to show its

LAW INTELLIGENCE.

THE BURDELL ESTATE.

Investigation as to the alleged Marriage of Dr. Burdell and Mrs. Cunningham—Proceedings before the Surrogate.

FRIDAY, April 17.

The case against the claimant was resumed this morning in presence of an undiminished audience.

Mr. Samuel W. Parmlee was cross-examined at considerable length and with great minuteness, by the counsel for the claimant. In reply to Mr. Clinton's interrogatories, he stated that he had known Dr. Burdell by sight for, he thought, more than the last fifteen years, and had been on speaking terms with him, so far as to speak to him whenever they accidentally met; but he had never visited him, nor had he (the deceased) ever visited the witness; in fact, he (Dr. Parmlee) had the strong est prejudices against the man always, and had no respect for him whatever; for several years before Dr Burdell moved to Bond-street, and during the three or four years that he resided there the witness was on speaking terms with him, and met him frequently both on the street and at other places, for instance, at meetings of the Medical Society—but never particularly noticed his carriage or manner within doors; witness took him and saluted him almost daily during the past year; so far as he observed, the color of Dr. Burdell's whiskers during the past year was decidedly grey; he considered black, but somewhat grey; he noticed no change in them except when he saw the corpse; the beard was then black; he could not say that he has noticed whether the deceased had side whiskers during the last year or not; he had seen him both with and without them; neither could he say positively as to whether he had moustaches, though he knew he had at the time of his death; all witness knew about was as to the hair about the face; never considered that he (the deceased) dressed very much, but he was round-shouldered; thought he never saw him hold his head very low, save on one occasion, and that was an unusual occasion; it was the morning before his death, and his head was so low that when the witness recognised him and addressed him he did not observe him; witness thought, however, that the deceased naturally inclined a little forward.

He generally walked as if he was out on some business and anxious to get along as fast as he could; witness generally met him in the morning before eight o'clock, and in the afternoon after four; they frequently met between four o'clock and ten, when out on the evening; during the inquest witness was out and in Bond-street No. 31 Bond street frequently; he thought he had been out and in every day, but not to remain long at a time after the second or third day; witness did not meet Mr. Marvine and accompanied him to the house, he engaged in conversation with that gentleman previous to leaving the house No. 31 Bond-street; Mr. Marvine told the other the reason for his wish to see Burdell, and after waiting some time for the Coroner's Deputy, who was to go with them, they eventually departed under the escort of that officer, and he (the Deputy) with others walked on and left Mr. Marvine and witness behind, somewhere in the Bowery; Mr. Marvine had with him an acquaintance whom he addressed as Judge, and whose name witness believed (when mentioned to him by counsel) was Bowen.

Witness thought it barely possible for him to misremember any of the conversation between Mr. Marvine and himself on that occasion; he thought he had a very distinct recollection of it, because it was upon what Mr. Marvine had said that he depended; Mr. Marvine's remarks were addressed both to witness and the Judge, and witness thought he meant to be heard alsomuch by the one as by the other; in reference to the distance at which from the second story, front room, of his house No. 30 Bond street, he could see and recognise a person in the front room of the third story of the house No. 31 Bond-street, witness thought he could see a person very discinctly at the distance of one foot from the window of the latter house, and if he were examining an individual whose appearance he was familiar with, he could recognise him at the distance of two feet from the window; he believed that the stories of his house, (No. 30 Bond-street,) were at least two feet higher than the stories of the house No. 31 Bond; it was not his custom to look into his neighbor's bedroom to see children whom he was unacquainted, and he thought that, if it were proper, he could give a good reason why he did take an interest in them in this instance.

Before the witness being pressed by the counsel as to his reason for so taking such interest in little boys, became so affected, from the memory of some domestic calamity, that he was obliged to turn from the audience to conceal his tears, and sobbed heavily. Many of the persons present were so touched with the affecting picture the witness at that moment presented, as to join him in giving full expression. The counsel apologised, however, and when the witness had sufficiently recovered, resumed his examination.

Mr. Bixbee then produced his book of appointments, from which it appeared that he had an appointment for 4, P. M., on the 28th of October. He had generally left town at 3 o'clock in order to catch the train which left at half-past three, and he generally took 20 minutes to go from his house to the train. He never made an appointment for 5 o'clock (unless it was one which he knew he could dispose of in one or two minutes), without he wanted to go home in that train; on that particular occasion he believed he left here at 6 o'clock or thereabouts, to go to his country seat, which was in Summit, New-Jersey; at all events he left between 5 and 6 o'clock; to the best of his judgment it was before sun-down. The witness adhered to his statement that it was on that day (the 28th of October) that he saw the man at the window of the house No. 31 Bond-street; and he asserted that the newspapers were wrong in saying that the second time he saw the man in the opposite window, (which was either when the witness was standing on the door-sill, going out or when he was going down the steps,) that the man was dressed; he was still in his shirt; from this time he first saw the man when he (witness) was in his bedroom until he next saw him, which was when he (witness) was going away, only three or four minutes could have elapsed; and he believed it was the same man still, though if he had known that there were two lodgers there, it would have shaken his belief considerably. The witness stated further that as to the change which had occurred in the appearance of the person whom he saw standing at the window of No. 31 Bond-street, between his first glance at him from his (witnesses') own bedroom window, and his second look at him, when he (witness) was going out, he could only speak comparatively; that is, he could not describe the size of that person's beard, whiskers, or hair, when first seen by him, but could only say that his beard, whiskers and hair, as seen on the second view, were considerably enlarged, as compared with his appearance on the first view.

The counsel for the claimant, after examing the witnesses' appointment book, put in avidence a number of entries therein for the months of November October and August, in which the times set down were three, a quarter past three, or half-past three in the afternoon.

In reply to some queries of the Surrogate, the witness stated that he had seen Mr. ECKEL in prison, that he did not recognize him as the man he had seen in the third story front room of the house 31 Bond street, on the 28th October; and that it was his impression that ECKEL was the man he had seen there on the 10th December. The next witness examined was Mr. EDWARD J. MUNSTEN, a Justice of the Peace of Herkimer County, and formerly a deputy in the County Clerk's office. He testified that he had known Dr. HARVEY BURDELL for a number of years, and that he saw him (BURDELL) in Herkimer on the afternoon of Saturday, Sunday and Monday, the 25th, 26th and 27th of last October. On his cross-examination the witness stated that he had neither conversed with Dr. BURDELL, nor had any sign of recognition passed between them on that occasion.

Henry Moore, a policeman of the Fifteenth Ward, was then sworn and examined. He testified to his having been called into the house No. 31 Bond-street, during the month of September last, by Dr. Burdell, who charged Mrs. Cunningham with stealing out of his pants pocket, when he was lying on the sofa, a note for $640; that Mrs. Cunningham, when charged with the offence, declared in a loud tone of voice that she was his (Burdell's) wife; and that he (witness) informed the Doctor that he could do nothing for him.

The evidence of this witness was substantially the same as that given by him before the Coroner, which has already been published at length in this paper.

John Littell, sworn, examined by Mr Tilden—Is now and has been attached to the Police for over six years; he called on Dr. Burdell last September; a colored boy came for him and asked him to go to the Doctor's house; officer Davis, Mrs. Cunningham and the Doctor were there; Dr. Burdell accused Mrs. Cunningham of stealing a note from him; he said she took the key of the safe from his pocket while he was asleep; witness told the Doctor he could do nothing in the matter, and that the Doctor must get a search warrant; Mrs. Cunningham said that the Doctor had injured her; that she was his wife by every tie; she seemed to be excited, and touched him on the shoulder; witness advised them not to make their difficulties public, but to settle them between themselves; if they could not do that, to call in a mutual friend; Dr. Burdell then opened the folding-doors and called in a tall gentleman; Mrs. Cunningham said as the gentleman was a friend of the Doctor's she would have nothing to do with him; officer Davis and myself then left the house.

Cross-examination by Mr. Dean—Officer Davis was in the room when he entered; since his examination before the Coroner, he had ascertained that it was not Mrs. Cunningham who sent for him; when he entered the room both the Doctor and Mrs. C. seemed to be excited; she put her hand on the Doctor as if to strike him if he appeared to him: when she made the remark that she was the Doctor's wife by every tie, the Doctor replied that she had been seen with men in a house of assignation; she then stated that he had up stairs instruments for producing abortion, when he retorted that if he had them there she had used them; Dr. Stryker was the name of the tall gentleman who entered the room; witness was not in the house more than ten minutes.

Dr. Adam T. Smith, who seemed much disinclined to give his testimony, spoke in a scarcely audible tone, keeping his hand over his mouth, and inveriably, when replying to an interrogatory, averted his face from the audience, was next examined—He testified that he was a partial partner of the Doctor up to the time of his decease; Dr. Burdell had told him of Mrs. Cunningham having taken a key from his pocket while he slept, and having opened his safe and taken a note therefrom; the conversation, he thought, took place in September, at the house No. 31 Bond street; he believed that Dr. Burdell was absent from the City on the 28th of October; the Doctor called him up to his room on the Tuesday or Wednesday before his death, and showed him a paper which purported to be a general release and agreement on the part of Mrs. Cunningham to leave the room on the 1st of May; the Doctor then said that Mrs. C. and Eckel had been occupying one room, that he was positive of that, and was determined to get her out of the house before the 1st of May. (Witness here examined the paper and said he should judge it to be the same shown him by Dr. Burdell.) The Doctor showed him another paper and a note which he appeared to value, and said he should deposit in the bank; the Doctor compared the signatures of all the papers closely, and wondered if that to the release could be a forgery; witness expressed the opinion that they were all written by the same person; some two years ago he had been in partnership with Dr. Burdell but dissolved; he went into business with him again.

Cross examined by Mr. Clinton—The Doctor had charged him with violating his (the Doctor's) bed, by producing an abortion on somebody, but he never could find out to woom allusion was made; Mrs. Cunningham had made this charge against him, as he had learned, through the Doctor, but he had not taken much notice of it, and had not entertained any vindictive feelings against Mrs. Cunningham, in consequence; he had no recollection of being refused the key of the Doctor's room, while he was absent in the country; he had no recollection of Dr. Burdell's telling him that he would get a divorce for Demlet Hubbard, from her husband; somebody had spoken to him of the lady, but who he could not say; he himself had never seen Miss Hubbard; two years ago he had heard of her, and that she lived with the Doctor, and that was all he knew about her; he had known Dr. Blaisdell about four years; he had not seen him very little for some two or three months, and had never spoken to him of Dr. Burdell's affairs; had only seen Dr. Blaisdell at Dr. Burdell's house two or three times since September last to the time of the murder; he had not testified before the Coroner that Dr. Burdell told him that Mrs. Cunningham and Eckel occupied the same room; the body of the writing in the release he thought was Dr. Burdell's handwriting; he had not heard that it was the intention of Dr. Burdell to go to Europe in July; at the time he showed me the release, and other papers, he asked him if he thought the signatures were counterfeit, and he told him that all were evidently written by one person; he could not swear that the Doctor was out of town on the 28th of October, but it was his impression that he was.

The Court adjourned to 10 o'clock this morning.

The Coroner Connery Case.

THE CASE CLOSED FOR THE PROSECUTION.

Dr. George F. Woodward was the first witness sworn. He stated that he was a physician, 31 years of age, and resided at No. 2 Irving place.

Q. During the inquest on the body of Dr. Burdell did you receive any orders or directions from Coroner Connery in respect of an examination of the person of Mrs. Cunningham. If so, please state what it was.—A. I did. I was requested by Dr. Connery to make an examination of the persons of Mr. Eckel, Mr. Snodgrass and Mrs. Cunningham, for the purpose of ascertaining if there were any marks of violence, bruises or scratches, or blood. I can't remember his words exactly. I think the Coroner said their heads, chests and arms, and so on. He added nothing to that that I can recollect. This was said some time on the morning of the Monday immediately following the murder, at 31 Bond-street.

Q.—Did you make such examination? A.—I did, Sir.

Q.—When, where, in whose presence and in what manner?

(Objected to by Mr. Jordan, unless the Coroner was present, or unless in accordence with his special direction. Question allowed.)

The Court instructed the witness to state merely what was done in pursuance of the direction or order of the Coroner; and nothing beyond that. If anything was done beyond that it must not be stated.

The witness answered: When I received the direction from the Coroner, I examined Mr. Eckel and Mr. Snodgrass in the little hall room on the second floor, in the presence of a policeman; I examined their entire persons; Mrs. Cunningham I examined in what was called Mr. Eckel's room in the third story; I detailed a policeman as witness inside the door; there was a lady present, whose name I do not know, and the Deputy Coroner; I found the lady in the room and requested her to remain; there were no other persons present; I don't know why the Deputy was there; I then examined the person of Mrs. Cunningham, and that at her own particular request that it should be done thoroughly; I examined the upper part of her person, and then the lower part of her person; she having at the time the parts not under examination covered; after having expressed myself satisfied, she voluntarily took off her shoes and stockings, in order that I might see everything.

Q.—Did you make a report to the Coroner? A.—I did, Sir.

Q.—You have stated substantially that Mrs. Cunningham requested you to examine her thoroughly. Please state her words as near as you can? A.—She said, "I wish the examination to be thorough, for God knows I wish to do everything in my power to further the development of this murder;" that is, I think, nearly the language.

Cross-examined by Mr Jordan—Q.—How long and where have you practiced as a physician? A.—Seven or eight years, in the City of New-York; I am in partnership with Mr. James R. Ward.

Capt. George W. Dilks, sworn—He was examined as to detention of witnesses; the orders of the Coroner, &c.; he said he was Captain of the Fifteenth Police District of thie City.

Q.—Did Coroner Connery give you any direction or order respecting the admission of the counsel of Mrs. Cunningham, Mr. Eckel or Mr. Snodgrass, to heve interviews with them, or either of them, at Bond-street?

A.—He did.

Q.—Please state them as precisely as you can? A.—The Coroner told me not to permit any person to have conversation with Mrs. Cunningham, Eckel, or Snodgrass, unless he were present; Mr. Clinton, the counsel for Mrs. Cunningham, made application to see the parties, after the coroner gave me the order; I spoke to the Coroner about it and he said they could see the parties provided he was present. The same thing applies to Mr. Thayer, the other counsel.

Q.—Was this last remark of the Coroner in presence of Mr. Clinton and Mr. Theyer, and if so, did they make any reply? A.—They did; but I can't remember precisely what they said; this was said in presence of the Jury; the Jury—(interrupted by Assistant District-Attorney.)

Q.—Did the Coroner give you any direction in respect to the detention of the witnesses to be examined? A.—He did; for the first two or three days there was a hack room on the second floor for the detention of witnesses, and after that the front basement; the witnesses were all kept there until they were examined: some of them were detained in the Station-Heuse at night, after the Jury had got through for the day, and the others were permitted to go home; I can't exactly remember his words, but he directed all witnesses who presented their subpœnas to go in the room, and of course they could not go out without permission from the Coroner, until they had been examined; there was an officer placed in charge of the door to prevent their going out; this was also done with one or two witnesses who were not supenaed, who had volunteered.

Q.—Were not such persons detained after they had been examined. A.—They were not.

Q.—Do you know if the witnesses detained at the Station-house were so detained at their own request, or by order of the Coroer? A.—At the order of the Coroner; some of them only two nights; hnt Hannah, the cook, and Mary Donahue were detained several nights because their testimony was not complete.

Q.—Was any order given by the Coroner to you respecting the admission of Dr. Uhl to see Mrs. Cunningham. A.—Well, I was present when Dr. Uhl said he heard Mrs. Cunningham was sick, and wanted to see him. The Coroner said he would send any of the physicians there, except Dr. Uhl, he could some person had carried information to Mrs. Cunningham. For that reason he preferred that Dr. Uhl would not see her—he being an intimate friend of the family.

Q.—Did you receive any warrant or commitment for Mrs. Cunningham, Eckel or Snodgrass, and if so, at what time and place? (Objected to; question allowed.) A.—I did; after the rendition of the verdict by the Coroner's Jury—not before that time.

Cross-examined by Mr, Jordan. What, if anything, did the Jury do or say when the Coroner told Messrs. Clinton and Thayer, or said in their presence they could see Mrs. Cunningham if ha, the Coroner, was present? A.—The Jury, generally, objected; Mr. Fountain, one of the Jurors, thought it would be improper to permit the counsel to see her; that was the purport of his language; several other jurors made similar expressions.

Q.—Were these objections made by the Jury before the Coroner made that statement to the counsel? A.—Well, I think it was after; there was a general conversation at that time between Mr. Clinton, the Coroner and the Jury; they were all standing.

Q.—(By Mr. Warring)—Were there other physicians at the house when Dr. Uhl was refused admittance in the manner you have stated? (Objected to; question allowed.) A.—There were half a dozen.

Q.—Do you know that Mr. Clinton and Mr. Thayer had had an opportunity of consulting with Mrs. Cunningham before the order of the Coroner? A.—Once they obtained entrance to the room where Mrs. Cunningham was, and information was given to some of the Jury, who informed the Coroner; then I was ordered to eject them immediately; whether that was before or after tha order, I can't say positively; my impression is, it was after the order had been given.

Q.—About how many times did you see Mr. Clinton or Mr. Thayer at the house No. 31 Bond-street previous to the Coroner's order that they be excluded as you have above testified? A.—I can't remember; I think more than once.

Q.—Did any of the witnesses so confined, as above stated by you, make any complaint at the time to the Coroner in your presence, on hearing of such restraint? A.—They did; Mr. Fraser complained; he was confined one day, from about ten o'clock A. M., to about sunset, previous to his examination; he was examined that day; the Coroner was busy examining others; he was complaining all day.

Assistant District Attorney (laughing)—I think he has been complaining ever since, too.

Q.—Did he complain to the Coroner too? A.—Yes; the Coroner went up to where the witnesses were, when he complained to him.

Q.—Do you recollect what reply the Coroner made? A.—Yes, Sir; the Coroner told him he would be examined soon, and then he would be discharged; I think he was subpœnaed, but I can't say positively.

Q.—Did or not the Coroner direct you to give every facility and accommodation to Mrs. Cunningham and family, consistent with her detention in the house No. 31 Bond-street? A.—He did.

Direct resumed—Q.—Did Mr. Stafford or Mr. apply to the Coroner in your presence, to be admitted to see Mr. Eckel, as his counsel? A.—They made application, but I don't know that it was as his counsel; Mr. Ely I know did not apply as counsel. I don't recollect that Mr. Stafford stated that he was his counsel in presence of the Coroner.

The Assistant District Attorney here stated that he had no more witnesses.

Mr. Warring stated that they would be prepared to proceed on the part of the Coroner on Wednesday next; and the case was adjourned to that day.

SUPERIOR COURT—SPECIAL TERM.

Before Hon. Justice Hoffman.

The People of the State of Michigan vs. The Phenix Bank of New-York.—In the year 1837 the State of Michigan authorized a loan of $5,000,000, and empowered the then Governor, Stevens T. Mason, to issue State Bonds, and to sell them from time to time as the money was needed. Gov. Mason employed John Delafield, of this City, as his agent for the purpose of selling these bonds. He failed, however, to dispose of them in this City, but agreed with Gov. Mason to advance, personally, the sum of $150,000 for the immediate wants of the State.

Under this pledge Mason drew drafts on Delafield to the amount of $150,000. In the course of the same year these drafts were dishonored, and John Norton, Jr., Cashier of the Michigan State Bank, at Detroit, who held one of the drafts, repaired to New-York to obtain payment. He brought with him a private letter from Gov. Mason, dated 24th February, 1836, addressed to Mr. Delafield, in which the writer says that Norton is his particular friend, fiscal agent of the State, and Cashier of the Michigan State Bank; that he is anxious to command funds to redeem Michigan notes in the New-York market, and remarks to Mr. Delafield that if he has received funds on the State bonds in his possession, he may transfer to Norton $50,000 or $100,000, taking Norton's certificate of deposit, as Cashier of the Michigan State Bank.

Mr. Delafield, however, had received nothing upon the bonds, and was induced to deliver to Norton two drafts for the above purpose; one for $8,500 on the Farmers' and Mechanics' Bank, at Detroit, and the other for $7,900 on the Bank of the River Raisin, at Norval, Mich., both drawn by the Phenix Bank. Norton received these drafts, carried them to Detroit, and in the following September or October collected the larger one, but the smaller one was never collected.

In March, 1840, the Phenix Bank countermanded the smaller draft, that on the Bank of the River Raisin, by letter to its cashier. In the Summer of the same year, the Phenix Bank empowered an agent to settle both branches of the claim either with the State or any other party. The Agent, in the Fall of that year, collected the full amount of the fund against which the draft for $7,900 was drawn by taking assignments of various descriptions of property from the Bank of the River Raisin, and the full amount of the draft for $8,500, (which had been collected from the drawee, by Norton, as cashier of the State Bank, as mentioned above,) by accepting from the State Bank a deed of about 2,500 acres of land lying in Saginaw County, Mich. This deed was given to the agent in trust for the State of Michigan or the Phenix Bank, "whichever should assume the debt thereby settled."

Nothing further was done in the matter until 1850, when the Phenix Bank demanded of its agent a quit claim deed of the lands given him in trust, which he accordingly made and delivered. When the agent settled the two branches of the claim, as before stated, he gave receipts in full for each of them.

In the Spring of 1854 the Phenix Bank, through its Attorney at Detroit, presented to the Board of State Auditors of Michigan a claim, in which payment in cash was demanded from the State of the whole amount of the two drafts and interest thereon. The Bank represented to the Board that the claim was wholly unpaid, and that it had never been settled in whole or in part by any party. In December, 1854, a few days before the Board of State Auditors went out of office, they allowed this claim to the Phenix Bank, the whole amounting to $35,603 74.

The facts of the above settlements did not become known to the State authorities until the Spring of 1856, after a new Administration had entered upon its duties. After a full investigation, Jacob M. Howard, the present Attorney-General of the State, felt it his duty to bring this suit against the bank to compel it to refund the amount which it had thus obtained from the State Treasury.

The defence has as yet but partially developed, but it appears to be based upon two grounds: First, that the present Phenix Bank, although admitted to be the assignee of the claim and to have received the money on it, is not the same corporation as the old Phenix Bank, with whom the claim originated, the charter of the former bank having expired, and the present one becoming its successor under the General Banking Law. Second, that the attorney and counsel of the bank who made the settlement with the River Raisin and Michigan State Banks was either not fully authorized so to do in the mode in which it was done, or that, if so authorized or his acts ratified, the facts were known to the State when the money was paid, and that it was therefore a voluntary payment which concluded the State.

The case will occupy some days longer. It is one of interest, inasmuch as it involves serious charges against prominent persons both here and in Michigan. These charges were brought up in the late canvass against Mr. LOTHROP, who ran for Congress against WM. A. HOWARD, Esq., one of the late Kansas Committee.

For plaintiffs J. L. Jernegan and J. M. Howard, Attorney General of Michigan. For defendants, Edgar S. Van Winkle and F. B. Cutting.

COURT OF GENERAL SESSIONS.

Before Hon. Recorder Smith.

THE HARTLEY CASE—THE WOMAN CONVICTED.

The woman calling herself Mary Hartley, the reputed wife of James Hartley, who was convicted on Thursday of robbing a man named Reddigan of a pocket-book containing $74, in a room of a house in Cow Bay, under circumstances of peculiar aggravation, was yesterday placed upon trial. It will be remembered that Reddigan was invited into the room to drink by a woman named Fitzgerald, and that while handing a twenty-five cent piece to his woman to purchase some more liquor, he dropped his pocket-book on the floor, which the man Hartley immediately seized, gave to his wife, (so-called,) who ran off with it, while he, after a tussle with Reddigan, made his escape by a window. He was sentenced on Thursday to five years in the State prison. As we stated yesterday, he was lately set at large by the Recorder, after pleading guilty of manslaughter. He alleged that the man whom he killed was caught by him in the act of criminal intercourse with his wife—the same woman tried yesterday.

The Recorder, believing his story, judged him unaccountable for an act committed in the heat of passion, which under the circumstances would have been almost justifiable, and accordingly dismissed him. There can be little doubt now, that the unfortunate man was inveigled by the woman into the room where the body was found,—and than robbed and murdered.

For her share in the robbery of Reddigan, on Monday last, this woman was tried and convicted yesterday on nearly the same evidence as that which convicted Hartley. The mother of Hartley, a respectable woman, overpowered with grief, was an additional witness. She exhibited a stocking, which she said the prisoner had brought to her house, containing $60 of the $74 stolen. Her son, on Monday, burst into her room without his coat, in a panting, alarmed condition, and was immediately followed by the woman with the stocking and money aforesaid.

An earnest attempt was made, by counsel, to show that the prisoner was married to Hartley, and, as his wife, was supposed, in law, to act under his directions, and was therefore not amenable to justice. It was shown, however, that she was reputed, for five years past, to be the wife of a man named Ellis, who was seen alive as late as last Christmas, and there was no real evidence of her marriage to Hartley. The Recorder charged the Jury to that effect, and, on their returning a verdict of Guilty, he sentenced the prisoner to five years in the State Prison, observing that she was well known to the Police, as one of the most abandoned characters in the community.

GRAND LARCENY.

A man named Edward Guyer was convicted of stealing from Mr. Frederic Olsen, No. 86 Pike-street, a magnifying glass, a hat and other articles to the value of $30. The Jury mercifully estimated the value of the stolen goods at a few dollars less than that sum, and returned a verdict of guilty of petit larceny only. Sentence, six months in the Penitentiary.

CHARGE OF STEALING WHEAT FROM A LIGHTER—NOT PROVED.

Dewitt Pickett, a lighterman, was charged with stealing a quantity of wheat from the boat Fulton, at Pier No. 2, East River, on the night of Jan. 14. A vessel called the Silas Holmes, laden with wheat, consigned to the firm of Starling, McCulloch & Co., arrived from New-Orleans about that time, and a man named Coddington, was employed by a Mr. Clough, on behalf of the above firm, to have her unloaded. For that purpose the boat Fulton was engaged, and it was while so employed that the wheat was said to have been taken from her and transported to another boat, the J. A. Case. The principal witness was a man named Grady, who was himself arrested for stealing wheat, and whose statements were unreliable. The Recorder told the Jury there was not sufficient testimony to proceed with the case, and Mr. Pickett was therefore acquitted.

$500 REWARD.—PROCLAMATION.—I, FERNANDO WOOD, Mayor of the City of New-York, by virtue of authority vested in me by law, do hereby offer a reward of five hundred dollars for the arrest and conviction of the person or persons who murdered STEPHEN P. HARDENBROOK, a member of the Police Department of this City, while in the act of arresting two burglars on the morning of Wednesday, April 15, 1857, in the vicinity of No. 336 West-st., Ninth Ward. Said reward to be paid on the conviction of the offender or offenders, on the certificate of the District-Attorney that said conviction was had upon the testimony of the party claiming the same, but all claims for said reward not presented within twenty days thereafter will be disregarded. Witness my hand and seal of Mayoralty, this 17th day of April, 1857. FERNANDO WOOD, Mayor.

RELIGIOUS NOTICES.

☞ The Mormon and Romish Claims to Infallibility Equally absurd.—Rev. Dr. MCILVAINE and his coadjutors of various evangelical churches, cordially invite the friends of Bible truth to cooperate with them in carrying on the combined but hitherto inadequately sustained efforts to promote the Gospel cause in the face of much opposition from its powerful enemies. The Sabbath Evening meetings, conducted on the Apostolic plan, and which are attended by crowds, consisting of both Protestants and Romanists, may be considered as the consummation of the labors of each week, and these alone have commanded themselves to many Christian visitors as highly calculated, under the Divine blessing, to arrest the progress of error and to inspire a love for the truth, as it is in Christ Jesus. Services TO-MORROW EVENING, in the Mission Church, 20th st., between 1st and 2d ave., to which all are invited; will commence at the usual hour, 7 o'clock.

☞ Dedication.—The house of worship recently completed by the Society of the South Congregational Church, corner of Court and President sts. South Brooklyn, will be dedicated TO-MORROW, with appropriate exercises. Preaching by the pastor, Rev. EUTUS W. CLARK. Services 10½ A. M. and 7½ P. M. The public are invited to attend. The house will be open on Monday evening, 20th inst, for the renting of pews for the ensuing year, from May 1.

☞ Anniversary of S. S. Missionary Society of seventh-street M. E. Church.—Missionary Sermon at 10¾ A. M., by the Pastor, Rev. B. PILSBURY. Addresses to the Sabbath School at 2 P. M., by Rev. WM. LAWRENCE and Mr. CURTIS, Agent of the American Sunday School Union. Addresses at 7½ P. M., by Rev. ABEL STEVENS, LL. D., and Rev. PETER JACOBS, Indian Wesleyan Missionary from Canada. Missionary collection in the evening.

☞ The Last Sermon in the Mulberry-street M. E. Church, will be preached on the 19th inst., at 10¾ o'clock, A. M., by Rev. Dr. OSBON, in behalf of the Ladies Union Aid Society, for the relief of the aged and infirm. A collection will be taken to assist in defraying the expenses of their new building in 42d-st., near 8th-av., which will be dedicated by Bishop JAMES on the 27th inst., at 11 A. M. The public are cordially invited to attend both these services.

☞ Mulberry-street M. E. Church Sunday-School.—The farewell meeting of the Sunday-School of this Church (previous to removing to their new school-room, corner of 4th-av. and 22d-st.) will be held SUNDAY AFTERNOON, 19th inst., at 2 o'clock. Rev. LUTHER W. PECK and others will address the School. All the former officers, teachers, children and friends of the School are invited to attend.

☞ Messrs. J. R. Lederer, and Eph. M. Epselu, Christian Jews, invite their unchristian brethren to a free discussion of the subject—Christianity the only true Judaism. The meeting will be held SUNDAY EVENING, April 19, at 7½ o'clock, No. 106 Centre st., (opposite the Toombs.) Abundant opportunities will be afforded for objections, questions and answers to any one who may chose to do so. Please come with bibls in hand.

☞ Sermon by Rev. Peter Stryker—The fourth of a series of Sermons under the auspices of the American Juvenile Temperance Society, will be preached TO-MORROW, at 7½ o'clock P. M., in the Reformed Dutch Church, corner Broome and Green sts., by Rev. PETER STRYKER. Subject—Timothy, a Total Abstinence Man. A collection in aid of the Society will be taken.

☞ "Overturn! Overturn till He comes Whose Right it is to Reign."—Dr. JOHN THOMAS will lecture in Jefferson Assembly Hall, corner 6th and Greenwich ave., TO-MORROW MORNING, at 10½ o'clock. Truth-seekers are affectionately invited to come—Bible in hand.

☞ Sullivan-street Methodist Episcopal Church—(Between Bleecker and Amity.) Rev. H. RYLAND, D. D., of Brooklyn, will preach TO-MORROW at 10½ A. M., and the Pastor Rev. WM. H. FERRIS, will deliver a discourse, (the second of the series,) on The Millenium, at 7½ P. M. Preaching also at 3 P. M.

Lesson.—The mountain forests of Pastoria are inhabited, it is said, by Pixies, Sprites and Elves, who, like the Phantom Dancers of Germady, delight to entrap travelers into their realms and torment them with their mischievous antics. Having the power of transferring the spirit, they often, in their malicious gambols, give life to the newly dead. Statues, rocks and trees are seen fantastically moving in the forest, but it is only during the DAY they retain their fictitious existence; at the approach of NIGHT they resume their insensibility.
THE MONEY QUESTION, by Dumas, fils, will be produced immediately.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

Up to the time of going to press with our First Edition, we had received no notice of the adjournment of the Legislature, although that event was expected to take place at any moment—the Assembly having notified the Senate of their readiness to dissolve. Legislation yesterday was characterized by apparently the same recklessness which has marked that of the few preceding days. Our report reaches us at so late an hour that comment in detail is impossible. The Assembly bill to amend the Banking Laws so as to prevent the accumulation of bills of country banks in the vaults of city banks, was passed by the Senate, and sent back to the Assembly to have some amendments concurred in. The bill was then put upon its final passage, and lost. Subsequently, however a reconsideration was moved, and it was voted through. The Excise bill has received the signature of the Governor, and is now a law. The bill, which passed through both Houses, to increase the fees of Justices of the Peace, provides for increasing the fees for issuing subpœnas to 10 cents instead of 6, gives 25 cents for issuing a summons instead of 9, 25 cents for an adjournment instead of 9, 50 cents for a trial fee, 20 cents for recording a jury's verdict, and reduces the fee for an oath from 6 cents to 5.

The United States steam-frigate Wabash, FREDERICK ENGLE, Lieut. Commanding, has received sailing orders, and will get under way from her anchorage off the Battery at 10 o'clock this morning. Her destination is Aspinwall. The Wabash is the flag-ship of the home squadron.

The engine of the Niagara is repaired, and she is to sail at 7 o'clock Monday morning.

Union and harmony have not yet been effected between the unterrified Democracy who worship at Tamany Hall, notwithstanding all the efforts made towards that end. The Regular and Reform factions are exerting all their powers to obtain control of the new Council, and last evening they held private meetings at different places to decide on their candidates for Sachems.

A very large meeting was held at the Westchester House, last evening, and EXPRESSED itself in favor of the "Reform Movement" projected some time since by the Sachems, and appointed a Committee to wait upon the Small meeting held at the Chinese Rooms. The factions couldn't come to terms, however, and so the matter stands.

At the Board of Councilmen, last night, a resolution to direct the Corporation Counsel to report as to the validity of the new Charter was laid over.

The Committee on the subject of a tunnel under Broadway met yesterday in the City Hall. A plan was submitted and examined. The proposal is to commence lowering Wall-street from Nassau, thus gaining about seventeen feet in deep cutting when Broadway is reached, under which is to be driven a tunnel, to be continuous with a lower level along Rector-street. Beyond the inspection of the plan nothing was done. Adjourned until Monday.

The investigation relative to the charges against Coroner CONNERY of improper conduct during the Burdell inquest, was continued, yesterday, before Judge DALY. Dr. WOODWARD and Captain DILKS were examined. The Doctor's testimony in relation to his examination of the person of Mrs. CUNNINGHAM, was such as to give an impression that there was nothing improper or unusual done. Captain DILKS testified in relation to the orders he received from the Coroner in relation to the detention of witnesses, to the effect that there was no restraint placed upon Mrs. CUNNINGHAM, or other witnesses, other than the peculiarities of the case seemed to require. The case for the prosecution is closed. The defence will be commenced on Wednesday next.

The examination into the alleged marriage of Mrs. CUNNINGHAM to Dr. BURDELL, was yesterday proceeded with before the SURROGATE. Four witnesses were examined, but their testimony discloses nothing but what was elicited at the "grand inquisition" of Coroner CONNERY.

In the Superior Court, before Hon. Justice HOFFMAN, the case of the People of the State of Michigan vs. The Phœnix Bank of New-York is on trial. The case is of some importance, both in a political and financial view, as it involves the character of several prominent persons, and affects some $150,000. The case will still occupy some days.

In the Court of General Sessions, yesterday, the woman HARTLEY, the reputed wife of JAMES HARTLEY, sentenced on Thursday, was tried for her share in the robbery of the man RADDIGAN, and speedily convicted. She was sentenced to five years in the State Prison, the same punishment allotted to her husband. Two of the worst characters in the City are thus removed.

The man calling himself SCRATCHARD, who was arrested on Thursday for an alleged conspiracy to effect the escape of HUNTINGDON, the forger, was further examined yesterday, but no material acts were elicited.

The funeral of STEPHEN P. HARDENBROOK, the policeman who was murdered by burglars, took place yesterday afternoon, from the Jane-street Church. A large number of policemen attended, in uniform, without their clubs. The body was interred in Greenwood Cemetery. The subscription lists circulating to raise money for the distressed widow and child of deceased meet with considerable success. A list has been left at the Station-houses.

The meeting held at Richmond, Staten Island, one evening this week, in opposition to the establishment of the Quarantine buildings at Seguine's Point, was said to be very enthusiastic; five hundred were present, and among the resolutions was one to burn any yellow fever establishment that might be erected there.

The Trouble with New-Granada.

In circumstances like those surrounding our relations with New-Granada, it is always safe to predict other than a violent result. They may afford a basis for loud-toned negotiation, truculent menace, or fierce demonstration; but they are clearly insufficient of themselves to support an appeal to the last resort of nations. The ultimatum of Mr. MORSE has been rejected. It has even been met with a counterclaim for indemnity. The special envoy has sought his home in disgust; the envoy extraordinary is understood to follow hard behind.

We have thus the elements of a very pretty quarrel, an orthodox casus belli, as clear as the worst of those disputes in regard to which the great European powers are apt to fall together by the ears. And yet there are so many dissuasives from a conflict upon any quarrel, less than one involving national existence, or independence, that we shall be excused from believing in the war until we hear the first cannonade.

Aside from the railroad and its collateral shipping interests, we have so many relations with New-Granada, strengthening and closing yearly, that a declaration of war must inflict equal injury upon both. The $400,000 demanded by Mr. MORSE, the refusal of which is the real provocation, is less than twenty per cent. of the actual profit, which our commercial traffic realizes yearly from uninterrupted intercourse with the ports of that State. Dismissing, therefore, the vaporish and indefinite considerations of national honor and vanity which befog the question, we have only to weigh the loss of a warlike adventure, against the profit of peaceful trade, to appreciate the impolicy of a reckless recourse to that appeal, so hostile to elevated civilization and so irreconcilable with the progressive spirit of the age. Economically and commercially speaking, we are less able to afford such a measure than New-Granada herself. We would lose more, we might gain less. If, in closing the war with a treaty, we insist upon more than the indemnity pressed by our agents as an ultimatum, with the expenses of the contest, perhaps, added, we shall depart from the well-established principles of our Government. Even that will not pay for suspended intercourse, impaired credit, and the injury inflicted upon an allied Republic, whose prosperity is so vital an element in the welfare of the United States. If we insist upon less it will be an admission that the war was trivial and gratuitous, or that we have had the worst of it, a dilemma either horn of which must gore us lamentably. There is no way of presenting the subject, indeed, which does not threaten us with serious mischief, immediate or eventual.

True, the actual odds and probabilities of warfare are largely in favor of the United States. To blockade the three ports of Santa Martha, Carthagena, and Savanilla, upon the Caribbean Sea would be the work of a month. Panama with its hive of cut-throats and cut-purses, might be "shelled" to ruins in less time. The transit route might be taken possession of; and the income derived by the Bogotan government from the railroad transferred to the interest account of our claim. Deprived of revenue from customs, upon which the government depends exclusively, there are no internal resources to draw upon in their place to prosecute the war. Every strategical point would be to the advantage of their foe. For the possession of the Isthmus there could not be the semblance of a contest. Without a marine, and with American ships guarding either extremity of the transit, it must be next to impossible to transport troops thither by water in numbers adequate to the exigencies of defence. By land the access, owing to the natural traits of the Isthmus, is practically out of the question. And if it were not, and if we might preconceive a pitched battle there between American and native armies, what other event than triumph have we reason to anticipate? The Spaniard, though of pure Castilian blood, was pronounced by WELLINGTON worse than worthless as a soldier: when intermixed, as in Spanish America, with effete Indian tribes and negroes, some still less respectful term of disparagement is deserved; he is what the Mexicans proved in their resistance to TAYLOR and SCOTT, or the Central Americans in their impotent opposition to WALKER, that pestilent intruder, whom disease and want, not human antagonism, seem destined to subdue. There can be no doubt, in short, about the result of a conflict between North and South Americans, in a strictly military sense; and as little in a commercial point of view. Regarding the latter as of greatly superior moment, we trust, that setting all private solicitation and urgence aside, the President will exhaust all the means of amicable adjustment, arbitration and mediation, or whatever else, before he recommends extreme measures.

The Police Commission.

We did not for a moment flatter ourselves with the hope of the Tribune's approbation, when we ventured to say—what we still think,—that in making up the Police Commission Governor KING had paid more regard to the interests of party than to the welfare of the City. We did indeed think that, in consideration of its recent ostentatious committal to the side of courtesy in the discussion of Editorial differences, we might escape the shower of damaging epithets which has hitherto been accustomed to follow the lightning of its wrath;—and as it now says nothing worse of our remarks than that they were "flippant," "pointless" and "disingenuous," we do not know that, upon the whole, our expectations in this respect have been disappointed. But the Tribune was originally in favor of the appointment by the State of a Police Commission for this City alone, and insisted strenuously, against the TIMES, upon the constitutionality of such an act:—when the Legislature had abandoned this policy and decided upon creating a State Police System, the Tribune opposed the appointment of a Commission for its government by State authority, on the ground that it was unconstitutional, and that the people of the City should be allowed to choose its members for themselves. The same consistency that prompted this course now evidently requires that it should insist upon having a partizan Commission appointed, in order to overbear the only members who are elected by the People.

It is true, as the Tribune urges, that the Mayors of New-York and Brooklyn are ex officio members of the Police Commission, and that its powers will, therefore, be shared by four Republicans, two Democrats, and one American. We have nothing to say of the fairness or justice of this division. It is quite possible, as the Tribune urges, that "at least four reliable men, of nerve and determination, are required" to offset these two desperate and determined Democrats.

But our objection to the Commission is to the principle which controlled its composition,—not to the division of its powers, and still less to the personal character of the men who are on it. It is a partizan Commission—filled with men who are known to the public mainly, if not exclusively, as party politicians. The fact that two ultra partizans were already ex officio members of it, was precisely the reason why the other members should have been men of a different stamp. The whole State has been made to ring with denunciations of Mayor WOOD as a party man. His control of the Police has been held up to public censure as an outrage upon the City and a degradation of the Department. And the head and front of his offence has been that as a Police Commissioner he was a party politician,—that party objects and party projects and party motives controlled his action,—and that to these considerations of political partisanship he sacrificed the independence and efficiency of the Police, the peace and order of the City and the general good of its inhabitants. We believed the charges to be just and we joined the great body of the People in urging a Reform. We demanded, as they did, a Police Department that should be held aloof from politics,—that should be controlled by men whose character and antecedents identified them with the interests, the honor, and the welfare of the City, and not with the selfish schemes and projects of political parties. We still insist that the people of the City were entitled to such a Commission, and that the successful and satisfactory operation of the new system absolutely requires the public confidence which cannot be secured by any other. Gov. KING should have appointed as the majority of that Commission "reliable men of nerve and determination,"—who would sternly overrule every attempt on the part of the ex officio members to prostitute its powers to party purposes, and hold it steadily and resolutely to the single aim of preserving the peace of the City and protecting the lives and property of its million of people. Instead of this he has added to the two partizans who were already members, four others—equally zealous, equally active, equally vigilant, equally efficient, though possibly less unscrupulous, in the promotion of party ends than they. It is a mockery of common sense to speak of this as the proper way of "arresting the partizan demoralization now going on in the Department." You might as well thrust half-a-dozen tigers into a cage of lions, for the purpose of "arresting" the demoralizing strife already going on for the spoils of office. They might conquer a peace,—but would scarcely become indifferent, during the progress of the contest, to the object which had caused it.

The power of the Police Commission rests wholly with the majority. To all practical intents and purposes the Commission consists of but four. And those four are known to the public mainly from their zeal and energy in the field of party politics. We shall not be understood as saying or implying that their abilities fit them for nothing beyond this sphere,—for the fact is far otherwise. But their reputation has been acquired in that. It was their service there, and there alone, which marked them for this appointment, and it was the distinction therein acquired by which they are known to and judged by the public. The great body of the people, therefore, will look upon this Commission as organized under the new law, as solely and exclusively a party machine,—as the instrument by which the party now largely in the minority in this City hopes and aims to obtain possession of the City Government. This of itself we regard as a great calamity. It deprives the Commission of what at the onset it needs most—the confidence of the public. It will embarrass its action and stand permanently in the way of its highest and best utility. And no portion of our people have greater reason to regret this result than those who have favored the new system, in the hope that it would relieve us from the curse of a Partizan Police.

A Pleasant Paragraph.

From the Albany Evening Journal.

On Sunday night two members of the Legislature, one representing the City of New-York, and the other in Northern County, both stopping at the Congress Hall, enticed a colored boy, named LEVI JOHNSON, who is employed as a hall-boy, to enter their room. "Just for fun" they wished to make the boy drink. He refused to drink. They insisted that he should. He still refused, whereupon they took him by the neck, threw him on the floor, and forced the liquor down his throat. Not satisfied with this, they shaved about six inches of hair off his head. He looked after the operation like the pictures of the Evil One, as representing his Satanic Majesty. This may have been fun to them for the moment, but it was not so to JOHNSON, for he on Monday came before Justice COLE and obtained a warrant. It was placed in the hands of officer TERLIN, but before the precept was served, through the intervention of friends, the matter was adjusted by each paying Johnson $5. He is guilty of a great wrong in compromising the matter and not allowing the perpetrators of this gross wrong to be brought to justice.

The first thing that challenges attention in this paragraph is the remarkably free and easy way in which the Journal saddles this colored victim of legislative vivacity with the responsibility of defeating the ends of justice. Such assaults as those here recorded are criminal acts, and the parties who suffer from them can be compelled to give testimony whenever the magistrates see fit to insist upon holding the perpetrators to a legal responsibility. Probably the negro boy thought ten dollars of more importance to him than the punishment of his assailants; but this is no reason why Justice COLE should consent to such compounding of a serious offence against decency as well as law.

But even if the case were different and justice was fairly balked by the "great wrong" of the boy in compromising the matter, what excuse has the Journal for suppressing the names of the guilty parties and thus screening them from the only punishment to which they are amenable,—the brand of public opinion? We cannot suppose that it had even as good grounds for its action as poor LEVI had for his—five dollars a piece from each of the guilty parties:—and in the absence of this excuse we should be glad to know what the Journal's reasons for thus "compromising" the matter were.

We think the names of these honorable brutes should be made public. Their constituents are interested in knowing them. The citizens of certain sections of this metropolis are so uniformly and conspicuously fastidious in regard to the character of their representatives, that they are justly sensitive to their behavior:—and they ought to be fully and promptly informed of any act on their part by which their confidence is betrayed and their honor compromised. Yet, great difficulty is always experienced in obtaining information on these subjects. The Albany Courts have rather a curious way of promoting the ends of justice where members of the Legislature happen to be concerned. We remember a case a year ago in which a member from this City was arrested for false swearing,—but we have never seen any record of his trial. And when these matters do come before the Courts and get into the newspapers, the names of parties are generally suppressed,—whether out of considerateness or for a consideration—such as overcame poor LEVI,—we, of course, are not aware. In the Journal's case, regard for the feelings of "honorable" men is presumed to be the motive of its withholding their names;—but it seems to us, in such a case as the one recorded above, to be entirely misplaced.

Signing Petitions.

F. B. CUTTING, Esq., has addressed to Mr. GEO. T. STRONG, the following letter which explains itself:

NEW-YORK, Wednesday Evening, April 15.

DEAR SIR: I have this moment received your note of this date, and in answer, beg to state that I had no recollection of having signed any petition having for its object any legislative interference with the existing rights of Trinity Church, until my attention, on a recent visit to Albany was called to a memorial to the Legislature, on which my signature appeared. I must have added my name to those already subscribed to the paper without having read it and under a misapprehension of its purport and effect.

I am opposed to any movement in any degree unfriendly to the Corporation of Trinity Church, and regret that I should hastily, and without sufficient examination, have signed a memorial adverse to its rights. Very respectfully your obedient servant,

GEO. T. STRONG, Esq. F. B. CUTTING.

That a gentleman of Mr. CUTTING'S experience should sign papers "without reading them,"—and lend the influence of his name to measures of the gravest public importance without "sufficient examination" to be in the least aware of their character, would be remarkable, if it were not too common a practice to excite attention. We venture to say that as a general rule not one man in ten of those whose names are affixed to memorials to the Legislature, to petitions for office, or to any of the multifarious documents of the sort which are in such constant circulation, is in the least aware of their contents, or has ever taken the pains to read them through. Signatures to them are usually obtained by the hour or job. Parties who have a favorite project which they desire to support by a grand display of public opinion, hire persons to obtain signatures to memorials on their behalf,—paying usually by the hundred or thousand names. When the ordinary process of personal application becomes too slow to be productive, the enterprising agent generally procures some old list of names, which has already served some other purpose, and appends it to the new memorial. As a general thing, however, merchants, lawyers and other business men find that it costs less time and trouble to sign their names than to give a good reason for not doing so: and the consequence is that they very often find themselves in Mr. CUTTING'S position—committed to measures which their judgment disapproves; and it is by no means a rare occurrence to find the same names signed to petitions on both sides of the same subject.

AN ELIGIBLE OPPORTUNITY.—Among the reasons given why Trinity Church should be deprived of the control of her property only was, that she is a close corporation, and that the number of votes polled at her annual elections is rarely more than twenty or twenty five,—about the number of her Wardens and Vestrymen. This has been generally considered, except by her assailants, as evidence of the confidence of the members of her parish in the gentlemen who have had the care of her worldly interests; but since prominent members of other parishes, to wit: St. Mark's, Calvary, Grace, St. George's and others, have put a different construction upon it, there seems to have been a determination that it shall no longer be misinterpreted; and on Easter Monday last one hundred and forty votes were polled, unanimously in favor of the old Vestry.

Now it so happened that on that same day elections for Wardens and Vestrymen took place in the other Episcopal churches in this City, and that in St. Mark's Church the number of votes polled was four, and in Grace, Calvary and St. George's, six, five and nine. What a rotten state of things in these parishes is revealed by these votes! The entire control of their temporalities left in the hands of half a dozen to a dozen persons, who get together and reelect themselves and their confederates. As most, we believe, if not all of these parishes, have been endowed by Trinity Church with property for specific purposes, about the proper administration of which there cannot but be differences of opinion, we suggest that if any members of the parish which made these endowments doubt the propriety of the use to which the endowment has been put, and wish to recover it, for that or any other reason, an eligible opportunity offers, as Mr. Pecksniff says, to do so on the ground that the parishes in question have become close—very close—corporations. They, at least, would be precluded from a reply.

Minnesota Preparing to be a State.

An extraordinary emergency having arisen in the affairs of the Territory of Minnesota, requiring an extra session of the Legislature for the purpose of providing by law for holding Courts, and for enacting such laws as may be deemed necessary to enable the people to form a State Constitution, preparatory to being admitted into the Union as a State; also, for the purpose of disposing of the grant of lands made by the Congress of the United States at its last session, to aid the Territory of Minnesota in constructing certain designated railroads therein, the members of the Council and House of Representatives are therefore required to meet at St. Paul on Monday, the 27th of April, 1857, and take into consideration the subjects above specified.

INTERESTING FROM WASHINGTON.

Street Assault by Mr. Sayre on George P. Herrick—The Tehuantepec Question—The Northern Wagon Road to California, &c.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Daily Times.

WASHINGTON, Friday, April 17.

GEORGE HERRICK'S assault on the Executive Department has ended in an assault upon Mr. HERRICK by Mr. SAYRE, the nephew of Mr. CLAYTON. Mr. COBB has referred the letter of Mr. HERRICK to Senator HUNTER, the Chairman of the Finance Committee of the Senate, and Mr. HERRICK will lose his place for his patriotism. HERRICK must come upon the Herald for damages, on account of the exposure of his name.

The Cabinet is still exercised upon the Tehuantepec question. They are marvellously ignorant of the subject, but alive to its importance.

A telegraphic dispatch from New-Orleans, just received, states that a special messenger had arrived there with news of the acceptance of the Tehuantepec Road under the 5lco contract.

Arrangements for the Northern wagon road to California are completed. Mr. CAMPBELL, of the Topographical Bureau, has general charge of the business here. Mr. LEACH is appointed to superintend the main road, Mr. WM. M. F. MAGRAW has the section from Fort Kearney to City Rock, Mr. KIRK has the rest of the line. Col. NOBLE continues on the road from Fort Ridgely to the South Pass. X. Y. Z.

Kansas Affairs and Governor Walker—Character of the Emigration and Prospects of the State—New-York Politics.

FROM AN OCCASIONAL CORRESPONDENT OF THE NEW-YORK DAILY TIMES.

WASHINGTON, Friday, April 17, 1857.

Few of the foreign appointments will be made for some time to come yet. Intimations have been sent to the present incumbents of the various missions, that it will be proper for them to resign, and abundant time will be allowed them to do so ere any step is taken towards appointing their successors. The naval demonstration that is about to be made on both sides of the Isthmus, and, if necessary, the occupation of the same, will secure the settlement of the New-Granada question satisfactorily to this country, however little pleased the Bogota Government may be at the course we may take. This, and the little breezes in relation to Mexico and China, are the chief matters of importance, for the day, with respect to our diplomatic affairs.

Mr. ROBERT J. WALKER will not take his oath of office until towards the middle of next month, up to which time he scarcely considers himself entitled to be called Governor of that Territory. He is prepared, however, to enter upon the responsible duties of the new sphere which has been assigned to him with a full and entire appreciation of the difficulties by which he will be surrounded. If the assurances of multitudes of correspondents from Kansas are to be relied upon, the news of his appointment has been received there with the utmost satisfaction—particularly by the Free-State party, which seems better aware of his anti-nullification and Texas-annexation antecedents than most of your cotemporaries in the Eastern States. Real estate and property generally has increased in value, on account of the augmented security which it is believed will be given to those who may settle in the Territory.

Factionists on both sides have labored to disseminate the opinion that a National Governor of Kansas must necessarily stand alone and be unsupported by any large body of the people. They wish it to be believed that every man is either an Atchisonite fire-eater or a Garrison Abolitionist, and that no fair Executive can give satisfaction, or fail in acquiring the hostility of all parties. This is not, however, a true representation of the state of feeling in the Territory. The bitter animosities which have prevailed in certain localities, and which demagogues strive to foster, are, on the contrary, dying out, and a large majority of the settlers have arrived at the conviction that they have something more important to think about than niggers. Their emulation has been excited by the grants of lands for Railroads, public schools, Universities, &c., which have been made by Congress to neighboring States and Territories, and the rapid development of material prosperity within the past few months has brought with it a desire rather to accumulate wealth from the natural resources within their reach than from any factitious aids. Whatever anxieties Mr. WALKER may have felt a few weeks ago in relation to the sentiments of the Kansas population, they have been diminished, and he has been greatly encouraged by the authentic accounts he has received in opposition to partisan newspaper declamations. He is fully persuaded that, by placing himself at once, and boldly, upon the platform of the Constitution and the Kansas-Nebraska law, he can rally around him a sufficient number of patriotic citizens to outnumber fanatics of all kinds, including both Missouri blood-hounds and Greelyite seditionists. Determined, as Mr WALKER is, not to interfere with the wish of the majority of the people, as regards the nature of the institutions they may adopt in becoming a State, he is equally resolved that a full, fair, and free expression of opinion shall be elicited. He repeatedly observed, while here, that he should consider it a "point of honor" to prevent the "enormous crime" of fraud and injustice, let it be attempted by whom it may. His private belief undoubtedly is, that Kansas will be a Free State; but this is founded upon an intimate knowledge of the nature of the Territory, and also of the character of the population which is pouring into it, more rapidly than is generally supposed, from the northern portion of the Union.

There has been an endless amount of blundering committed, and misunderstanding created, in consequence of the omission by the Kansas Legislature to make provision for submitting to the people the Constitution which may be framed by the Convention which is called for next September. The veto of the measure by Governor GEARY, on account of this omission, was a singular instance of inadvertence, if not of ignorence. The arrangements for the submission of Constitutions to the people have invariably been made by the Conventions themselves. Such was the case in Virginia, New-York, Florida, Missouri, Texas, Louisiana, and in other States. The action of the Legislature upon such a point, would be equivalent to the assumption of the right to prescribe, in advance, what an article of the Constitution should be! That the Kansas Convention will submit the result of its labors to the people of the Territory, admits of no kind of doubt. Should it not do so, Congress will, of course, reject their Constitution, and postpone the consideration of the admission of the Territory as a State, until full justice shall have been done in the premises. We even learn that the instructions which Mr. WALKER has received from the Cabinet, contemplate the submission of the Constitution to be framed to the ordeal of a popular vote.

Moreover, the character of the population which will vote upon the question of the adoption of the Constitution, will be far more decidedly Free-State than that which shall appoint delegates to frame that instrument. This is a fact, equally important and true. The information which is received here daily, in relation to the class of settlers which, within a few weeks, has begun to pour into the territory, is in the highest degree satisfactory. They are nearly all from the Northern States; they go to Kansas with some property for the purpose of making it their permanent residence, and their numbers, which are increasing, are already greater in proportion than they have been at any previous time. Under such circumstances, we can well comprehend that Mr. WALKER looks forward with much hope and confidence to the future. The reliance which the public have placed upon him, and the indorsement which his appointment has received from the press, in all parts of the Country, ought also to be a source of great encouragement and gratification.

New-York politics, as I stated yesterday, are exciting unusual attention here. The wish of the Administration, with regard to the Democratic officers elected by Republican, but been clearly, and most emphatically expressed—not only to the applicants in person, but also by letter, telegraph and messages through confidential and reliable individuals. That wish has been, and continues to be, that there should be an honest and hearty burial of all past differences; that the divisions "Hard" and "Soft," as well as all other differences, should be ignored and forgotten; and that every effort should be made to secure the future union of the party. If either Mr. SCHELL, or Mr. HART, or Mr. SANDERS, or Mr. EMMERS, or Mr. FOWLER, or Mr. HERRICK, shall commit the suicidal folly of swerving from the rule prescribed for their guidance in this respect, I promise you that he or they—be it one or more who shall prove delinquent—will either be removed more rapidly than appointed, or not be confirmed by the Senate in December next.

The appointments of all of the Federal officers of your City, excepting Mr. SCHELL, have, as is well known, most unmingled dissatisfaction to Mr. FERNANDO WOOD. His astonishing epistolary performance upon the occasion, will give his remembrancers here a zest quite unique. He returned home, somewhat calmed by the reflection that the bargain which Mr. CROSWELL had completed for him, in the very nick of time, with Mr. SCHELL, would enable him, if he played his cards with his customary audacity and adroitness, to escape entire political bankruptcy. This is the key to his actions ever since. He hopes by means of his police force, and Mr. SCHELL'S influence, to get the control once more of Tammany Hall, and to ride the Party horse, as of yore, in spite of the Government at Washington. It is reported here, that there does not occur a single vacancy in the Custom-House, which is not followed by an instant demand from the "Mayor's office" for the place, and this, although two months must elapse, (perhaps a fatal interval,) before Mr. SCHELL can possibly enter upon the control of any patronage. It will certainly be a fatality without a parallel, if the new Collector, in opposition to his colleagues, who appear to be all laboring strenuously to heal up breaches, should permit himself to be carried away irretrievably into the vortex which threatens to swallow him up. A false sense of honor may lead him astray, (for Mr. SCHELL is a gentleman of high integrity,) or this may act in common with a return to his ultra Hard Shell Dickinsonite impracticability, and determine him to "rule or ruin" after the "good old way." This latter is feared here, from his complete identification with Mr. CROSWELL of late, and also from the fact that while the Union, peace making section of the Democracy is composed of both Hards and Softs, the leading Wood-Schellites seem to be, with but one or two exceptions, all out-and-out Hards. Be it as it may, the case is [illegible] that Mr. SCHELL has permitted [illegible] in relation to his position, and [illegible] to open his eyes to the true state of [illegible] everybody—excepting Mayor Wood. If he persists in remaining blindfolded, he will be himself, eventually, the greatest sufferer. His colleagues will retain their positions, while he will lose his, and will carry with him the sympathy of no one.

It is to be hoped that the warnings which have been sent from here, will have their full effect. If they do, the quarrels of the Democracy will be healed,—if not woe to those only who cause their perpetuation.

News from New-Mexico.

ST. LOUIS, Friday, April 17.

We are in receipt of Santa Fe dates to the 13th ult. The Democratic Convention had nominated for Governor JAMES L. COLLINS. Mr. OTERO, late delegate to Congress, had been reelected.

Considerable excitement had been occasioned in Santa Fe on account of the circumstances growing out of a collision between a Mexican named GRUBER and a soldier. GRUBER shot the soldier and then gave himself up and was taken to jail. A party of troops thereupon entered the jail and fired about 40 shots, killing GRUBER and another prisoner and wounding two others. Some of the soldiers engaged in the proceedings had been identified, and were to be tried for the offence.

News from Havana.

MOBILE, Thursday, April 16.

We have Havana dates to the 13th instant.

The assassination of W. SIDNEY SMITH, British Consul at Havana, had been attempted on account of his exposures of Slave transactions.

The general impression was that there would be no war with Mexico.

Further Indian Troubles in Minnesota.

CHICAGO, Friday, April 17.

After the destruction of the settlement at Spirit Lake, the Sioux Indians made an attack upon Springfield, in the southern part of Minnesota, but were repulsed with a loss of about a dozen men. A detachment of 100 good troops pursued the Indians, but being without provisions were compelled to return.

Declination of Mr. Stranahan.

ALBANY, Friday, April 17.

Mr. STRANAHAN declines the appointment of Police Commissioner, and the name of EDWARD M. FISK will be sent in by the Governor.

Obituary.

Dr. SCORESBY, the veteran of Arctic enterprise, died at Torquay (England) on the 21st March, after a lingering illness. Science loses a great deal by his death. His father was one of the most daring and successful seamen in the Northern whale fishery when that service was among the chief sources of the commercial wealth of the nation, and one of the best nurseries for the British navy, and the deceased from his youth was inured to the hardships and perils of the Arctic Seas. After his retirement from active service at sea, says the Literary Gazette, he resolved to enter the church; and after holding appointments in less congenial localities, he found in the maritime town of Hull a sphere which afforded full scope for his benevolent efforts for the social and spiritual welfare of sailors. His scientific career in the latter years of his life is well known. His reports to the British Association, and his numerous observations on the influence of the iron of vessels on the compass, were connected with inquiries of the utmost importance to navigation. It was in prosecuting these researches, and with a view to determine various questions of magnetic science, that Dr. SCORESBY undertook a voyage to Australia, from which he returned last year, with his constitution much enfeebled from the arduous labors to which he had subjected himself.

Captain CHARLES WRIGHT died yesterday at his home in Brooklyn. Captain WRIGHT went out master of the ship Cabinet, about a year since to New-Orleans, and thence to Bordeaux. His disease, (consumption,) that had for some time been threatening, was fully developed while abroad, so that when his vessel had returned to New-Orleans, he was obliged to leave her. From that port he returned by the Black Warrior to New-York, some three weeks since.

INTERESTING FROM ALBANY.

Closing Up the Business of the Session.

A Stormy Executive Session of the Senate—The Rejected Harbor Masters—Declination of Mr. Strasahan to Serve as Police Commissioner—Nomination of Edward M. Fiske, &c.

Correspondence of the New-York Daily Times:

ALBANY, Friday, April 17, 1857.

To the end—or toward the end at last. We are closing up this game of legislation with the rapidity of lightning, and probably before this sees the printer's case, the hammer of dissolution will have fallen on the Legislature of 1857.

Its history—who shall write it. Who shall fathom its depths, and bring to light the mysteries that now surround its actions? For the present, none—in the future, many. For not in years will a political contest be carried through in which will not be discussed, canvassed, criticised, condemned, defended, and denounced, the sayings and doings of this Legislature, the material portion of which fades into oblivion as I trace these words.

Of course for the past twenty-four hours almost the entire time has been absorbed in completing, by a third reading, the thousand and one projects that have been maturing during the hundred days.

I believe that nearly, if not quite, all the important measures that have been before the Legislature have been or will be matured before the close.

Trinity Church yet lays in the background, kept down by some mysterious power, which neither friend, nor foe may see, but which both feel. How long the drag will hold, none seem to know. It may break this moment—it may cling to the end. No more mystical were the oracles of old, than the mutterings of the gods of either side, when you ask them to interpret this struggle. They bid me keep my eyes skinned and "see what I shall see." But "having eyes I see not, and having ears I hear not."

The Senate was in secret session from 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon until late in the evening. Of course no one outside knows what the ones inside were doing all the time, but from the loud rapping of the President's hammer we could judge that they were having a good time of it.

And indeed the rumors after the adjournment appear to justify the conclusion that few Executive sessions have been more stormy and exciting.

At last it was ascertained that there had been three rejections of candidates for Harbor Masters—A. W. SMITH, of Brooklyn, JACOB V. DODGE and W. J. A. FULLER, of New-York. Or rather, Mr. MURRAY had not been rejected, but once confirmed, than the confirmation was reconsidered, and the nomination laid on the table—which was equivalent to a rejection. The other two were rejected, and a notice of that rejection served on the Governor—not, however, without a very strenuous opposition.

The object of these rejections could be easily traced. If they were adhered to, and the Governor made no new nominations, of course the present incumbents held over. These were Capt. ALEXANDER H. SCHULTZ, OWEN BRENNAN and Capt. BRAINARD—three warm personal and political friends of Senators who took an active part in procuring the rejection of those nominated as their successors.

Before the Governor could send up two names to take the place of the rejected, the Senate had adjourned its Executive Session and resumed ordinary legislative business.

In all probability the friends of the Harbor Masters who were thus in a fair way to hold over, would have been strong enough to prevent the holding of another executive conclave. But this morning the Governor received notice from Mr. STRANAHAN that he could not accept the position of Police Commissioner. Then, too, the hill to give the appointment of Auditor to the Governor. These two facts made it imperatively necessary that an executive session should be held. In place of Mr. STRANAHAN, the Governor sent up the name of EDWARD W. FISKE, of Brooklyn. In place of Messrs. FULLER and DODGE, rejected as Harbor Masters, he named Capt. COFFIN and Mr. DURNELL.

The bill for the appointment of Auditor not having reached the Executive chamber, of course the Governor could not nominate any person for that position. He will probably do so this afternoon, and in the evening we shall probably have another closing of the doors of the Senate Chamber. The result will probably reach you by telegraph. In the meantime, I wish I could give you a photograph of the Capitol. It would be a rich feature even to the New Yorkers.

NEW-YORK LEGISLATURE.

SENATE....ALBANY, Friday, April 17.

Mr. NOXON introduced a concurrent resolution instructing our representatives in Congress to advocate measures by which the public lands shall be kept as free as possible and held for occupation, and to secure to the old States in any distribution the share to which they are entitled; also, providing that copies of the resolution be sent to every State in the Union.

The Senate concurred in the Assembly amendments to the bills incorporating the International Bridge Company, and relative to the fees of Justices of the Peace.

The bill relative to the redemption of country bank notes by the City Banks was lost by ayes 15, nays 12.

On motion of Mr. RAMSEY a resolution to reconsider the vote was laid on the table. It was subsequently called up and the bill was passed by 17 to 13.

BILLS PASSED.

For the payment of the interest on money withheld from the Canal contractors.

To provide for the issue of new State Stock on loss of the original.

To incorporate the Buffalo Industrial and Agricultural Association.

The Buffalo Charter bill was presented by Mr. UPHAM, who expected that the original bill had been stolen, and this was an exact copy.

Mr. WADSWORTH moved to lay it on the table to give time for an examination of the bill.

Mr. UPHAM opposed this warmly.

Mr. WALSWORTH said that if such feeling was manifested he should believe that the bill had been stolen by the Republicans in order to get in some other bills.

Mr. UPHAM retorted with warmth.

The bill was laid on the table, and afterwards taken up and passed.

The bill to incorporate the Women's Hospital was passed.

A motion to suspend the special order for the purpose of reading the bill for the relief of Broadway was lost.

The bill for amending the law for opening Division-avenue, Brooklyn, was passed.

The hour for an Executive Session having arrived, on motion of Mr. UPHAM it was postponed in order to take up several supply bills.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

The several Supply bills and the mill and quarter tax bill were gone through with and passed.

An attempt was made to strike off the quarter mill, but it was defeated by: Ayes, 14; Nays, 15.

The House Committee appeared and informed the Senate that the Assembly was ready to adjourn.

The Senate concurred in the House amendments to the bills for widening the Battery Place; relative to the Salaries of the Judges of the Court of Appeals and Supreme Court; relative to the election of Judicial Officers in New York, and non-concurred in the amendments to the bills relative to the wife and minor children of a drunkard, and giving the appointment of Canal Auditor to the Governor.

On the latter the vote was reconsidered, and the Senate concurred, the concurrence being laid on the table. The emendment was the addition of a section giving effect to the act immediately, which was designed to enable the Governor to make the appointment during the present session, although the bill does not remove the officer until the close of his term.

BILLS PASSED.

To incorporate the Port Richmond and Bergen Point Ferry Company.

To legalize the action of the Board of Supervisors of New-York, respecting the payment of the expenses incurred in fitting up the Superior Court Room.

Recess for one hour.

ASSEMBLY....ALBANY, Friday, April 17.

BILLS PASSED.

To form a Woman's State Hospital in New-York.

Relative to marks and tare on casks and packages.

The bill to secure freedom to all persons in the State then came up for a third reading.

Mr. VARNUM moved to recommit the bill to embody the amendment proposed by Mr. WOOSTER.

After debate the question was taken on Mr. WOOSTER'S substitute as originally offered, which denied the right to take any man off the soil of New-York as a slave.

The substitute was lost by ayes, 43; nays, 54.

The original bill, as reported by the Committee, then passed, by ayes 72; nays 33.

Mr. ADAMS rose to a question of privilege. The Buffalo Charter bill had been stolen from the desk of the engrossing clerk after its passage. He asked that a copy of the bill, which he held in his hand, should be read and passed.

This was agreed to, and the bill was passed.

The bill relative to the keeping of records in the Executive Department, was lost by ayes 48, nays 44.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

The bill relative to the election of certain Judicial officers in New-York was passed.

The Assembly concurred in the Senate amendments to the bill relating to the redemption of notes of country banks by city banks; also to the New-York City-Hall bill.

Mr. POMEROY rose to a question of privilege. He found, in the report of the proceedings of the New-York Board of Aldermen, that Alderman MONAHAN had stated that he (POMEROY) told him that the New-York Charter and Police bills were designed to give office to the Republicans, and that the Assembly could be bought and sold like cattle. The dignity of the House required that he should characterize the statement as simply false, but, were he out of the House, and face to face with Alderman MONAHAN, he should tell him he lied.

The following bills were then passed:

Transferring the appointment of the Canal Auditor to the Governor.

To raise the salary of the Judges of the Court of Appeals and Justices of the Supreme Court. It was so amended as not to apply to the present Judges.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

BILLS PASSED.

To authorize the Elizabethtown, N. J., Cement Company to hold real estate in this State.

Relative to the widening of Battery Place.

The House also adopted the resolution relative to the destitution of public lands.

A large number of petitions were then put on file; several reports made, and one or two bills introduced but not to be acted upon.

The resolution for the adjournment being reached, Mr. LEAVENWORTH moved for the appointment of a Committee to wait on the Senate and inform them the House had finished its business and awaited the message of the Senate.

Mr. PRENDERGAST moved to refer the bill relative to the Government of the Alms House and Penitentiary of Kings County to the Committee on Cities and Villages to report complete forthwith.

After opposition from Mr. FUNK the resolution was carried.

Mr. SHERMAN called up the resolution antherizing a survey for the extension of the Chenengo Canal. Carried.

Mr. SCHUTT moved to instruct the clerk to furnish each member with fifteen dollars worth of postage stamps, to be paid for out of any unappropriated money. Laid over.

Mr. VARNUM called up the resolution authorizing Captain BACHE'S Canal Commission Map. Adopted.

Mr. PRENDERGAST rose to a question of privilege. Since the resolution adopting the Brooklyn Penitentiary bill a member (Mr. FUNK) had gone off and locked up the hill in a drawer, so that the Committee could not get it.

The Clerk was ordered to procure the bill from Mr. FUNK.

Mr. KIVLIN thought if FUNK was gone the bill was defunct.

Recess till 7 P. M.

EVENING SESSION.

Mr. FOLLETT called up his resolution respecting the imputations of Ex-President PIERCE upon the people of the North, and the aggressions of the Slave-power in Kansas.

Mr. JONES moved to lay the resolution on the table. Motion lost, and the resolution adopted.

The Speaker announced, in justice to Mr. FUNK, that the supposition that he had left the House for the purpose of preventing the Committee from obtaining possession of the Brooklyn Penitentiary bill, was entirely without foundation.

Mr. FUNK had gone to his room to bring the bill to the House, and had returned immediately before the recess.

Mr VARNUM moved for the reconsideration of the vote adopting the resolution on the Dred Scott case for the purpose of recording the ayes and nays.

The resolutions were then readopted, by Ayes, 65; Nays, 29.

Mr. SMITH called up the resolution directing the Regents of the University to furnish Blodgett's map on climatology to the colleges and academies in the State.

The Supply bill came down from the Senate amended. The House non-concurred and a Committee of Conference was appointed, consisting of Messrs. Varnum, Prendergast, H. Baker, Van Valkenburgh and Benck.

The House now concurred in the amendments to the bill making appropriations for State and Charitable Institutions. The same Committee of conference as on the Supply bill was appointed.

Note from Commissary General Hall.

NEW-YORK, Friday, April 17.

To the Editor of the New-York Daily Times:

SIR: I notice in your paper of to-day, a publication of the malicious and false allegations made against me, by the man LOCKRIDGE, four days after I left San Juan del Norte, and to which I referred in my letter, in your issue of the 15th inst.

I did not anticipate a confirmation—by such disastrous circumstances—of all my statements, with regard to the utter incompetency, and arbitrary misrule of LOCKRIDGE—and only wish to call the attention of your readers of the fact that the statements of all returned in the Tennessee fully confirm all particulars in my communication.

Yours truly,

GEO. B. HALL, Commissary-General, N. A.

The Difficulty with New Granada.

The following is an extract from a private letter addressed to the editor of the Savannah Republican, by an officer on board the United States sloop-of-war Cyane:

U. S. SLOOP CYANE, HARBOR OF ASPINWALL, NEW GRANADA, April 4, 1857.

MY DEAR SIR:—You are aware that our commissioner, the Hon. Mr. MOSSE, has not been able to effect an amicable adjustment of our difficulties with this government. Indeed, it appears that the New-Granadian Executive had determined what course he should pursue before the arrival of Mr. MOSSE, and the propositions of the latter were rejected without the least consideration.

So far from any concession or indemnification having been entertained by the Granadian Government, it coolly asserts that we should consider it a subject for congratulation that more lives and property were not sacrificed on the 15th of April.

Doubtless the statements made by the English and French Consuls in Panama, relative to the massacre, had their influence with this government in its assuming such a position; although there is a great discrepancy between statements made by those gentlemen on the 16th of April, 1856, and those which have appeared in the papers within the last few weeks.

A proposition was made in the Senate some days since, that a military force should be sent to the Isthmus, but it met with considerable opposition. It was urged that not a sufficient available force could be raised, and, if possible, it would, in all probability, prove a source of eventual dissension and difficulty between the army and Government.

The citizens of Carthagena, and many of the inhabitants in the interior, think it a hardship that the sins of the people of Panama should be visited upon them.

It is presumed that the defence of this Government will amount to a protest against the proceedings of the United States, and the Granadians will rely upon the protection of a more powerful nation than their own.

The arrival of Mr. MOSSE is expected on the 8th inst. A report is current that he was hooted out of Bogota by a party of young men. His arrival will confirm or contradict the report. Our Minister will remain in Bogota until he receives further instructions from Washington.

Our Relations with Mexico—A New Treaty to be Negotiated by Mr. Forsyth.

Correspondence of the Baltimore Sun.

WASHINGTON, Thursday, April 16.

Our affairs with Mexico give the Administration much concern. I have reason to believe that they will not increase the difficulty by a change of the Minister, at least for the present. Mr. FORSYTH'S explanations of his late treaty projects have not reached the public view, but it is to be presumed that he has some reasons for making a treaty the execution of which would have made the United States the judgment creditors of Mexico, and given us a right within a short time to resort to reprisals as the means of obtaining payment; and of course Mexico has nothing but territory to pay with, and this is the payment we desire.

Mr. FORSYTH'S acts have been explained in various ways; but it can hardly be doubted that the object which he had in view was approved by the late Administration. To obtain Sonora and Lower California was a very desirable object, and was probably held in view by the late Administration; for every President considers acquisition of territory as the crowning glory of his career. But at present it would appear to be of much greater importance to secure the Isthmus of Tehuantepec than any other Mexican territory, and to this last object the efforts of the Administration are now directed.

Mexican matters were under consideration yesterday, and, again, it is said, to-day. Instructions are no doubt to be sent to Mr. FORSYTH immediately for the negotiation of a new treaty reserving to the United States the right of way over the Isthmus of Tehuantepec, if not a cession of it. The Mexican Treasury is bankrupt, and Comonfort's Government can hardly be sustained from week to week; although the danger of invasion by Spain is no longer very imminent. If he cannot make such a treaty as we desire for such a sum of money as our Government might offer, we must await the action of the constitutional government, if that should be established, in September next.

The New-York Association for the Improvement of Society Mainly for the Advancement of Native Artists exhibited the extraordinary gifts rendered available by the liberal magnitude of a Sphynx. The Native Art Association gave their third [illegible] second season last night at Dodworth's Saloon. There was a very large attendance, and the programme—which was much too long—was rendered tedious by numerous encores. These were frequently deserved, but the conductors should not yield so pliantly to the demands of an over eager audience. As a whole, the Concert offered many excellent points, and was, we are disposed to think, an improvement on the preceding entertainments. Mr. RICHARD HOFFMAN played two solos on the piano in his usual finished and faultless manner. As a player, Mr. HOFFMAN ranks with the best in America, and we never hear him without regretting that he does not perform more often in public. Mr. BERTI, another excellent pianist, played Mr. PROHOWSKI'S Allegro de Concert—an extremely difficult and characteristic work. Messrs. KING, RIEF, GUILMETTE, &c., also assisted. The ladies who were announced to sing were mostly unwell. Their places were supplied by volunteers, whose names we were unable to learn. The substitutions were in every way acceptable.

Mr. DEMPSTER gives his farewell entertainment at the Tabernacle to-night, on which occasion he will sing a great variety of Scottish melodies in addition to his usual ballads. The entertainment concludes with the "May Queen."

Personal.

Mr. MARTIN F. TUPWILER, of Fluvanna, Va. is about to establish a Democratic paper, to succeed the Locompton Union, in Locompton, Kansas. It will be devoted entirely to Southern principles.

The Cambridge Professor who was garroted on his way home a few nights ago, is said to have been Prof. BOWEN, of anti-Hungarian memory, formerly editor of the North American Review.

Mr. AUGUSTUS N. DICKENS, a gentleman claiming to be a brother of CHAS. DICKENS, is now in Chicago, and proposes to read a lecture at Metropolitan Hall, on the 22d inst.

The Pennsylvanian is authorized to say that Gen. PACKER has received no communication from Mr. WILMOT to discuss the issues of the campaign.

Marine.

The United States steam-frigate Wabash, now lying at anchor in the North River, is to sail at 10 o'clock to-day. Her destination is understood to be Aspinwall, to join the Cyane, and wait the determination of the pending difficulties with the Government of New-Granada.

The cylinder head of the frigate Niagara's engine has been fitted, and all the repairs completed. Capt. HUDSON returned from Washington yesterday, and it is said the long-talked-of departure of the Niagara will positively take place on Monday morning at 7 o'clock.

The steamer Bridgeport, built by SAMUEL SNEDEN for GEO. W. CORLIS, will be launched from Mr. SNEDEN'S yard, Green Point, this (Saturday) afternoon at 4 o'clock. Her dimensions are—length 245 feet, beam 24 feet. Her engine, built by MORGAN & Co., is a 56 inch cylinder, and 12 feet stroke. She will be placed on the line to Bridgeport by the 15th of June.

The revenue cutter Washington, under command of Captain FAUNCE, fell in with the schooner Worcester of Providence, dismasted and in distress, early in March, and after laying by the wreck a day and night for the gale to abate, took off the Captain and crew, and then took the vessel in tow and brought her into this port. A demand was made for salvage by the officers and crew of the cutter, and the case was referred to JOHN F. TAPPAN and H. W. JOHNSON, of New-York, who have awarded them 25 per cent. of the value of the vessel and cargo, estimated at $11,582. Had this service been performed by a merchant vessel, 50 per cent. would have been the award, but as the cutter is considered the property of the public, 25 per cent. only is allowed for towage, and the owners save 25 per cent. by the good fortune of meeting with one of Uncle Sam's vessels.

The Savannah Republican of the 13th says: The schooner Ivanes, which arrived here yesterday from New York, reports the loss of Capt. LAMSDON, her commander, at sea, Thursday last. While off Charleston, Capt. L., while getting ready to take a third reef in mainsail, fell from the mainboom and was drowned. The flags of the shipping in port were displayed at half-mast, yesterday, in respect to the deceased.

The Medina (Ohio) Tribune says that for a week past the laborers on the canal between that village and Lockport have been riotously disposed. A large number have struck for higher wages, and those who were disposed to continue at work have been driven from their employment. Four of the ringleaders are in jail at Albion.

FINE ARTS.

READY-MADE CLOTHING, &c.

It has been aptly remarked by critics that good taste, being intuitive, gems of art were to be seen on the walls of even unpretending mansions, and that the best and purest taste was not always to be looked for in marble halls.

Apply the inference in the adornment of the outward man, and where, for a series of years, has been realized the discernment that has given eclat to the Ready-made Clothing business, and by productions the most recherché in style averted a subjection to the old regimen in getting suited, let the community answer and be assured that competition but prompts us to more strenuous endeavors in a determination to retain the supremacy heretofore awarded our clothing. PROF. WOOD'S
HAIR RESTORATIVE.

We call the attention of all, old and young, to this wonderful preparation, which turns back to its original color, gray hair—covers the head of the bald with a luxuriant growth—removes the dandruff, itching and all cutaneous eruptions—causes a continual flow of the natural fluids; and hence, if used as a regular dressing for the hair, will preserve its color, and keep it from falling to extreme old age, in all its natural beauty. We call, then, upon the bald, the gray, or diseased in scalp, to use it: and surely the young will not, as they value the flowing locks, or the witching curl, ever be without it. Its praise is upon the tongue of thousands.

WATERTOWN, Mass., May 1, 1855.

Prof. O. J. WOOD: Allow me to attest the virtues and magic powers of your Hair Restorative. Three months since, being excessively gray, I purchased, and soon commenced to use two bottles; and it soon began to tell in restoring the silver locks to their native color, and the hair, which was before dry and harsh, and falling off, now became soft and glossy, and it ceased falling; the dandruff disappeared, and the scalp lost all its disagreeable itching, so annoying before, and now I not only look, but feel young again. Respectfully, yours, etc.,

CHAS. WHITNEY.

NEW-YORK, Oct. 2, 1855.

PROF. O. J. WOOD—Dear Sir: After reading the advertisement in one of the New-York journals, of your celebrated Hair Restorative, I procured a half pint bottle, and was so much pleased with it that I continued its use for two months and am satisfied it is decidedly the best preparation before the public. It at once removed all the dandruff and unpleasant itching from the scalp, and has restored my hair naturally, and, I have no doubt, permanently so.

You have permission to refer to me all who entertain any doubt of its performing all that is claimed for it.

MISS FEEKS, No. 36½ Greenwich-av.

I have used Professor O. J. Wood's Hair Restorative, and have admired its wonderful effects. It restored my hair where it had fallen off, it cleansed the head, and renders the hair soft and smooth—much more than any other article.

MARY A. ATKINSON.

LOUISVILLE, Nov. 1, 1855.

STATE OF ILLINOIS, CARLISLE, June 27, 1855.

I have used Professor O. J. Wood's Hair Restorative, and have admired its wonderful effect. My hair was becoming, as I thought, prematurely gray, but by the use of the "Restorative," it has resumed its original color; and, I have no doubt, permanently so.

SIDNEY BREESE, Ex-Senator United States.

From the Washington Star.

Among the many preparations now in use for the restoring, preserving and beautifying the hair, there are none that we can recommend with more confidence than Prof. WOOD'S HAIR RESTORATIVE, now in general use throughout the States. This preparation possesses the most invigorating qualities, and never fails in producing the most happy results when applied according to directions. We refer our readers to the advertisement for a few of the innumerable certificates which have been sent by parties, who have been benefited by it, and who feel happy in giving testimony to its wonderful effects produced on them. O. J. WOOD & CO., Proprietors, No. 312 Broadway, New-York, and 114 Market-st., St. Louis, Missouri, and sold by all Druggists in city and country.

NEW-YORK, April 9, 1857.

DR. L. H. BONE—DEAR SIR: I TAKE PLEASure in informing you that the third bottle of your Bitters, together with the Pills, have completely eradicated the Dyspepsia. I take this liberty, knowing that it will be agreeable to you to hear of the success of your treatment. I trust that, by proper care in my diet, I shall not hereafter be afflicted with this distressing complaint.

Gratefully yours, ELIZABETH NOLEN.

Old Dr. BONE'S Bitters and Pills are universally acknowledged to be the best remedy of the age for curing all diseases of the heart, lungs, liver and kidneys. They cure dyspepsia, chronic and inflammatory rheumatism, jaundice, all dropsical diseases, fits, St. Vitus' dance, King's evil, scrofula, and all nervous complaints. They cure salt rheum, erisipelas, fever sores, pimples, blotches, &c.

DIVIDENDS

NEW-YORK AND ERIE RAILROAD COMPANY.—DIVIDEND NOTICE.—The Sinking Fund for the redemption of the Bonds of this Company having reached the amount of more than one million of dollars, and the requisite legislative authority having been received, the Directors have declared a dividend of ten per cent. on the capital stock of the Company, payable in stock on the 27th day of April inst., at the Transfer office, No. 45 Wall-st., agreeably to the following resolution of the Board, adopted on the establishment of the Sinking Fund.

Resolved, That as often as the Bonds purchased by the Sinking Fund amount to ten per cent. on the capital stock, this Company will, upon receiving due authority from the Legislature of the State, declare at the next semi-annual dividend day a stock dividend of ten per cent.

Where the dividend amounts to one or more full shares, the same will be placed to the credit of the stockholder, and a certificate for the same issued on application at the office; and when the dividend does not amount to a full share the stockholder will receive a scrip certificate in favor of the bearer, which can be converted into full stock on presentation with other similar certificates, in amounts which can be made into full shares.

The transfer books will be closed at 2 o'clock on the 15th inst., and be opened on the 27th inst.

The Board of Directors have resolved that in future the stock dividends will be declared as often as the Sinking Fund amounts to five per cent. on the capital stock, instead of ten per cent., as provided in the original resolution.

By order of the Board of Directors.
NATHANIEL MARSH, Secretary.

The New Police Bill.

"An Act to establish a Metropolitan Police District, and to Provide for the Government thereof."

Sec. 1. Constitutes the Counties of New-York, Kings, Westchester and Richmond, into one Police District: title: "The Metropolitan Police District of the State of New-York. The Government of this District is vested in a Board of seven Commissioners, two of whom shall be the Mayors of New-York and Brooklyn, ex-officio, and five shall be appointed by the Governor—a majority of the Board to constitute a quorum.

2. Three Commissioners to be appointed from New-York, one from Kings, and one from Richmond or Westchester: the five first appointed to meet at the State Department and draw lots for three terms of office, one expiring in May, 1858, for three Commissioners, and one in May, 1859 for two. Each Commissioner appointed, to fill a term succeeding an expiring one, to hold office three years. The Board to fill its own vacancies; any member may be removed by the Governor for cause; any member running for ... office, or any other office while his term as Commissioner holds, to be deemed to have vacated his office, unless he gives ten days' notice of declination.

3. The Board, after drawing for lots, is to be sworn in and proceed to organize and assume control of the Police Forces as defined in this act.

4. The officers of the Board are a President and Treasurer, a Chief Clerk and six Deputies; the central office to be selected by the Board.

5. The duties of the Board are to preserve the peace, ... elections, guard the public health, enforce ordinances, &c.

6. The Police force shall consist of a General Superintendent, two Deputies; five Surgeons, not more than ... Inspectors, or Captains, not more than 150 Sergeants, and as many Patrolmen as the Supervisors of each County may deem proper; for the present, the quota for New-York and Brooklyn to remain as it is. All these offices shall be filled by the Board. Officers to hold office during good behavior.

7. The Board is to pass upon all rules and regulations; no officer to be appointed who cannot read and write English, and none but citizens of the United States who have resided within the Police District for five years. No one to be removed till after a fair trial upon the charges brought against him. Promotions from the ranks to be made in cases of vacancy.

8. The powers of the Metropolitan Police are extended over every part of the State of New-York, officers possessing all the common law and statutory powers of constables, except for the service of civil process. In cases of suspicion of felony, the Superintendent, Deputies and Captains to have power to enter any building, ship or vessel at all hours for the purposes of search.

9. Gambling-houses and cock-pits within the Police District may be entered on suspicion; if necessary, by force. The District Attorney shall prosecute: and the guilty party, on conviction, shall be imprisoned 10 days or 1 year, and be fined $100 or $1,000.

10. The Police District to be subdivided by the Board into Precincts, not exceeding 40, without regard to County or Ward boundaries, with a station-house in each Precinct. Policemen not to be suspended from pay more than 30 days. The General Superintendent shall promulgate the orders of the Board—taking the place of the Mayors of New-York and Brooklyn as the head of the force, but always subject to the orders of the Board.

11. Additional patrolmen may be appointed by the Board whenever deemed necessary, at the expense of parties making application therefor, the extra officers being subject to the same rules as the others; such special patrols to wear a suitable emblem.

12. One month's notice of resignation of officers required.

13. Stolen property to be safely cared for, and entered in a book. The Board shall also keep general complaint books, and also books of record, in which shall be entered the name, nativity, citizenship, appointment and dismissal of every policeman, with the cause of dismissal. Blanks to be left in this record opposite each name for recording the number of his arrests, or his meritorious services. These books to be open to public inspection. Police returns are to be bound in volumes.

14. Suitable accommodations are to be provided by the Common Councils of New-York and Brooklyn for the reception of vagrants and detention of prisoners, but witnesses shall not be confined with criminals. The accommodations in the country towns shall remain as at present.

15. The use of the Police telegraph in New-York and Brooklyn is given to the Board, and other lines may be erected within the District, when deemed necessary.

16. Charges for execution of criminal process lie only against the county from which process issues.

17. Constables in Westchester, Richmond and Kings are invested with the same powers as patrolmen, and each Board of Supervisors may call upon the Board for such additional patrolmen as may be needed; each county paying the extra expense for itself.

18. Police are not liable to military or jury duty.

19. The Health Officer of New-York is empowered to call on a platoon of police in emergencies.

20. The Board is invested with powers as follows: The Board shall at all times cause the ordinances of the Cities of New-York and Brooklyn to be properly enforced, and it shall be the duty of the Board to all times, whenever consistent with the rules and regulations of the Board and with the requirements of this act, to furnish all information desired, and promptly with all the requests made by the Common Councils of the said Cities, or by the Mayors thereof, or by the Boards of Supervisors of the Counties of Westchester and Richmond, and the County towns of Kings. The Board of Police is invested with all the powers now conferred by law upon the Mayors of New-York or of Brooklyn, in respect to ordering military assistance in aid of the civil authorities to quell riots, suppress insurrection, protect the property and preserve the public tranquility. The Board shall appoint all Court Clerks, prescribed to the Judicial Districts in which Police Justices are elected in the City and County of New-York, and it shall designate the Courts at which they shall do duty respectively. The Board shall have power to issue subpœnas tested in the name of its President to compel before it the attendance of witnesses upon any proceeding authorized by its rules and regulations. Each Commissioner of Police, the General Superintendent of Police, and each Deputy-Superintendent of Police, and the Chief Clerk of the Board of Police, are given power to administer, take, receive and subscribe all affirmations and oaths.

21. On Election days, in New-York and Brooklyn, at least two policemen shall be stationed at each poll. No liquors to be sold publicly on Sundays or election days, under penalty of $50 for each offence; the Board to enforce this provision strictly, and the District Attorney to sue.

22. Riots at the polls are punishable by imprisonment from one to two years, or by fine not less than $250.

23. The Treasurer of the Board to receive a salary of $3,000; each Commissioner to receive $8 per day for actual service; the General Superintendent, $3,000; Deputy Superintendents, $2,000; Surgeons, $1,500; Inspectors or Captains, $1,200; Sergeants, $900; Chief Clerk to the Board, $2,000; Deputy Clerks, $1,000; Patrolmen, $800; Doormen, $700. Salaries paid quarterly, and the men's pay monthly. Commissioners receive their salaries from the State Comptroller, out of the Police Fund; all others from the Treasurer.

24. Rewards, fees, &c., to be paid to the Treasurer, and, with moneys arising from sales of unclaimed goods, to go towards constituting a "Police Life and Health Insurance Fund," the Trustees of which are to be the Treasurer of the Board and the City Comptroller of New York and Brooklyn.

25. In cases of sickness or disability, members of the Police force become a charge upon this fund: in cases of life long disability, $1,000 may be paid to the claimant, and be charged to the fund. The family of Officers killed while in the discharge of duty, may receive $2,000 from the fund. This clause does not apply to special patrolmen.

26. Police taxation is provided for as follows:

The Board of Supervisors in the County of New-York, and the Joint Board of Supervisors of the County of Kings, and the Aldermen of Brooklyn respectively, shall annually raise and collect by tax upon the real and personal property taxable within the Cities of New-York and Brooklyn, such sums of money as the Board of Police for the said "The Metropolitan Police District," on or before the first Monday of June in each year, shall apportion as requisite and needful to be raised by each county, which several sums of money shall be applied by the said Board of Police for the fiscal purposes of this act. But such apportionment shall not be binding upon the Supervisors, if the apportionment of tax made to each county shall exceed the sum which shall be necessary to maintain police accommodations, and the police force used and employed within each or either of the said counties, according to the action of the Supervisors, nor unless the said apportionment shall be first approved by a majority vote of an Auditing Committee, composed of the President of the Board of Supervisors in each of the counties embraced by the said "The Metropolitan Police District," and by the Comptrollers of the Cities of New-York and Brooklyn. The said sums collected in New-York and Brooklyn, shall be in lieu of all taxes within the said Cities for the support of the police government.

27. Such moneys shall be paid into the State Treasury, and constitute the Police Fund.

28. The Treasurer to disburse all moneys.

29. The Treasurer to execute bonds in $50,000.

30. General and Deputy Superintendents to give securities, and patrolmen to take an oath.

31. This section strips the Mayors of New-York and Brooklyn of police power, and gives it to the Board, as before stated.

32. Changes the title of Chief of Police in New-York and Brooklyn to Deputy Superintendents of Police; Captains are changed to Inspectors, or Captains of Police, Lieutenants and Assistant Captains to Sergeants; and Policemen to Patrolmen. The present Wards of the two cities to be police precincts till new ones are made by the Board. The present Police of both cities to continue duty under existing laws till after the first meeting of this Board.

33. Policemen not duly qualified to be removed.

34. The General Superintendent to make quarterly reports.

35. Inconsistent statutes are repealed.

36. In any statute not inconsistent, "Chief of Police" shall be held to mean "General-Superintendent of Police," and other titles as per section 32.

37. This act to take effect immediately.

THE NEW BOARD OF POLICE COMMISSIONERS.

SIMEON DRAPER, JAMES W. NYE and JACOB CHRISWELL, of New-York; J. S. T. STRANAHAN, Brooklyn; JAMES BOWEN, Westchester County; FERNANDO WOOD, Mayor of New-York; JAMES T. POWELL, Mayor of Brooklyn.

The Central Park Bill.

COMMISSIONERS.—Robert J. Dillon, Charles H. Russell, John A. C. Gray, Thomas C. Field, James Hogg, James E. Cooley, Jno. F. Butterworth, Waldo Hutchins, W. K. Strong.

Synopsis of an Act for the Regulation and Government of the Central Park in the City of New-York.

SECTION 1. Designates as the "Central Park," so much of that section of land bounded southerly by Fifty-ninth street, easterly by Fifth avenue, northerly by One Hundred and Sixth street, and westerly by Eighth-avenue, as has been taken for a public place, and confirmed by an order of the Supreme Court, dated 5th February, 1856.

2. Places the Park under the exclusive control of a Board of seven Commissioners, three to form a quorum—but no action to be deemed final unless approved of by a majority of the Board.

3. The first Board of Commissioners to consist of Robert J. Dillon, James E. Cooley, Charles H. Russell, John F. Butterworth, John A. C. Gray, Waldo Hutchins, Thomas C. Field. [The names of W. K. Strong and James Hogg have since been added.] They shall hold office for five years, and compensation for their services shall be fixed by the Governor. An accidental vacancy is to be filled by the remaining members, and vacancies caused by expiration of term of office shall be filled by the Mayor, with the consent of the Board of Aldermen.

4. The Board shall have power to lay out and regulate the Central Park; to pass ordinances for its government; to appoint engineers, clerks, and other officers, excepting such police force as is necessary; to define their duties, fix their compensation, and generally to possess the same powers with regard to the Park as is now possessed by the Common Council in respect to public places in the City.

5. Declares it a misdemeanor for any Commissioner to be interested in any contract connected with the Park. Each Commissioner is to take the oath prescribed by the State Constitution before entering upon the duties of his office.

6. Requires that the Board report their proceedings in January, every year, to the Common Council.

7. Commissioners may let buildings and grounds within the Park until they shall be required for laying out. They are also authorized, in conjunction with the Bureau of Lands and Places, to adjust the permanent width of the streets and avenues bounding the Park.

8. Commissioners may sell buildings, &c. within the Park, and the proceeds shall be devoted to the improvement of the Park.

9. No law for the laying out of the park shall be adopted, of which the entire expense, when funded, shall require for the payment of the annual interest thereon a greater sum than $100,000 per annum.

10. The Mayor and Common Council shall create and issue public stock, called "The Central Park Improvement Fund," in such sums as shall be required, subject to the limitations in sec. 9. The provisions of the act of June 8, 1812, "to regulate the finances of the City of New-York" shall apply to the stock thus created, which shall be redeemable in 30 years, and for which the park is specifically pledged!

11. The Board of Supervisors shall yearly raise, by extra tax on real and personal estates within the City, a sum sufficient to pay the interest on the stock.

12. Provides for the depositing of moneys in bank, which cannot be drawn therefrom without a warrant signed by the majority of the Commissioners, countersigned by the Comptroller, and specially authorized at a meeting of the Board.

13. Board may agree with the Commissioners of the Land Office and with the Croton Aqueduct Board for a fair exchange of lands.

14. Board of Commissioners may pass ordinances for the regulation, use, and government of the park, provided they be not inconsistent with Corporation ordinances; and such ordinances shall, upon their passage, be published for ten days in three daily City newspapers.

15. The violation of these ordinances is held to be a misdemeanor, punishable on conviction by a fine not exceeding $50, and in default of payment imprisonment not exceeding thirty days.

16. This act is to take effect immediately.

The act "relating to the Board of Supervisors of the County of New-York," detaches the Mayor and Recorder from that body; provides for the election of twelve Supervisors by the people, they to hold office for one year. Acts of the Board are subject to the Mayor's veto, with the customary ten days' provision. The Board, as now, to be County Canvassers, but to get no compensation after the tenth day. The Corporation Counsel to be the legal adviser of the Board, with an allowance of $2,000 per annum.

Assessments in New-York.

The act "in relation to Assessments in the City of New-York" is amendatory of other acts. It changes the title of the three Tax Commissioners to "Commissioners of Taxes and Assessments;" the present incumbents to hold office till July, 1860. The Supervisors are to appoint the Commissioners, and the latter remove at pleasure. Their salaries to be paid as a County charge. The office of Chief Assessor is abolished, and the work is to be done by three Deputy Commissioners.

The following section is important:

SEC. 13. It being the intention of this act to provide for the better equalization of the taxation in the City and County of New-York, the Commissioners may, at any time before the 20th of April in each year, increase, and at any time before the closing of the books of annual record on the 1st day of May in each year, diminish the assessed valuation of any of the aforesaid assessed taxable real or personal estate in said City, as in their judgment may be necessary for such equalization; but they shall not increase such valuations after said books are open for correction and review, except upon notice being given to the party affected by such increase, twenty days before the closing of said books.

NEW-YORK CITY.

Board of Councilmen.

The Board of Councilmen met on Friday, the President, J. N. PHILLIPS, Esq., in the chair.

A resolution was adopted authorizing the Common Council to employ Doctor O'CALLAGHAN in translating certain early Dutch records now deposited in the County Clerk's office.

A resolution was offered by Councilman BOOLE, as follows:

Whereas, It is represented that the Legislature of this State has, during its present session, passed various acts relating, particularly to the City of New-York; and whereas, It is represented that many of the said acts are calculated to, and do, impair or interfere with the property, rights, franchises, privileges and powers of the Corporation of the City of New-York; and whereas, the said acts were passed without the application or assent of said Corporation—therefore

Resolved, That the Counsel to the Corporation be and hereby is requested to report to the Common Council, without delay, what acts have been so passed by said Legislature, setting forth copies thereof.

Resolved, That, if he deem it necessary, the said Counsel be authorized and empowered to consult and advise with such other Counsel as he shall see fit, touching the validity and effect of the said several acts and each of them; and present to the Common Council an opinion in detail in regard thereto.

Resolved, That until said report and opinion be received, the Mayor, Aldermen and Commonalty of the City, its officers, agents and servants will wholly refrain from any action calculated to admit, recognize or acquiesce in the validity of any or part of any act which may have been passed by the said Legislature touching the rights, properties, privileges, jurisdiction or franchises of the said Mayor, Aldermen and Commonalty, except such acts as may have been passed by the said Legislature upon the application of said Mayor and Commonalty. And that in case any attempt shall be made by any person to enforce or carry into effect such acts, or any of them, it shall be the duty of the said Corporation Counsel immediately to institute proper legal proceedings to prevent the same and protect the rights of the City.

Resolved, That the sum of $5,000 (or so much thereof as may be necessary for this purpose) be, and the same hereby is appropriated to pay the charges of such additional counsel as the corporation counsel may see proper to associate with himself for the purpose aforesaid.

Councilman BRADY strongly opposed the passage of this resolution. Councilman MONROE said the Charter was unconstitutional. It had been concocted in the Astor House, by thirteen, certainly, very respectable gentlemen.

Councilman BOOLE urged the passage of the resolution.

Councilman BURNEALL said the resolution involved the principle of nullification. He was not ambitious to belong to the Northern Chivalry. He advised the Board not to be hasty in passing a resolution of a revolutionary tendency.

Councilman MCCAHILL was willing to appropriate $50,000, if necessary, to test the constitutionality of the charter. It had been passed by a party of bushwhackers who knew nothing about the City.

Councilman CAMPBELL supported the views of Councilmen MCCAHILL.

On vote, the resolution was lost, for want of the constitutional vote—35 affirmative, 10 negative. Reconsideration moved and adopted, and the resolutions ordered to be laid on the table.

In reference to the widow of the deceased Policeman, (S. B. Hardenbrook,) a proposition to donate $2,000 for her benefit was referred to the Police Committee.

Certain resolutions as to bad notes, paid by Messrs. Reynolds & Co. to the men employed on the streets, and also by the contractor of the Fifth Ward, were acted on by the Board. It was stated that these parties have been paying their laborers in worthless Jersey bank-bills. The object of the inquiry is to ascertain whether the contractor or Comptroller is at fault. The matter was referred to the Law Committee.

After the transaction of other business, the Board adjourned till Monday.

Fires.

IN NASSAU-STREET.

At 5 o'clock this morning a fire was discovered in the building No. 20 Nassau street, owned by OBADIAH BUSHNELL and occupied principally as law and other offices. The firemen were soon present in strong force, and put out the flames before they had made much headway. The aggregate loss did not exceed $3,000. The fire originated in a closet beneath the stairs on the first floor, from some cause not yet ascertained.

IN AMITY STREET.

At 10¼ o'clock last evening a fire broke out in the carpenter's shop of GEORGE OTACLEUS, in Amity, near Macdougal-street. The flames spread to the second story of the building, occupied as SHIPLAND'S piano manufactory. About $200 damage was done in the carpenter's shop—no insurance. The damage done in the piano manufactory is estimated at $100—insurance not known. The building was damaged to the extent of $200. It is owned by —— MELVILLE.

DR. H. HALSTED, of Ronnd Hill Water Cure, Northampton, Mass, can be consulted on Saturday, Monday and Tuesday, (April 18, 20 and 21) at the St. Nicholas Hotel, New York, from 10 A. M. to 1 P. M. As is well known he makes the diseases incident to women a speciality. Some cases can be cured by one visit, others in a short time. His is a new system of therapeutics, which is simple and rational. It gives vitality and force to the functional powers, and controls the most obstinate organic weaknesses with ease and certainty. It is reliable in the cure of incipient diseases of the lungs, in spinal difficulties, and in most cases to obviate sterility. The establishment combines the advantages of being a resort for invalids of both sexes, and a hotel for the seekers of pleasure. It is just such a place as the pent-up citizen needs and loves, with home comforts at command. Circulars sent gratis; Motion—Life, a pamphlet upon the treatment, on receipt of six postage-stamps.

☞ A meeting of the Kings County Board of Supervisors was held yesterday afternoon, but no business of general interest was transacted.

NEW-JERSEY.

Board of Canvassers.

The Jersey City Board of Canvassers met at the Lyceum at 5 o'clock, yesterday afternoon, and organized by appointing Alderman TILDEN Chairman. The returns of the votes of the Wards were read, and those heretofore published as elected were duly declared elected—except the Water Commissioners, Messrs. PEARSALL and FINK. Owing to an informality in the ballot Messrs. MANNERS and ENOS were declared elected. One Water Commissioner was chosen for the full term, the other to fill a vacancy, but the ballots cast for Messrs. PEARSALL and FINK did not specify which of these offices they were voted for, while the ballots for Messrs. MANNERS and ENOS were specific on this point, and it was necessary to declare them elected.

The Conflict in the Tammany Society.

Success of the Mandarins—Failure to Harmonize—Full Particulars of the Proceedings and the Situation.

The meeting of the members of the Tammany Society in favor of the action of the Seven Sachems for promoting Reform in the Democratic Party of this City, organized at the Westchester House, Bowery, at 1½ o'clock, P. M. on Friday evening. There was a large attendance, consisting of 165 members, or more, of the most active, reliable and respectable members of the Society. Amongst others we noticed George W. Sanders, Navy Agent; Emanuel B. Hart, Surveyor of the Port; Isaac V. Fowler, Postmaster; Henry Ehrman, Peter B. Sweeny, André Fromont, Douglas Taylor, Theodore Fromont, Alderman Wm. H. Cornell, Elijah F. Purdy, Hon. John Cochrane, Major Conner, Wm. D. Kennedy, Wm. Dunham, Thomas Dunlap, &c., &c., &c. The meeting organized by electing Alderman CORNELL as its presiding officer, and appointing EDWARD COOPER Secretary.

JACOB BEHR and C. GODFREY GUNTHER, whose names were signed to the Chinese call, appeared and repudiated all connection with the Foo-Foos at the Chinese Museum. Their appearance called forth a storm of cheers.

The old "War-horse" rose and said that he was in favor of the Reform movement—in favor of all reasonable concessions to bring it about, and willing to exhaust all pacific and honorable means to secure so desirable an end. That he considered the action taken by the seven Sachems as of vital importance to the welfare of the Democratic Party—that it called for universal support, and that it would receive it when the public understood the nature of the quarrel. That he had fought for many years this end, and he rejoiced at the fair prospect of success now opening. That he had received assurances from persons in authority who had called another meeting of their brethren of the Society at the Chinese Assembly Rooms, to-night, that the desirable purpose had in view, could be attained to the mutual satisfaction of all parties, without any mandarin attempts to dominate the free action of the Society. Relying on these assurances, he designed offering a resolution to the meeting that a committee of seven —the magical number—be appointed to call upon and confer with the meeting at the Chinese Assembly Rooms; and if this effort at conciliation should fail—should the olive-branch be refused—either through design or bad faith of any of the contracting parties, and if there must be war, then he, for one, was prepared to go into the fight to the last extremity, believing that a large majority of the Society—in fact all the honest portion—would sustain the unanimous action for reform of the present Council of Sachems with whom he had the honor to act: and that he also felt behind him, the sympathy and support of all that intelligent portion of the party whose good opinion he valued, urging him forward in the cause he had marked out. Mr. PURDY concluded by offering the resolution indicated.

Messrs. FOWLER, SANDERS, HART and COCHRANE made brief addresses to the same effect, coinciding with the views of Alderman PURDY, and pledging themselves to make any sacrifice, save that of principle, that would bring about so desirable an end.

Mr. HENRY LIENEAU then made a hot speech in opposition to the proposed conference, and several members followed on the same side, evincing a great amount of exasperation and resolve; nevertheless, when the resolution was put to the vote, a large majority rose in favor of the conference, and a Committee was appointed which consisted of Elijah F. Purdy, Isaac V. Fowler, George N. Sanders, John Cochrane, Emanuel B. Hart, Peter B. Sweeny and Edward Cooper.

The Committee proceeded to the Chinese Museum, where they found a little over 100 members present, and presented a communication in writing to the meeting there assembled, tendering the olive branch, and asking for a like Committee to be appointed to agree upon the basis of a just settlement, that would restore good feeling and harmony within the Democratic ranks.

This communication was received by the Chinese gathering with a general feeling of hostility. In particular, Wm. MCMURRAY opposed all attempts at conciliation and, harmony, evidently fearing that any serious effort to unite upon a ticket representing each side, would result in the defeat of his own cherished hopes—to be named as one of the Chinese candidates. Speeches were made by AARON HERRICK, ANDIA NEARY, and JOHN CHAMBERS, opposed to conciliation with the Westchesterites; and Mr. MICHAEL TOOMEY made a motion to lay the proposition on the table; whereupon AUGUSTUS SCHELL rose and warmly opposed such an overt act of determined antagonism. He stated that he would not have joined the movement himself, if he had not supposed that a different spirit would have animated the brethren with whom —for the time being—he held association; and he moved that a Committee of Conference of a similar character be appointed by that meeting. This motion was lost by a large majority—the preponderating voice being clearly against any union. Mr. SCHELL, however, succeeded in securing the appointment of a Committee of Seven to inform the delegates from the Westchester House that they might attend if they chose at the Chinese meeting.

It will be seen that this resolution dodges the question of reform in the Primary Election system, upon which the meeting at the Westchester House was organized.

The following was the Mandarin Committee named in pursuance of that resolution: Augustus Schell, John H. Chambers, Richard B. Connolly, Joseph Cornell, Gideon J. Tucker, Joseph Rose, Jr., and Michael Toomey.

This Committee met the Committee from the Westchesterites, and they proceeded in a body to the St. Nicholas Hotel for consultation. On reaching the Hotel a parlor was procured and the Joint Committees proceeded to business. After considerable discussion, finding that the Mandarins were confined by the limits of their appointment to the single proposition of asking the Westchesterites to surrender without regard to their cherished principles of Reform, the "war-horse" of the Westchesterians proposed that their Committee should retire and submit in writing a further proposition for conciliation and harmony.

Accordingly a letter was prepared addressed to AUGUSTUS SCHELL, complaining of the refusal of the Chinese to meet them upon equal terms, and of their further refusal to sustain the reformatory movement, but offering that a ticket should be made up of six from each side to be unanimously supported, and that the contest be confined to the thirteenth Sachem, so that the issue of reform or no reform should be decided by the Society unbiased by personal considerations.

But while the two Committees were negotiating, rank rebellion raised its horrid head in the Chinese camp, and it was determined to proceed at once to nominate a "clean ticket," without reference to any Committee of Conference; consequently when the dispatch from the Westchesterites was received it was disdainfully laid upon the table. The Chinese thereupon appointed a Committee of thirteen, headed by FERNANDO WOOD and AUGUSTUS SCHELL, Chief Mandarins, with eleven Coolies under them, of which latter Mr. MICHAEL TOOMEY was originally proposed as a member, which honor he declined, saying that he expected nomination for a Sachem; and in consequence Mr. TOM WHELAN, from the same Ward, was substituted in his place, and the sequel shows that this movement defeated Mr. MICHAEL TOOMEY'e hopes, inasmuch as "Irish Tom" insisted that he should be the Sachem, and carried the point—regardless of every consideration of delicacy.

The Celestials were in session until 3 o'clock next morning, and their labors resulted in the nomination of the following ticket:

John J. Manning, (Wood,) Albert. W. Smith, (Wood,)
John C. Mather, (Schell,) Gid. J. Tucker, (Schell,)
James C. Willett, (Wood,) Dan. C. Pentz, (Wood,)
Philip Merkle, (Wood,) Wm. McMurray, (Wood,)
Thomas Whelan, (Wood,) James Murphy, (Wood,)
C. G. Gunther, (Schell,) Robert B. Boyd, (Wood.)

Thus, it will be seen that there are nine of Wood's men to four of Mr. SCHELL'S, and one of SCHELL'S (C. GODFREY GUNTHER) declines to run on that ticket, as will appear by the correspondence read at the Westchester meeting. It seems also that two of SCHELL'S sachems, and two of Wood's, belong out of the City of New-York, namely, JOHN C. MATHER, of Troy; TUCKER, of Albany; MANNING, of Brooklyn, and MCMURRAY, who has come back from Europe, where he was traveling at his own expense, to procure some office t at may enable him to travel at the Government's.

At the Westchester Meeting the Committee reported through Mr. FOWLER, and their action was unanimously sustained with a vote of thanks. Whereupon on a Committee of seven, (still the magical number in which the "Old Warhorse" professes great faith,) consisting of the following members, was appointed to nominate a ticket, to be supported by all in favor of reform—namely: Nelson J. Waterbury, Abram S. Hewitt, Jacob Brush, (one who had originally signed the Chinese circular,) M. L. Bryant, B. S. Hart, Wm. Miner and Sam. Allen. This Committee were to report on Saturday evening, to which time the Westchesterites adjourned, in the best possible spirits.

On Saturday evening the Reformers again assembled at their head-quarters to hear the report of the Nominating Committee—and this was made by Mr. WATERBURY, their Chairman, who proposed the following ticket:

Isaac V. Fowler, P. M. C. G. Gunther, (Schell.)
Joseph M. Marsh, (Schell. T. B. Tappan, (Schell.)
Wm. W. Kennedy, (Schell.) Edward Cooper, (Schell.)
John McKeon, (Schell.) Sam. J. Tilden, (Soft.)
Peter B. Sweeny, (Schell.) Chas. A. Dodge, (Soft.)
Elijah F. Purdy, (Schell.) Wm. H. Cornell, Schell.); E. B. Hart, Surveyor.

It will be seen that on this ticket there are nine of the Collector's friends. Mr. C. GODFREY GUNTHER wholly repudiated the Chinese movement, and refused his name for their ticket, as will be seen by his answer to their Committee's invitation to allow them to make him a candidate.

GENTLEMEN: The ticket nominated at the Chinese Assembly Rooms last evening does not meet my approbation, and cannot receive my support.

Yours, &c., C. GODFREY GUNTHER.

16th April, 1857.

The ticket nominated was discussed at great length, and a general desire was expressed to have Messrs. DUNLAP, FROMENT, CONNER, COCHRANE and ADAMS put on in the place of some of those named; but these gentlemen magnanimously refused to take any action which would prevent the unanimous acceptance of the Committee's report, and the ticket was accordingly adopted without a dissenting voice. THOMAS W. ADAMS thereupon proposed three cheers for the entire ticket, which were given, with a "tiger" added, and the meeting broke up.

INCIDENTS.—When the motion for appointment of Conference Committee was made in the Chinese gathering, Mr. WOOD, who was on the stage pulling the wires, complained of sudden sickness in the stomach and declined to act: but when the time came to appoint a Nominating Committee, he suddenly recovered his vigor, and took charge of the whole business with delightful exuberance, and managed with his usual success.

We learn, also, that there was danger of the Chinese movement having a fatal termination—the particulars of which, as near as we could learn from Denny O'Brien, his Honor's coachman, are as follows: The meeting adjourned at 3 A. M., and Mr. WOOD offered to drop Mr. SCHELL at the latter's house in Twenty-first-street. When the coach had reached the corner of Fourteenth-street and Broadway, opposite the big gas-light, Denny heard a shuffling of feet, attended by a gurgling sound, proceeding from within the vehicle. Suddenly descending, and opening the carriage door, he found Mr. SCHELL, nearly black in the face, and struggling in the arms of his Honor. It seems that Mr. WOOD had been seized with a sudden paroxysm of affection, and throwing his arms about him, gave him a hug which was attended with the result stated. Mr. SCHELL was immediately carried into the open air, and on examination it appeared that he was seriously, if not fatally injured in the back-bone. He has been very weak in the legs ever since, and his friends fear that he will never be himself again. Candor compels us to state that we have not full confidence in the accuracy of this information.

FROM WASHINGTON.

The Transit Across the Tehuantepec Isthmus—History and Present Position of the Question.

Special Correspondence of the N. Y. Daily Times.

WASHINGTON, Saturday, April 17, 1857.

The President, the Secretary of State, the Secretary of the Treasury and the Attorney-General have all been engaged, at numerous times during the week, on the consideration of the proper move for obtaining possession of the Isthmus of Tehuantepec, or at least of securing to our citizens and to the Government the right of way across that Isthmus. The subject has been much neglected by the Government during all their negotiations with Mexico since 1846, when, under Mr. POLK'S Administration, Mr. TRIST was instructed to offer an additional fifteen millions to Mexico for accession of that Isthmus. The Mexican Government declined the offer for the reason that the right to use the Isthmus had been granted to an English company through GARAY, and was in the hands of the house of MCINTOSH & Co. There was then a probability that English capitalists would undertake to construct a railroad across the Isthmus.

This plan failed, and the grant fell into the hands of HARGOUS and his associates, who organized a Company, of which Mr. BENJAMIN, of New-Orleans, was the President.

This Company proceeded with the work under their very liberal charter, but were interrupted and forcibly ejected from the Isthmus by the Mexican Government, which Government annulled the grant.

Mr. WEBSTER, when Secretary of State, instructed Mr. LETCHER, our Minister to Mexico, to insist upon the execution of the contract with the Garay Company, contending that the contract was with American citizens, who were entitled to the protection of this Government.

The Government of Mexico persisted in their refusal, and pointed to the legal remedy which our citizens had for any supposed violation of their contract, —that is, by suing the Government in the Mexican Courts.

Pending this controversy Colonel SLOO, through his agent, Colonel LEE, in Mexico, stepped in and obtained the grant of the right of way across the Isthmus, and also the exclusive right of the navigation of the Coatzacoalcos River. This was called a mixed company, Mexico was being admitted as partners, in order to satisfy national pride, and remove the objections made against a foreign Company. The sum of $600,000, as a bonus to the Mexican Government, was paid by Colonel LEE to the Mexican Government upon the execution of the contract.

This money was borrowed from Mexican brokers represented by Mr. FALCONNET, upon drafts drawn upon Col. SLOO. These brokers thought that if the transit was worth fifteen millions to the United States, it would certainly be cheap at six hundred thousand dollars. They took a mortgage upon the grant itself as their security. The drafts were returned protested and dishonored, and without any hope of payment, much to the chagrin of the money lenders. This claim, with damages, interest, &c., has swelled to the amount of a million of dollars.

The treaty made by Judge CONKLING, and which he vigorously defended, secured this grant by the guarantee of the United States Government, which treaty was utterly repudiated by the President, and was not sent to the Senate, except in answer to a special call for information, and was not acted upon by that body.

The Guadalupe treaty, as negotiated in Mexico, admitted the validity of the claim of the Garay or Hargous Company, and provides for its payment. This was stricken out by President PIERCE, before he communicated it to the Senate, which body struck out from it everything relative to private claims.

The friends of Colonel SLOO had sufficient influence in the Senate to obtain the insertion in the Treaty of the eighth article, which, without reviving the Sloo grant or the Sloo Company gives the United States the right, when they see proper to interfere for the protection of the persons and property of American citizens upon the Tehuantepec Isthmus.

The Sloo contract required that the Company should complete a plank road across the Isthmus, and have it in traveling order for passengers &c., by the 5th of February, 1857, and that the railroad be commenced within one year from that date.

Col. SLOO made contracts with a Sheffield house for both roads, and the work was hardly begun before it was abandoned, in consequence of the death of the principal contractor, who was lost in the Arctic.

Mr. FALCONNET, as agent of the bankers in Mexico, attached Col., SLOO'S interests in the U. S. Pacific Mail Steamer line, but got nothing by it. The creditors finally assigned their mortgage upon the Sloo grant to Mr. HARGOUS, who now holds it, and has been urging the Mexican Government to put him in possession of the power here.

He makes three demands upon the Government of Mexico: First, the specific execution of the original Garay contract; second, ample indemnity for its violation—say $5,000,000; and third, the surrender to him of the Sloo franchise, under his mortgage.

If the Mexican Government refer the question to the Judiciary, as HARGOUS has expected and insisted, the the mortgage will be foreclosed. This is the more certain from the reason that the Chief-Justice, RAMIREZ, is a friend and partisan of HARGOUS, and an opponent of the Sloo grant.

A notice was given in due form by the Sloo Company to COMONFORT'S Government, that a common road was finished across the Isthmus before the 4th of February, and that Mr. PICHET had driven a horse and sulky over it. It has been doubted whether COMONFORT would consider this as sufficient. Different rumors have prevailed in regard to his decision. But yesterday the Vice-President of the Company, now in this city, received a telegraphic dispatch from New-Orleans, stating that a special messenger had arrived there from Mexico, bringing the official notice of the acceptance, by President COMONFORT, of the road as a fulfillment of the contract. I have no reason to doubt this; but we shall know whether it is so or not. The fact is of great moment, and will influence the action of this Government on the subject.

Supposing the fact to be so, the next step for the Sloo Company to take is to provide for the commencement of the railroad and its completion within the contract term. To effect this, the Company must first settle their own disputes, which threaten its dissolution, or at least to paralyze its action, and destroy its credit.

The Company, at the last annual election of President and Directors, removed Col. SLOO from the Presidency, and substituted Mr. NICOLL of New-Orleans. The new Direction went on with the common road, which is now opened, and made contracts for stocking it with lines of stage-coaches, &c. Col. SLOO applied to the Courts at New-Orleans for an injunction against the action of the new Board of Directors on account of alleged illegality of the election, which case is yet to be decided. A new general election will take place this month, when Col. SLOO may be replaced.

Meanwhile, Colonel SLOO has notified the Company that the right of the navigation of the Coatzacoalcos River does not belong to, and cannot be used by them, and is exclusively vested in himself. Without the river navigation the transit is worthless, and until this difficulty be settled, no capitalists will venture their money in the construction of the railroad.

The new Administration have become aware of the importance of securing the right of way for the Government and citizens of the United States across the Tehuantepec Isthmus, practicably as the most salubrious and expeditious travel, and as the other two inter-oceanic travels are given up to Fillibusterism, or to pirates, mobs, &c., it is not be supposed that the Panama Isthmus will be kept open after this Government shall resort to the coercive measures now in contemplation.

How to secure the right of way is now the subject of their inquiry. They have determined to make some attempt that way, through a new treaty, which Mr. FORSYTH is to be instructed to negotiate. They have sought information as to the "actual condition of the Tehuantepec Transit,"—the same information which you ask for in your paper of Thursday, and which I have given you in brief.

The agents and attorneys of the Hargous Company and the Sloo Company have been engaged in enlightening the members of the Administration in reference to their own respective claims and conditions. Each of these parties informs the Government that its own particular scheme and contract must be enforced, and that it will serve all the purposes of the Government and the public.

The Attorney General is carefully considering the whole subject.

NEWS FROM MEXICO—CENTRAL AMERICAN NEWS —THE MEXICAN QUESTION—MISCELLANEOUS.

The United States Mail steamship Black Warrior, J. W. SMITH, commander, sailed from New-Orleans at 8½ A. M., arrived at Havana at 1½ P. M. Sailed from there at 6 P. M. the same day, (14th inst.,) and arrived at this port at 8½ A. M., yesterday morning, making the entire run from New-Orleans to New-York in 6 days 18 hours.

From Havana, we have to report the Island healthy. Heavy rains have injured the Sugar crop. Sugars have advanced, owing to the anticipated shortness of the crop as compared with last year's. Stock at Havana, 160,000 boxes against 230,000 at the same time last year. Muscovadoes are quoted at from 10 to 13 rials per arobe. The market is very much excited. Money plentiful. Exchange improving. Freights very dull.

The United States ship Saratoga was in port.

April 16, lat. 37° 34' N., lon. 74° 24' west, spoke brig Favorita, steering south, her deck lined with men. The captain reported bound to Honduras.

HAVANA, Tuesday, April 14, 1857.

The two last steamers from Mexico have brought nothing interesting in the news line. The country in general may be considered quiet except in the northern provinces, where the Indians are committing great ravages. The new Constitution had been published in nearly all the Departments, and gave general satisfaction, except to a very few of the old-school who had refused to take the oath of allegiance, and were removed by COMONFORT in consequence thereof. The Spanish organ, published in the City of Mexico, was suppressed for publishing seditious articles. The greater part of the pronounced Generals were at Mexico, awaiting their trials. The only one yet not taken was MEJIA, who had some three hundred men under his command, in the mountains. The news of the failure of FORSYTH'S treaties seems to have disconcerted the Administration. Such a result was not anticipated, as COMONFORT relied on those funds for his election to the Presidency under the new Constitution. Private advices state that he was leaving no stone unturned to effect some arrangement with FORSYTH, by means of which he might command funds to buy popularity with the masses of the Mexican people.

The United States sloop of war Saratoga has just arrived from Greytown, and confirms the previous advices of WALKER'S being in a very tight place. The general impression is that he cannot hold out much longer, unless he receives powerful aid from some source. The "hero of Kansas," Col. TITUS, who was represented by Southern journals to be capable of doing marvelous deeds, has turned out to be about on a par with the rest of the adventurers who have gone to Nicaragua, who are always crying out victory, though they always retreat and lose ground. It would be well for BUCHANAN to send a national vessel into those waters, for the purpose of giving protection and a free passage to all who may be tired of the ungrateful task of civilizing the benighted Central Americans. People in this part of the world are well convinced that what has been enacted in Nicaragua would have been done here, had the fillibusters have succeeded in getting the upper hand. Civilization, just laws and a firm government are great blessings, but not when administered by the lawless hordes that have cursed the soil of Nicaragua.

General CONCHA has received official intelligence o his appointment as commander in-chief of the army of invasion. Generals ESTRADA and MENDINUETA will act under his orders. Two thousand men are now under weigh for Cuba. The Spanish Government will also send a naval division to the Pacific, in order more easily to reach ALVAREZ, the prime mover of all these disturbances. Señor LAFRAGUA had reached Madrid, but nothing had yet transpired of his instructions, or what concessions the Spanish Government would be willing to make. I have been informed that CONCHA has received some very important dispatches from the Spanish Minister at Washington, in reference to the Mexican question, that will make him act with the greatest precaution in this delicate matter. The bearer of these dispatches, a foreign Minister, is here now, and he has expressed his opinione quite freely on the subject. His long residance at Washington, and intimate knowledge of the American people, give his words a weight that no other could have. Still Spain keeps up all the appearances of a warlike disposition, but this may be only for effect at home.

The Vestvali Opera troupe, lately from the City of Mexico, have arrived and will give a few performances at the Tacon. Col. WOOD with his human curiosities is also here and doing well.

BOMBAY, Thursday, March 5, 1857.

The Peninsular and Oriental Company's steamer Bombay will depart at 5 o'clock to-morrow morning, with mails and passengers for Aden and Suez. I embrace the opportunity to send you an account of the recent battle between the British and Persian troops near Bushire, which is the first field collision between these hostile forces since the commencement of the campaign.

The news of this battle reached us day before yesterday by the steamer Victoria, which arrived direct from Bushire, bringing dispatches from Lieutenant-General Sir JAMES OUTRAM, commanding expeditionary force in the Persian Gulf, to Sir JAMES SOMERSET, Commander-in Chief at Bombay. I subjoin portions of General OUTRAM'S dispatch, published in the Bombay Times this morning, which you will find to be interesting:

CAMP NEAR BUSHIRE, Tuesday, Feb. 10, 1857.

SIR: I have the honor to report a signal victory over the Persian Army, commanded by SHOOJAOOL-MOOLK in person, on the 8th instant.

The enemy's loss in killed and wounded must have been very great. It is impossible to compute the exact amount, but from the number of bodies which strewed the ground of contest, extending several miles, I should say that full 800 must have fallen. Two brass 9-pounder guns, with their carriages and horses, 6 mules, laden with ammunition, and several hundred stand of arms, were taken; and the Persian Commander-in-Chief, with the commander of his Army, only escaped annihilation owing to the numerical weakness of our Cavalry.

The loss on our side is, I am happy to say, comparatively small, attributable to the rapid advance of our Artillery and Cavalry, and the well directed fire of the former, which almost paralyzed the Persians from the commencement.

The circumstances preceding this satisfactory termination of a brief but ardnous campaign, I now proceed to detail:

On the 27th ult., I landed at Bushire, and assumed the command of the army. The vast preparations of the Persian Government for the Bushire then came to my knowledge. SHOOJA-OOL MOOLK, who commands the Persian troops, had assembled a force, said to amount to 8,500, at the town of Burazjoon, 46 miles distant from Bushire, and entrenched his position. This army was well supplied with food and ammunition, of which considerable magazines had been collected. It was intended that this force should form the nucleus of a very large army to be assembled for the recapture of Bushire.

The 1st Brigade 2d Division, which arrived on the 31st ultimo and 1st instant, was landed by the 2d, and on the evening of the 3d, the troops consisting of 420 Sabres, 4,200 Infantry (of which 2,200 were European) accompanied by an ordnance train of 18 guns, marched from this camp without tents or extra clothing of any sort, each man carrying his great coat, blanket, and two days' cooked provisions, the Commissariat being provided with three days' in addition; the protection of the camp and town of Bushire being duly provided for by a detachment of troops under the command of Lieutenant Colonel SHEPHARD, reinforced by a party of seamen from all the ships in the harbor, which the senior naval officer was so good as to place at my disposal.

After a march of 46 miles in 41 hours, during which the troops were exposed to the worst of weather, cold nights, and deluging storms of rain, they reached the enemy's entrenched position on the afternoon of the 5th, and found it abandoned; the enemy on hearing of our approach, had evacuated their entrenchments the previous night so precipitately that their tents and camp equipage and ordnance magazines were left behind. The former were being rapidly carried off by village plunderers operating for some hours before we arrived. I endeavored to intercept the retreat of some of the "Elikhanee's" Horse, who had held the camp during the night, and were still in sight, and a little skirmishing took place, but eventually they made off.

The enemy having succeeded in withdrawing their guns to the strong passes, where I did not deem it prudent to follow them, and being satisfied with the moral effect of our occupying their position for two days. I decided upon moving the troops back to Bushire. The return march was accordingly commenced on the night of the 7th, first destroying their magazines, found to contain about 40,000 lbs. of powder, with small-arm ammunition, and a vast quantity of shot and shell, and carrying away large stores of flour, rice, and grain, which the Persian Government had been collecting for a long time past for their army; thereby effectually crippling their future operations. Some of their guns are supposed to have been cast into wells, and as their wheels and axles fell into our hands, it will be impossible they can be used again for the present.

At midnight an attack was made upon the rear guard by the enemy's horse, and parties threatened the line of march on every side. The troops were halted, and so formed as to protect the baggage, and resist the horsemen in whatever direction they might attempt to charge. Four of the enemy's guns of heavy metal opened their fire upon the column, whilst the darkness of the night prevented any steps being taken to capture them.

I should here state that, on abandoning their position, SHOOJA-OOL MOOLK, with his force, had taken the direct road to Shiraz by the "Meak Pass," and the Elikhanee, with his horse, had retired by the one leading to the "Haft Moolia;" and, from information subsequently received, I learn that they had planned a combined attack on our camp the night we marched! Indeed, the explosion of their magazines gave them the first intimation of our departure, when they hastened after us in the expectation of being able to attack us on the line of march, and, possibly, create confusion and panic in the dark.

At daybreak the Persian force, amounting to between 6,000 and 7,000 men, with some guns, was discovered on our left rear (northeast of our line of march) in order of battle.

Our artillery and cavalry at once moved rapidly to the attack, supported by two lines of infantry, a third protecting the baggage. The firing of the artillery was most excellent, and did great execution; the Cavalry Brigade twice charged with great gallantry and success; a standard (of the Mashki Regular Infantry Regiment) was captured and the Cavalry charged a square, and killed nearly the whole regiment—indeed, upon the cavalry and artillery fell the whole brunt of the action, as the enemy moved away too rapidly for the Infantry to overtake them. By ten o'clock the defeat of the Persians was complete; two guns were captured, the gun ammunition, laden upon mules, fell into our hands, and at least 700 men lay dead upon the field. The number of wounded could not be ascertained, but it must have been very large. The remainder fled in a disorganized state, generally throwing away their arms, which strewed the field in vast numbers, and nothing but the paucity of our cavalry prevented their total destruction, and the capture of their remaining guns.

The troops bivouacked for the day close to the battle field, and at night accomplished a march of 20 miles (by another route) over a country rendered almost impassable by the heavy rain, which fell incessantly. After a rest of six hours, the greater portion of the Infantry continued their march to Bushire, which they reached before midnight; thus performing another most arduous march of 44 miles, under incessant rain, besides fighting and defeating the enemy during its progress, within the short period of 50 hours. The Cavalry and Artillery reached camp this morning.

Accompanying the dispatches of General OUTRAM, is a list of the ordnance and stores captured from the Persians; which shows how thoroughly they had prepared themselves for an assault upon the British Camp at Bushire.

The intelligence of this victory was received here with great enthusiasm, and a royal salute was immediately fired from the garrison in honor of the event. How much of a victory it really is, you can judge. The rout of the Persians at this juncture was certainly a fortunate thing for the British, as it frustrated the preparations which the Persians were making for a terrific assault upon Bushire, the result of which might have been to drive the invaders back to their ships. This is probably the last battle which will be fought between these hostile forces, for a rumor is current here, and is considered to be well founded, that the Shah of Persia, through his representative at the West, has agreed to the terms of peace dictated by England, and that the Home Government has ordered that no more troops be sent from India to the Persian Gulf. This is likely to be true; for in the event of Russia being unable or unwilling to support the Shah, he has no alternative but to submit to the terms dictated by Her Britannic Majesty. The people of India, who are sick of war taxes, will be glad to believe that they have got rid of the Persian war so early and so easily.

I mail this letter in the Overland "vid Marseilles," trusting that it will reach you in advance of the newspaper mail "vid Southampton," and thus give you early intelligence. There is no local news to report. The several Presidencies are quiet. Bank rates of interest remain unaltered since last mail. Freights have varied a little and may be quoted at £2 11s.@ £3 5s., for both London and Liverpool. American ships are in nearly every port on the coast.

Four of a Crew Dead—The Mate Arrested.

The United States District Attorney, and the United States Marshal were engaged on Friday and Saturday last, receiving affidavits charging LYMAN, the chief mate of the American ship Middlesex, with inflicting cruel and unusual punishment upon one of his crew named WILLIAM SMITH, and planning his arrest. Four of the crew, who died during her late voyage from Liverpool, are thought to have received harsh treatment. LYMAN was held in the sum of $500, to appear for examination before a Commissioner on Saturday afternoon, but it was decided to lay the case before the United States Grand Jury immediately, and consequently the proposed examination did not take place.

The Fillibusters and the Tennessee.

In our account of a dinner given by a brother of Col. FRANK ANDERSON, to a number of the fillibusters who returned in the Tennessee, it was stated that they had received no food for twenty-four hours previous. Several gentlemen who came passengers in the Tennessee, have called to say that the Reporter was misinformed, and that such was not the case; that there was an abundance of food, and that owing to the small number of cabin passengers, fresh provisions were served in the steerage during the entire voyage—which is what steerage passengers seldom get. On the passage out resolutions of thanks for kind attention, were passed unanimously in favor of Capt. PATTERSON, and the Purser, Dr. HATCH. They state that they were as well cared for as when sailing with her old commander, the deservedly popular Capt. TINKLEPAUGH.

The Nicaragua Head-quarters Abolished.

ALEXANDER C. LAWRENCE, Esq., is about to close up the well-known St. Charles' Saloon, of which he has been proprietor for the last seven years, and retire from the business. The St. Charles is somewhat celebrated as the favorite place of reunion of fillibuster spirits. Those heroes of many a well fought musquito and "nigger" engagement in Nicaragua, who used to congregate there in bright regimentals, and discuss WALKER'S "last" brilliant victory, over "Sandy's" ale, must now look out for another rendezvous. Mr. LAWRENCE has taken a lease of the St. Charles' building for a period of five years, and will still retain an office there as Nicaraguan agent. Mr. GOELING, the restaurateur, has engaged the first floor and basement, and will soon remove his business thither.

Clonians.

Gov. (of Kansas) ROBERT J. WALKER attended a meeting of the Clionian Society of the Free Academy on Friday evening last, at No. 2 Clinton Hall, on which occasion the pro's and con's of the Dred Scott decision of the Supreme Court were considered. Messrs. WERNER and JELLIFFE arguing against, and Mr. WHEELER in favor of its binding force upon the people of the United States. The Governor is an honorary member of the Clionian.

Correspondence of the New-York Daily Times.

PARIS, Thursday, April 2, 1857.

The comments of the French press on the trial of CARPENTIER and GUILLOT, are anything but flattering to American justice. The rules of procedure, in the first place, are so contrary to French notions of law, that they cannot comprehend them, no more than they can comprehend the acts of violence that attended the proceedings. They cannot understand why an important case should be heard before a Court which, in open sitting, declares its incompetency, or why individuals are permitted with impunity to appropriate papers by force.

After all the journals had published their criticisms on this singular trial, the Constitutionnel issued its opinions in a leader, four columns long. The article is too long to reproduce in your columns, and yet it is too interesting in many respects to allow to pass without an extract. The article is signed by "A. CHASSEREAU DE CASSAGNAC, Deputé au Corps Legislatif," a signature we now rarely see in the columns of the Government journal, especially since the commencement of the Legislative session. The article bears a caption in large bold-faced capitals, "Des Garanties Legales," a circumstance as rare in a leader of the Constitutionnel as in a leader of the London Times. These circumstances give the article importance, and, as usual, the paternity of its opinions is charged to the Government. The Constitutionnel says:

"We have spared the reader the incredible accusation to which M. DE MONTHOLON was subjected on the date of the day on which he was named Consul-General, as well as on the color of the sealing-wax with which his commission was sealed: the whole in an affair of extradition directed against thieves in possession of the objects stolen. What are we to expect of a tribunal in the bosom of which a lawyer insults in the face of the public attorney, who charges him to a thief! We demand further, what ought to be the powers of a judge, to that point powerless in his own court, that after having declared that he could only permit papers to be subtracted from foreigners, under his eyes, he, nevertheless, reduced to raising his voice against the theft, having no legal powers to suppress it.

Individuals preoccupied with the importance which forms acquire, in the interest of justice, may perhaps be willing to attenuate to this point of view, the atrocities we point out. These individuals should be reminded that the country where the robbers of the Northern Railroad are being tried is the same country where, very frequently, a dozen of persons come together on their own authority, condemn a man to be hanged, and hang him to the nearest tree; the same country where people sometimes force open prisons to withdraw men declared innocent by justice, to massacre them; the same country where, almost every day they civil or shoot each other in the street, and even on the floor of the national representative hall, without other results after such exploits than the laugh at those who fell underneath. It was not therefore a veneration for forms, a respect, even exaggerated, for the laws, which presided, either at the examination of M. DE MONTHOLON, or at the theft of the private despatches belonging to the archives of the French consulate; it was the too general, too profound, too cynical contempt of equity, of the magistrates, and of honor."

After referring to the late murder of a French child at the Island of Jersey, M. DE CASSAGNAC concludes thus:

"France is incontestably the country, of all the world, where there is the most sociability—the most morality. It is the country where the people have, in the highest degree, the sentiment of what is right, of what is honorable, of what is just. We would not tolerate, in France, neither a representative selling his vote, nor a candidate buying his seat, nor a Judge making an oppressed man wait for justice. The murder of a child, committed in public, and going unpunished, as at Jersey, would cause a riot at Paris, and it would not be in the power of any Government to refuse a legitimate satisfaction to an indignant public conscience.

Let us not, therefore, envy the laws of other nations. There is no other country where the citizens is so completely protected against injustice or violence of all kinds as in France. Happy are the nations who know how to support the laws, and who fortify them by their respect! These are the nations veritably civilized, for civilization does not consist only in the more or less of light: it is especially the voluntary submission to duty."

The American population of Paris were thrown into consternation on Friday last by the news that the old-established and popular banking-house of GREENE & Co., in the Place St. Georges, had suspended payment that morning. This house, established more than thirty years ago by Mr. WELLS, of Boston, has constantly been the principal banking-house for Americans in Paris. At a later period Mr. GREEN, of Boston, became a partner, and finally the head of the house. The house then took the name of GREENE & Co. After Mr. GREEN'S death, which occurred in this city a few years ago, the house was organized as it at present exists: Mrs. GREEN, the widow, taking into partnership two of her sons-in-law, Mr. VANDENHEUVEL, a Hollander, and Mr. CHARLES A. GREEN, of Boston. Thus constituted, with Mr. VANDENHEUVEL in the chief direction, the house has continued to do business under the name of GREEN & Co.

The business of this house has been immense, and the confidence in its solvability unbounded. As an example of this confidence, they have held at times, I am informed by members of the firm, single deposits of as high as a hundred thousand dollars. Some time ago this house engaged with a French commission house, DUTHEIL & Co., in a grand speculation in merchandise in Guatemala. GREENE & Co. advanced the funds to carry on this enterprise. The Walker war breaking out, the speculation was soon found to be a bad one, but in the hope that the war would soon cease, or that some other means would be discovered of saving the money already advanced GREEN & Co. continued to furnish funds until they had reached a figure somewhere between two and three millions of francs. At last the house found themselves obliged to withdraw their support from the enterprise, DUTHEIL & Co. failed in consequence, and drew GREEN & Co. with them. This is the history of the affair.

The house feels confident in being able to resume payment again. Their principal depositors, who are Americans residing either temporarily or permanently in Paris, seem disposed to be indulgent. Eighteen months is asked by the house as a limit in which to meet all their liabilities. So strong is the confidence in the house, that, whilst its enemies declare it an irretrievable failure, its friends maintain a faith in its capabilities which even this suspension has not shaken. If the failure had occurred in the United States, where more latitude in business transactions is allowed, the resumption of payment would be less difficult; but in the hands of the French syndic, what little vitality is left in an unfortunate house, is sure to be crushed out.

In the meantime the rival and the only other American banking-house in Paris, that of JOHN MUNROE & Co., Rue de la Paix, with a magnanimity that does the house the highest honor, has nobly come to the rescue of the most needy sufferers by this failure. There is at all times a large number of Americans traveling through Europe and the East, on circular letters obtained at the banking-house of GREEN & Co., on money deposited with them. The unfortunate position in which these individuals will be placed by this failure, in a far-off and strange country, suddenly deprived of resources to pay even a hotel bill, not to mention traveling expenses, can be easily realized. At the instance of Mr. GREEN, Mr

...ridged and consolidated, and on such terms as to secure to her a large amount of the interest from the whole of her former fortune. Her profits were to be paid to His Holiness and to her that his people would murmur unless one or more of his own subjects were sharers in the enterprise. CHRISTINA was obliged to consent, and the Pope's Chief Minister, the Cardinal ANTONELLI, was added to the document of cessation—still maintaining the affair in the family.

The Pope, not satisfied with the mania of modern progress, must determine on establishing a National Bank,—a National Bank in Rome! Queen CHRISTINA and the Cardinal ANTONELLI again appear as principal operators. It is even hinted that they, and they alone, are the veritable authors of the scheme, with the great object of their preponderating subscriptions to the bank greatly facilitate. It is true, the name of the Pope stands at the head of the list of subscribers to the capital stock, but that was only out of etiquette, the capital stock, but that was only out of etiquette, and it is absolutely followed by those of CHRISTINA and ANTONELLI, that it is not difficult to imagine where their real places are. But it looks oddly, all the same, to see the name of the successor of Peter and Paul, the guardian of the keys of the Church on earth, head the list of subscribers to a doubtful bank speculation in such company as that of Queen CHRISTINA of Spain! Adversity and that other destroyer of human calculations, progress, make sad work with superstition and the faith of our forefathers.

But this dishes all of CHRISTINA's late speculations. She has just ruined out of cringing poverty that poor M. GRIMALDI, Prince of Monaco, by buying the State salt manufactories. For years this last of the GRIMALDIS has been trying to sell something. Three years ago he tried to sell his State, as it is called, to the American Minister in Paris. (The State is ten miles square, and contains a population of 6,000 souls!) Our Minister, kind hearted as he is, had the courage to refuse to relieve the wants of the starving Prince. Then he endeavored to induce the American Govern ment to buy a naval port on the lovely shores of his little seven-by-nine Kingdom. But his waters were too shallow, and again the Minister was obliged to steel his heart against the crying wants of the Prince. He has been more fortunate with the great ex-royal speculator of the South, and before five years, it would be safe to predict, M. GRIMALDI will find himself relieved entirely of the care of his over blossoming rose and orange-trees, his naval port, his salt manufactories, his God-forsaken and furniture-forsaken old palace, and his standing army of sixty ragged soldiers. CHRISTINA will snap her fingers at the Progressists of Spain. She will have a Kingdom of her own.

I have already told you how CHRISTINA "done" NAPOLEON lately in a house trade in the Rue de Courcelles; she is trading back to "do" the State largely on Salamanca, and she will surely accomplish it. for NAPOLEON is determined to place that house, so dear to Josephine and his uncle, in the hands of the State.

A considerable number of arrests were made, last week, for supposed to be of minor importance at the moment, but which proved to be a grave affair,—no less than a complot for an assassination of the Emperor, originated some what on the plan of the Opera Comique plot of three years ago. So soon as the affair acquired this magnitude, a more careful examination was made by the police, and this examination has brought the arrest of a large number of persons in addition to those already arrested. A document was found in the society from LEDRU ROLLIN, which so completely implicates this individual as the inventor of the plot, that it is said the French Government will demand of the English Government his extradition.

Since the last week's steamer, two of the leading French journals have received "warnings" from the Government. The first was given to the Presse, its third warning, for an attack on the Pope, contained in the last chapter of the interesting novel which Madame GEORGES SAND has just finished in that journal. The singular feature of this event is that at the same moment Madame SAND was engaged in a little polemic with MARIE, ARAGO and Gen. ULLOA, who had attacked her because in this new novel, La Daniella, she had attacked, according to them, the cause of Italian freedom.

According to the old definition of the law on the press, this warning to La Presse, being the third, ought to have suppressed it; according to the new definition found out of the Moniteur two months ago, the new notice reads, "a warning is given to La Presse," &c.,—so it makes no difference how many warnings they give, so long as they do not suppress the journal.

The other "warning" was given to the Catholic journal, the Univers, for an article on the case of the Bishop of Moulins, "which contained an attack on the laws of this Empire."

Mrs. STOWE left Paris a short time ago for Rome. We have just learned that a few days ago the celebrated author of Uncle Tom had a long interview with the Pope, in which she was treated with great distinction by His Holiness. MALAKOFF.

Rev. Dr. Bellows and the Actors.

In his last Thanksgiving sermon Rev. Dr. BELLOWS took occasion to speak of theatres and their relations to society, in a manner which led to the following correspondence, which sufficiently explains itself:

ALL SOULS' PARSONAGE,
NEW-YORK, Wednesday, Dec. 24, 1856.

To the Committee of Actors:

MY DEAR MR. WHITING: I address myself to you as an old friend and the spokesman of your brethren, and through you to the actors in general.

I have been much affected by the nature of the communication you made me yesterday. It touched my heart. Your extreme delicacy in first soliciting permission to extend to me a testimonial from your Brother artists, has added greatly to the obligations under which the generous proposition itself so heavily places me.

Feeling, as I do, that Providence has, in a most unexpected manner, opened a way for mutually profitable relations between your profession and mine, I dare not, and I am sure I attest possible from being inclined to measure the expression of good will you propose. But, for your sake and mine, I have deemed it desirable—if such a course be acceptable to your friends—to propose a change in the form of your intimated future gift, connected in any way you please with my name, to some charitable institution—say the Children's Aid Society.

My reasons for this are, first, I think it a dangerous precedent for a clergyman to receive any valuable consideration for the expression of his sober and genuine convictions on any subject, in the pulpit; and particularly when he vindicates a cause against which honest and serious prejudices already exist. How easily may his motives be misconstrued, and his influence abridged?

Secondly, I am wholly unconscious of meriting any peculiar mark of your respect. I have said nothing in the discourse to which you refer, that I have not said before in the pulpit. I have suffered nothing for saying it, and I have a thousand times over my reward, were any truly deserved, in the spontaneous and affecting tribute of your respect contained in the bare communication of your design.

I could not consent even to the diversion of the least portion of your hard earned savings in my name to any object whatever, were I not anxious to avoid giving the least chill to your valued and generous response to a few words of mere justice to your abused calling.

And, now, my dear Sir, I am going to turn the tables and put myself under great obligations to you and your profession—if indeed, it may be allowed. Your brother actors have been gratified with a few imperfect sentences in my late Thanksgiving Sermon, hinting at rather than discussing the claims of the stage, and the responsibility of the actor's vocation. I very much desire the opportunity of giving, at length, my views of the claims, the advantages, the responsibilities, and the dignities of your profession, in an address to actors and actresses. If attention is publicly drawn to the subject, it should be closely drawn to it, and if my views are important, you ought to know them in full.

I should consider it an opportunity of unexampled interest, to see the men and women of your profession, on whom depends so much of the exhilaration, artistic culture and real destiny of this community, brought together in a serious assembly, to hear words of encouragement, sympathy, friendly counsel, sober warning and honest criticism from a minister of religion, who would engage not to wound their proper self respect, and not to take advantage of their confidence.

If my proposition shall suit your fellow artists, I shall gladly confer with a committee of them on any preliminaries of time and place; as I shall certainly make it my duty and pleasure to comply with every wish of their hearts in bringing our building friendship to full flower.

Very cordially and gratefully, your friend,
HENRY W. BELLOWS.

P. S.—I wish the contents of this note to be specially communicated to Mr. BROUGHAM, with whom I have had a deeply interesting interview.

This brought the following letter from Mr. JOHN [illegible], the distinguished comedian, who, I understand, had been very active in the business:

The Deseret News of Jan. 28, has a long article on the relations of Utah to the Federal Government, and, speaking officially, is defiant. It says:

"So far as the free, untrammelled consent and expressed wishes of the governed are concerned, should the majority of the citizens in a Territory choose to waive their constitutional rights and prefer a state of vassalage, a state of being ruled by officers thrust upon them, and legislated for by usurped authority, we see no reason why their choice should not be complied with, at least upon the principle of the voluntary consent of the governed. But when said majority, even to the extent of an entire community, are known to most persistently prefer officers of their own election to those foisted upon them by arbitrary power, and pure republican laws of their own enactment, to laws carved, dictated and forced upon them by a power to which the Constitution gives no such authority, we are constrained to say that most truly are men prone to oppress their fellows. How long, think ye, can such oppression be quietly endured? How long, think ye, will any people submit to the dictates, slanders, corruptions, and abuse of officers whom they have no voice in electing, and whose efforts are constantly put forth to their utmost for the destruction of the people among whom they are sent? Suppose ye that the few dollars parsimoniously doled out by Congress can buy freemen to overlook such glaring inconsistencies?"

The Dalton Divorce Case in Boston.

The Boston Traveller of Saturday says: In the course of the trial of the DALTON divorce case yesterday, the counsel for Mrs. DALTON subjected Mr. COBURN to a most severe cross-examination. Mr. DURANT giving as a reason that he did so for the sake of establishing the character of the witness's moral principle, with a view to showing what his testimony was worth. The question "did you steal $1,700?" was repeated again and again; the witness evidently was wrought up to a high state of excitement, at being thus compelled to expose his own acts and the motives which led to it, before a crowded court; and at last, having permission to make an explanation, he seemed to nerve himself for the admission; his face was flushed, his eyes sparkled, and with vehement tone and voice full of emotion, he brought his hand down upon the bar, as he said: "I did take $1,700." During the merciless and business like attempt of the counsel to obtain this answer, the feelings of all present had become intensely excited, and the sister of Mr. COBURN, who had sat in the witness seats, weeping, threw herself into the arms of her neighbor in an agony of grief, and it was found necessary to lead her from the room. As she passed her brother, he partly stepped down from the stand, and her arms were in a moment wreathed around his neck as he assisted in taking her out. He soon returned, and quiet was restored, but it was some time before proper attention could be paid to the proceedings by the interested spectators.

SUPPOSED ARREST OF THE CANADIAN MURDERER TOWNSEND.—A man calling himself ROBT MCHENRY, was arrested in Cleveland on Saturday evening, on suspicion of being TOWNSEND, the outlaw, who a year or two since committed several murders and robberies in Canada West, and terrorized the people of that section when he perpetrated his crimes. The prisoner says he sailed from this country in 1852, and has been with WALKER in Nicaragua. A man who claims to have known TOWNSEND in Canada, identifies the person in jail at Cleveland as that murderer.

The railroad bridge which was carried away by the recent freshet at Oldtown, Me., was a new one, nearly completed, 300 feet long, and the loss is $10,000.

SUPREME COURT—SECOND DISTRICT

GENERAL TERM—POUGHKEEPSIE.

Day Calendar for Monday, April 20, 1857. Nos. 65, 66, 68, 69, 70, 72, 73, 74, 77, 78, 79, 80, 81, 82, 83.

UNITED STATES CIRCUIT COURT—APRIL 18.

Before Judge Nelson.

The cases of Alexander A. Pomeroy vs. The New-York and New-Haven Railroad Company, and Clark, Dodge & Co., vs. The Same—were brought before the Court this morning. These are cases arising out of the Schuyler frauds, brought by the plaintiffs, who are residents and citizens of this State, against the defendants as residents and citizens of Connecticut, to recover the value of certificates of stock issued by Schuyler and purchased by them. The defendants deny that the Company was found within this State so as to be in any proper way served with process, the summons having been served upon Wm. Bement, the Treasurer, at the Company's office in this City. To this plea the plaintiffs reply that the laws of the State of New-York in relation to the Company, are such as to make them inhabitants of this State. And to this replication the defendants demur, claiming that the plaintiffs replication states them out of Court, as it makes the Company citizens of the State of New-York, and the plaintiffs and defendants are not therefore citizens of different States.

The demurrer was argued by Mr. Noyes for the Company, and by Mr. Lord and Mr. Rutherford for the plaintiffs.

John Graham vs. Mayer & Stueben.—This case came up on demurrer to the complaint of the plaintiff claiming the interposition of the Court to set aside, on the ground of usury and fraud, transfers made by him to the defendants of the steamships Ocean Bird, St Lawrence, and United States. The defendants demur on several grounds; that the plaintiff must first offer to restore all the moneys advanced by the defendants before he can ask any relief beyond the mere cancellation of the contract; that the relation of borrower and lender is shown by the complaint not have existed between the parties; that if the law of the State of New-York is to govern, the plaintiff had an entire remedy at law, and this Court will not, therefore, entertain this suit in equity.

The demurrer was argued by Judge Dean for the defendants, and Mr. Cutting for the plaintiff.

SUPREME COURT—SPECIAL TERM—April 15.

Before Hon. Justice Mitchell.

DISSOLUTION OF PARTNERSHIP—SURRENDER OF AGREEMENT.

Paul Spofford vs. Amos M. Hatch.—In the year 1818 these gentlemen entered into partnership in the boot and shoe business in Haverill, Mass. Mr. Spofford was to remain in this City to sell goods forwarded him by Mr. Hatch, on commission. In 1828 Mr. Hatch came to this City and entered into business, but without having any formal dissolution of partnership. Mr. Spofford managed to make money, while Mr. Hatch lost it, and in 1846 was declared to be bankrupt.

In the year 1847 the defendant filed a complaint in the late Court of Chancery, against the plaintiff, for an account under an alleged partnership. The defendant in that suit (the plaintiff in this) put in an answer, but the case was not further prosecuted. While the suit was pending the then plaintiff, Hatch, commenced a suit of account, in the State of Connecticut, naming damages at $600,000, and the cause of action upon the same alleged partnership. In 1853 the suit first commenced by Hatch was discontinued, and the present suit is brought by Spofford to compel the surrender of the instrument of alleged copartnership upon which the former suit in this State, and the pending suit in Connecticut, was brought, and the receipt, by injunction, of any suit being brought upon the instrument. A temporary injunction was granted, which the defendant, yesterday, moved to discharge.

The case is of some interest, as it involves the character of a prominent merchant in this City, and raises some questions of law which, when decided, will be of importance.

For plaintiff, Butler, Evarts, Southmayd and Mr. [illegible], Carpenter and Woodhull Mr. Geo. [illegible].

SUPERIOR COURT—GENERAL TERM.

Before Hall Sedgwick and Duer, Justices.

DECISIONS.

Draper vs. Hennington.—Order of Special Term reserved without costs.

SPECIAL TERM.

Before Hon. Justice Slosson.

Rogers vs. Varona—Motion granted on terms.

The Manhattan Gas Company vs. Jackson.—Motion granted.

COMMON PLEAS—SPECIAL TERM.

Before Judge Ingraham.

Wm. B. Smith vs. Samuel D. Woodruff.—Motion to dismiss appeal granted, unless appellant amend, &c.

John W Crane vs. Deborah Wyatt.—Motion denied with $10 costs to defendant, to abide event.

THE COURT OF SPECIAL SESSIONS.

Business revived on Friday at the Court of Special Sessions. Recorder SMITH sat upon the Bench. The first prisoner placed at the bar, was James Gomprecht, aged 40 years, charged with defrauding one James Gorr, an eating-house keeper, out of money due for what he had eaten. Gomprecht, it appears, was in the habit of dining at Gorr's eating-house. His conduct on more than one occasion excited doubts of his honesty, and he was finally closely watched, and detected in the act of paying at the counter for twelve cents worth of food, when in reality he had had a much larger quantity. He was searched, when checks belonging to Mr. Gorr and amounting to $14 were found upon him, thus proving that he had been for a long time carrying on a system of petty fraud and obtaining his meals at less than half-price, by retaining the real check and offering at the counter and paying for a much smaller one. The case was clear. The prisoner had not a word to say, and he was sentenced to the Penitentiary for three months.

John Richards, a colored waiter, was arraigned for an assault with a razor upon Eli Bayley. Both parties were colored waiters. The assault was committed about a week since at the corner of Fourth-street and Lafayette place and was witnessed by about a dozen other colored waiters, all of whom but one were put upon the stand in the prisoner's behalf. The Recorder after listening to the case and the arguments of the Counsel for the defence, concluded that justice would be done by confining Richards in the City Prison for fifteen days, and he ordered him to be so committed.

John Fox was brought up for beating his wife Ann. He had been in prison several days awaiting trial, and when placed at the bar looked greatly depressed. "What have you to say for yourself, Fox?" asked the magistrate. The prisoner hung his head, and whispered "Nothing, Sir."

"Your cowardly assault upon your wife," continued the magistrate "deserves the severest punishment."

"Oh, pray, sir," interposed the wife, "let him go this time, if you please. He struck me, 'tis true, but then, perhaps, I was a little to blame, and I now freely forgive him; indeed I do freely forgive him sincerely forgive him!"

"If I let you go this time, Fox," said the magistrate, "will you promise me not again to beat your wife?"

"O, on my oath your Honor, I'll neither lay hand nor foot to her, if you let me go."

"Well, you may go. I shall suspend judgment: but mind you, just so sure as you are brought here again for a similar offence, just so sure will I send you to the Penitentiary for six months: go. They retired together.

Thomas Kenney, a colored lad, aged about 14 years, was sent up for three months for an attempt to steal about one dollar's worth of pennies from a till of a corner grocery. A policeman caught him in the act.

Henry B. Dixon was brought forward for beating his wife, Mary Ann, a young and delicate-looking woman. Mrs. Dixon was placed in the witness' stand, but she told the circumstances of the assault with great reluctance. Dixon expressed himself sorry for the offence.

"You were drunk when you beat her, were you not, Dixon?" inquired the Magistrate.

"I was, your Honor," replied the prisoner.

"So I supposed; you seem penitent for your brutal and unnatural treatment of this delicate woman, whom you pledged yourself to love and cherish. I am always disposed to punish such offenders as you with the extreme penalty of the law, but in your case I am induced to suspend judgment, at the solicitation of your wife, and upon your promises for future good behavior. I will suspend judgment. You may go."

Andrew Williams pleaded guilty to stealing two dollars worth of lead pipe from a store in Thomas-street. He was an old offender, and was sentenced to Blackwell's Island for six months.

John Moran stole some shirting from a store in Houston-street. He didn't know why he did. Two months on the Island.

Winefred Sullivan took an overcoat worth $25 without consent of the owner; she did it, but didn't know why, unless the devil tempted her. She appeared ashamed of her conduct; and stated that she was recently from Philadelphia, and had lived with a family in Third avenue. The police could not recognize her as an old offender, and the Magistrate ordered her "to be sent back until Tuesday," that he might ascertain her antecedents.

"Catharine," said the Recorder, "you are accused of stealing a piece of carpeting worth $3; what have you to say."

"I went out to wash, Sir," replied Catharine, "and I saw the piece of rag lying about; I thought it was of no use, so I took it."

"Is that your child?"

"She is, Sir."

"Where is your husband?"

"He is at sea, Sir."

"Does he not assist you?"

"O, yes, Sir; he always leaves me half his pay to draw. I expect him home now every day, and don't, for God's sake, Judge, send me up now!"

"Have you ever been in the Penitentiary?"

"Never, Sir."

"Have you ever been here before?"

"Well, ye-s, Sir, once, when I took a little sup of beer."

"Only once—is that all?"

"That's all, Sir."

"Now, I know better, Catharine, you have been here before, I know you."—(To an officer.)—"Ask Mrs Foster to come up here a moment."

Mrs. Foster soon arrived, and recognized Catharine as a very old offender.

"I thought so," said the Magistrate. "Six months, Mr. Vandervoort."

Investigation as to the Marriage of Dr. Hardell to Mrs. Emma A. Cunningham.

PROCEEDINGS BEFORE THE SURROGATE.

Saturday, April 18.

In response to the Surrogate he said he lived at No. 18 Grand-street, was forty-five years of age and not in any particular business now. To Mr. Tilden he stated that he had known the late Harvey Burdell for something like ten years; that he had seen him some two days before his death in Broad-street; that he had had business transactions with him a number of times; that either on Monday or Tuesday, the 27th or 28th of October last, he was not sure which, but he thought it was the 28th, he went to his (Dr. Burdell's) house on business and inquired for the Doctor; that he was told by the boy who came to the door that the Doctor was not in, and had gone away; that he inquired for Mr. Smith and asked him when the Doctor would come home; that not seeing the Doctor he told Mr. Smith he did not go there for nothing and bought a box of tooth-powder and paid for it, of course; that in paying for it, the price being 50 cents, he was one or two cents short; and that he knew the time he had gone there by other business transactions he had had at the same time.

Witness—Business relations?

Counsel—Yes, Sir.

Witness—Yes. I had, previous to his moving to Bond street, or rather after he got there. I loaned some money of him.

Q.—You borrowed money of him? A.—I loaned him money and I paid him all up when he moved to Bond-street.

Q.—I did not ask you about that. Was thet the last business you had with Dr. Burdell prior to the time he went to Bond-street? A.—No, I did not settle with him until after he went to Bond-street.

Q.—Was that then the last business you had to do with him? A.—The settlement on the money I borrowed was the last business on money matters of any amount that I had with him.

Q.—When was that? A.—I cannot exactly fix the date but I have got it; I could tell by looking at my papers.

Q.—What year was it? A.—It was the same year as he moved up there to Bond-street—the next month after he got there.

Counsel—I did not ask that; I asked what year it was.

Witness—Well, I have just answered it; if you will give me time to examine the papers, I will tell you the date and the hour.

Q.—You can tell the hour? A.—I can if I know what time I was there—what time I paid him.

Q.—Then you rely upon your papers and not upon your recollection for the year in which you paid him? A.—Well, I never thought anything of the subject until you put it unto me now.

Q.—I don't ask you that. Do you remember the year you settled that transaction? A.—I do.

Q.—Well, what was it? A.—If I looked at my papers I could tell you.

Q.—That is not the question. Do you remember the year? A.—I should think it was some three years ago.

Q.—Is that as near as you can mention it? A.—I cannot elect a date; I don't know and I cannot tell.

Q.—Then you cannot tell the year? A.—No; I [illegible] it was two or three years ago; but you put a question to me like this which, I never thought anything about; I will not answer a question unless I know it correctly.

Q.—What day of the week was it? A.—If I could tell you that, I could tell you the year. If you give me fifteen minutes I will tell you everything you want.

Q.—You mean the papers will show and not your memory? A.—Well, I don't commit anything to memory.

Q.—What was the amount of that money you borrowed of him?

Witness—The amount?

Counsel—Yes. A.—Something between seven and eight hundred dollars.

Q.—You recollect the day of the week then on which you bought the tooth powder, and the date, but you cannot remember the date of the settlement with Dr Burdell? A.—I recollect that, because it is a very short time ago.

Q.—What was there that makes you fix Tuesday as the day you called? A.—I said it was either Monday or Tuesday.

Q.—Did you not say you thought it was Tuesday? A.—I said it was either Monday or Tuesday; I thought it was on Tuesday.

Counsel—Well, that is what I ask. What makes you think it was on Tuesday? A.—Well, because I had other arrangements on business matters at that time.

Q.—What arrangement on business matters did you have on the day you bought that tooth powder?

Witness—What arrangement?

Counsel—Yes.

Witness—Well, I know by other money transactions, I had.

Q.—What are they? A.—About the time I went there.

Q.—What are they? A.—It was in the drawing of a note, if I mistake not, in a certain place where I was.

Q.—Where was it?

Witness—Where was it?

Counsel—Yes, where did you draw the note? A.—I drew one note at the house.

Q.—Your house, then, is a certain place? A.—And went down here—I was down here at the Washington Hotel.

Q.—Where is that? A.—Down here by the Battery; I drew some papers at my house.

Q.—Did you draw a note at the Washington Hotel? A.—I drew a note at the house, and went down to the Washington Hotel.

The Surrogate, who had been otherwise engaged for the last minute or two, here proceeded to question the witness. He elicited from him that the note was given to Mr. Blaisdell, (who, at this stage of the examination was ordered out of the room by the claimant's counsel,) and that it was for $500 and odd, but he could not recollect what it was to be used for; did not know where it was now; was not positive whether he had taken it up or not; had not seen it since; did not know where it was to be discounted, or whether it was given for discount or not; did not at that time owe Blaisdell anything that he knew of; could not tell whether the note was due or past due; did not know where it was payable; took no memorandum from Blaisdell for it, and did not know whether he had received the proceeds of it, or any part of them. He said, however, that he was not aware that he was going to be called on this morning, else he should have provided himself with all necessary information by reference to his papers.

Counsel for the claimant resumed his cross-examination, and questioned the witness as to the nature of the business relations between him and Blaisdell, who, it appears, had had a small interest in a liquor business carried on by the witness some time ago in Broad-street, and interrogated him closely as to the nature of his domestic relations with Mrs. Collins, his boarding-house keeper. The witness denied that he ever knew of her keeping a boarding house for kept mistresses, or that he ever passed her off as his wife, or that he ever answered to any other name than that of Richard C. Fagg, no matter what other people may have said of him or called him.

Mr. Tilden, at the close of the cross examination, said he had omitted to ask a question or two of the witness, as one of the contradicting witnesses of Mr. Marvine.

Mr. Dean replied that if the counsel wanted to contradict Mr. Marvine by this witness, he would not object. He was a good man for it.

The witness, in answer to Mr. Dean, said, as he left the stand: "Well, well, don't. The man may be good enough; you must understand his character is as good as yours. I will talk to you some time about that."

The next witness was Mrs. Catharine Stansbury, wife of W. H. Scansbury, accountant of the Evening Express. This lady testified to her having called several times on Dr. Burdell during the months of November and December last, for the purpose of making arrangements with him by which she should rent the house No. 31 Bond street from the 1st of May next. She detailed the conversations (mostly relating to Mrs. Cunningham) which took place between her and the deceased on those several occasions, and narrated the particulars of her last interview with him, on the afternoon previous to his death, when he stated to her that the papers were ready for signature, and expressed, as on the former occasions, his dislike to Mrs. Cunningham, his opinion as to her character, and his desire to get rid of her—all of which the witness believed Mrs. Cunningham herself overheard. This testimony was substantially the same as that given by the witness on the Coroner's inquest, and that was published in full in the TIMES' report of that proceeding.

The case was then adjourned until Tuesday, the 28th of April.

GRAIN—Wheat is in very light supply and fair request at firm prices. Sales have been reported of about 10,300 bushels, including very choice Western white at $1 70; good Southern white at $1 68; and prime do red at $1 64, ₩ bushel. Yesterday's sales were about 7,250 bushels. Rye is in demand, and is steady at 84c @86c. ₩ bushel. 5,730 bushels were disposed of, in lots, within the range. Barley and Barley Malt continue scarce, quiet and nominal in value. Oats are more inquired for, and are worth 57c @59c. for Western; 54c.@57c. for State; 53c.@55c. for Jersey; and 56c.@59c. for Southern, ₩ bushel. Corn continues in slack demand, chiefly for home use, at old rates. We have heard of sales of about 28,500 bushels at 71c.@71½c. for old Western mixed, in store; 70c.@74c. for new and old yellow, and 70c.@77c. for new and old White, ₩ bushel.

HAY—About 500 bales River found buyers, mainly at 70c.@75c. for shipment, and 87½c.@$1 for local use, ₩ 100 lbs.

HIDES—Mr H D HULL, Broker, informs us that "the market continues very languid, as dealers are unwilling to purchase in anticipation of their wants at present high rates and in the face of a decline in the manufactured article. But few of the recent arrivals are being offered, as most of the importers prefer storing rather than submitting to a large reduction, which would have to be made in order to effect sales to any extent. One of the principal causes of the sudden falling off in the demand is the extreme heavy imports and sales during the first three months of this year, amounting to nearly 475,000 Hides, most of which were sent out to the tanneries until March, giving the tanners a good supply up to the opening of canal navigation. We may confidently look for a better feeling in the market and an increased demand during the month of May, as most of the tanners near our large canals find it much cheaper to send their Hides and Leather by water than by railroad. Receipts this week have been very moderate, but exceed the sales, which have been quite light." The receipts this week are 10,127 Hides from Foreign ports, and 8,681 Coastwise, as follows: 4,437 Vera Cruz, ₩ Rapid, sold previous to arrival; 3,168 Savanilla, ₩ Abram & Linda; 2,418 Port au Platt and 134 Bermuda, and 8,681 Coastwise. Total, 18,818 Hides. Also, 15 bales Manilla Buffalo Hides, ₩ Jabaver, and 23 bales Calcutta Cow Hides, ₩ Brutus. Sales here are: 1,400 Dry Rio Grande, 21½ lbs. at 8c., 6 or 8 months, usual selection; 1,000 Dry Chagres, 19 lbs. at 8½c., 6 months, usual selection; 2,922 Dry Chagres, 16½ lbs. at 8½c., 6 months [illegible]; 300 Dry Vera Cruz, 15 [illegible] selling bad hides; 1,100 Dry [illegible] (middle and heavy) [illegible] country slaughter, to-day, 6c. cash; 1,200 Dry Curacoa for Philadelphia, on private terms; 2,500 Calcutta Slaughter Cows, on private terms. Expected to arrive shortly at this port: The H. A. Tessart, from Rio Grande, with 6,000 hides; the Gesine, from Orinoco, with 12,000 hides and others. The stock on hand of Ox and Cow Hides is 68,800, (same time last year 69,500—year before 86,450,) as follows: 9,500 Dry Buenos Ayres and Montevideo; 2,000 Dry Rio Grande; 24,000 Dry Orinoco; 5,800 Dry Savanilla; 5,700 Dry Porto Cabello; 2,400 Dry Port au Platte; 300 Dry Curacoa; 300 Dry St. Thomas, &c.; 400 Dry Jamaica; 900 Dry Demerara; 850 Dry Minas; 7,000 Dry Barcelona; 500 Dry Chagres; 250 Dry Vera Cruz; 6,500 Dry Mexican (old Havana and New-Orleans); 5,000 Dry and dry salted California; 2,500 Dry Southern and Texas; 300 Dry Manilla Buffalo; 1,500 Salted Buenos Ayres and Montevideo; 1,300 Salted California; 300 Dry Rio Grande Horse.

LEATHER—Mr. HULL states that "there has been a considerable falling off in the receipts this week, and sales, although light, exceed the receipts about 5,000 sides, but transactions have been made at a considerable decline in prices, as some of the dealers feel anxious to force their stock off at what it will bring; quotations are therefore nominal. The boot and shoe manufacturers are mostly curtailing their business, and complain that at the present prices of Leather they cannot make their goods pay, and consequently buy very sparingly and only for immediate consumption. There will certainly be no time this year when Leather can be manufactured to sell at present prices without incurring a loss to the tanner. Heavy weights, which are always in demand during August and September, are now quite unsalable. Oak tanned is in moderate demand at quotations."

LAURA KEENE'S NEW THEATRE,
No. 624 Broadway, near Houston-st.
Miss Laura Keene.....Sole Lessee and Directress.
Curtain rises at 7½ o'clock.
SIXTH NIGHT OF A NEW PIECE,
With new scenery and dresses. Music by Thos. Baker.
THE LOVE OF A PRINCE,
Adapted expressly for this Theatre by C. Gavior, Esq.
King Frederick of Prussia.....Mr. Bennett
Prince Frederick of Prussia.....Miss Laura Keene
Her sixth appearance since her Indisposition.
To conclude with, for the 34th time,
THE ELVES,
with all its beautiful scenery and dresses.
ARGUMENT.—The mountain forests of Fastoria are inhabited, it is said, by Fairies, Sprites and Elves, who, like the Phantom Dancers of Germany, delight to entrap travelers into their realms and torment them with their mischievous antics. Having the power of transferring the spirit, they often, in their malicious gambols, give life to the newly dead. Statues, rocks and trees are seen fantastically moving in the forest, but it is only during the DAY they retain their fictitious existence; at the approach of night they resume their immobility.
THE MONEY QUESTION, by Dumas, fils, will be produced immediately.

BROADWAY THEATRE.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

The Legislature finally adjourned on Saturday, at 10¼ o'clock. Previous to adjournment the Dred Scott resolutions were passed, after being modified so as to imply that the confidence of the People in the Court of Appeals has been impeached, but not lost. The usual ceremonies and courtesies were attendant upon the breaking up of the session.

Our relations with Mexico continue to engage the attention of the Administration, and special regard is paid to the necessity of securing the Tehuantepec Isthmus for the purposes of transit. Mr. FORSYTH has been instructed to undertake the negotiation of another treaty on this subject,—but difficulties have arisen in the Company which succeeded to the GARAY grant, which must first be settled before any satisfactory result can be reached. Our Washington correspondent gives a clear and interesting statement of the past action of the two governments upon this subject.

Hon. THOMAS J. D. FULLER, of Maine, has been appointed Second Auditor of the Treasury.

Next Saturday, the awards of the contracts for carrying the mails in New-York, New-England and other States, for a less period than four years, will be announced.

We have in a letter from Bombay, a report of a battle between the British and Persian troops,—which reaches us in advance of accounts by the English press. The engagement took place near Bushire, and according to the dispatches of the British Commanding General, ended in a decisive victory for the English,—the enemy losing 700 men. This probably will be the only engagemsnt during the war as, at the date of our correspondent's letter, news of the peace which had been concluded was looked for.

A dispatch from St. Louis states that HENRY J. ADAMS, the Free-State candidate, has been elected Mayor of Leavenworth, Kansas, by 180 votes over all others.

The St. Louis papers contain the inaugural address of the New Mayor of that City, in which he takes strong ground in favor of free white labor for the State of Missouri.

The Schuyler frauds came before the United States Circuit Court, Saturday, on a demurrer to the jurisdiction of the Court, involving the question only whether the New-Haven Railroad Company is a citizen of Connecticut, and if so, whether it is sufficiently an inhabitant of the State to be properly brought before the Court.

The suit brought by Captain GRAHAM against the firm of MAYER & STUCKEN to recover the steamers Ocean Bird, St. Lawrence, and a part of the United States, on the ground of usury in the contract between him and them, came up also in the United States Circuit Court, on a demurrer by the defendants to his complaint.

The Surrogate on Saturday continued the investigation as to the legality of Mrs. CUNNINGHAM's claim to a widow's portion of the Burdell estate. Two witnesses, Mr. RICHARD R. FAGG and Mrs. CATHARINE STANBURY, were examined. An adjournment took place until the 28th inst., when, it is likely, the case will be brought to a termination.

C. BROOKMAN, master of the American bark J. N. Brookman, was arrested on Saturday, charged with assaulting EDWIN WILSON, second mate of the said bark, with a belaying pin. He was held to bail in the sum of $750.

There were 397 deaths in the City last week—41 less than the number of the previous week. Of these 73 were men, 67 women, 147 boys, and 110 girls.

The Slavery question was under discussion in the M. E. Church Conference now in session in Brooklyn, on Saturday last. A Committee presented two reports—the majority against having anything to do with the question of Slavery, and the minority in favor of denouncing the evil everywhere at every opportunity.

A MISPLACED SERVICE OF PLATE.—Last Summer the grateful policemen of this City presented an elegant and costly service of silver plate to Hon. DANIEL E. SICKLES as a testimonial of their appreciation of his useful labors in defeating the Police bill in the State Senate. The presentation took place at DELMONICO's, and a sumptuous entertainment was served up which would have caused a London policeman to open his eyes with wonder at the magnificence with which his professional brethren on this side of the Atlantic are able to entertain a friend. Mayor WOOD made the presentation speech, and Mr. SICKLES in returning thanks for the splendid and "wholly unexpected" testimonial which his grateful constituents had bestowed upon him, narrated in a facetious and pleasant manner, the ingenious devices by means of which he had been able to defeat the Police Bill. His Honor, the Mayor, did not neglect the opportunity to bestow his malediction upon the Bill and its concoctors. But "where be their jibes now?" Mr. SICKLES has got his silver salver, pitchers, slop-basins, tea-pots and cream-pots, but the policemen and the Mayor have been utterly defeated, and, in spite of the presence of Mr. SICKLES in the Senate, a Police Commission has been created which is, in all respects, a more objectionable one to his party than that which he was rewarded for defeating. We would not advise Mr. SICKLES to return the service of silver to its donors, but it may not be amiss to drop a hint to other constituencies that it will be the safer plan in bestowing rewards for Senatorial labors, to be sure first that the object for which they are given has been secured.

The Election of Judges.

The tendency of recent legislation at Albany has been to restore to the Governor many of the privileges and "perquisites" of which the rigorous operation of the principle of popular sovereignty in late years had deprived him. The insatiable craving of the Democracy to have all public servants—let their grade be high or low, their duties great or small—directly responsible to the people, and directly dependent upon universal suffrage for their appointment, has reduced the first executive officer of the State to a position somewhat analogous to that of the Parliament of Paris in the halcyon days of the "Grand Monarque." From being a powerful and active corporation, vested with great powers and great responsibilities, he has sunk gradually down into a mere registrar of edicts. The sovereign people hold its "bed of justice" regularly, and he kneels at its feet to hear and obey. During the Session which is just being brought to a close a disposition has been shown to clothe him with some of his ancient glories, or, in other words, to make some officials dependent upon him for the tenure of their posts, or responsible to him for the proper performance of their duties. Several important offices have been placed in his gift.

We think we may fairly take this as an indication that the public is beginning at least to doubt whether the mass of the citizens is really as good as an executive as a deliberative body; whether the work of government is so well carried on by making nearly every public servant dependent upon a majority of the votes of the whole country for the tenure of his place, as upon the approbation of a single superior; whether, in short, a million of men acting all together are competent to execute every detail of the administration of a great State. Where the line should be drawn at which the body of the citizens should cease to meddle with an Executive of their own choosing we do not propose to discuss; but we cannot help taking advantage of the ebb in the tide of popular opinion upon this subject, which seems to be just now commencing, to call attention to one result of the recent great development of the principle of Government en masse, which is mischievous and deplorable under whatever aspect we look at it, and which is gradually working greater evil. We mean, purely and simply, that if experience has shown that the Democracy of New-York are not fit to be trusted with the election of Police Commissioners, a fortiori, it is not to be trusted with the election of Judges. If it be dangerous to leave in the hands of the rowdies, short-boys, shoulder-hitters, and fillibusters of the metropolis the selection of the men to whose care our lives, limbs, and movable property are to be intrusted, it is doubly dangerous to leave in their hands the selection of the men upon whose honesty, integrity, industry and learning, not simply our lives are dependent, but the peace of families, the public morality, the public credit, and the validity of our title deeds, and in no small degree the whole future of the country. Mayors, police officers, and Commissioners of all sorts elected in this City by universal suffrage, have proved in the main unmitigated scoundrels; that our judges have not proved equally disreputable and incompetent, has certainly not been due to any virtue in the mode of their appointment, but wholly and solely to the fact, that they had to be chosen out of a small class, and that in that class the average of talent and honesty is higher than in the wider field in which the "people" finds its WOODS, and its EBLINGS, its CONNERYS and O'BRIENS.

The Anglo-Saxon race was long supposed to be the only one which had solved the problem of creating and maintaining an independent judiciary. The English were supposed to have achieved the greatest triumph in the work of reform when they made the judge's tenure of office dependent not on the favor of the Government or of anybody else, but on his own good behavior. And so they had unquestionably. That Judge is best fitted to discharge his duties properly who has nothing to hope and nothing to fear so long as he acts conscientiously. Exactly in proportion to the inducements held out to him to pander to any particular passion or favor any particular interest, will be the likelihood of his not adhering strictly to the law and to his own conscience. It is bad enough to have a Judge's bread and dignity dependent on the approbation of a Court; it is, we think, still worse to have him act in awe of the majority. For the thousand men who under a monarchy have sufficient firmness and honesty to remain proof against the threats or seductions of the King, while they have the people at their back, there are not ten who have courage to act independently when the reins of power are in the hands of the Democracy. We care not what the form of government is, the dependence of the Judges upon anybody, great or small, is a deplorable evil.

Now the state of affairs would be bad enough if the judges held office during the good pleasure of either Governor, Legislature, or people. There is, however, enough of the quieta non movere spirit still left amongst us to make it tolerably certain that nothing save gross misconduct would rouse any one of the three into action against any functionary once appointed. The office is one for which the number of candidates must necessarily be limited; the duties are laborious, and the salary small. But we have managed to go even further than this, and to combine in the election of the men, who, we have no hesitation in saying, have more to do than any other class in the community, with infusing into the masses, not simply attachment to the law, but faith in abstract rights and justice—every possible element likely to produce corruption, servility, partiality and incompetency. In order that the office may hold out no temptation to good lawyers, we have made the salary small and its duration short. In order that the Judge may be influenced as much as possible by the passions and prejudices of the hour, and may pander to every folly of the dominant party for the time being, we oblige him to lay down his office within six years at the very furthest, and submit himself and his acts to the judgment of primary meetings, caucuses, and in fact to that of any organized rabble large or small. Having thus degraded him in his own eyes and everybody else's, we send him on the bench again, probably in salutary awe of his own crier, who has been one of his nominating Committee; and we call on Justice, blind, pure, dispassionate, fearless, to make this creature of a thousand intrigues, it may be of a thousand hodmen, or a thousand grog-shop keepers, her oracle and minister.

One of the natural consequences of his inferior standing in his profession is the want of all weight in his decisions. No one is satisfied with them—neither the bar nor the public, because everybody feels that he was not chosen as a good interpreter of law, but as a political partisan. The result is that appeals and new trials are multiplied ad infinitum, and a stimulus is given to litigation such as it could receive in no other way. Worse still, a spirit of uncertainty is diffused through the whole jurisprudence of the country. Nothing is settled, because no decisions are looked on as final. The most solemnly laid down principle lasts till the next election, and no longer, and the courts of justice, instead of being tribunals of Oyer and Terminer, are turned into "pits" in which the learned kennel snarl and bite for victory.

We have no desire to give these remarks any personal application. The scandals and abuses arising out of the system we condemn are too well known by everybody in the least degree conversant with the administration of justice in this City for our argument to need any illustration. It is also equally well known that there is on our bench a large number of men who adorn and dignify their position. But they are there in spite of the manner of their appointment, and by no means in consequence of it.

The City Democracy.

It seems that the Democracy of our City is not yet a "unit." The election for Sachems of the Tammany Society, which is to come off to-day, has revived the old differences in the ranks of the party, and there is danger of the internecine contest becoming almost as desperate as it was in the early days of the Pierce Administration. We give in another column a report of the unavailing efforts that were made in caucus last week to agree upon a single ticket,—but the Hard-Shells were incorrigible, and there are accordingly two tickets in the field.

In addition to the old grounds of difference, new animosities seem to have grown out of the ascendancy which Mayor WOOD has been steadily gaining in the counsels of the party, and a very large section of the Democracy is evidently now quite as intent upon breaking down his influence as upon promoting the harmony and welfare of the party. The Mayor is certainly ambitious and somewhat domineering;—but we are inclined to think it will not be found so easy a matter to crush him out as many of his enemies seem to suppose. In addition to the trouble which his sagacity, energy and indomitable pluck occasion his foes, they find it exceedingly difficult to decide when he is actually dead. On several occasions they have flattered themselves that he was extinguished;—but the event has not vindicated this belief. And just at present they are themselves pretty well satisfied that he is not only alive but kicking.

We observe that one or two of the small hand-organs of the party are very savage upon the TIMES for distracting the Democracy by its publications touching the covert and subterranean proceedings of its various factions. We are particularly sorry if any such result has followed our disclosures. If we had supposed that the TIMES was specially commissioned to preserve the harmony of the Democracy, and was to be held responsible for its peace and concord, perhaps we might have somewhat more carefully suppressed revelations calculated to bring them into peril. But no such information has ever reached us; and it is certainly a little unreasonable to expect us to perform duties which we have never been notified to undertake. If Mr. BUCHANAN finds the News, and Citizen, and Day Book and Irish American, inadequate to the services for which they are paid, and will politely request us to take the matter in hand, we will, at all events, take it into consideration. But, until our Commission arrives, we must decline being held in any degree responsible for the harmony and union of the Democratic Party.

Meantime we shall do what we can to keep the public informed of the progress of events. Indeed since our dilapidated neighbor of the Herald has devoted itself to reorganizing the Fremont Clubs for 1860, the TIMES seems to be the only newspaper to which the public look for information in regard to these absorbing movements. As independent journalists, therefore, we feel it to be our duty to keep an eye upon the contest that is now going on for control of the Democratic party in this City and State.

Just at present Mr. SCHELL has the inside track, but appears to be embarrassed by the excessive politeness of Mayor WOOD. A dispatch giving information from Washington upon this subject, which we publish in another column, presents rather a startling programme of the changes that are in contemplation at head-quarters for the adjustment of these differences. We print it just as it reached us, with some misgivings as to its reliability—and more as to the success of the movement which it reveals. On both these points, however, the public and those concerned must judge for themselves.

Our New Commissioners.

The bills just passed by the Legislature, authorizing the erection of a new City Hall and the improvement of the Central Park, have bestowed upon our office-ridden City, sixteen new names to be added to the Corporation pay-roll. There are five Commissioners to superintend the erection of the new Hall, who are to be paid five dollars a day; and the pay of the eleven gentlemen who have been elected by the Legislature to give their advice as to the kind of shrubbery which shall be put in the Park, and the style of fence with which it shall be inclosed, are to be paid for their services just what the Governor of the State may think proper to say the City shall pay them. The City itself is not allowed the privilege of having any voice in the matter, neither to name the persons who shall serve as Commissioners, nor to determine the value of their services.

Fortunately for us they are all very respectable gentlemen, and probably competent to the duties they will have to perform. But these duties are of a kind which there are hundreds of equally competent men who would be but too happy to render gratuitously. These Commissionerships are just the kind that are usually in all communities made honorary, and the rewards of which are above a pecuniary value. The bill for the improvement of the Central Park, which first passed the Assembly, did not allow any pay to the six Commissioners beyond the amount of three hundred dollars a year for actual expenses; but this was amended in the Senate so as to give the Governor of the State power to allow any compensation he might see fit to name.

We shall be greatly mistaken if Governor KING decides that any pay is at all necessary for such services as the Park Commissioners will be called upon to render; and we shall be disappointed in our estimate of the character of the gentlemen themselves, if they do not refuse to take pay for doing what there are hundreds of equally competent citizens would most cheerfully do for the mere gratification of rendering a service to the public.

The Tribune on the Press.

The budding virtue of the Tribune begins to blossom. It perseveres, with more than apostolic patience, in exhorting its brethren of the Editorial profession to desist from mutual crimination and to cease from "efforts to blacken each other's reputation." We beg the Tribune to understand that we appreciate fully the justice and propriety of its sentiments on this subject, and that we are ready, at a moment's notice, to act upon them. But we should first like some guarantee against a recurrence of the rebukes with which similar suggestions on our part not long since were visited, and in the second place we should like to see the real character of the "warfare," as the Tribune styles it, between the TIMES and Herald, more fairly and truly stated than is done in the following paragraph from the Tribune's article:

"What we did mean was just this: The TIMES is accused of being a stockjobbing organ or instrument because a gentleman connected with a stockbrokers' firm in Wall-street owns some stock in that newspaper establishment, when it does not appear that this gentleman either speculates in stocks himself or exercises any control over the columns of the TIMES. On the other hand, the Editor Proprietor of the Herald is very cleverly and ingeniously held up to the public as having been personally engaged for months in puffing and inflating a stock bubble, since utterly exploded, when it is evident to those who know how newspapers are made that this imputation, though admirably got up, is essentially unfounded. In both these cases, facts and appearances are artfully wielded to create a false impression; and this is but one of many instances in which journals are employed to damage the reputation of each other's conductors, and thus to lower the general standing and influence of journalism."

The Tribune will excuse us for saying that it mistakes entirely the gravamen of the "imputations" upon the Herald. Whether the Editor and Proprietor of that sheet personally puffed and inflated these swindling stock bubbles or not, is a matter of not the slightest consequence to any human being but himself, and one which nothing but his own personal statements have ever raised. But that the Herald itself has been used by somebody, month after month, and year after year, to inflate swindling stocks of every kind—that it has puffed into notice and favor scrip which never was worth a single dollar—that it has given place day after day, and week after week, for months and years in succession, to false statements concerning them, and to confident predictions of their future value—that it has exhorted the public who relied upon it as a disinterested public journal, to invest their money in these stocks as certain to be productive,—and that it has thus been made the instrument of cheating thousands of people out of tens and hundreds of thousands of dollars,—we have, not asserted, but proved—by column upon column of extracts from its own successive issues. This is the real "imputation" against the conduct of the Herald, and we should like to know the grounds upon which the Tribune pronounces it to be "essentially unfounded." We should like to know what apology the Tribune finds in the way "in which newspapers are made," for such a steady, systematic and successful course of fraud and deception as the Herald's own columns prove it to have pursued. Whether the Editor and Proprietor himself personally performed all this labor, or whether he employed an "amanuensis" or an assistant to do it,—or whether he was so utterly ignorant and reckless of the management of his own establishment as to permit it thus steadily to be made the instrument of the most gigantic and infamous frauds, may be a matter of some importance to him but it is not of the least to us. If he chooses to stultify himself by first claiming the authorship of everything that appears in his columns, and then denying point blank that any stock-jobbing concern was ever recommended in them, that is his own affair, and proves nothing but his own recklessness. What the public is concerned to know is, whether the Herald is the organ and tool of swindling stock-jobbers,—or whether it is an independent and reliable public journal. All that we have done in the premises is to reprint from its own columns the material for forming an opinion upon the subject.

So much for that particular point. The Tribune should not entirely ignore the merits of a controversy which it assumes to censure. If injury to the cause of journalism results from it, we submit that it flows rather from the wrong done than from the exposure of it. Journalism is infinitely more degraded by such dishonest practices as the Herald's own columns fasten upon it, than by our reprinting the evidence which those columns afford. We trust we are not unmindful of the true dignity of the Press,—or indisposed to protect and maintain it. But we cannot defend the Press "right or wrong,"—nor do we feel bound as a journalist to excuse or conceal the impositions and the infamies by which the Herald disgraces and degrades the profession to which it belongs.

TROUBLED FOR AN ISSUE.—An election is coming off in Virginia soon, and in default of all other issues the old one concerning the distribution of the proceeds of the Public Lands among the States has been revived, and is contested with the usual vehemence and party abuse. A goodly portion of the people of the Old Dominion seem at last to be actually aware of the wretched condition into which the State is falling. But instead of looking to themselves for relief, or canvassing the best methods of reforming the evils which oppress them, they look to the Federal Treasury for help, and call for money from that quarter.

The National Intelligencer takes occasion to read them rather a sharp lesson on this point from their past experience. In the time of HENRY CLAY, it reminds them, this same policy of Land Distribution was urged as an act of justice to the several States; but it was uniformly opposed and finally defeated by the State of Virginia. Since that time the West has grown powerful enough to seize this great source of revenue for herself. Her weight in [illegible] to Western Railroads which are [illegible] every acre of the entire landed estate of the West. And now, when it is too late to remedy the mistakes of her past action, Virginia is just beginning to wake up to the iniquity and injustice.

"Judicial Joking" and the Burdell Murder Trial.

To the Editor of the New-York Daily Times:

You are right in refusing to regard the recent adjournment of the Oyer and Terminer as a "Joke." It affects the administration of justice and the public respect for it, far too seriously, to be treated lightly.

During the three years prior to 1857, during which the Judge, who perpetrated this "joke" has had a seat on the bench, there have been found in this county forty four indictments for murder, and not one conviction in the Oyer and Terminer, and only one in the Sessions. During the previous three years, before he went on the bench, there were twenty-nine indictments for murder in this county, and several convictions in the Oyer and Terminer.

It becomes, therefore, a pretty serious matter that our highest Criminal Court should be trifled with.

Until April, 1855, the power of trying cases, punishable with death, was vested solely in the Oyer and Terminer. By law there are to be at least two terms of the Oyer and Terminer in each County in the State, which are to be held at the same time and place, and be commenced on the same day, with the Circuit.

The times of holding these Courts are to be appointed by the Judges in each District every two years, within one month of the expiration of the preceding two years.

Under this law, in the latter part of 1855, the Judges of this District appointed their Courts for 1856 and 1857, and appointed two Courts of Oyer and Terminer to be held at the same time and place with the Circuits in April and October.

The Judges, for their own convenience, make assignments of each other to different duties, and in this manner Judge ROOSEVELT was assigned to hold the Circuit and Oyer and Terminer for this month of April, and Judge DAVIES had his vacation during this month.

In like manner Judge DAVIES was assigned to the special term in June, and Judge ROOSEVELT had his vacation that month.

For their own accommodation these two Judges exchanged work, Judge D. took Judge R's. Court for this month, and Judge R. took Judge D's. Court for June.

After this exchange had been made, the counsel of ECKEL and Mrs. CUNNINGHAM applied to have their indictments removed to and tried in the Oyer and Terminer. They had a right to this under the statute—it would have been cruel to have denied it, and the application was very properly made to the Judge who was to hold the Oyer and Terminer. It would have been indecorous for any other Judge to have interfered.

The application was made and granted, and a day in April assigned for the trial.

After that was done, and without any notice to Judge DAVIES, and a few minutes before that Judge took his seat on the bench of the Circuit and Oyer and Terminer, Judge ROOSEVELT went into another room, taking the crier and clerk of the Oyer and Terminer with him, and without opening or interfering with the Circuit, opened the Oyer and Terminer and adjourned it till May, beyond the day in April which had been assigned for this trial.

In May, Judge ROOSEVELT has his vacation, and Judge DAVIES is assigned to the Circuit, so that when the day comes to which the Oyer and Terminer has been thus adjourned, Judge D. will hold a Circuit which has not been appointed for an Oyer and Terminer, and the Circuit for which it was appointed will have adjourned. Thus while the law directs the two courts to be held together, they are severed in fact.

Besides, the jury drawn and summoned for the Oyer and Terminer in April, will have served out their term, and have been discharged, so that the proper jury for the Oyer and Terminer will not be on hand and some other panel must be used. What one?

These are the facts of the case, as I understand, and any one with half an eye, can see how void and useless would be a trial and conviction under the circumstances.

The Evening Post says that the same game was played with Judge STRONG in the Baker case. I have always suspected from the manner of BAKER's counsel on his trial, that they were aware that his conviction under the circumstances would not have been worth a straw.

Now, what is to be done? The District Attorney surely will not hazard a trial at a court to which such serious objections of irregularity attach, and that, when the prisoners need not make their objections on that account until after conviction. There is no other Oyer and Terminer until October, not even to the extent of remanding the case to the Court of Sessions, and the prisoners must remain untried until October.

But must they remain in prison or be discharged? We have a statute which declares that if any prisoner, indicted for any offence triable in the Court of General Sessions and committed to prison, whose trial shall not have been postponed at his instance, shall not be brought to trial before the end of the next term of the Court after each indictment found, &c., shall be entitled to be discharged so far as relates to the offence for which he was committed.

There is, to be sure, a remedy, and only one: and that is to have a Special Oyer and Terminer appointed. That may be done by the Governor, and he ought at once to be called upon to exercise the power, to avoid the unhappy alternative of either having the prisoners tried at a court liable to just exceptions or having them discharged from custody or unnecessarily detained from April till October in close confinement.

Such is the case to which your inquiries refer, and all can judge how far it was well thus to complicate the administration of justice. JUS.

The above response to our inquiries in the TIMES of Saturday comes from a source at once highly respectable and well informed. Its clear and simple statement of the facts renders unnecessary any comment upon the transaction to which it refers. The suggestion with which it closes, as to the course by which the serious inconvenience which Judge ROOSEVELT's proceeding is likely to cause, may be avoided, merits attention on the part of Governor KING. We believe we express the sentiment of the ablest members of the Bar when we say, that the trial of the parties indicted for the murder of Dr. BURDELL is one which, under the peculiar circumstances of the case, demands the services of some one as presiding Judge whose reading and experience have made him especially familiar with criminal jurisprudence.

THEATRICAL MORALS.—We have witnessed the meeting of a good many extremes, but never one of a more remarkable character than that which is presented in the correspondence which we publish this morning, between Rev. Dr. BELLOWS of All Souls' Church, in this City, and certain members of the theatrical profession. The Stage and the Pulpit meet on the most friendly terms, recognize each other as co-laborers in the service of morality, and exchange sentiments of mutual good will and respect. And Dr. BELLOWS, too, is a clergyman of New-England, in some parts of which the theatre is still proscribed by the laws as an institution dangerous to society. It would not surprise us to hear next that Plymouth Rock had broken out in a series of vocalizations, like the statue of Memnon, or that the ghosts of the Pilgrim Fathers had been seen in attendance upon some of the criminal trials now in progress in or near Boston.

Doctor BELLOWS, [illegible] sermon, it seems, [illegible] patronizing manner of the [illegible] ences, which so excited [illegible] its prominent members that [illegible] present the fearless preacher with a [illegible] of their gratitude in the shape of plate, costing a thousand dollars. But he very properly declined so unusual a compliment, and the correspondence which grew out of the affair has led to his acceptance of an invitation to be present at the annual dinner of the miscalled American Dramatic Fund Association this evening, and his engagement to deliver a lecture to actors and actresses, on the duties and responsibilities of their profession, some time during the present week.

We must confess that we are very glad to hear of this movement, for we think that it cannot be productive of any harm, while it will be the means of accomplishing considerable good. The stage is an established institution among us, and its existence is doubtless a necessity in our large towns and cities; and since the Law permits it, and many good people habitually frequent its representations, the true duty of religious teachers is to improve it and render it as little injurious to the public morals as possible.

To avoid the theatre, and to denounce its professors and patrons, is only to compel it to take a position of antagonism to religion, instead of rendering it harmless, if not actually beneficial, by recognizing its members as entitled to the same consideration and support which are given to all other men who contribute to the amusement and instruction of society.

That the stage has been terribly vicious in times past, and its members loose and immoral as a class, cannot be denied; nor can it be denied that the tone of the stage, and the morals of its members, have both greatly improved within a few years. The fact that Dr. BELLOWS addresses a member of the Bowery Theatre as his personal friend, and a member of his church of All Souls, will, probably, surprise a good many excellent people; but we know there are many members of the theatrical profession who enjoy a high social position, and who are received into society the same as members of the learned professions, or men distinguished for their eminence in the business world. They are, however, exceptional cases; the majority of actors and actresses are still, and mainly from their own fault, living under the ban which has so long rested on their calling.

Personal.

A fast man—Mr. JOHN OXNARD, of New-Orleans, left his creditors in the lurch and went to Havana a few days ago, taking $50,000 in exchange and promissory notes, obtained from various parties, and furnishing in exchange worthless checks. He left behind him a consolatory letter for the swindled parties, assuring them of ultimate payment—the matter being merely a question of time—and that they could better afford to lie out of the money than personal friends to whom he was indebted, and whom he felt it a matter of honor to pay. The True Delta says: "Col JOHN OXNARD kept fine and fast horses, splendid and fashionable women, lived high, and played high at the clubs and gambling saloons, and was, in the highest sense of the term, a fast man."

The late Prof. BAILEY, of West Point, bequeathed to the Boston Society of Natural History his whole microscopic collection, contained in books, with an index volume, his collection of Algæ or Seaweeds, his rough material for microscopic research, including his cabinet of minute fossil animal and vegetable forms, together with his microscopic memoranda and unpublished papers, and his very valuable library of microscopic and botanical works,—among them EHRENBERG's great work on Micro geology.

Science receives many recruits from the Lawrence Scientific School at Cambridge. The following appointments of graduates from that institution are noticed:—Edward F. B. Orton, to be Professor of the Natural Sciences in the State Normal School, Albany, N. Y.; Washington Caruthers Kerr, Professor of Chemistry in Davidson College, N. C.; L. R. Fiske, Professor of Chemistry in the Agricultural College at Lansing, Mich.; and Dr. Isaac D. Fisher to be Chemist of Dunnell's Print Works, Pawtucket, R. I.

A New-York correspondent of the Boston Post exposes the tricks of literary Bohemians, who go about New-York swindling book publishers; getting books on promise of notice, and selling them afterwards to second-hand dealers. One man went to a distinguished publisher here, and made such a representation as induced the publisher to give him a copy of a valuable work, in several octavo volumes, ten days before it was published. Two days after he saw the identical copy exposed for sale at a dépôt of second-hand books.

Rev. T. W. HIGGINSON, a reformatory clergyman down East, who is prominent at women's rights and anti-slavery meetings, in New York and elsewhere, has come to the defence of Mr. WILLIS, the young gentleman whose membership was distasteful to the Faculty of Harvard. He makes affidavit (in Worcester) that Mr. WILLIS is not a humbug, and details sundry remarkable spiritual manifestations which he himself saw, and all of which he devoutly believes.

LISZT, the pianist, instead of becoming a Trappist, is now writing the music of a legend of St. Elizabeth; he is thinking over a symphony entitled "La Bataille de Huns;" he has just finished "L'Idéal," in honor of SCHILLER, and is writing, moreover, a mass, a legend, a cantata, the Sermon on the Mount, an oratorio, "Christ," and music for a poem by FREDERICK RUCKERT.

The resignations of the following named officers of the army have been accepted by the President: Capt. FRANCIS E. PATTERSON, 9th Infantry, to take effect May 1, 1857: First Lieut. ROBERT E. PATTERSON, 6th Infantry, to take effect May 1, 1857; Assistant Surgeon JOHN BYRNE, medical department, to take effect Oct. 11, 1857.

Private letters received in Boston from Mr. CHARLES SUMNER state that he is recovering. He says that exertion fatigues him, but does not affect the brain. The throbbing of the head which followed exercise has ceased, and he now anticipates a speedy restoration to health.

We understand that Lord NAPIER and his private secretary will attend the anniversary dinner of the St. George's Society to be given on the 23d inst. Other distinguished personages will be present, and the festival, in other respects, will possess this year unusual attractions.

MATILDA HERON is playing Camille and Medea in St. Louis to full houses. The Leader says: "We shall hazard to-morrow a criticism somewhat more at length upon a reputation which is now confessedly metropolitan and will be national."

Mr. POWELL, who painted the De Soto Picture for Congress, has been appointed by the Ohio Legislature to paint a representation of PERRY's Victory on Lake Erie—the price not to exceed $5,000. It will be placed in one of the panels of the rotunda of the new State House.

Mr. DONALD MCLEOD, formerly of this City and favorably known as an author, has assumed the editorial charge of the St. Louis Leader.

A company of colored singers, slaves, are about to sing for their freedom through the Northern States—starting, of course, from Massachusetts.

ADJOURNMENT OF THE LEGISLATURE.

The Trinity Church Bill Lost—The Dred Scott Resolutions Passed—Closing Courtesies.

ALBANY, Saturday, April 18.

No Executive Session of the Senate was held before the adjournment. Messrs SHULTZ, BRENNAN and BRAINARD will, therefore, hold over as Harbor Masters. HART M. MURRAY's nomination was killed by being laid on the table at the last Executive Session for future action.

Mr. STRANAHAN will meet with the Police Commissioners to organize, and then resign. The Board will then elect EDWARD W. FISKE.

The only bills of great importance which have been defeated are the Broadway Relief bill, which died in the Senate, and the Trinity Church bill, which died in the House.

The Commissioners of the Land Office held a meeting at noon to-day, and resolved to sell the New York Arsenal at the Merchants' Exchange, at noon on Wednesday, the 3d of June: terms 20 per cent. down, and the balance in sixty days, the money to be deposited with the Manhattan Company to the credit of the State Treasurer, unless the City elects to purchase previously at $275,000, as provided in the Act.

The Canal Board held a meeting, to-day, to distribute and deposit the Canal tolls among the Banks. The Atlantic, Park, Hanover and Shoe and Leather Dealers' Banks, were selected for the City of New-York with equal shares. The Board, also, created the office of Assistant Collectors to prevent frauds on the Canals, and appointed thereto all persons declared as Boat Inspectors, under the recent law abolishing the Inspector's office. Resolutions were adopted transferring the power of the State Engineer and Division Engineer to the Canal Board. The Auditor was instructed to furnish a report of the proportion of cost in the enlargement of the Canal paid for engineering for the quarter ending April 1. The cost of engineering is supposed to reach twenty-five per cent. of the whole outlay.

NEW-YORK LEGISLATURE.

SENATE....ALBANY, Saturday, April 18.

Motions and counter-motions were made until nearly 3 o'clock, when a motion to adjourn until morning was carried.

[Saturday morning's session.]

The bill creating R. H. WALWORTH, J. H. JUDSON, and JAS. O. PUTNAM Commissioners to inquire into the sale of the Averill Ore Bed was defeated.

A message from the Assembly fixing the final adjournment at 20 minutes to 10 o'clock was laid over.

The Dred Scott resolutions were taken up and amended, so as to imply that the confidence of the people in the Court of Appeals was impeached, not lost, and so as to provide that the resolutions, without the report, be sent to the Governors of the several States, and were then adopted by 17 to 10.

The final adjournment resolution was amended so as to read five minutes past 10 o'clock. Adopted.

Messrs. BROOKS and NOXON were appointed a Committee to inform the Assembly that the Senate concurred in the Assembly amendment to the Bribery resolutions.

Messrs. WADSWORTH and LEE were appointed a Committee to inform the Governor that the Legislature was ready to adjourn.

The Enterprise Ferry bill was killed; also, the bill relative to Loan Commissioners.

Recess for ten minutes.

On reassembling a resolution to adjourn finally at half-past 10 o'clock was received from the Assembly and concurred in.

The following communication was then received from the Lieutenant Governor.

SENATORS: I have received with pleasure your resolution approving of my conduct as your presiding officer, and beg leave to return my thanks, not only for the united expression of your regard, but also for the uniform kindness and courtesy of every Senator, which has made the duties of the Chair a pleasure. You will bear to your respective homes the consciousness of having discharged with cheerfulness and uncommon diligence arduous and responsible duties, and the ability and fidelity which characterised that discharge cannot fail to secure the approbation of your constituents. I shall ever retain agreeable recollections of my connection with the Senate of 1857, and desire to express to every Senator my best wishes for their future prosperity and happiness. (Signed) H. R. SELDEN,

Mr. BROOKS moved that the communication be entered in full on the minutes.

This was agreed to, and at 10¼ o'clock the President declared the Senate adjourned sine die.

ASSEMBLY....ALBANY, Saturday, April 18.

Several unimportant motions for the return of papers, &c, were made.

The final adjournment resolutions as received from the Senate were acted upon, from time to time, until the final fixing of the hour at 10¼ o'clock.

An attempt was made to procure the publication of the Session laws, but it failed.

A call of the House showed that seventy members were present.

Senators BROOKS and NOXON appeared as a Committee from the Senate to inform the House that the Senate was ready to adjourn.

A message was received from the Senate requesting the House to send up all papers relative to the Averill Ore Bed purchase. Adopted, but subsequently reconsidered and tabled.

The Dred Scott resolutions were received from the Senate, and as amended, concurred in by 43 to 26.

The concurrence of the Senate in the hour for the final adjournment being received, the Speaker rose, and spoke as follows:

GENTLEMEN OF THE ASSEMBLY: Your flattering resolution, expressive of confidence in your presiding officer, adopted, as it is, at the close of our official relations, is indeed most gratifying to me, and will ever be treasured up among the pleasant recollections of the past. Your approval of the manner in which I have discharged the delicate and responsible duties imposed upon me while we were yet strangers, with the fact that no appeal has been taken from my decisions during the Session, leads me to hope that however often I have erred your confidence in my integrity and impartiality, is unimpaired. No House of Assembly which has preceded you, has in so short a period performed so much labor, and it affords me sincere pleasure to testify to the industry, zeal and fidelity which have characterized your efforts to promote the interest of your constituents and the public welfare. May the laws you have enacted prove beneficial to all classes of the citizens of this great and free State, and while protecting their rights may they also tend to conserve our resources in every department of industry and trade. We are about to part—many of us never to meet in this life again—the ties which bound us together as one common family must now be severed—one of our number, loved by all as an honest and upright man, who met with us but a brief space since in all the vigor of health and manhood, has been summoned hence to that world from whence no mortal returns—another, borne down by disease beyond the hope of recovery, has never met with us in the busy scenes of legislation—others again during our brief intercourse have felt the heavy hand of affliction, and, while bowing with submission to the will of a mysterious Providence, weep the absence of loved ones from the family circle. Let these incidents, so fresh in our memory, admonish all of us of the uncertainty of life, and lead us to pause in the giddy world of excitement while yet there is time to prepare to meet the summons of that messenger whom no human ingenuity can avoid. Accept, gentlemen, my grateful and heartfelt acknowledgments for the marked kindness and courtesy you have manifested towards me in all our social and official intercourse; and if at any time in the stern discharge of a duty or the rigid enforcement of the rules I have offended any one of you, believe me when I say it was unintentional. Commending you and yours to the protection of a kind Providence, I bid you all farewell. Wishing you, on your return to your homes, a warm welcome from friends and constituents, and a future of honor and usefulness, I perform reluctantly my only remaining duty by declaring, as I now do, the House of Assembly adjourned sine die.

The scene, during the delivery of the address, was really affecting, a large number of the members being in tears. At the close of his remarks, the members gathered around the Speaker's desk, the last adieus were spoken, and the Chamber was speedily deserted

Southern Mail.

WASHINGTON, Sunday, April 19.

New-Orleans papers and letters of the 13th inst. have been received. The papers contain nothing important.

Amusements.

NIBLO'S GARDEN.—Madame GAZZANIGA, we are assured, has thoroughly recovered her health, and will positively make her second appearance to-night in the "Traviata." Although laboring under severe indisposition on the occasion of her début, Madame GAZZANIGA excited so much interest, that public curiosity is unusually alive to the occasion of her second appearance to-night.

The RAVELS appear on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday.

BROADWAY THEATRE.—Mr. and Mrs. E. L. DAVENPORT, two excellent artists, commence an engagement here to-night, and will produce a new tragic play by Mr. G. H. MILES, called "De Soto." The prominent members of the Broadway Theatre are incorporated in the cast.

LAURA KEENE'S THEATRE.—The two latest novelties (both of them successful) will be played during the week. "The Love of a Prince," and "The Elves."

WALLACK'S THEATRE.—Mr. H. B. PHILLIPS, a painstaking and deserving actor, takes his benefit to-night, and provides for his friends a capital entertainment. MORTON'S comedy of "Town and Country" is the leading feature, introducing, as it does, all the magnificent artists of Mr. STUART'S superb company. After the comedy, the farce of the "Pet of the Petticoats."

BURTON'S THEATRE.—The Pyne and Harrison Troupe continue their farewell performances at this house, playing on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday. To-night dramatic performances, consisting of "The Master's Rival, or Fun in France;" "The Wandering Minstrel;" and the "Rules of the House."

NATIONAL THEATRE.—"Karmel, the Scout," "The Frisky Cobbler," and "Dublin in 1530," will be performed at this establishment to-night.

BARNUM'S MUSEUM.—The beautiful fairy romance of "Cinderella" will be revived here to-night, and played during this week only. In the afternoon, a variety of entertainments.

BUCKLEY'S SERENADERS.—BISHOP BUCKLEY'S pupil "Young America," "The Old Folk's Concert,' and the "Essence of Ole Virginny," are the leading features of the entertainment offered to-night at this popular place of amusement.

Musical.

Mr. THALBERG gives a concert at Utica to-nigh—the first under the direction of Mr. M. STRAKOSCH.

Mme. D'ANGRI goes South on a concert tour, having for associates Mlle. MATILDA D'ANGRI, Mr. SCHREIBER, (cornet à piston,) Mr. THOMAS, (violinist,) and Signor ABELLA, (conductor.)

Mr. SANDERSON, a pianist of much native talent, gives a concert at Niblo's Saloon to-morrow night, (Tuesday the 21st.) He will be assisted by Mme. CORA DE WILHORST, Signor GIANONNI, Signor MORELLI and Mr. APTOMMAS.

Republicans in the Police Department.

NEW-YORK, Friday, April 17, 1857.

DEAR SIR: I do not suppose it is of much importance what my politics are; but still, as I prefer to stand correctly upon the record, I ask permission to say a very few words in reply to "A Very Black Republican," in yesterday's TIMES in relation to the politics of the Captains of Police. I am disposed to believe that your correspondent has "got the measure" of those gentlemen generally, with considerable correctness; but in regard to myself, I desire to say, that the "leaning" toward Republicanism, which he kindly attributes to me, does me but partial justice, as I am not only "almost, but altogether" a Republican. And not only so, but my faith is not the result of any new light, or miraculous interposition. In proof of which I need only refer to my course in the Whig General Committee of 1850, and the two or three succeeding years. Many who are now "very Black Republicans," will remember the fact, that during that period of agitation, while they helped to swell the tide, and the shout of Silver-gray, Union-saving Fillmoreism, which swept all before it, I stood with the forlorn few who were made the butt of sneers and jibes for being what the lordly majority then politely termed "wooly-heads," but who are now known as Republicans. Among these are JAMES REILLY, JAS. H. WELSH, PORTER G. SHERMAN, Mr. SHADLOW, and perhaps two or three others, as true men as breathe, for they have stood fire, while others ran away—perhaps they don't know how to run. But enough.

I desire to add, briefly, that having been a Whig—a HENRY CLAY Whig, if you please—and still cherishing a profound reverence for the memory of that great statesman—I long ago saw the arrogant assumptions and encroachments of the slave power, and believed that it was the duty of every freeman to oppose a barrier against them. With this view I have acted—shall always act.

It is true I am not a noisy, brawling politician—Heaven forbid I ever should be. Least of all have I been a politician in my administration of Police discipline. Yet, while I confess I am ashamed of some of the acts of my party friends at Albany, (which would have better become a company of visionary old women than men of practical good sense,) I desire it to be distinctly understood that I not only have a "leaning" towards the principles of justice and human freedom, but that I am always, and everywhere, fully committed in their favor.

Yours, truly, PETER SQUIRES.
Capt. 11th Police District.

Garroters not quite Extinct.

NEW-YORK, Friday, April 17, 1857.

To the Editor of the New-York Daily Times:

I notice in your issue of Wednesday, that you have heard of no recent case of "Garroting." The following comes pretty near it: About 1 o'clock on Tuesday night, two gentlemen, in passing down a street running from Broadway to East River, were set upon by four young men, (apparently about 18 and 20 years of age,) who evidently intended robbing them. One of the gentlemen was Lieutenant S——, of the United States Navy, and the other a French gentleman of some distinction; neither of them weighed over 125 pounds, and with the exception of a life-preserver (a club of gutta percha used in London as a protection against garroters) carried by the Frenchman, they were wholly unarmed; but by a wholesome application of this instrument, the row ruffians, after a short struggle, were driven off. Although the street is considerably frequented, not a policeman was to be seen. One of the gang was carried off apparently lifeless from a blow with the life preserver. The two gentlemen escaped with a few bruises and their clothes torn. U. S.

MARINE MATTERS.

Loss of a New-York Ship, and Probable Murder of her Crew.

The clipper ship Highflyer sailed from San Francisco for Canton, on the 25th of October, 1855. She was commanded by Capt. G. B. WATERMAN, who had with him his wife, and Mrs. CHARLES S. COMPTON as a passenger. There were also 190 Chinese on board, who, with their accumulations in the mines of California, were on their return to their native country, their aggregate treasure amounting, probably, to near half a million of dollars.

DAVID OGDEN, Esq., one of the owners of the ship in this City, received a letter dated Canton, February 12, 1856, stating that an American ship was lying dismasted at the island of Haiman, which was probably the Highflyer, but Mr. OGDEN thinks the location of the vessel was Haitan, a few miles east of the port of Swatow, where the captain might have put in on account of a lack of water at the latter place to float his ship. Mr. OGDEN has since received a letter from GIDEON NYE, Jr., dated Macao, February 13, 1857, in forming him that a ship, no doubt the Highflyer, was lost on the south side of Formosa, in the Autumn or Winter of 1855, and that her passengers and crew were probably murdered by the savage clan who inhabit the southeastern part of that island; the wreck was probably burnt.

These facts have been communicated to the Secretary of State, and instructions will probably be given to the newly-appointed Minister to China to fully investigate the case.

The United States frigate Wabash, the flag ship of the home squadron, sailed for Aspinwall on Saturday morning. It is understood that her mission to the Isthmus has reference to the disturbed condition of our affairs with the New-Granadian Government. The Wabash is a new vessel, and is esteemed one of the finest in our navy. Her former trip to Aspinwall, in December last, was her first voyage.

LIST OF OFFICERS OF THE U. S. FRIGATE WABASH:

HIRAM PAULDING, Commodore; FREDERICK ENGLE, Captain; G. T. Sinclair, E. E. Barnet, D. MCN. Fairfax, J. C. Beaumont, Leonard Paulding, S. P. Quackenbush, H. M. Garland, Lieutenants; G. R. B. Horner, Fleet Surgeon; McKean Buchanan, Purser; Moses B. Chase, Chaplain; B. Macomber, Captain of Marines; J. W. King, Chief Engineer; J. Harris Otis, Passed Assistant Surgeon; James Lewis, Second Lieutenant Marines; William Johnson, Jr., Assistant Surgeon; M. Sichra, E. Lea, T. H. Dalton, C. S. Norton; A. P. Cooke, G. M. Bledgett, T. H. Eastman, H. Green, Midshipmen; Tatnall Paulding, Commodore's Secretary; A. O. Shuff, Captain's Clerk; W. H. Hamilton, Gunner; C. Woodland, Boatswain; N. Mager, Carpenter; Jas. Ferguson, Sailmaker; W. Fletcher, D. B. Macomb, First Assistant-Engineers; W. S. Stamm, Second Engineer; P. G. Peitz, G. J. Jones, Geo. J. Barry, J. W. Thompson, Jr., Third Engineers; J. W. Mellach, Purser's Clerk.

Propositions for building the steam relief cutter were made to the Secretary of the Treasury by the following shipbuilders, most of whom submitted from one of three models, the estimates ranging from $84,000 to $150,000. James R. Steers, J. A. Westervelt, A. C. Bell, J. W. Griffiths, Thomas Colyer, Edward Lupton, Thomas Eraksine and W. R. Webb, of New-York; Thomas Stack and Ariel Patterson of Brooklyn; Tardy & Brothers, of Baltimore, and Page & Allen, of Portsmouth, Va. Fifteen models were sent in, and, as a general thing, those from the New-York builders commanded the most admiration from outsiders, who filled the room where the bids were announced. The greatest proposed length of the New-York models was 155 feet, the least 177 feet. The models are the most beautiful ever exhibited in this country. So much for competition.

Messrs. JOHNSON and HIGGINS have contracted with the underwriters and owners of the ship New-Hampshire for the recovery of the cargo of that ship ashore at Jones' Beach, L. I.

The frigate Niagara has been announced to sail for England to-day; but it is not unlikely that the heavy easterly blow that has prevailed may cause a bad sea upon the bar which always makes it unsafe to attempt to cross it with a heavy draft of water, and she may not, therefore, go to sea until another day.

LIST OF OFFICERS OF THE UNITED STATES STEAM FRIGATE NIAGARA.

WM. L. HUDSON, Captain; Commander Pennock, (on special service;) James H. North, First Lieutenant; Joshua D. Todd, Second Lieutenant; John Guest, Third Lieutenant; Charles H. Wells, Fourth Lieutenant; William D. Whiting, Fifth Lieutenant; Edward Y. McCauley, Sixth Lieutenant; Beverley Kennon, Seventh Lieutenant and Sailing-Master; Joseph C. Eldridge, Purser; T. C. Palmer, Surgeon; Arthur M. Linch, Passed Assistant-Surgeon; T. R. M. Washington, Assistant-Surgeon; W. E. Everett, Chief Engineer; John Faron and Thomas A. Shock, First Assistant-Engineers; Mortimer Kellogg and John R. Moore, Second Assistant-Engineers; Alex. Greer, Jackson McElwail, George F. Kults, and Theodore R. Ely, Third Assistant-Engineers; —— Rich, Captain of Marines; W. Stokes Boyd, First Lieutenant Marines; Robert Dixson, Boatswain: John Webber, Gunner; Henry P. Leslie, Carpenter; W. B. Fugitt, Sailmaker: John W. Hudson, Captain's Clerk; Edw. Willard, Purser's Clerk. In addition to the above at present, she will have 430 men and 60 marines.

The steam-frigate Susquehannah, it is said, will accompany the Niagara in laying the telegraphic cable. She is now in the Mediterranean, and was at Genoa on the 6th of March.

The United States frigate Congress and the steam frigate Susquehannah were at Genoa on the 6th of March, and about leaving for Spezia, whence they would start on a cruise up the Adriatic. The order from the Navy Department for the latter vessel to join the Niagara at Liverpool, to assist in the telegraphic enterprise, will interrupt these plans. Lieut. B. N. WESCOTT, of the Congress, sailed for New-Orleans on the 23d of March, viâ the West Indies, in charge of the American ship Fanny, whose captain had died while she was lying in the port of Genoa.

The little schooner George Hanson, owned and managed by three brothers, NICHOLS and JASPER, and accompanied by a relative of the family, was capsized in Lake Michigan early in April and all four were drowned, each of the men leaving families. The NICHOLS' family came from Cambridgeshire, England, in 1847.

There were in this port on Saturday, 590 vessels, including 32 steamers, 129 ships, 87 barks, 86 brigs, and 256 schooners.

FROM KANSAS.

Appearance of the High-Treason Prisoners.

Correspondence of the Missouri Democrat.

LECOMPTON, K. T., Monday, April 6, 1857.

To-day, Gov. ROBINSON and Mr. DEITZLER, two of the Free-State prisoners charged with high treason, and who were under bonds to appear before the First District Court at this place, and at this time made their appearance, but the Court was not in session. By law of the late bogus Legislature, the district in which the courts were held were changed, and the time of holding these courts, as also the place where they are to be held. This county, which was formerly in the First, or Judge LECOMPTE'S District, is now in Judge CATO'S. The Court will not be held under the new regulation until May. It is for Judge CATO to decide, under the new law, where the Court shall be held; but it is likely to be held in this place.

As the prisoners had given bond to appear at Lecompton at this time, these gentlemen came, according to the bond, to give themselves up. They presented themselves before the Clerk of the Court, who refused to make any entry of their appearance. Judge CATO was present, but refused to answer questions on the ground that they were legal questions. He informed them that they were held to appear before him in May.

The law under which the census was to be taken, and a constitutional convention called, is carried in a manner still more fraudulent than the law itself. The county courts, under it, decide what shall be the precincts in each county, and the places of voting. The County Court of this county, recently appointed by the bogus legislature, have taken this step. In doing this they have been guilty of a great outrage. They have made four precincts and voting places in Douglas County. In these Lawrence is omitted. Lawrence and the vicinity around it contains half the inhabitants of the county, but has been denied a voting precinct. Lecompton is one, and this is not a sixth part as large as Lawrence. The other precincts are located at obscure points where there are a few Pro-Slavery settlers. The census list is a great fraud, so far as known, but the lists have not yet been posted up publicly, which ought to have been done on the 1st of April, according to the enactment of the bogus Legislature. It is not supposed that it will be done. This is going to be the grandest of all the Kansas swindles.

It is reported that the statement about the Delaware reserve being opened is premature.

Settlers continue to arrive. Great activity prevails throughout the Territory.

Position of the Free-State Party in Kansas.

From the (Washington) National Era.

With regret we differ from the New-York Republican journals in relation to the position of the Free-State party in Kansas, but we cannot see the wisdom of their policy.

They tell us of the trickery of the census-takers who, it is alleged, refused to insert any of the names of the Free-State emigrants" arriving in the Territory this spring, no matter how early, while "they are putting thousands of names on the lists who have never lived in Kansas, and who never will." If this be true, why have not the Free State men been on the alert, to record and expose the facts? It is just this kind of dishonest dealing they ought to have prepared themselves to resist and expose—but they were counseled to do nothing—to stand aloof—to let everything go by default. It was the duty of every Free State resident in the Territory on the 15th of March to have his name entered as a voter; if overlooked, to report himself; if rejected, to insist upon his rights; and if these were denied, to have witnesses of the fact, so that it might be put on record and authenticated. If the names of thousands of men, not resident in the Territory and not intending to reside therein, were inserted, it is not yet too late to expose this fraud. Let the names of these thousands be obtained and recorded, with the proofs which show that they were not residents on the 15th of March. The Convention, the preliminary proceedings, its deliberations, and its work, will all come before Congress with an Administration majority in each branch; and if Fraud and Iniquity shall have marked the whole operation for the formation of a Constitution and State Government, the Free-State men ought then to be ready with their charges, specifications, and evidence. Mere newspaper reports and declamation will avail no thing.

Let the Free State men stand aloof, take no part in the election, adhere to their plan of a Constitution and Government, what then? The census was been taken; incorrect and fraudulent lists of voters, as is alleged, have been made out; the election will be held: no Free-State man will vote; every delegate elected will be Pro Slavery; not a majority, but the whole of the Convention will be Pro-Slavery; a Pro-Slavery Constitution will be formed, an election for State officers and a Legislature ordered, which will be carried in the same way the constitutional election was carried, and the Territorial outlawries will abdicate in their favor. How would the Free-State party then stand? On any better ground than if it had taken part in the election? Would it not still be "denounced from Washington, menaced by the Federal army, and in peril of drum-head execution under the atrocious Rebellion act?" Would its plan of State Government find any more favor in the eyes of the Administration than it does now? In the name of common sense, what good is to be accomplished by the stand-aloof, do nothing policy? We can understand what it is to measure our strength with an adversary at the ballot box—what it is to count heads; and we can understand what it is to resort to the last argument—revolution; but between these we can see no middle ground. If our friends in Kansas mean to maintain their Free-State organization as an independent Government; to maintain it by force of arms against the Pro-Slavery settlers in Kansas and their allies in Missouri; against the United States army and the United States Government; if they mean that the Legislature under the Topeka Constitution shall be a bona fide Legislature, to enact laws for Kansas, and provide for revenue; and that Governor ROBINSON shall enforce these laws against all opposition; that in or out of the Union there shall be no Government for Kansas but that provided for by the Topeka Constitution; let them proclaim so boldly; and if this be the meaning of our cotemporaries of the Republican press, let them declare it. If this be not the meaning, then let the motto of every Free State man in Kansas and out of it be, "To the ballot box!" If overpowered by violence, if cheated by trickery, publish your wrongs to the world, reorganize your forces, and try it again, and again, and again, till Truth and Justice triumph, and Freedom be forever established.

Whatever may be the decision of our friends in Kansas, let them avoid the fatal policy of doing nothing; and let them avoid, too, any act calculated to furnish a pretext for the armed interference of the Federal Government against them.

Some unthinking persons may cry that this is very tame; but all we have to say to them is, when we feel it our duty to advise others to adopt measures which naturally lead to civil war, we shall feel bound to stand side by side with them, sharing in all the personal responsibilities of the conflict.

We are glad to see the NEW-YORK DAILY TIMES takes the same view of the position of our friends in Kansas, and is urging it with great force of argument.

REDUCTION OF POSTAGE TO THE ISLAND OF ASCENSION.—We are requested to state that, in consequence of a reduction of the British postage on letters between Great Britain and the Island of Ascension, the single rate of letter postage between the United States and Ascension, viâ England, will be, in future, 33 instead of 45 cents, prepayment required.—Union.

The Normal School for free-colored girls, established in Washington by Miss MINER, is in a flourishing condition.

AGRICULTURAL.

FIELD AND GARDEN SEEDS,
AT THE NORTH RIVER AGRICULTURAL WAREHOUSE.
GRIFFING, BROTHER & CO.,
No. 60 Cortlandt-st., New-York.

GENTLEMEN HAVING COUNTRY SEATS AND GARDENS WILL FIND THE IMPROVED POUDRETTE of the subscriber ONE OF THE BEST FERTILIZERS, as well as the CHEAPEST substitute for manure, where there is difficulty in procuring sufficient for garden and farm purposes. Its chief recommendation above all is that it is entirely inoffensive, carrying NO SEEDS OF WEEDS, is very quick and powerful in its operation upon vegetation, and at the same time is so harmless that it can be put in direct contact with the seed or plant without injury, which is totally unlike other fertilizers. It will bring early crops of peas, beans, potatoes, sweet corn, &c., and for lawns and grass plots is unrivalled. The small quantity used, and ease of application render it very economical. The price for 1 barrel is $2; 8 barrels, $5; and $1 50 per bbl. for any quantity over 8 barrels, delivered free in the City. A pamphlet will be forwarded by mail, or furnished gratis on application. Address
THE LODI MANUFACTURING COMPANY,
No. 60 Cortlandt-st., New-York.

J. R. STAFFORD'S OLIVE TAR.—WE COPY the following from the editorial columns of the Boston Daily Ledger, of Feb. 19, 1857. Mr. Barnard, the gentle- man alluded to, is a prominent citizen of Boston:

J. R. STAFFORD'S OLIVE TAR.—In the multitude of curatives that are almost daily offered to the public, it is very difficult to make a selection of any one that will prove valuable for all the purposes for which it is recommended. But in our opinion one specific has been discovered for complaints of the Throat and Lungs that seems to be of inestimable worth. It is J. R. STAFFORD'S OLIVE TAR. From a pamphlet setting forth its many claims on those afflicted with the diseases above named, we learn that this Remedy is not to be taken internally, after the ordinary methods, but is used by INHALATION and AP- PLICATION. In this subtle way it performs its soothing and healing offices on the THROAT, LUNGS, NERVES, MUSCLES, JOINTS, and SKIN. Medicated vapor, impregnated, contains an electro-magnetic power, which is capable of restoring to the system its lost VITALITY; and this is per- formed alike by the inhalation of its odor, and the out- ward application of its fluid. Several of our Physicians often employ it for SPECIAL INHALATION, and its cura- tive properties they well understand. We know of many cures it has performed in cases of Bronchial difficulties in Coughs, Colds, and complaints of a similar character, and we are able to give it our full recommendation.

"We are informed by our fellow-citizen, John M. Bar- nard, Esq., that during a fit of sickness last Winter, he had occasion to make use of the OLIVE TAR, and found it even more efficacious than he had ventured to expect. He caused about three table spoonfuls to be placed in a saucer over a basin of boiling water, heated by a night-lamp, and found that its odor was not only a real DISINFECTANT of the sick room, but a most pleasant soother of the irritation of his Throat and Lungs. He improved immediately in his health, and now uses the OLIVE TAR as occasion may require, in the reservoir of his furnace, satisfied that its volatile odor is of great service in rendering the atmosphere of his house both sweet and healthy at all times."

THURLOW WEED, Esq., Albany.
WM. B. TOWNSEND, Esq., Staten Island.
ISAAC V. FOWLER, Esq., New-York.
Dr. EDWARD BRIGHT, Esq., New-York.
CHARLES VAN WYCK, Esq., New-York.
Rev. Dr. LEONARD, Exeter, N. H.
Gen. DUFF GREEN, Washington, D. C.
Hon. ELI COOK, Buffalo, N. Y.
A. B. BARNEY, Esq., Cleveland, Ohio.
JOHN F. WARNER, Esq., Chicago, Ill.

And of many others equally prominent.

J. R. STAFFORD'S OLIVE TAR is sold at 50 cents a bottle, by the STAFFORD OLIVE TAR COMPANY, No. 16 State-st., (East side Battery,) New-York, and by all druggists.

RHEUMATIC, NEURALGIC, AND ALL other pains cease when J. R. STAFFORD'S OLIVE TAR is applied, because OLIVE TAR contains electro- magnetism, which it transmits to the body, increasing its VITALITY.

These assertions are verified by testimonials from JOSEPH L. LOED, Esq., No. 11 Wall-st., New-York. ROBERT B. COLEMAN, Esq., Astor House. SIMEON DRAPER, Esq., cor. Pine and William-sts. Capt. HENRY RUSSELL, No. 58 South-st., New York. EDWIN R. YALE, Esq., Mansion House, Brooklyn. Gen. THOMAS J. GREEN, Texas. Gen. W. CAZENEAU, Texas.

OLIVE TAR is sold at 50 cents a bottle, by the STAFFORD OLIVE TAR COMPANY, No. 16 State-st., (East side of Battery,)

And by all druggists.

THE GREATEST MEDICAL DISCOVERY OF THE AGE.—MR. KENNEDY, of Roxbury, has discovered in one of our common pasture weeds a remedy that cures every kind of humor, from the worst Scrofula down to a common Pimple.

He has tried it in over 1,100 cases, and never failed, ex- cept in two cases, both thunder humor. He has now in his possession over 300 certificates of its virtue, all within 30 miles of Boston.

Two bottles are warranted to cure a nursing sore mouth.

One to three bottles will cure the worst kind of pimples on the face.

Two to three bottles will clear the system of boils.

Two bottles are warranted to cure the worst canker in the mouth or stomach.

One to two bottles are warranted to cure all humor in the eyes.

Two bottles are warranted to cure running of the eyes and blotches among the hair.

Four to six bottles are warranted to cure corrupt and running ulcers.

Two to three bottles are warranted to cure the worst case of ringworm.

Two to three bottles are warranted to cure the most desperate case of rheumatism.

Three to four bottles are warranted to cure the salt rheum.

Reader, I peddled over a thousand bottles of this in the vicinity of Boston. I know the effects of it in every case. So sure as water will extinguish fire, so sure will this cure humor. I never sold a bottle of it but that sold another; after a trial, it always speaks for itself. There are two things about this herb that appear to me quite singular. first, that it grows in our pastures, in some places quite plenti- ful, and yet its value has never been known until I dis- covered it in 1846; second, that it should cure all kinds of humor.

In order to give some idea of the sudden rise and great popularity of the discovery, I will state that in April, 1853, I peddled it, and sold about six bottles per day. In April, 1854, I sold over a thousand bottles per day.

No change of diet ever necessary—eat the best you can get, and enough of it.

DIRECTIONS FOR USE.—Adults, one table spoonful per day; children over 8 years, dessert spoonful; children from 6 to 8 years, tea spoonful. As no direction can be applica- ble to all constitutions, take sufficient to operate on the bowels twice a day.

Mr. KENNEDY gives personal attendance in bed cases of Scrofula.

NEW AND IMPORTANT DISCOVERY IN THE SCIENCE OF MEDICINE.—TRIESEMAR.—None are genuine unless the engravings of the Seals of the Patent Office of England, the Seals of the Ecole de Phar- macie de Paris and the Imperial College of Vienna, are fixed up in each wrapper, and around each case.

Sold by Dr. H. A. BARROW—Member of the Imperial College of Vienna, and Royal College of Surgeons, Lon- don, who may be personally consulted at his residence, No. 127 Prince-st., (few blocks west of Broadway,) New- York, from 11 o'clock in the morning till 2, and from 4 o'clock till 8 in the evening. (Sundays excepted.)

TRIESEMAR No. 1.—Is the remedy of general and local debility, loss of virile power, premature decay, and all the distressing consequences arising from early abuse, &c.; all physical impediments vanish like magic before its influence, thus rendering its use invaluable to those en- tering the marriage state.

TRIESEMAR No 2.—Entirely eradicates all traces of those disorders which copaiva and cubebs have so long been thought an antidote for, to the ruin of the health of a vast portion of the population.

TRIESEMAR No 3.—Is the great European remedy for that class of disorders which unfortunately, the English physician treats with mercury to the inevitable destruc- tion of the patient's constitution, and which all the Sarsa- parillas in the world cannot remove.

TRIESEMAR Nos. 1, 2 and 3, are prepared in the form of a lozenge, devoid of taste or smell, and can be carried in the waistcoat pocket. Sold in tin cases and divided in separate doses, as administered by Valleau, Lalleman, Raux, Ricord, &c., &c. Price $3 each, or four cases in one lot $9, which saves $3; and to $27 cases, whereby there is a saving of $9.

Special arrangements having been made with the var- ious Expresses, the nine-dollar cases of the Triesemar, and the larger sizes, will be forwarded by Dr Barrow, carriage paid, immediately on receiving a remittance, to any part of the world, securely packed, and addressed according to the instructions of the writer, thus curing in the public of genuine European preparations, and effectually preventing them from spurious and pernicious imitations. The three- dollar cases sent as usual, but not free of carriage.

NEW-YORK CITY.

Celebration of St. John's Day.

A meeting of the delegates from the various subordinate Lodges, working under the jurisdiction of St. John's Grand Lodge, F. and A. M., of the State of New-York, was held at Military Hall, Bowery, on Saturday evening, to complete the arrangements for the celebration of the natal day of their patron saint, John the Baptist. R. W. JOHN H. NYER, J. G. W., in the Chair. There was a large attendance of delegates, and considerable enthusiasm was manifested. Arrangements were made for holding a festival at the Astor House on the evening of the 24th of June, putting the tickets at $5 each. Hon. JOHN WHEELER, of States Rights' Lodge No. 6, will be invited to preside. This will be the first festival held by St. John's Grand Lodge since its reorganization in 1852. More than three hundred tickets were disposed of upon the spot.

POLICE INTELLIGENCE.

Another Homicide—Arrest of a Colored Man charged with causing the Death of a German in Centre-street—Amalgamation.

Notice was given at the Sixth Ward Station-house yesterday afternoon, that a murder had taken place at No. 63 Centre-street. Captain Dowling proceeded to the place named, where he found a man named John Peters, aged some 45 years, lying dead in a bed, about which a crowd of blacks and whites was standing. There were no external marks of violence on the body. In answer to his inquiries, the Captain was informed that Peters was an inmate of the place where his body was then lying; that he lived there with his wife, (a white woman,) whose sister was married to a colored man, named Frederick Francis, who, with his wife and some others, also resided there. They were all dissipated and debased, and drunken quarrels among them were frequent. On Sunday (yesterday) afternoon, between 1 and 2 o'clock, Peters being very drunk at the time, got into an altercation with and struck Mrs. Francis. Francis, the husband, interfered, (so he himself acknowledges,) and shoved Peters away and down upon the bed. Peters in a few minutes afterwards again assailed the woman Francis, whereupon her husband again interfered, and seizing the drunken man roughly pushed him down again on the bed, with some force, and kicked him. Peters then lay quiet, and soon afterwards it was found he was dead.

Francis and his wife, the wife of the deceased and these others, inmates of the den, were at once arrested, and notice of the affair sent to Coroner GAMBLE, who ordered the body to be removed to the Station-House, where an inquest will be held upon it this afternoon.

The prisoners were committed to the Tombs.

The negro Peters is about 44 years of age. The police says he is a bad fellow. He came from New-Orleans, but has lived in this City, in the Sixth-Ward, a great many years. He was sentenced to six months' imprisonment in the Penitentiary about a year since for shoplifting.

Drs. Welsh and Dunnell made a post mortem examination of the body last night. They found nearly all the organs badly diseased, particularly the lungs, and the brain softened from great intemperance.

ATROCIOUS OUTRAGE IN THE FOURTH WARD BY AN EXPELLED CALIFORNIAN.

Jim White, a notorious ruffian, who was expelled from California by the San Francisco Vigilance Committee,—and who, immediately on his return to this City, was arrested on a charge of robbing a female passenger on board the steamship that conveyed him hither,—committed, on last Sunday night week, a most atrocious and daring outrage upon the person of a little girl named Margaret Heany, in the house No. 50 Oak-street, where she is employed as servant to Mr. Thomas Reeves, one of the occupants.

For good and proper reasons, the affair has been kept quiet until the present time. The circumstances of the case are as follows:

Margaret, who is about 15 years of age, was sent of an errand about 9 o'clock on the night in question. While returning, and when within a short distance of her residence, she was accosted by White, who, after some common-place remarks and words of flattery, invited her to take a walk with him the next evening. Never having seen the fellow before, and becoming alarmed, she ran from him and entered her house. White followed close after, and also entered.

The other inmates of the house—Mr. and Mrs. Reeves, and Mrs. Andrew Sheehan—(Andrew Sheehan being a member of Assembly, also occupies a portion of the house,) were slightly acquainted with him, and although a little astonished at the unceremonious visit, invited him to a seat. He sat down, conversed a few minutes with them, left. Mr. Sheehan returned home about 10 o'clock, and on being informed of [illegible] for it by the supposition that he must have been under the influence of liquor. No further thought was given to the matter, and the household retired about 11 o'clock.

Mr. Reeves slept in a back room on the first floor, and his two daughters—one aged eight and the other ten years—slept with the girl Margaret in a front room on the second floor. About 2 o'clock in the morning Mr. Reeves was awakened by loud and piercing shrieks from the floor on which his children slept. He hastily arose. His first thought was that some of the children might have dropped a match and set fire to the carpet or their bedding. He proceeded hastily up stairs without waiting for a light. On reaching the second floor he met a man coming out of the room in which the children slept. The man spoke, and Mr. Reeves concluded from its sound that it was that of Mr. Sheehan. He ceased, therefore, to be further alarmed, for he knew that Mr. Sheehan was at times, in consequence of an injury inflicted on his head, partially insane, and had in consequence on more than one occasion wandered through the house, from room to room. He therefore bid Margaret and the children to be quiet, and addressing himself to the man, said:

"Andy, what is the matter; does your head trouble you again?"

"Oh, it does, very badly; put some water on it," was the reply.

Mr. Reeves then said—"Come this way Andy, till I get some water," and groped his way to the basement, where there was Croton water.

The man followed after, pressing his head the while, and exclaiming, 'oh, Mr. Reeves, my head, my head."

When in the basement Mr. Reeves lit a candle, when to his great astonishment and indignation he discovered the man not to be Mr. Sheehan, as he had supposed, but the notorious Jim White.

"What brings you here, you ruffian?" he angrily asked.

White mumbled something in reply and said—"Oh don't say a word,—put out the light—put out the light!"

This request to put out the light White repeated several times, but Mr. Reeves seeing no possible reason for the demand, refused to do so.

White was finally, with much difficulty, expelled from the house. In the meantime the rest of the family were aroused, and as the girl, Margaret, and the other children, still continued to cry loudly, Mr. Reeves went to the room to pacify them, even then scarcely suspecting that White had done anything other than entering a neighbor's house to sleep by means of a borrowed night key while half crazy and desperate with rum.

The girl Margaret would not be pacified, and expressed herself so strangely that Mrs. Reeves and Sheehan were left alone with her, and to these ladies she stated that Mr. Sheehan had stolen stealthily into her room and attempted to outrage her person, and that because she resisted and screamed she lifted a chair and threatened to kill her. She said she knew the man who entered her room was Mr. Sheehan; she knew him by his voice, "which was exactly his voice," and it was a long time before she was convinced that she was mistaken.

The true state of affairs then appeared. White had entered the house for the purpose of outraging the girl Margaret, and the better to succeed in his design had imitated the voice of Mr. Sheehan so well as to deceive not only the girl, but even Mr. Reeves. The scoundrel knew, too, the fact of Mr. Sheehan's temporary aberration of mind at times, and adroitly made use of this knowledge too, to deceive.

His well-known desperate character gives strength to the belief that, had Mr. Reeves, when in the basement, put out the light as so earnestly requested, he would have been murdered by White, that his other crime might not be known.

An examination made soon after, proved that WHITE effected an entrance into the house by forcing open a basement window.

The person of the girl Margaret was found to be much bruised, but she otherwise escaped harm by her determined resistance and loud screams for assistance.

An affidavit embracing the above facts was made on Tuesday before Justice CONNOLLY, who issued a warrant for White's arrest, and placed it in the hands of Officer Egan, but as yet the scoundrel has not been found. He has fled his old haunts.

White is about 33 years of age of short and stout build. His hair is of a reddish color and hushy, and his face without whiskers. He has a most villainous countenance.

THE ALLEGED ATTEMPT TO LIBERATE HUNTINGDON.

The man, John Scatchard, alias Frazer, alias Jas. B. Cross, &c., &c., who was arrested the other day on a charge of attempting to effect the liberation of Huntingdon, the forger, from Sing Sing, was further examined, on Saturday before Justice CONNOLLY. Jane Henrietta, the wife of the prisoner, was examined, but no revelations of importance could be elicited from her. Officer Lord, who made the arrest, testified to searching the baggage of the prisoner and his wife, and submitted some very mysterious letters which he found. It appears that Scatchard has been traveling lately through the South, riding on horseback, and living on his chirographic wits.

A Decision Reversed.

Judge BIRDSEYE, in a decision a few days ago, sustained the Auditor of Brooklyn, who refused to audit the salary of the Foreman of Repairs and Supplies, upon the ground that the incumbent, Mr. UREAN, had drawn pay from the City Treasury as Assessor of the Seventh Ward, and could not hold two offices at the same time. The case was argued on a peremptory mandamus to compel the Auditor to pass the bill, and was carried up to the General Term at Poughkeepsie, where, on Saturday, the mandamus was granted, thus reversing the decision of Judge BIRDSEYE.

The document was read, but it was so disrespectful in its language that the writer was given permission to withdraw it.

The following resolutions from the Committee on Slavery were presented and read:

SLAVERY.—Majority Report.—The Committee on Slavery beg leave to present the following resolutions for adoption by the Conference.

Resolved, That we regard Slavery as a great moral and social evil, a violation of the natural rights of man, and opposed to the spirit and progress of the Christian religion.

Resolved, That we will use what influence we possess to prevent its extension into regions and communities in which it does not at present exist, and will use all means that may with propriety be used by Christian ministers, to effect its extirpation from the world.

CHAS FLETCHER.
H. HUSTED.
F. B. CHANDLER.

Minority report.—The following was offered as a substitute:

Resolved, That we regard Slavery as a great evil, threatening the peace and prosperity of this republic—the permanence of the Union—and the stability of the Government.

Resolved, That the M. E. Church has been [illegible] enlightenment Anti-Slavery in spirit both by precept and example.

Resolved, That the action had by the late General Conference of our church on the question of Slavery, furnishes us with cause for gratitude and thanksgiving to God for favorable results to the church; giving her peace and prosperity in all her borders.

Resolved, That while we are opposed to Slavery, and have no sympathy with the institution, at the same time we are equally opposed to the radical measures and reckless policy pursued by many of the professed friends of the slave for his emancipation, and that we have no sympathy whatever with their revolutionary movements.

Resolved, That as ministers of the Gospel we will do what we can, not inconsistent with our calling for the extirpation of the great evil of Slavery. And that while we endeavor "to break every yoke and let the oppressed go free" we will pray for the master and slave, as well as for kings, and all that are in authority, that we may lead a quiet and peaceable life in all Godliness and honesty.

CHARLES GROVE.

A lively discussion ensued.

NEW-JERSEY.

The State Fair.

The Executive Committee of the State Agricultural Society, after receiving proposals from Jersey City, Trenton and Hoboken, have selected New-Brunswick as the place for holding the next State Agricultural Fair, to open on Tuesday, Sept. 29, and continue four days. A plot of ground offered by Hon. JAMES PARKER, one mile from the city, will be occupied. In the centre of the plot is a fine spring.

INSTALLED.—Rev. Dr. DAVID H. RIDDLE was installed last evening as pastor of the First Reformed Dutch Church of Jersey City. The sermon was preached by Rev. Dr. MCCLURE, formerly pastor of that Church. The charge to the pastor was delivered by Rev. Dr. B. C. TAYLOR, and the charge to the people by Rev. P. D. VAN CLEEF. There was a large congregation present to witness the interesting ceremony.

FOUND DEAD.—Mrs. JENNINGS, wife of S. JENNINGS, butcher, at No. 92 Newark-avenue, Jersey City, was found dead in her bed on Saturday morning last. The cause of her death was apoplexy.

MONDAY, April 20—A. M.

The Foreign Trade at the port of New-York the past week amounted in the Import entries, including the Dry Goods table in our last paper, to $3,289,692 against $4,148,205 the week ending 19th April last year. The Export clearances of Domestic Produce and Miscellaneous Goods amounted to $1,133,308 against $1,357,934 the corresponding week last year. The Export of Specie, including $360,647 Foreign Coin to the West Indies, amounted to $779,892, against $698,592 the same week last year. The Government Specie balances in the New-York Sub-Treasury on Saturday afternoon stood $15,039,838, against $15,174,799 at the close of the previous week. The California steamer delivered on Monday last $1,229,238 in Gold as against $1,458,502 the corresponding steamer last April. The Specie movements of the week have been about half a million in favor of the Bank reserve, unless the interior exchanges have drawn out some parcels of which we have no record. The probability is that the increase reserve which stood on the last statement, $10,884,490, will show something over $11,000,000 on the official returns to be made up this afternoon. The export demand upon this during the present week and before the next steamer from California, now in her fifteenth day, is fully due, is not likely to be important, nor to influence the supply of Money on the Street which was quite easy through the past week, and very considerably in excess of the demand from the Brokers on Saturday. The Boston steamer, on Wednesday, will take $400,000 in Bullion. The rates of Foreign Exchange are 5.20@5.18¾ on Paris, and 109½@¼on London. The export of Cotton during the past week from the Southern ports was equal to an exchange of five millions of dollars, but as usual at this season of the year, the supply of bills is in the control of the leading banking houses, and the rates less influenced by transient competition. The terms on London, however, are still ⅝@¾ per cent. below this time last year.

According to the Custom-House returns, by months, the entries of foreign goods at the port of New-York, (exclusive of Bullion,) for the nine months of the fiscal or treasury year, from the 1st of July, 1856, to 31st March, 1857, inclusive, Amounted to.....$166,877,000

The decline on the Share list was quite general at the close of the week, and indeed during the last three days, when the Bears, by reason of their recent success in collecting in large differences, and their boldness in renewing heavy contracts for a further decline, held pretty much the control of the market. At the same time the fact that these demonstrations are directed alike against all Stocks, the best and highest in public estimation as well as the cheapest, the credit of all being alike impeached and maligned to compass the end of the speculation, will go far to disarm the movement of the power to inflict enduring mischief, however it may create concern in hundreds of individual cases where money investments are struck at without truth and borne down without principle. Although little else than a desperate game, it is not one that is likely, in the present easy working of the money market and the general state of trade and confidence, to be suffered to run very long in a single direction. It is pretended, to be sure, that a portion of the public, who really hold these values, are frightened into Wall-street to the help of the fictitious sellers; yet the evidences on this point, so far as the principal stocks assailed are concerned, are not only directly the reverse, but forcibly illustrate the artificial value of the depression, as well as the substantial confidence of the public. There is not, for example, five per cent. of the great capital of the New-York Central Road afloat within the control of these speculators for the fall. In other words, the public hold, and have steadily held ever since the consolidation, ninety-five of every hundered shares of the 240,000 shares comprising this property. Of the Michigan Central stock, which was sold down on Saturday afternoon to 93¾, seller 60, there is scarcely one share in a hundred within the control of the Brokers. Of the Illinois Central, not 4,000 out of 140,000 shares. Of the Rock Island, not 3,000 out of 45,000 shares. Of Reading, not one-tenth of the capital. Of the New-York and Erie—the leading fancy, as it is sometimes called—not 17,500 shares (of the value at present price of less than a million of dollars) out of 100,000 shares, although twelve or eighteen months ago, the non-dividend paying character of the securities, since 1854, had thrown nearly 30,000 shares within the control of the speculators. Of Panama, there is not five per cent. of the stock on the Street. And even Michigan Southern and Cleveland and Toledo, against which the assaults of the Bear interest have been directed with most verom, and to present appearances with partial success, are more widely distributed out of Wall-street than a year ago. And so we could go on to enumerate the whole list, if necessary, appealing, in every instance, to the transfer record for confirmation of our statement. We have adverted to the subject, simply to relieve distant holders of these securities of unnecessary anxiety as to the estimation in which they are held by the large body of proprietors, because of the movements at the Stock Exchange. Our remarks might be extended to the Bond list. For example, of the $20,000,000 Illinois Centrals, there are not $200,000, or one per cent. of the loans, on the Street. Of the $28,500,000 Erics, not $250,000 of all descriptions. One of these loans, which is periodically assailed at the Stock Board, by way of weakening the shares, the convertible loan of 1781, $4,351,000 in amount, is distributed to over two thousand small holders, and has been so distributed for several years, the bona fide transfers from year to year scarcely reaching two per cent. of the whole loan.

The general market closed steady at the prices noted above, on Saturday, after a lower market between the two sessions of the Board of Brokers. The most unsettled Stock appeared to be Michigan Southern, which, however, is expected to assume greater steadiness after the annual meeting of the Stockholders on Wednesday, and the publication of the general report of the condition of the Company, as prepared by an able Committee of the Board of Directors.

* These items were included in miscellaneous goods, in our export statement every week of last year. Hence, we cannot furnish comparative figures, in detail, this year. Next year we shall be enabled to do so regularly, by keeping up the record as now arranged through the current year.

The Marietta and Cincinnati Road has been opened through from city to city, and the first through train will be put on the line this day, 20th April. The arrangement for the station accommodation at Cincinnati has been fixed upon, and a permenent lease of the Little Miami track from Loveland, the point of connection, into the city has been obtained upon mutually advantageous and liberal terms, thus dispensing with the necessity of an independent section of twenty miles.

Two of our oldest Wall-street Banks—two of the oldest, indeed, in the country—have within the past week resolved to add a million of dollars to each of their capitals. This movement increases the stock of the Bank of America to $3,000,000, and that of the Bank of New-York to the same figure.

"The good effects of the Coal Organization is now being felt and appreciated—without it, ruin would have stared the large mass in the face—now everything begins to look encouraging, with a fair prospect of a good trade. The demand is increasing, and prices are already advancing. During the week 25 cents ⅌ ton advance on the price two weeks ago, were offered for contracts, but at present the Operators very prudently decline making contracts for any large amount. All it requires is firmness and decision on the part of the Operators who have united together to sustain themselves, (and the blind and foolish outsiders also,) to make the business remunerate them for their labor and investments. The first effort of the opposition to the Coal Organization has failed, and we now feel satisfied that all such efforts will fail. It was this opposition, we learn, that attempted to break down the price of freight to New-York by Canal, but the boatmen stood out manfully, and have succeeded in getting $1 90 instead of $1 80, which was offered. It is generally conceded that $1 90 only fairly remunerates the Boatmen, and experience has amply demonstrated that no branch of business can flourish, nor can the community be benefitted thereby, unless it is properly remunerated."

Sinking Fund by Lot.

To the Editor of the New-York Daily Times:

The depressed staud of most of our railroad bonds has of late attracted the attention of [illegible] men and others, and it is gratifying to [illegible] good ideas come to light to strengthen in the public mind a class of securities of more importance to the national welfare than is commonly accounted for.

Allow me as a foreigner to make one suggestion which possibly you may find proper to indorse.

It is with most companies the rule, even an avowed understanding, to buy in their bonds at intervals, provided they can do so by paying par or less.

This in my opinion is a great mistake, for it is the surest way to keep the price of this class of sureties in a depressed state, instead of employing every honest means to raise their value.

Why do not the companies, according to the German rule, bind themselves to redeem their bonds gradually, drawing them by lot and paying for them in full.

The result is obvious.

The Northern Cross Company of Illinois sink their bonds by lot. The drawing, however, cannot take place in New-York or in any other State where everything in the nature of a lottery is prohibited, and this is probably the main reason why the plan suggested by our correspondent has not been generally entertained in arranging the sinking funds.

VOL. VI.....NO. 1742 NEW-YORK, TUESDAY, APRIL 21, 1857. PRICE TWO CENTS.

ANNIVERSARY DINNER.

The American Dramatic Fund Association at the Astor House.

THE STAGE AND THE PULPIT.

[illegible] T. Brady, Rev. Dr. Bellows, &c.

[illegible] anniversary of the American Dramatic Fund Association was celebrated, last evening, [illegible] by a dinner, which excited an unusual interest from the circumstance of [illegible] being one of the guests, and it became known that any clergyman had lent the [illegible] countenance to such an occasion.

The dinner was given in the small dining-room generally used for ladies' ordinary; but there was [illegible] room for the company, the guests being [illegible] more than on any previous festival of the [illegible] At the cross table sat Mr. BRADY, the President of the Association, and on his right were Rev Dr. BELLOWS, Mr. HASKIN, of the Tribune, GEORGE JORDAN, Esq., of LAURA KEENE'S Theatre, and —— HEARN, Esq.

On the left of the President were RICHARD O'GORMAN, Esq., Dr. QUACKENBOSS, Dr. WAINWRIGHT, Dr. BLAKE, JAMES WALLACK, Jr., and F. C WEMYSS, Esq. There were very few members of the theatrical profession present, but a very large number of reporters. Mayor WOOD, who was down on the programme, did not make his appearance. The Mayor sent an excuse, and the President expressed his regrets in a very feeling manner that his Honor could not have the pleasure of being present. The company sat down to dinner at 5½ o'clock, and, after a blessing had been invoked by Dr. BELLOWS, "ample justice" was done to the sumptuous entertainment. A great variety of appropriate ornamental confectionary adorned the tables, among which the burly figure of the Fat Knight was predominant. There was fine music by DODWORTH'S band, and after the removal of the cloth most noble was admirably sung by a Glee Club. The President in proposing the first toast, made the following remarks:

GENTLEMEN: We [illegible]ered at that stage of the proceedings when the intellectual exercises of this evening are to commence, and I would be very contented that the gentlemen who have done us the honor to agree that they would respond to the regular toasts, should be heard without any preliminary observations from me. But there is a peculiarity about our present entertainment which I cannot permit to pass wholly unnoticed. You have not failed to observe that we are specially honored this evening by the presence of a gentleman of whose distinction and eminence I would be very happy to speak at large if good taste would fully warrant such an indulgence. [Applause.] You see here Rev. Mr. BELLOWS. [Renewed and prolonged applause.] I am not entirely certain, gentleman, whether or not this is the first time that the pulpit has come to give its graces and the influence of its presence to a Dramatic Festival. [Cheers.] But if it be the first time, I have a very strong conviction that with such a precedent it will surely not be the last. [Immense applause.] You may be aware that in a sermon our guest delivered, I believe on the last Thanksgiving day, in this City, he had the courage to turn his mind backward toward that acrid spirit of Puritanism unfortunately so prevalent in our country—that spirit pervading those men who belonged to the class of which MACAULAY has spoken in one of his works—a class which, in reference to the exercise of bear-baiting, were so viciously opposed to it, not so much out of any sympathy for the poor bear, but because they did not like to see people enjoying themselves. [Laughter.] I believe he is the first gentleman of the Reverend profession who has had the courage to announce a principle essentially characterized and thoroughly permeated with the true dictates of Christianity. And the object which I specially have in view in these unpremeditated observations which I make to you, is to announce the gratifying circumstance that although we are to hear from our friend in the course of the evening, at such time and such place in our arrangements as shall comport with his inclinations and tastes, it is not to be expected that he will indulge in any extended remarks; but the time is rapidly approaching when, in a place selected so that the thousands who are longing to hear him may be present, he will discourse of the Drama and its influence in such form, and with such effect as will put this Puritan spirit to the blush, and establish for the drama amongst the most moral of the community, some of the claims to reputation which it has long deservedly attained. [Immense applause.] The American Dramatic Fund Association asked our friend to deliver a public address on the relation of public amusements to public morality, and particularly of the theatre to the sober and moral interests of society. He has kindly consented to deliver such an address for the benefit of the fund. [Applause.] And if, as I have no doubt, the members who throng to hear him be at all in proportion to the merit of the address which they will hear, the fund will, on that occasion, receive an accession in pecuniary strength far surpassing any that ever before arose on any similar occasion. [Applause.]

With these few remarks, prefatory in their nature, and not having intended at all to detain this audience with any observation from me, I announce to you now, gentlemen, the first regular toast;

The President of the United States. [Loud applause and cheering.]

After the fourth regular toast, "The prosperity of the American Dramatic Fund," MISS LOUISA PYNE favored the company with a delicious song which was most rapturously received.

Dr. BELLOWS rose amid loud and reiterated applause, and said:

I consider that our friend who last addressed us, and whose melodious voice is still sounding in our ears, has really spoken indirectly more powerfully and efficiently for the benefit of the Dramatic Fund than anybody who can follow him, however direct may be his aim, can hope to do. SHAKSPEARE himself wrote a whole volume in behalf of the Dramatic Fund Society. [Cheers and a cry of "Bravo!"] Our friend has repeated it highly embellished in the very exquisite abstract which he has given us of him whom we have generally thought incapable of being abstracted—[a laugh]—and whom certainly no one could wish to see condensed. The final cause, I suspect, of the persecution of that lovely green Island by the mother country—as we still affectionately, and, I hope, reverently call her—was doubtless to expel for our benefit certain interesting and eloquent gentlemen whom we never otherwise could have got possession of. [Great laughter and applause.] And I, who was not born as I always thought in such a happy time as to hear CURRAN and GRATTAN have now almost ceased to regret it since I can hear such worthy descendants of theirs. [Applause.]

I feel very much honored, gentlemen, by the exceedingly altogether too kind notice to which your President has been pleased to take of my presence here. I was sorry that he found it necessary to give me the benefit of that fling which consists in a slight stroke at the Puritans. [Laughter.] I have a high respect for the Puritans; indeed, so deep and profound a respect for them that all the reverence I may feel for good old Ireland, which represents the other side of the question—[a laugh]—and the eloquence not only of her children, but of her grand-children, could not for one moment paralyze my tongue whenever it was necessary to say a word in defence of those noble creatures to whom our country owes so much. But they were so grand and so good that they will bear being criticised, and I think we never do them greater honor than when we point out their faults. [Loud Applause.]

With that qualification, Sir, I should be very glad to adopt all that the excellent President has intimated, when he thought it necessary to do me slight honor by elevating me upon the corpse of the Puritans. [Loud laughter.] They are not dead, Sir. [Renewed laughter and applause.] I want also to disclaim any very special credit in presenting myself here as the representative of the clerical profession on this occasion; for, Sir, I presume the clerical profession would not consent to consider me their representative. [Laughter.] Moreover, having always, from certain peculiarities of opinion, been accustomed to occupy a somewhat solitary position—or, at any rate, one in which I have not had any too much of good company in this community—I do not conceive that I make any special sacrifice in meeting whatever prejudices must be encountered in joining hands with members of the dramatic profession. [Applause.] I have had the honor to encounter with them many prejudices in this as in other communities. I have shared as the minister of a somewhat unpopular or not very populous denomination, whatever disadvantage belong to those who may be safely flung at by those who have leisure to throw stones. And, Sir, I confess that I belong to the pachydermous order, in which it becomes actors generally, I think, to clothe themselves as quickly as possible—to become, in short, a thick-skinned race, who are not easily stung by the darts of any malignant enemies. Not, Sir, that all persons are supposed to be malignant who would judge either my position here to be unbecoming, or yours, as a profession, to be undeserving. For believe me, gentlemen, we should both do great discredit to ourselves, and extreme undesert to those of whom I am speaking, if we supposed there were not a vast amount of truly honest and most respectable prejudices connected either with their disparagement of your profession or my position. [Laughter.]

Before I proceed further, I beg to say that every word that falls from my lips at this time is, in the truest manner, extemporaneous; for I should be ashamed to be supposed to be uttering now that which I had carefully prepared or even thought of before, having reserved myself for a more formal address in behalf of your institution on another occasion—ashamed I say, because it would be brought in such immediate contrast with one who has so meritoriously brought out all the beauties of his own mind to adorn this occasion. But, Sir, speaking now in a purely extemporaneous and off-hand manner, let me say one word before going further in regard to a matter which concerns me very deeply, and that is a very atrocious misrepresentation of a certain matter with which I happen to be connected. The public Press, which I may observe with the most entire praise to the honor of the gentlemen who represent it here, is so Argus-eyed that it can see what does not exist very often, and seems to have one of its eyes at my key hole, has undertaken to say that there has occurred in my private correspondence with a very distinguished lady, whose name ought to continue to be honored, as it ever has been, I believe, by the dramatic profession—(applause)—it has been understood, I repeat, and tendered in the public prints, that I have received a letter from Mrs. FANNY KEMBLE, protesting against my appearance at the Dramatic Fund dinner. I think Mrs. KEMBLE altogether too much of a lady, to say nothing more, to suppose that she would have the presumption to interfere in my manner with my [illegible] but, saying nothing of that, I beg here to say that no such letter, as you may very well suppose, has ever been written or received. [Loud applause;] and that some members of your profession, with a quickness of parts for which they are always distinguished, but which is often misapplied under better and more favorable circumstances, have taken upon themselves to imagine, or, at any rate, to believe what has been unwarrantably asserted by the public press. Let me say in regard to that distinguished lady that in the pursuit of the investigation which I have felt bound to give to the influence of the stage, I have had a very interesting correspondence with her, and have received extremely interesting and valuable suggestions which I hope on some other occasion to be permitted to lay before some portion, at least, of the persons who are here present.

Dropping, then, this subject, I return to the matter of the Dramatic Fund. I cannot indulge myself with any extended remarks on that topic. It seems to me that the Dramatic Fund, though, as I understand, it has been somewhat unfortunate in the regions who have been engaged to present its claims on previous occasions, has never been unfortunate in the attention which it has received either from you or from the public at large; and I think I may call the attention of the persons here present to the fact, that one of the most generous donations it ever received, and one of the earliest, was from the excellent lady whose name has been on my lips several times to-night. The Dramatic Fund is to me exceedingly interesting. I desire to add to it by every means in my power, and to see it increase by every opportunity and largesse which your ability may be able to confer upon it. I feel that we owe it as a debt of obligation for the pleasure which in those blissful days of our youth when our hearts were open and gay, and we were ready to receive all the aids of our imagination and all the kindling of our sentiment which the stage could give, we all remember to have received from the skill, the art, and the eloquence of actors. I remember very well as a boy with what infinite pleasure and unspeakable zest I accompanied my father to the Federal St Theatre in Boston, that good old city where I had the felicity to be born. I remember that old theatre and every one of the worthy men who played upon its stage. Above all, I could drop a tear this very instant upon that worthy fellow and infinitely capital jester, FINN. How well I remember—and let me add while it occurs to me—that some, I believe, of the most innocent, and, I might almost say, the most useful hours of my life, were passed in those days in attendance on the theatre. To me it was a world of imagination. The green curtain hid a blissful paradise, and when it rose every drop of blood in my system swelled with joy and gratitude. It never occurred to me that there could be anything wrong or other than the gift of Heaven in the pleasant emotions, in the kindly feelings, in the kindred imagination which the scenes of that old theatre excited in my bosom. [Applause.]

I recollect, too, that some years later, when this very lady whose name has already been mentioned so often, first came to the United States, although at that very time I had begun my divinity studies, yet I was recommended by one of the worthy professors, who had some enlargement of feeling and catholicity of sentiment, to go and see this wonder, as a kind of lesson in elocution, for you know we disguise under very pleasant and moral names some things which would be more honestly ascribed to our love of enjoyment. [Applause.] Well, I recollect that our advice was to go once, but I am very glad to say I went several times—(applause)—and that, as it was almost the last opportunity I ever had of attending a theatre, I have rolled as a sweet morsel under my tongue ever since.

I have not attended the theatre in New-York. I have made a distinction without a difference by going to the Opera. That seems to be tolerated. The theatre I have wanted to go to very much indeed, but it has not seemed to be entirely the thing; and I confess that I have made a sacrifice of personal feeling—(laughter)—to what may be supposed to be a suggestion of prudence and discretion. (Applause.) I beg to say, however, here, that in conveying these sentiments I make a much smaller sacrifice than you may suppose, because they grow naturally out of that philosophy of morals and religion which I bless God it was from my earliest youth my privilege to entertain and receive. I have never been able to think vilely of human nature.

I have never been able to think that the good Providence endowed human beings with any faculties or talents for which He did not somewhere make a stage. I have never believed that so wonderful a gift as the dramatic faculty was meant to be hid in a napkin. [Applause.] I believe that the commission which the possession of that extraordinary power gave to a human being was as genuine a commission to go and fulfill an errand and delight the world, as the possession of any other faculty or talent which the Almighty has chosen to confer. And I must say (to refer to a point to which I have already referred) that I never could regard otherwise than with regret, that a person so seemingly endowed at every point with great and ultimate success in the promotion of human happiness on so vast a scale as Mrs. KEMBLE herself had, under any circumstances, permit herself to retire from a field in which her earliest and greatest honors were won, and for which her endowments still so eminently fit her. (Applause.) Now, I believe that there are a class of persons who are meant to be actors and actresses, and that their endowments and proclivities form, of themselves, a right and a duty to be so, and that this wonderful gift is not to be looked upon by any who possess it as an arbitrary or capricious endowment which they have a right to abuse or neglect, or which is not to be held as amongst the serious and responsible gifts which the Almighty has conferred. And I believe, gentlemen of the Dramatic profession, that if you would regard your own calling as a high vocation, not merely in any worldly sense, but in the high sense in which any other serious commission from the Almighty is regarded, you would elevate vastly your profession, not only in your own eyes, but in the eyes of the world. You would fling from it whatever is unworthy and whatever disparages a position so dignified and so grand, and you would prove soon to the world that you belonged not only, as we sometimes trippingly and sneeringly say, to the artists, but that you are artists in as high a sense as the sculptor, the poet, or the painter, and deserve the same sort of consideration which belongs to the other esthetic representatives of art. [Loud applause.] I never could see the advantage why the Dramatic profession and my own profession should be at such serious loggerheads. I never could see why the friends of morality and religion should not be the friends of innocent enjoyment, of high art, of dramatic and mimic talent. I do not see any proper grounds for this immense antipathy between you and us; and I believe that you have yet to do justice to us as well as we have to do justice to you.

I assure you that if the members of the clerical profession, so far as I have the happiness of knowing them in all orders and classes, were only more unembarassed by their position towards the laity, you would find a more liberal, and larger, and fairer justice done to your profession by that class of men than you have by any other class of men in the whole community. [Applause.] They know what it is to labor with the brain and with the voice. They know, too, a little of what it is to act. I say it in no invidious sense, but they recognize the fact that we all belong to the talking professions, and that we have somewhat the same responsibility in the use of our tongues. They know, I believe, too, the amount of artistic and aesthetic culture which belongs to the man who minds his profession; they must know in their secret hearts that your profession cannot be the light and frivolous one which it is commonly thought to be. They have learned that it is an immensely laborious profession; that it is a very methodic profession; that it requires time, and demands punctuality and strict discipline, and hence they cannot hold it in that light estimate in which it is held by untalking people. We who live by our brains, and are obliged to believe our own hearts, as I trust and hope of you, we, I say, in some degree, are all compelled to do justice to your profession.

I met to-day, in a book which I was reading, not entirely without a purpose, an anecdote, which brings your profession and my profession together, in such a pleasing way, and in a manner so creditable to them both that I translated it, and will read you a few lines, giving the substance of the translation. It is from Dr. VERON'S Memoires d'une Bourgeoise de Paris:

"In one of the Literary Matinees which often took place at L'Abbaye-aux-Bois, RACHEL had been entreated by Madame RECAMIER to recite before CHATEAUBRIAND some scenes from the part of Pauline in 'Polyencte.' Just as she was saying:

'My husband, in dying, has left me his illomination;
His blood, with which your knives have just covered me,
Has oncealed my eyes, now for the first time opened;
I see, I know, I believe—'

the scene was interrupted by an unexpected visitor; the Archbishop of —— was announced. 'Monsieur,' said Madame RECAMIER, a little embarrassed, 'I present to you Mlle. RACHEL, who was most kindly just reciting to us a scene from Pauline, in 'Polyseucte.'"

"I should be wretched," replied the new comer, "to interrupt the beautiful verses of CORNEILLE" From scruples full of delicacy RACHEL, however, declined continuing the scene from "Pauline" in the presence of the prelate. She was not willing to exclaim like a convert to Christianity, "I see, I know, I believe," and thus falsify herself before a Minister of the Catholic Church.

"If Monsignor will allow," she said with a most respectful courtesy, "I will recite some verses from MOLIERE instead." Thus thanks to the work written by RACINE for the young ladies at St. Cyr, she remained faithful to Judaism.

When RACHEL had finished, the Archbishop overwhelmed her with praise. "We, priests of the Lord," he said, "seldom have the pleasure of seeing great artists. I have, however, once enjoyed that happiness at Florence. I heard MALIBRAN in a private drawing-room, and I owe Madame RECAMIER much in having now heard RACHEL. To declaim so well such beautiful verses, it is indispensable to have all the sentiments they express."

RACHEL made his reverence the most grateful courtesy, and then said, with lowered eyes, but with emphatic confidence: "Monsignor, you say only the truth." [Applause.]

Yes, I hope that our professions will come together under as pleasant and as favorable influences as they met on that occasion, and that we may presently get to think that the noble and inspiring sentiments which fall from your lips on many occasions, cannot gain the apparent force and true effective eloquence which they possess, except they have derived it from your hearts. Gentlemen, I hope the days have passed when that can occur again which I have read of somewhere—I forget where, perhaps in some Joe Miller—when the slave old English gentleman was going down the street, and saw some boys cheering or shouting with much heartiness at a well dressed, but somewhat small personage, who was going on the other side of the street, he reproved them for their indecency—for that was a time, I am sorry to say, long gone by, when boys were usually expected to behave with some degree of decency in presence of old age—"Why," said the boys, "don't you know that is only DAVY GARRICK!" "Ah," said he, "you don't know what you may come to yourselves!" [Laughter.]

I trust that that day is gone by, when such a mantle of pitiful charity could be thrown around the Monarch of the Stage. I hope, gentlemen, that, by the friendly favor of this audience, I shall be permitted, on some early occasion, to express, in a very deliberate and formal way, all I have to say, that is grave and thoughtful, upon your profession and the theatre

Until then I can only wish prosperity to the Dramatic Fund, and that I may be permitted from time to time to see it swelling in public favor and gaining in substance and popularity.

The Rev. gentleman resumed his seat amid vehement and continued cheering.

The first two regular toasts, "The President of the United States," and "The City of New-York," were not responded to, but the third toast, "SHAKSPEARE," elicited a most eloquent and beautiful tribute to the genius of the world's greatest dramatist, from Mr. O'GORMAN.

After a collection had been taken up in aid of the Fund the report of the Secretary was read, from which it appears that the institution is in a highly prosperous condition.

Secretary's Report of the Assets of the fund on the 31st of March, 1857:

PREPARATIONS FOR THE CONSTRUCTION OF THE PACIFIC WAGON ROADS—THE FOREIGN MINISTERS—THE GOVERNORSHIP OF UTAH, ETC.

WASHINGTON, Monday, April 20.

The Secretary of the Interior has nearly completed the arrangements with reference to a vigorous prosecution of the wagon roads for which provision was made by the last Congress. Much interest has been manifested here as well as elsewhere, in the construction of these great highways across our continent; and it is believed that the prompt and energetic measures adopted by the Interior Department will secure their early construction.

The gentlemen who have just been selected as Superintendents are: W. E. PREPARATIONS FOR THE CONSTRUCTION OF THE PACIFIC WAGON ROADS—THE FOREIGN MINISTERS—THE GOVERNORSHIP OF UTAH, ETC.

WASHINGTON, Monday, April 20.

The Secretary of the Interior has nearly completed the arrangements with reference to a vigorous prosecution of the wagon roads for which provision was made by the last Congress. Much interest has been manifested here as well as elsewhere, in the construction of these great highways across our continent; and it is believed that the prompt and energetic measures adopted by the Interior Department will secure their early construction.

The gentlemen who have just been selected as Superintendents are: W. E. NOBLES, of Minnesota, who will construct the road from Fort Ridgeley to the South Pass, and return over the Platte Road to Fort Kearney. Mr. NOBLES was appointed under the late Administration to superintend the former Road. WILLIAM M. F. MAGRAW, of Missouri, will complete this Road from City Rocks to Honey Lake Valley, making from the California side. The Road from El Paso to Fort Yuma has been placed under the supervision of JAS. B. LEACH, of TEXAS.

The road from Fort Defiance to the Colorado River was, by some inadvertency on the part of the mover of that clause in Congress, left assignable by the President of the United States, who has given it to the War Department, where arrangements are being made for its construction. The Secretary was desirous of performing some part in this important means of communication with the Pacific shores. Lieut. BEALE, the gentleman so well known in the introduction of camels into the military service, has been tendered the superintendency, the object being that he shall make use of those animals in the construction of the road.

Mr. A. H. CAMPBELL, Civil Engineer, who has been connected with two of the three Pacific Railroad surveys across the Continent, has arranged the programme for the Interior Department in a manner which meets the approbation of the Secretary.

The organization of the several parties is not yet completed. There is to be a disbursing agent for each road, a physician, and such other adjuncts as the business may require.

Not one of our Foreign Ministers has intimated his intention voluntarily to return home, although they have been advised that the Administration wish to make an entire change.

No decisive steps have been taken relative to Utah. There is difficulty in finding a proper man for Governor, though there are half-a-dozen applicants for the office.

The principle of rotation applies to-day, for the first time, in South Carolina, by the appointment of Mr. CONNER as District-Attorney in place of Mr. EVANS.

Captain MONTGOMERY has been ordered to the command of the steamer Roanoke, at Norfolk, which is soon to make her trial trip. Captain DUPONT has been ordered to the command of the Minnesota.

The third Board of Naval Inquiry organized this morning after formally paying their respects to the Secretary of the Navy.

WILLIAM J. ASHLEY has been appointed Postmaster of Lyons, N. Y., vice WATROUS. DANIEL E. WAGNER, do., Rome, N. Y., vice ROWLEY, resigned. WILLIAM H. LINLER, do., Palmyra, N. Y., vice TUCKER. WILLIAM H. HUNTER, do., Easton, Penn., vice HEISTER.

The Weather.

RAIN, SNOW, HAIL AND WIND—A ROOF CRUSHED IN BY THE WEIGHT OF SNOW.

BALTIMORE, Monday, April 20.

A violent northeast storm has prevailed since yesterday evening, with rain, snow and hail at intervals. It is now raining heavily, with a very high wind.

PHILADELPHIA, Monday, April 20.

Snow fell last night at Reading and Pottsville to the depth of twelve inches. The iron roof of the machine shop of the Reading Railroad at Reading was broken down by the weight of the snow. All the workmen in the building escaped except two, who were slightly injured. The wood-work of several locomotives was damaged. The portion of the roof that fell was one hundred and eighty feet in length. This accident will not interfere with the business of the road. The snow fell here briskly for a short time this afternoon. The wires of the Western telegraph line old Pittsburg are down.

Accident on the Hudson River Railroad.

POUGHKEEPSIE, Monday, April 20.

The 10:50 train from Albany, when near Rhinebeck, was thrown off the track, precipitating the engine, tender, and baggage-car into the river. The engine and tender are entirely under the water, and the baggage car is resting on them. The passengers were thrown across the track, and were considerably damaged. A few persons received slight bruises, but no one was fatally injured.

Marine Disasters.

THE BARK WARREN ABANDONED—BURNING OF THE STEAMER LIBERTY.

NORFOLK, Monday, April 20.

The steamer Caleuba brought into this port to-day the bark Warren, which she picked up 90 miles south of Cape Hatteras, abandoned. The Warren was bound from Cuba for New-York, and had her bows stove.

The steamer Liberty was burnt on Saturday, at Plymouth, N. C. Loss $20,000.

BOSTON, Monday, April 20.

The Southern Mail.

WASHINGTON, Monday, April 20.

New-Orleans papers of the 14th inst. were received here this afternoon. They contain nothing of importance.

The James Adger at Charleston.

CHARLESTON, Saturday, April 18.

THE MORMONS.

The Military Power and Political Purposes of the Mormons.

To the Editors of the National Intelligencer:

GENTLEMEN: From a military order recently published in your paper I infer that a division of the United States army is to move into Utah. This news will be hailed with joy by thousands of American citizens in every State and Territory of the Confederacy who have suffered directly or indirectly by the atrocious outrages of the Mormons, committed while quietly pursuing their toilsome journey overland to Oregon and California. Every indignity has been offered to emigrants, every species of property stolen, and every species of crime has been committed. The Federal laws have been trampled in the dust, Government officials set at defiance, menaced, threatened and insulted; juries have been influenced, and the ends of justice thwarted; the prison-doors have been opened and the criminals set free. All this did not satisfy them, but they must enter the hall of records and publicly burn the archives of the Territory.

Now, as evidence of their inveterate hatred to Americans and everything pertaining to America, (and these sentiments are constantly taught and preached,) I will cite as follows:

A Gentile shall not board in my family, and if one of my houses was rented to a Gentile, after the time had expired I would burn it down! That's the doctrine.—Jedediah M. Grant.

If a Gentile were boarding in my family, and I should bow down to pray, and the Gentile or heathen should hesitate, I would say to him, bow down, you devil! This is the doctrine, and I know it; and any man who shall oppose it shall be destroyed.—Heber C. Kimball.

Their religious tenets may be inferred from the following:

I believe in marrying brothers and sisters; I believe in the pre-existence of man; that Adam and Eve are the parents of all men, spiritually and physically; that all the saints of this dispensation will be resurrected by JOSEPH SMITH, Jr. If I am ever saved, I expect to be saved by and through the atonement of JOSEPH SMITH!—Brigham Young.

Were my daughter to marry a Gentile, I would save her in this kingdom, namely, cut her throat from ear to ear.—Brigham Young.

Their advocacy of internal improvements may be inferred from the following:

Mr. LEE, who piloted the Government troops through on that route (south side of Great Salt Lake) last Spring, (1854,) wished to publish a book—a guide of the route—but was prevailed on not to do it, as the Presidency there (Carson Valley) did not wish the emigration to pass that way.—Elder Johnson.

Object of Missionaries:—Most of the foreign Missionaries will be called home. They will be sent all among the Indian tribes to teach them agriculture, the mechanic arts, and military tactics!—Brigham Young.

Means of defence:—We have the self-loading twenty-four repeating rifle, the Minnié rifle, Browning's revolving five-shooting rifle, Colt's rifle and pistol, and a revolving cannon, or field piece.—Elder Ivins.

All the above-named fire-arms, powder, ball, &c., are in process of secret manufacture.

What the Indians are expected to do:—It (the United States mail) may some this way a while yet, as they (the Indians) wish to cut off the mail going from here!—Elder Hawkins.

The Sioux, Cheyennes, and Arapahoes have banded together against the Gentiles to the number of 3,000 warriors.—Walker, Chief of the Utah Indians.

There is more union in the Masonic Order than any other except the Mormon.—Heber C. Kimball.

The right of private search by "rouges' keys" is a peculiar characteristic order of the Mormons.—Memoranda.

The law and the prophets:

A kingdom can exist within a Republic.—Brigham Young.

No one was ever known to dissent from the will of BRIGHAM YOUNG.—Orson Pratt.

What may be expected:

If Government officers ever interfere with our women again, I will cut their throats from ear to ear.—Brigham Young.

A division of the United States Army shall never Winter in this valley again.—Brigham Young.

The above quotations are taken from a mass of information collected in 1854-'55, during nearly a year's stay in Utah, all of which came under my personal observation, and was noted at the time it was spoken. I have been thus particular in noticing these quotations, that the public may know upon what is based the conclusions that follow.

The Mormon priesthood is a consolidated system of police, compounded from the old Aaronitic, Levitical, and Melchisedeck priesthoods, and is known by the name of "The Church of the Latter Day Saints of Jesus Christ." BRIGHAM YOUNG is the Prophet, Priest, and King of the Saints. His will is law; he is the vicegerent of God, deriving authority directly from Him, which is absolute whenever he says "thus saith the Lord." BRIGHAM stands upon the shoulders of his two counsellors: they stand upon the shoulders of the other ten apostles; they stand upon the shoulders of the high priests; they stand upon the shoulders of the bishops; they stand upon the shoulders of the captains of fifties and seventies; they stand upon the shoulders of elders; they stand upon the shoulders of the lay members of the church; they stand upon the shoulders of the laboring masses who till the soil which supports the pile. From his towering height BRIGHAM issues forth his edicts to the people, and with the scorpion lash of his serpent tongue he lashes every one into silence. "No one was ever known to dissent from his will." The entire fraternity is bound together by oaths the most solemn to support the church and nothing but the church, and every man, woman, and child is constituted a police officer, always on duty, and required to report to the head whenever anything of sufficient interest occurs to justify it. From this you will not fail to perceive that the church form is but a closely compacted system of police, having a head from which it derives all power, and a body forming a nucleus around which are gathering the ignorant, the superstitious, the bigot, the outlaw, and the disaffected of all countries in the world, who are taking refuge, as they suppose, under the wings of the angel of the last dispensation. However deluded the great mass of their followers

Before Judge Nelson.

COLLISION—FOG—LICENSED PILOTS AND ENGINEERS.

Aston Bendrect and others, owners of the steamboat Sylph, vs. The steamboat Sylph.—NELSON, C. J.—The libel was filed in this case to recover damages for a collision that occurred in the bay of New-York on the 17th December, 1853, in which the steamboat Sylph was seriously damaged, the bow of the Sylph, a heavy boat having struck her on her starboard side some twenty or twenty-five feet abaft her stem, tearing away the bulwarks and deck, and cutting her down below the water's edge. The Sylph had started on the morning of the 17th December from the Whitehall ferry-for her usual trip to Port Richmond, being one of the ferry lines between these two places. The Eagle was coming up to New-York from Fort Hamilton, being engaged in running between this City and Elizabethport, N. J. The collision occurred between seven and eight o'clock in the forenoon. There was a strong flood tide that the hands on either vessel could not see an object ahead beyond the length of their boats. Each was going at the same rate of speed, say from nine to the hour, which seems to be the rate adopted by steamers in the bay when moving in a fog in the middle part of the present occasion. The fires of both vessels were kept low so that each could readily slow, stop, and back in an emergency, another precaution it seems when running in a fog.

A person was assigned, on each boat, to ring constantly the alarm bells, which were heard by the approaching vessel in time for each to give the order to slow, and stop, and back, and which orders were obeyed, before either was seen by the other as came to the front of the fog. When they came together, there was more or less head way on each vessel, notwithstanding—as is abundantly avident upon the evidence. The hands on board of each exercised their best efforts and skill to check the motion, after hearing the alarm bells. Nothing seems to have been neglected on board either, within their power at the moment, to avoid the disaster. No fault can be imputed to either, according to the proofs, unless, indeed, it was a fault to run the trips, on which the vessels were engaged, at all, in the state of the weather. And on this, both stand on the same footing. Judge Ingersoll, who decided this case below, dissented from the libelant, putting his decision mainly upon the ground that, taking the strength of the Eagle, she being a new vessel, and the description of the wound inflicted, he was induced to think that the speed of the Sylph was greater than that of the Eagle, and the great for the state of the weather. There are other concurring experts who express this opinion, from an examination of the wound. But, after the full[illegible] consideration, I cannot concur in it. The [illegible] by witnesses of the rate of speed of the Sylph is strong and decisive as that of the rate of the Eagle, and for ought that appears, as much credit is due to one set of proofs as to the other, and according to this proof the rate of speed was the same. [illegible] There are facts in the case which fairly account for the injury to the Eagle consistent with the rate of speed of the two boats being equal, and the efforts of each the same, to check it at the moment of the danger.

The Sylph was much the heaviest boat, according to the proof, and she struck the Eagle head on, and under her bulwarks and deck, tearing up and smashing each by the combined force of the motion of the two vessels. The manner of their coming together gave the advantage to the Sylph, which, together with her greater weight, may well account for the difference in the injury.

There are, also, some considerations that would naturally lead to the conclusion—the rate of speed of each vessel being the same at the time, and, also, the efforts to check the same,—that the motion of the Eagle could not be as readily overcome as that of the Sylph. The tide was strong flood, some four mile a the hour. The collision occurred [illegible] distance below Castle William in the bay. The Eagle therefore, had the force of the tide to overcome besides the motion from her engine: and the Sylph, the cooperation of this force to aid in checking her at the instant.

This case is a most unfortunate one, and may well attract the attention of masters and owners, and lead them to consider whether prudence would not dictate, as well from a proper regard for the lives of passengers as the safety of property, that, in a port crowded as is that of New York, with every species [illegible] vessels should anchor in so unusual and dense a fog. The master or pilot may, indeed, avoid running upon the shore, or against an island, or any other fixed obstructions in the way by the use of the compass; but these are trifling contingencies when compared with the chances of running against vessels moving or at anchor, as against which the compass is no security. If the Eagle had been at anchor, in this case, and encountered the Sylph in that condition, I should not have hesitated to have charged the latter with all the consequences of the disaster. As the case stands, I cannot see that the one is in fault more than the other, and from the usage and custom, which have come frequently under my observation, of running these boats in thick weather, I am not disposed at present to hold that both were in fault, so as to justify an apportionment of the damages. But this I will say, so long as the custom continues, the Court will not feel bound in case of a disaster to discriminate with any very great nicety as to the degree of fault imputed to the one or the other of the two vessels that may choose to encounter the hazards of the navigation. It has been urged that the Sylph was in fault, for not having on board a licensed pilot and engineer under the Act of Congress of Aug. 9, 1852. But the 42d section of that act excepts steamers used as ferry-boats. The Sylph, I think, comes fairly within this exception.

Decree of the Court below reversed, and libel dismissed with costs.

For libelants, Mr. Tallmadge and Judge Beebe; for claimant, Mr. Stoughton.

The case of Alexander Cross vs. George Law, was taken up for trial this morning before Judge NELSON and a jury. This suit is brought to recover about $18,000. The plaintiff alleges that in 1850 he was sent by the defendant to Valparaiso to purchase coal there, to be transported to San Francisco for his line of steamers. He went and bought the coal, but it was delayed some time by transhipments, &c., and when it arrived at San Francisco the price of coal had fallen so much that Mr Charlick, the agent of the defendant, refused to pay for it. He did, however, take the first cargo that came, and agreed to pay the freight upon it, leaving the amount due for the purchase to be settled afterwards. The same arrangement was made for the second cargo, but before it was discharged, Mr. Charlick refused to take it or to pay the freight. It was accordingly sold at auction to some person, whom the plaintiff alleges he could never find and supposes to have been an agent of Mr. Charlick, and was finally delivered at Mr Charlick's yard and used on the defendant's steamers. The proceeds of the auction sale are credited to the defendant, and the balance of the purchase money, freight, commissions and demurrage, amounting to $17,357, besides interest, the plaintiff claims to recover in this suit.

The testimony of the plaintiff occupied the day. It was in writing, consisting of letters and depositions.

SUPREME COURT—SPECIAL TERM—April 20.

Before Hon. Justice Roosevelt.

THE TARRYTOWN HABEAS CORPUS CASE.

In re Sarah J. Paulding.—This case again came up yesterday pursuant to adjournment, but was immediately set down by consent, for the third Monday in May.

The case of Mitchell vs. Bellman, the facts of which were some days since published in the TIMES, was postponed until to-day.

COURT OF GENERAL SESSIONS.

Before Hon. Recorder Smith.

THE POISONING CASE IN SECOND STREET.

On Saturday, the young German, Henry Beck, who pleaded guilty on Wednesday of last week, to a charge of attempted manslaughter, was brought up for sentence. It will be remembered that Beck placed some arsenic in some food prepared for the family of George Griesgraber, residing in Second-street, and that Griesgraber and his wife, having eaten of this fare, were taken violently sick, and were only saved from death by the utmost exertions of their medical attendants. Beck, on pleading guilty, stated that he had no grudge against the family, and did not know why he poisoned the food. The Recorder, on Saturday, sentenced him to the State Prison for five years, but in consequence of representations which were made to him, the sentence was not recorded. Yesterday, the Counsel for Beck appeared in Court, and offered the following affidavits in arrest of sentence:

Court of General Sessions for the City and County of New-York. The People &c. vs. Henry Beck.

City and County of New-York, ss.—David Neelerr, being duly sworn, says: That he resides at No. 99 Clinton street, in this City, and is a tailor working at his trade; that he is from Roneavard, in Bohemia, the same place where Henry Beck (who is now under sentence of this Court for an attempt to poison) was born, and that he has known Beck from his infancy. Deponent further says, that most of Beck's family, and his immediate connections reside there and are of the highest respectability, and are both wealthy and influential; that the father of said prisoner was one of the first merchants in America, and carried on business in the cities of Brinn and Vienna; that the prisoner came to this country some time in July last, having been sent away by his family to avoid the military conscription, and was thoroughly provided with means to make his stay in this country comfortable. Deponent further says that he has seen Henry Beck frequently handed here, feelings of the most morbid description, and which was his usual [illegible] his actions to deponent were singular [illegible] Deponent further says that his [illegible] to insanity on the paternal and [illegible] scale in the male, and two in the [illegible] that one of his cousins was for [illegible] Bohemia on account of insanity. [illegible] that one of sixteen demented, [illegible] that his only surviving sister was also, according to the opinion of the family physician, predisposed to lunacy.

Deponent further says that Henry Beck has had every expense lavished on his education which the kindness and opulence of his parents could procure, and that his mother is still alive and in Bohemia.

DAVID NEELERR.

Sworn and subscribed to before me this 20th day of April, 1857. J. M. SMITH, Jr., Recorder.

City and County of New-York, ss.—Leopold Fisher, and Marcus Arnstein, being severally sworn each for himself, deposes and says: That the facts stated in the foregoing affidavit as to the opulence and the insanity in the family of Henry Beck, are true, of their knowledge, and that they are from the same part of Bohemia, where Beck's parents resided, and that their predisposition to lunacy was a matter of general notoriety in the neighborhood, and further deponents saith not.

LEOPOLD FISHER.
MARCUS ARNSTEIN.

Sworn and subscribed to before me, this 20th day of April, 1857. J. M. SMITH, Jr., Recorder.

City and County of New-York, ss: Michael Schoen being duly sworn, says he resides at No 123 Stanton-street, this City; has practiced medicine twenty years; was a government physician in Bohemia; that Henry Beck came once or twice to be prescribed for at his office: that he complained of pains in the head, which he said he was occasionally subject to, and deponent says he was occasionally subject to, and deponent says he was then laboring under the effects of melancholy, caused as deponent believes, and as Beck partly informed him, from home sickness; further deponent saith not

DR. M. SCHOEN.

Sworn and subscribed to before me, this 20th day of April, 1857. JOHN F. GRAY, Com. of Deeds.

The sentence against Beck will not, at present, be put in execution.

THE ARSON CASE POSTPONED.

The charge against Messrs. Barnes & Linford, for arson, which was specially set down in the Calendar for trial yesterday, was further postponed till Thursday, through the application of counsel.

Timothy Sullivan was tried for stealing a barrel of copper from Pier No. 12 East River, on the 19th of March. The evidence was conflicting, and the Jury failed to agree.

Two prisoners pleaded guilty of larceny, and were remanded for sentence.

A New Law Book.

We understand that SAMUEL TYLER, Esq., of Frederick City, Maryland, is now engaged in writing a "Manual of the Maryland Simplified Pleading." We hail everything that essentially and logically simplifies the Law in any part of our Country, and we congratulate Maryland that this work has fallen into such able hands. Mr. TYLER is one of the Commissioners appointed to reform and simplify the Law of Maryland. The report on the reform of the Chancery Law, which is, we believe, from his pen, has attracted much notice here and in Europe. The first work by which he made himself known, was entitled The Baconian Philosophy. Ever since he has been a correspondent of Sir WILLIAM HAMILTON, as long as that great philosopher was among the living, and we have heard it stated, upon good authority, that the election of Mr. FRASER as successor to Sir WILLIAM in the Edinburgh Chair of Metaphysics, was chiefly owing to the recommendation of Mr. TYLER, which had been sought for from Europe. We are told that many private papers have been sent to Mr. TYLER by the family of HAMILTON, as materials for a Life of the Metaphysician, on which the Maryland philosopher is now engaged. To judge from the papers which he has published from time to time, we should consider him eminently qualified for the noble task. Let the South fairly compete with the North in the race of mental and material progress, and we shall always be found among the readiest to acknowledge it. L.

The Rio Negro in South America.

NEW-YORK, Tuesday, April 14, 1857.

In your paper a few days since you made a slight geographical mistake. You were speaking of the Republic of Chili, and stated that the said Republic had sent an expedition to see whether the Rio Negro had any communication with both the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans. So far you were right; but you went on to state that the above-named river emptied into the Amazon, and mentioned that Brazil would not allow vessels to navigate the Amazon. There is a Rio Negro that empties into the Amazon, but it is not the one which the Chilian Government has sent to explore. That empties into the Atlantic in about 400 South latitude and on the map comes within a few miles of the Pacific. That being in the Southern part of Chili, which has never been fully surdued by the whites, has consequently never been fully explored. If a short canal could be cut and the Rio Negro prove to be navigable for large vessels, it would be a grand avenue for commerce. I have seldom or never found any errors of fact in your paper. This must be my excuse for now offering the above correction.

Yours respectfully, L. F.

MARKET REPORTS.

Markets....MONDAY, April 20, 1857—6 P. M.

The rain storm obstructs business.

COFFEE—Is in limited demand at old figures. Java, 15½c. @15½c.; Laguayra, 12c. @12½c.; Maracaibo, 12c. @12½c.; Rio, 10c. @12c.; Jamaica, 11½c. @11¾c.; and St. Domingo, 11¾c. ₱ lb.

COTTON—Is dull and heavy, with apparently more sellers than buyers; Middling Uplands, 14c; do. Gulf, 14½c. @14¾c.; other grades proportionate rates, ₱ lb.

FLOUR AND MEAL—The market shows less vigor for State and Western flour. The supply is moderate, especially of undesirable lots. The demand is tame, mainly for home use, there being very little inquiry from shippers. Prices are depressed for low qualities, and are steady for other kinds. Sales have been reported of only about 4,200 bbls.:

Ordinary State	$5 50@$5 70
Straight State	5 70@ 5 80
Extra State	5 80@ 6 00
Common to Good Indiana and Upper Lake	5 65@ 5 85
Common to Good Superfine Ohio	5 70@ 5 90
Fancy Michigan	5 80@ 5 90
Extra Indiana and Michigan	5 90@ 7 50
Extra Ohio	6 00@ 7 75
Fancy Genesee	6 10@ 6 30
Extra Genesee	6 75@ 8 50
Extra Missouri	6 50@ 8 75

Canadian continues unaltered. Superfine to extra is worth $6@$7 70 ₱ bbl.; 350 bbls. were disposed of within the range. Southern is in good request at improved prices. The transactions, since our last, comprise about 1,120 bbls. low Mixed to fair Extra, and choice Extra at $6 25@$7 90, and $7@$8 75 ₱ bbl. Rye Flour is salable and firm, at $3 5(@$4 65 for Fine to Superfine, ₱ bbl. Corn Meal is moderately in demand and steady at $3 20@$3 25 for Jersey, and $3 60@$3 65 for Brandywine, ₱ bbl. The latter brings $17@$17 25 in puncheons.

GRAIN—Wheat is scarce, quiet, and somewhat nominal in value. Rye, salable and steady, at 84c. @ 85c. ₱ bushel. Barley is rather plentier and is sparingly sought after, at $1 50@$1 75 for common to choice. Barley Malt is dull and nominal, at $1 20@$1 90 ₱ bushel. Oats are more inquired for, and are up to 58c. @ 60c. for Western; 55c. @57c. for State; 52c. @55c. for Jersey; and 50c. @52c. for Southern, ₱ bushel. Corn continues in good demand, at irregular rates. We have heard of sales of only small lots at 73c. @ 72½c. for old Western mixed, in store; 71c. @74c. for new and old yellow, and 71c. @77c. for new and old White, ₱ bushel.

HAY—About 250 bales River found buyers, mainly at 75c. for shipment, and 87½c. @$1 for local use, ₱ 100 lbs.

IRON—The general supply is very light, and the demand is tame. Prices are somewhat nominal.

LEAD—Is in limited request at unchanged prices.

LIME—Has not varied much.

MOLASSES—The market appears quiet, yet firm. Porto Rico, in hhds., 36c. @37c.; Cuba Muscovado, 33c. @33c.; Clayed Cuba, 30c. @32c., and New-Orleans, 74c. @75c. ₱ gallon.

NAVAL STORES—Resin, Tar and Crude Turpentine remain as last noticed. Spirits Turpentine is less abundant and with an improving inquiry, it commands 49½c. @ 50c ₱ gallon.

OILS—Have generally been lightly dealt in, to-day, at about former quotations.

PROVISIONS—Pork is dull and drooping, with sales reported of only about 525 barrels, in lots, at $22 70@ $22 75 for Mess, and $19 50@$19 40 for Prime, ₱ barrel. Dressed Hogs bring, in lots, 9½c. @9¾c. ₱ lb. Cut Meats are in limited demand, and are heavy, at 10¾c. @11c. for Hams, and 8¾c @9c. for Shoulders, ₱ lb. Bacon is quiet, yet stiffly held, at 10½c. @12c. ₱ lb. Lard continues in moderate request, at former prices. The transactions since our last reach about 250 bbls and tcs., mostly fair to prime, at 14c. @14½c., ₱ lb. Beef is in fair demand, at steady rates. $500 REWARD.—PROCLAMATION.—I, FERNANDO WOOD, Mayor of the City of New-York, by virtue of authority vested in me by law, do hereby offer a reward of five hundred dollars for the arrest and conviction of the person or persons who murdered STEPHEN P. HARDENBROOK, a member of the Police Department of this City, while in the act of arresting two burglars on the morning of Wednesday, April 15, 1857, in the vicinity of No. 295 West-st., Ninth Ward. Said reward to be paid on the conviction of the offender or offenders, on the certificate of the District-Attorney that said conviction was had upon the testimony of the party claiming the same, but all claims for said reward not presented within twenty days thereafter will be disregarded. Witness my hand and seal of Mayoralty, this 17th day of April, 1857. FERNANDO WOOD, Mayor.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

HOOPER'S WESTERN FRUIT BOOK.
1 vol. 12 mo. Pages 324. Colored Illustrations.
PRICE, $1.
The arrangement is good.—Prairie Farmer.
From the Prairie Farmer.
Eminently adapted to the wants of the Western Fruit-grower.
From the Cincinnati Gazette.
Embraces a list of fruits that have been tested in this climate—many of the celebrated Eastern varieties will not suit. It is just such a book as is wanted.
From the Ohio Cultivator.
Something new and original. Not that we find fault with the standard works already before the public, but Western Orchardists are obliged to make such allowances for differences of soil and climate that it is better to have a new work from the root.
From the Prairie Farmer.
We commend it to every reader who has, or desires, or intends to have an orchard.
It is invaluable.—Detroit Advertiser.
From the Presbyterian.
The different varieties are presented with a careful statement as to their appropriate soil, treatment, yield, etc., by an eminently practical man.
From the St. Louis News.
A book of great value to practical and experimental farmers, by whom it should be carefully read and studied.
From the Chicago Democratic Press.
Replete with practical deductions from well-ascertained facts for the use of the Western Orchardist.
Nearly three thousand copies already sold—published April 1.
For sale by all Booksellers. It will be sent by mail.

TAYLOR'S SALOON.—THIS MAGNIFICENT temple of art and luxury, so well known to fame throughout the world, will be opened to the public THIS DAY, March 23, 1857. Animated by his great success, and deeply impressed with the very liberal patronage of the public, Mr. TAYLOR has called to his aid those eminent artists HENRY HOFFMAN and CHARLES V. LEWIS, of this City, who have, during the past Winter season, decorated and embellished the whole interior of his splendid Saloons, which now present a far more gorgeous coup d'œil than when first completed. To those who love to feast their eyes upon the beautiful, and are pleased to contemplate architectural grandeur, with decorations unsurpassed in any country, this will afford a rare opportunity to treasure up a delightful reminiscence.

THE BEST FILTER EVER MADE,
FOR CROTON OR HYDRANT WATER.
PATENTED 1849.
This Filter cleanses and purifies water from all soluble and inorganic substances; is itself washed from its own collection of impurities; draws water unfiltered as fast as from the ordinary faucet, and acts as a perfect stop-cock, by simply
TURNING THE HANDLE
of the instrument to points as designated on the top of the Filter, by the words filter, wash water, stop.
It excels all others in point of convenience and durability and is offered to the public as the best and most effective Filter ever invented.

THE ELVES,
LEGEND.—The mountain forests of Pastoria are inhabited, it is said, by Pixies, Sprites and Elves, who, like the Phantom Dancers of Germany, delight to entrap travelers into their realms and torment them with their mischievous antics. Having the power of transforming the spirit, they often, in their malicious gambols, give life to the newly dead. Statues, rocks and trees are seen fantastically moving in the forest, but it is only during the day they retain their fictitious existence; at the approach of night they resume their immobility.
THE MONEY QUESTION will be produced immediately.

ALBERT H. NICOLAY, Auctioneer.
FOR A PERMANENT INVESTMENT.
$47,000 EIGHT PER CENT. CITY AND COUNTY BONDS AT AUCTION.—ALBERT H. NICOLAY will sell on THURSDAY, April 23, at 12½ o'clock, at the Merchants' Exchange,
$30,000 HANCOCK COUNTY (Illinois) 8 PER CENT. BONDS, dated July 1, 1856, and redeemable at the American Exchange Bank in New-York, July 1, 1876; Interest Coupons payable annually, on the 1st day of July, $1,000 each.
$10,000 WARSAW CITY (Illinois) 8 PER CENT. BONDS, dated May 1, 1856, and due at the American Exchange Bank, in New-York, May 21, 1876; Interest Coupons payable January and July 1, $1,000 each.
The above bonds were issued in conformity with an act of the State Legislature, authorizing the issue of bonds to aid in the construction of the Warsaw and Rockford Railroad. The amount of taxable property in the county, for the year 1856, was $5,808,848; taxes, $73,508; population about 25,000; area in acres, 432,640. The authorized issue by the county is $310,000. The authorized issue of taxable property in the city is $1,000,000; taxes, $6,050; population, 3,400. The authorized issue by the city is $50,000, and no more can be issued by either the city or county, without an act by the Legislature, and sanctioned by the people, so that every precaution has been taken to make these Bonds unquestionable in point of security, and they cannot be repudiated under any circumstances. Hancock county is one of the most prosperous in the State, and it is expected that fifty miles of the above railroad, from Warsaw to Ogsawka Junction, will be finished and in full operation in about sixty days.
The sale is to be made for account of the Warsaw and Rockford Railroad contractors, who received these bonds at par, and must realize to meet their obligations. The bonds will be sold without reserve. For a copy of the act under which these bonds were issued, and full particulars, apply to ALBERT H. NICOLAY,
Stock Auctioneer and Banker, No. 4 Broad-st.
P. S.—I have fully examined the strength of these securities, and I can recommend them to my friends and the public with the utmost confidence, believing that they will compare with anything in the market and for a permanent investment no safer bonds can be found.
ALBERT H. NICOLAY.

HENRY H. LEEDS & CO. WILL SELL BY AUCTION on WEDNESDAY, April 22, at 12 o'clock at the Merchants' Exchange, important sale of an elegant country seat and building sites on Staten Island, being the western and central sections of the extensive and highly picturesque property known as "Hill Park," on Staten Island, 4½ miles from Vanderbilt's Landing, on the Kingsland Plank Road, and near the New Drop Station, on the now constructing Staten Island Railroad. The estate is situated on the range of hills extending from Toad Hill. The portion offered at present comprises 103 acres, and includes the first-class country residence of "Hill Park House," with about 7 acres of ground laid out at great expense, in the most superb style of English landscape gardening, and containing a beautiful lake stocked with gold fish. The house is newly built of the best material, by day's work, and forms, with offices and outbuildings, a complete residence of a large and wealthy family. The remaining land has been laid out in the style of an English park, in which two public parks, of about 6 and 2 acres respectively, have been set aside for use of the residents on the estate, and the surrounding space has been laid out and fenced in for 14 building sites, containing none but useful and appropriate lands, and made accessible by wide and handsome park roads. For further particulars and maps, and, also, for free omnibus tickets to view the estate, apply at our office, No. 23 Nassau-st.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

It is understood that the wagon roads to the Pacific, authorized at the late session of Congress, will be promptly put under construction—the general plan having already been adopted. A distinct bureau has been created for the management of the business, which is to be under the charge of Mr. CAMPBELL, of the Topographical Engineers. The appointments for the superintendence of the Northern roads have been made. Mr. LEACH is to have charge of the construction of the main road. Colonel NOBLES is to be continued on the road from Fort Ridgley to the South Pass as far as the intersection, which will be on Deer Creek. WILLIAM F. MAGRAW will have charge of the road from Fort Kearney to Cit Rock, four hundred miles east of the eastern border of California, at which point he will meet Mr. KIRK and proceed on to California. By these arrangements the expense of wintering any party is avoided. Messrs. NOBLES, LEACH and KIRK are Northern men. Mr. MAGRAW is a Marylander by birth, but for some years past has been a resident of Missouri.

We publish this morning a letter from the National Intelligencer, which presents some very startling views of the power and designs of the Mormons. It is written by a gentleman who is said to have lately spent twelve months in the Salt Lake Valley, engaged in business connected with the transit of the mails through the Territory to and from the Pacific, and, who, while thus residing in the Mormon community, studied attentively the character and government of BRIGHAM YOUNG, the supreme head, as well as the customs, habits, morals, and laws of the community, if laws they may be called, which consist simply in the will of a despot. He confirms fully the statements and apprehensions of Judge DRUMMOND, and insists upon the necessity of taking some very prompt and decisive measures to protect the country from the dangers which threaten it from this quarter. He says the Mormons are 100,000 strong in Utah, besides having 200,000 spies and agents scattered throughout the country, and being in close alliance with 300,000 Indians upon our Western border. The statements of his letter are entitled to the most careful attention.

In consequence of the strong remonstrances against the proposed location of Quarantine at Prince's Bay, Governor KING proposes, it is said, to make another and more thorough inspection of that locality in a day or two, possibly with reference to some change in the proposed site.

The storm of yesterday was very severe, and extended over a large space At Baltimore, rein, snow and hail alternated, accompanied by very high wind. At Reading and Pottsville, Pa., snow fell to the depth of twelve inches, and the iron roof of the machine shop of the Reading Railroad, at the former place, was crushed in by the weight of the snow upon it. Telegraphing was seriously interfered with, several of the lines being prostrated.

The steamer George Law left yesterday for Aspinwall, with about 600 passengers, among whom were Col. WELLER and lady, the Commissioner and his party for surveying the boundary of the British possessions, and the United States Mail Agent for the Pacific.

An accident occurred on the Hudson River Railroad, near Rhinebeck, yesterday, by which the engine, tender and baggage car were precipitated into the river. The passenger cars were thrown across the track, and were considerably damaged. Several persons were slightly injured, but no one fatally.

The battle for Sachems of the Tammany Society was fought last night, at Tammany Hall. The "Reform" or Westchester House Party, were notorious. They elected their entire ticket by an average majority of 60 votes.

Two Sing Sing convicts have escaped lately from prison by drilling through the marble wall of their cells, and descending from the fifth story to the ground by means of a rope.

The Board of Aldermen passed a resolution last night directing the Mayor, Recorder and City Judge to continue to act as Police Commissioners, and not to yield any property in the Police Department to the new Commissioners recently appointed at Albany. They also recommended the Councilmen to take action setting apart the interest on $1,000 to the widow and children of HARDENBROOK, the recently murdered policeman.

In the Board of Councilmen, last evening, an unsuccessful effort was made to change the advertising of the Board from the Post to the News. The question was lost for want of a constitutional vote. It was urged that for $1,000 per annum no respectable paper would take the contract. The Board decided (by 43 to 5) not to pay any money for street cleaning until the contracts had been confirmed by the Common Council. The salaries of the officials of the Croton Department were raised: The Engineer's to $5,000 per annum; the President to $3,000; his Assistant to $3,000; that of the Street Commissioner was raised to $5,000, dating from Jan. 1, 1856; and that of his Assistant to $2,500 per annum.

The Board of Supervisors met yesterday afternoon. There was no business of general interest transacted.

The Committee on Streets met on Monday, examined the plan and listened to the statement of Mr. PERLEY as to the practicability of the formation of a tunnel for the relief of Broadway. It is proposed to lower the level of Wall-street (from Nassau) to its junction with Broadway. In this way a sufficient depth will be gained for a tunnel which is to be continuous with an excavation along Rector to Greenwich-street.

The case of ALEXANDER CROSS vs. GEORGE LAW, was commenced in this Court yesterday before a Jury. It is brought to recover about $17,000 for coal, bought by CROSS for LAW's California steamers. The plaintiff's case occupied the day.

Some interesting developments were made yesterday before the Coroner at the inquest upon the body of HARDENBROOK, the policeman who was murdered by burglars last Wednesday morning. ODE JACKSON swore that between 1 and 2 o'clock on the morning of the murder, a man named CASSEE entered his (JACKSON'S) saloon in Ninth-avenue, and asked for a drink. His hands were bloody and he seemed agitated. He washed his hands and left. Soon afterwards a man named KEYSER was seen suffering from a wound on the head,—such an one as might be inflicted with a blow from a policeman's club. Both these men—one of whom, CASSEE, is in custody—correspond, it is said, with the description given by HARDENBROOK of his murderers. A man who is said to have witnessed a portion of the conflict between HARDENBROOK and the burglars, will be examined to-day.

Judge NELSON, in the United States Circuit Court, decided, on appeal, an important collision case. The collision occurred in a dense fog between one of the Staten Island ferry boats and another steamboat. Judge INGERSOLL, in the District Court, decreed against the ferry boat, but his decision was reversed by Judge NELSON, who held that neither party was in fault, unless both were alike in fault in running in the fog; and the Judge intimates, also, that boats navigating in such a fog must take the risk of the navigation.

The counsel for HENRY BECK, sentenced on Saturday to five years in the State Prison for an attempt to poison the family of GEORGE GRIESGRABE, yesterday offered three affidavits to the Recorder, in the Court of General Sessions, to prove the insanity of the accused. The attestants allege that nearly all the prisoner's family were insane, and that he has often shown undoubted symptoms of insanity. The sentence, probably, on these representations, will not be carried into execution.

The examination of the mysterious man, calling himself "Scaichard," but supposed to be named JAMES B. CROSS, was continued yesterday, and will be resumed again to-day. The examination thus far has been more amusing than important.

It was expected that the examination in the famous Paulding case would proceed yesterday, but Mr. NOYES stated that all parties had consented to a farther adjournment of four weeks.

The American Dramatic Fund Association celebrated its Ninth Anniversary by a dinner at the Astor House, last night. Among the speakers on the occasion was Rev. Dr BELLOWS, of the Church of All Souls in Fourth avenue.

The Target Company parade which was to have taken place yesterday, was postponed to Thursday next, on account of the inclemency of the weather. When they do appear, they will be furnished with muskets by GEORGE LAW.

The large wooden stables, Nos. 36 and 38 West Thirty-sixth-street, were consumed by fire about 3 o'clock yesterday morning. Thirty-eight horses perished in the flames, and a great many vehicles, and much harness, were destroyed. Nearly all the property belonged to Mr. LEWIS, the proprietor of the stables.

A strike on the Brooklyn City Railroad Cars threw some hundred men out of employment yesterday morning, and gave some twelve hundred passengers a drenching to get to the ferry. The Company had ordered the conductors and drivers to make two additional trips a day, without any additional compensation—hence the difficulty. The strikers were all dismissed, and the cars running, though not regularly, by night.

Mayor POWELL, of Brooklyn, has vetoed the ordinance of the Common Council compelling the City cars to run all night, on the ground that it is not called for, would be unprofitable, and for sundry other equally weighty and valid reasons. So good people of Brooklyn who visit New-York evenings, will do well to hurry home as heretofore, on penalty of a long walk up a steep hill.

What Shall we Do with the Mormons?

We cannot do a worse thing with a difficulty than to dodge it, and never was this practical truth more pointedly illustrated than in the actual position of affairs in Utah. When that Territory was organized the acting President of the United States, Mr. FILLMORE, was called upon to decide whether the authority of the Republic should be extended over its inhabitants as of right or by sufferance. He found the Mormons boldly claiming to be considered an independent Israel in the midst of the Philistines, denying his right to nominate a Governor for them, and professing to hold their lands not of the American Government, but of the Almighty. Instead of meeting these insolent assumptions and frustrating them forever, Mr. FILLMORE evaded the issue by conferring the Executive appointment upon the High Priest of the sect, who condescended to accept it as a compromise solicited by the United States, and of slight importance to his people and himself.

Six years of chartered treason have ripened the Mormon power, and now, while we are debating what we shall do with a set of intolerable idolators who have erected the odious Dagon of their worship on a portion of the American soil, they, on their side, are preparing themselves to vindicate their absolute independence of us and of our laws. How much longer they will deign to keep a delegate at Washington we may infer from their treatment of the United States Judiciary, and from the avowed intention of BRIGHAM YOUNG to rule his people as he and they shall choose, without comment, commission or control from us. This is the state of the case, and it must be met now fully and fairly.

For some time past the leading columns of the Deseret News have been filled with a most amazingly and audaciously conducted argument upon the Constitution of the United State, whereof the gist is simply this—that the American Government has no right whatever to exercise any authority over the inhabitants of a Territory, its dominion extending only over the land, while that land is lying waste and void of life! With the advent of immigration the Constitutional dominion takes wing and flies, like the moody trapper of the Farther West, to some vaster region unprofaned by the squatter and the spade! According to this new interpretation of the Constitution, the President may appoint Governors where there are no people to be governed, and Judges where there is no judgment to be passed.

Ridiculous as this theory is, we must remember that theories not less ridiculous have been engrafted upon the platforms of party organizations in more enlightened sections of our common country, and we must find in our recent recollections of Atchisonian "Constitutionalism," and of Kansas-Nebraska law, a sufficient reason for believing that the ineptitudes of the Deseret News may really give us no little trouble when they come to meet us in the form of priestly proclamations and of Mormon bayonets. For in this form they will assuredly come.

The unscrupulous chiefs of this now imposing iniquity are not men to shrink from a practical assertion of their most outrageous propensities. They already claim the right of life and death over the members of their "Church," and the contumely with which they have treated the judicial authorities of the Union they are prepared to lavish upon any Executive functionary whom the President may see fit to send to them. The Territory over which their despotism extends is difficult of access and defensible: the population subjected to their sway is numerous and hardy as well as ignorant and fanatical. Scandinavia, Scotland, Wales, and the West of Britain, those ancient nurseries of fierce, unreasoning faith, have sent out thousands of strong arms and stupid heads to the service of the astute followers of JOE SMITH, and we may depend upon it that when they are summoned to the "battle of the Lord against the mighty" the wretched victims of the Mormon imposture will put their lives into the hands of their rascally leaders just as blindly as now they put their fortunes, their affections, their bones, under the same unprincipled control. It is useless to attempt to reason with them, for the public opinion of the States cannot reach the masses of Utah, and to persuade the Saints at Deseret that the astronomical argument drawn from the "pluralistic loves of the planets" to polygamy as practised by those of their number who can afford themselves the questionable luxury of a subdivided homestead, is neither convincing in itself, nor conclusively establishes the duty of every Mormon to shoot United States troops at the order of HEBER C. KIMBALL, would be as hopeless a task as to satisfy a Mississippian Methodist that the improper behavior of Ham towards his father Noah does not necessarily justify the repeal of the "Missouri Compromise."

What then shall we do with these people? Let them alone, for our own honor, as well as for the sake of their own lasting happiness, we cannot. The limits of religious toleration, though difficult of definition, are fortunately not absolutely indefinable. A man's right to worship God according to the dictates of his own conscience must be guarded like all other rights, and therefore like all other rights it must be restricted in its exercise by a just consideration of moral and social consequences, as well as of the rights of others. No man can be permitted to worship God in such a way as to outrage the decencies of life or to oppress his neighbors. When TAYLOR, the Platonist, thought fit to profess Paganism, and set up a silver statue of Jupiter on his mantel-piece, his landlady made no objection to that innocent act of insanity; but when he proposed to sacrifice a black bull in her back parlor she strenuously resisted, and saved her crockery and her Kiddermluster at the risk of her charity. Her sturdy common sense smote the exact line between the permissible and the reprehensible, and all rational Governments find themselves forced to imitate her conduct. John Jones may believe if he likes that clothes and corruption are concomitant facts, and seek salvation by stripping off all the conventions of kerseymere and Irish linen; but if Jones does not confine his spiritual exercises to his own chamber, the practical interference of the police will constrain his actions without disturbing his convictions.

The orthodoxy of no small portion of British India cling with adoring earnestness to the profitable humilities of the worship of Juggernaut and the edifying sublimities of the Suttee; but the common sense and righteous feeling of the British Government in that country did not therefore shrink from the duty of doing away utterly and forever with practices so infamous and so inhuman. Why then should the authorities of the United States hesitate to deal in the same sharp and decisive way with a "religious" system which condenses into itself all the absurdities, usurpations, indecencies and villainies of the worst form of Paganism? We are not called upon to punish any man for believing in the inspiration of JOE SMITH or the reality of the Golden Book, in the sanctity of BRIGHAM YOUNG, or even in the salutary and divine appointment of polygamy. But we can and we ought to restrain the believers in these things from violating the laws and decencies of the land. Theoretical polygamy is one thing, but practical polygamy is quite another. The course of Judge DRUMMOND, who called upon the Grand Jury of Utah to find indictments against all persons living in the practice of polygamy, should be sustained and followed up. Let the judicial authority be supported by a proper military force, and the favorite "Institution" of the leaders of Mormonism can be soon and effectually broken up. Upon this we have a right to insist, and upon the summary punishment of any parties against whom it is proved that they have ventured to exert extra judicial authority over citizens of the United States, or to assume the coercive functions of the properly appointed Executive. In a word, let the Mormons be treated as a "sect," subjected to the same regulations with all other sects, and protected in the exercise of the same rights with those. As things now stand they claim to be considered as a Nation, and defy the authority of the Federal Union, in order to vindicate to themselves not a freedom of belief but an unhallowed license of conduct which, as a Christian and civilized people, it is impossible that we should tolerate. If it be true that there are persons in New-York who live in the practice of the Mormon theories, let them be at once prosecuted and punished, but let the force of the Government be put out fearlessly and promptly to deal with the mischief in its centre, before it grows to proportions, which shall still more seriously compromise the character and endanger the tranquility of the country.

Central Park Misgivings.

Amongst the serious drawbacks upon New-York as a residence for people who conceive that they were not sent upon earth wholly and solely for the purpose of making money—besides the dirt, the police, and the heavy taxation—is the want of any better place than the streets to ride or drive or walk in. Owing to the narrowness of the tongue of land on which the City is built, it has extended longitudinally fully five miles already; and before very long there will be ten miles between the jaded man of business, when he issues from his office "down town" in the afternoon, and anything which bears the remotest resemblance to the country. Crossing the river by a ferry in order to get a mouthful of fresh air is a step which, for a denizen of any of the northern portion of the capital, is not to be thought of. Making use of a ferry-boat even on business is an operation which any of us would gladly avoid if we could.

The Central Park will, if properly laid out and properly managed, supply us with what we want in the shape of promenade ground. A large tract of most valuable land is about to be given up to it, in the hope that the citizens will find in it a place to ride on horseback, to drive in carriages, or walk on foot, as their fancy impels or their means allow them, free from dust and bad air, and with enough grass and foliage to relieve eyes that have been strained all day by hard work. The scheme promises very well on paper; but a very limited acquaintance with the manner in which public interests are attended to in this City, is quite sufficient to inspire well-grounded apprehensions that the said Central Park will prove "a mockery, a delusion, and a snare." That the Park will be laid out, and finished, we do not in the least doubt; but that the decent, well-behaved portion of the community will ever get any good out of it, we doubt very much indeed We have had sorrowful experience of the fact that our municipal administration is conducted wholly in the interest of our leading rowdies and blackguards. For them we pay seven millions a year of taxes; for them our streets remain unpaved, unswept, unwatered; for them our police is composed of the scum of the Connaught immigration, and our lives and property placed at the mercy of the thieves, their confederates; for them our Criminal Judges are elected by the criminal population; for them BUSTEED pockets papers in open Court, and CONNERY makes his grimaces and cracks his jokes; the blackguards are clearly masters of the situation. They have our streets, our taxes, our Police and our Courts of Justice in their hands; and why should they not reign over the Central Park as well?

We can fancy the Park, under proper management, becoming one of the boasts and glories of this country. We can fancy it radiant with verdure, crowded with cavaliers of both sexes, brilliant with brilliant equipages and thronged with pedestrians who, if not picturesque, would at least, be happy and orderly. With our fine climate, our fine site, our fine harbor, our rapidly increasing wealth, and our luxurious habits, there is no reason under Heaven why New-York should not become the Paris of the West, and the Champs Elysées pale their ineffectual fires. We have as good a climate as Paris, and a better situation—two important considerations in judging of the merits of rival gardens; and we have an Autumn foliage such as Paris never dreamed of. We can make a show of both women and horses, if we are only careful, such as even Rotten Row may envy. Everything that nature can do for us she has done. There is no reason why one hundred, or even fifty years hence, people should not seek New-York to enjoy themselves, just as they now seek it to make money in. But under the regime of blackguardism this can never be. As long as we are governed by the Five Points, our best attempts at elegance and grace will bear some resemblance to jewels in the snouts of swine. Better the Park should never be made at all if it is to become the resort of rapscallions,—if young bloods are allowed to run races in it with trotting horses, and thus place the lives of everybody in danger, and render equestrian exercise impossible,—if no attempt is to be made to keep it clear of the intemperate, the boisterous and disorderly. We warn the public that if order is to be maintained in it by the police at present in existence, it will become a sort of bowling ground for the friends and associates of these meritorious officers, with whose general character everybody is tolerably familiar, and all decent men and women will avoid it, just as they avoid the grogshops from which Mayor WOOD selects his subordinates. We warn them, moreover, against the great nuisance of the Manhattanville road, the only available equestrian promenade at present—rival buggys with fast trotting horses. Phenomena of this sort would prove as fatal to any park or garden in the world, as a few ancient British chariots with scythes on their axles. We hope that for the nonce the "respectable" portion of the community will meddle in public affairs, and do something to save the Park by looking after it. A little attention may make the scheme a boon to ourselves and posterity as well.

Where Shall we Build our Lazaretto?

We took occasion the other day to animadvert upon the condition and working of our Dispensary system (if system it can be called) in connection with the general question of Sanitary Police, and to expose the dangers which lurk in the inefficient and irregular administration of an institution so indispensable to the public welfare. The fact that the Quarantine Commission, recently appointed under an act of the Legislature, are now engaged upon another subject not less important to the community, invites our immediate attention to that matter also. The theory and practice of Quarantine have been hotly, sharply debated during the last few years, and no inconsiderable number of learned and sagacious persons have denounced the whole system as equally inept in its origin and ineffectual in its results. With all respect for the learning and sagacity of these skeptics, we must profess ourselves as yet unconvinced by their arguments and unaffected by their sneers. There are many cases in human life besides this case of Quarantine, in which ancient superstitions assailed by superficial science have been eventually vindicated by researches more profound, and the unenlightened prejudices of the past have been discovered, after all, to be nothing less than the imperfectly recognized wisdom of instinct. But however this may be, we have not given up the Quarantine System. We are to have a defensive Quarantine in New-York Harbor, and the only practical question at issue is "Where shall our Quarantine be built?"

The reasons which have determined the removal of the Institution from its present position, embody the rules which should guide us in selecting a new location. The two essential terms of the problem are simply the utmost possible isolation from the population of the shore, and the utmost possible convenience of access from the sea.

The one point in the harbor and bay of New-York, which most completely combines these two conditions, is Sandy Hook; and upon Sandy Hook we should without question have already begun to erect a permanent and sufficient Lazzaretto if we could have opened the eyes of the lords of New-Jersey to the realities of life. But as Sandy Hook does not belong to us, and as the intelligence of our neighbors is unequal to the comprehension of the fact that a Quarantine Station for New-York is also a Quarantine Station for New-Jersey, we suppose that the disposition of the "State of Camden and Amboy" must in this instance as in so many others, be suffered to thwart the plans and propositions of Heaven.

Five other localities have been suggested to the Commissioners, and have probably received from them a careful examination. These are Coney Island, Great Kills, Seguine's Point, Ward's Point, and one or another of the shoals in the Lower Bay.

It is understood, as we some time since informed our readers, that the Commissioners, after a personal examination which ought to have made them completely conversant with the whole case, have fixed upon Seguine's Point as the locality for the new Quarantine, and have secured, by a conditional purchase, the property required for that purpose. Yet we now see it stated that Governor KING, upon the personal remonstrance of interested parties, confesses that the Commissioners made but a very cursory and incomplete inquiry into the relative advantages and disadvantages of the several localities, and that the question of a site may still be considered open. If this is the case, it is but fair that the considerations urged against the selection of Seguine's Point should receive that degree of public attention which they may deserve. The Point referred to is the centre of a very considerable population, and lies at a distance of over six miles from the regular shipping channel. The oystermen of Princes' Bay rendezvous at Seguine's Point, and enliven the neighboring waters with their picturesque craft, and the continual movement of their industry. A creek, which flows directly through the middle of the site proposed to be occupied by the Quarantine buildings, is consecrated to the hospitalities of the oyster-trade, and receives the Virginia strangers who come so far to make their beds, and fulfill their being in New-York. The excellent soil of the shore is tilled by numerous market-gardeners, and the region round about the Point, particularly toward the North and West, in the direction of the prevalent Summer winds, is covered with the residences of people well to do in the world, many of whom transact business in the City, or are in constant communication with our citizens.

All these considerations are urged as cogent reasons why Quarantine should not be established at the point in question—and candor compels the acknowledgment that they are entitled to weight. Ward's Point lies under nearly similar conditions with Seguine's, but is still further removed from the ship channel. Coney Island and Great Kills, on the other hand, are almost equally isolated from the residences of any considerable portion of the population, and either of them would meet very respectably the terms of the Quarantine problem, though Coney Island is of the two much the more conveniently accessible.

But the "ideal" Quarantine ground, beyond a doubt, (Sandy Hook being, as we have said, out of the question,) is one of the lower bay shoals. These shoals are clear at low water, and could be prepared for the reception of very considerable buildings at a comparatively reasonable cost. They have already been recommended by military engineers as admirable sites for fortifications, and when we remember how much money has been lavished on the attempt to give stability to Fort Sumter in Charleston Harbor, it is not, perhaps, extravagant to anticipate that the General Government might be found disposed to coöperate with our own State in the joint labor of erecting a fortress and a Lazzaretto upon the most available of these shoals.

But if we are compelled to undertake the work alone, it is not one to tax very seriously the resources of the Empire State or even of the Empire City. During the last ten years we have probably built into the unprofitable bodies of very unsatisfactory Councilmen and Aldermen, money enough to put up all the erections needed for a Quarantine as extensive even as the increasing commerce of the metropolis will require for a long time to come.

We commend the matter to the serious attention of the authorities. A temporary building on Coney Island might easily be made to meet our immediate necessities, and we trust that a project which promises to fulfil all the conditions essential to a perfect Quarantine will not be dismissed without the most faithful examination.

Hasty Legislation.

The rash and headlong action of our State Legislature seems likely to involve our City in protracted and disastrous legislation. By the proceedings of the Common Council last evening, it will be seen that the Constitutionality of the new Police Law is to be contested at the expense of the City,—and whatever may be the result, such action cannot fail to throw our municipal affairs into great confusion, and in a very great degree to paralyze the Police Department. The grounds upon which the validity of the new law will be contested have already been stated in our columns. The second section of the Tenth Article of the State Constitution, after providing for the appointment of County officers, makes the following provision in regard to officers of another class:

"All city, town or village officers, whose election or appointment is not provided for by this Constitution, shall be elected by the electors of such cities, towns and villages, or of some division thereof, or appointed by such authorities thereof as the Legislature shall designate for that purpose."

It will be contended on behalf of the City that the Commissioners of Police created by the new law are, in spirit and in fact, City officers,—and that they ought therefore to have been elected by the electors of the City, or appointed by such authorities thereof as the Legislature might designate. The Mayor will probably refuse to surrender control of the Police Department to the new Commissioners,—who will thus be compelled to apply to the Courts for a mandamus. And whatever may be the immediate result, it is not likely that the contest will be finally ended short of a decision from the Court of Appeals.

Precisely the same objection will apply to the validity of the Commission appointed for the erection of a City Hall, and for laying out the Central Park. Both these, it will be claimed, are clearly and exclusively City offices, and can therefore be constitutionally filled only in one of the two methods pointed out in the section already quoted from the Constitution.

The Port Warden's bill, which was passed apparently for the purpose of making increased exactions upon the commerce of the port for the purposes of party, will be resisted with equal resolution by the class at whom it is aimed. The bill creates a Board of nine Port Wardens, and gives them absolute and exclusive control of ships at this port. The captain and owner of a vessel is made responsible for all damages that may be sustained by his cargo, if the hatches are first lifted in the absence of a Port Warden—the Wardens are constituted exclusive surveyors of all damaged goods or vessels, no matter where or how damaged, and judges of the repairs necessary to render such vessel again seaworthy—they are judges, also, of the fitness of cargo for reshipment; and any person performing any of the duties prescribed by the act is made guilty of a misdemeanor and liable to a penalty of $100. The Board is also empowered to attend all sales of damaged goods, vessels and materials sold at public auction in the port of New-York, and is entitled to one-half of one per cent. upon the gross amount of all such sales. And for each and every act which the Wardens are thus exclusively authorized to perform, heavy fees are imposed which are afterwards to be divided among them all.

It is not easy to understand the motive of such reckless and oppressive legislation as this, unless it was the determination, regardless of all other considerations, to compel the payment by New-York Commerce of large sums of money to nine needy and efficient partizans. But, according to an article upon this subject in yesterday's Evening Post, it has already been decided by the Supreme Court, that a State law conferring any such exclusive powers upon Wardens, and requiring all vessels in the port to be subject to their control, is a regulation of commerce which conflicts with the Constitution of the United States, and is therefore void. It may be considered reasonably certain, therefore, that the shipping merchants will contest the validity of this law.

Here are four of the most important acts of the Legislature which are quite likely to lead to prolonged and vexatious litigation. How many more will eventually be added to the list, remains to be seen.

The Bond-street Murder Case.

I am one of those who arrived slowly at the conviction that the inmates of the Bond-street house know how Dr. BURDELL came by his end. The evidence brought out before the Coroner's Jury impressed me as conveying what you properly term the strongest moral conviction to that effect; and while I was obliged to own the case had not taken such a compact shape as should insure the incolpation of the prisoners indicted, I expected to see new facts elicited corroborative of the finding of the Grand Jury, before the cause came to trial.

What is my surprise to observe a movement of matters utterly the reverse of this! I do not like to charge any man or league of men as systematically devoted to the business of corrupting public opinion, diverting its indignation from objects it has selected, and fixing suspicion where it has no place; but there are some striking indications that machinery of the sort has been in active energy from the first day of the investigation, so obviously and designedly, that it certainly affects my mind most unfavorably to the cause of the accused. It is remarkable that while the character of every person hostile to the prisoners, has suffered in this process, theirs has brightened steadily. The first measure was to blacken the fame of the murdered man, and the rumor was in the mouth of every one, and in print, that BURDELL was not only a mean, ill-tempered fellow, but addicted to the vilest habits and associations. Then CONNERY was assailed—a man of empty, braggart vanity, and no common sense, but otherwise neither wickedly or maliciously disposed; and not only was he abused by every journal, and at every street-corner for weeks, but was at last put upon his trial for the crime of ill-timed jesting, and a lack of respectful treatment to those injured innocents in the Tombs. Then some of the more important witnesses; whose evidence had gone to show an extremely hostile feeling between Dr. BURDELL and Mrs. C., were discredited by this artful circulation of stories, prejudicial to their social standing and credibility. Then, FARRELL, who swore he saw ECKEL at the house door, under circumstances that must have incriminated him, is killed off by the same ingenious method; and a physician who claimed to have seen both FARRELL and ECKEL under the same circumstances, the public is surprised to learn is a maniac, and has left the City for parts unknown.

In short, without any distinct and publicly attested proofs, we find the case of the prosecution frittered away point by point; destroyed by mere flying gossip and irresponsible report; while the prisoners have been diligently white-washed by a corresponding process. I repeat, Mr. Editor, the hand of design is so obvious in all this, that the tendency of an impartial mind is to interpret it to the disadvantage of the accused. The cards have been played with too little skill. Taken into consideration with the transfer of the case to the Oyer and Terminer, it constitutes a strong presumptive case against the prisoners, who can only be saved by such irregular and inexcusable means. I would like to know what there has been in the character of either Mrs. CUNNINGHAM or Mr. ECKEL, against whom habitual immorality of life has been proved, that should place them so far above the moral status of BURDELL, whose delinquencies there has been not one line of evidence to vouch for? It is possible, even probable, that without any preliminary efforts to secure acquittal, the two would have been acquitted. But after this preconcerted manufacture of a distorted public opinion, I regard that result as inevitable. GREX.

This is all very well,—but it is only one side of the case. "Grex" complains that the lapse of time relieves the parties who at the outset were so hotly and mercilessly pursued by public opinion from many of the suspicions which were thrown around them. Their characters are not so black as they were;—the witnesses most determined against them prove to be less worthy of credit than was at first supposed; and the circumstances which, under the "braggart vanity" and senseless brutality of the Coroner, looked so dark, are, under more intelligent scrutiny, losing something of their conclusiveness. All this our Correspondent attributes to management and trickery on the part of friends of the accused. But is it not quite as reasonable to suppose that the formidable array of presumption against them was the work of intrigue,—that it was the cunning trick of really guilty parties who had an obvious motive for fastening suspicion upon others,—and who had every possible opportunity for doing so in the steady purpose of the Coroner to convict the inmates, and in the publicity given day by day to the proceedings of the Inquest?

We shall be able to pronounce a more decisive judgment on this point when it comes to be cleared up by the trial. Until then our Correspondent's theory is, to say the least, not more reasonable than the one we have suggested in its stead.

BOSTON IMMORALITY.—The capital of New-England is acquiring an unenviable notoriety by its indecent criminal trials. Directly upon the heels of the Kalloch trial comes the Dalton trial, which the Boston papers state exceeds in repulsive indecency any similar one that has ever taken place in that part of the country. Even the Boston Times "shudders at its revelations." And yet the parties involved in these scandals are young married people belonging to highly respectable families, who had borne good reputations until their immoralities were brought to light by the homicide of young SUMNER, who was beaten to death by the man whose domestic peace he had destroyed. Boston may not be worse than New-York, or any other of the large towns of the Union, but it has lately had to endure the shame of more scandalous trials than its population would entitle it to if their morals were on a par with other American cities.

Personal.

The Springfield Republican says: "We believe that the majority of the pastors of Springfield abstained from political preaching on Fast day, in accordance with an understanding among themselves, openly protesting, however, in some instances, against the right of the Governor to dictate to them what they should, or should not, preach about."

A Chinese woman has arrived in the quiet little village of West Chester, Pa., creating a prodigious excitement. She was the servant of Mrs Prof. WENTWORTH, who accompanied her husband as a mission ary to China, and died there. This woman was commissioned to bring home her child, and the infant has been safely delivered to the care of the lady's family.

Both houses of the Ohio Legislature have passed a resolution authorizing the State House Committee to contract with the artist, WILLIAM H. POWELL, for a magnificent picture of "Perry's Victory on Lake Erie," for the rotunda of the Capitol This was one of the four designs which were submitted for the acceptance of Congress.

Italian Opera.

The opera campaign was resumed, last night, at Niblo's Theatre, under unfavorable auspices. During the day it rained in torrents, and long before the hour of performance a firmly-established shower contributed its influence to the discomfort of the occasion. It was a compliment to the director and to the members of his company that an audience so numerous was present—sufficient in numbers and intelligence to bestow a fair share of enthusiasm on a performance which, in many respects, deserved it.

On the rising of the curtain Madame GAZZANIGA was warmly received. In personal appearance the lady has everything in her favor, and certainly looked to great advantage in the first act—an essential point in a play where the beauty as much as the self sacrificing disposition of the heroine excites our sympathies. Madame GAZZANIGA is a blonde, and presents all the characteristics of that enchanting type. At times she is positively beautiful, radiant with intelligence and sentiment; at others, she is careworn, unimpressive and commonplace. She has many stage advantages, prominent among which are a commanding figure, mobile features, and large and expressive eyes. Altogether one cannot sit in a more agreeable presence for two or three hours, or even longer if desired.

The opera ("Traviata") was as a whole well given. BRIGNOLI, with less than his usual power, sang sweetly and acted badly. The dramatic instincts of Mme. GAZZANIGA seem to confound this gentleman, and to place him in the embarrassing position of having to do something without clearly knowing what. Sig. ARNODIO was in excellent voice, and sang excellently. We notice a decided improvement in this gentleman since his return from Havana.

Mme. GAZZANIGA exceeded in a remarkable degree her feeble efforts on the opening night. This lady has had much to contend against; in Philadelphia, the Philadelphians; in New-York, the weather—both, we imagine, calculated to spoil an artist. The former raised her much above the standard of her merits, the latter dragged her much beneath it. In New-York she will be assigned a just position, without being deprived of what is her due. Judged as a great artist, Mme. GAZZANIGA is certainly deficient in what should constitute a great artist—the power of utterly controlling the voice. She cannot vocalize; and even in the production and delivery of her best notes her vocal machinery seems to move, tardily. The quality and richness of the notes are not perceived until a momentary effort has enabled her to remove the veil which on their first emission obscures them. Her voice, however, is naturally grand, and whether tutored by art or coerced by will is capable of giving infinite pleasure. Her declamation is in the highest degree noble, imparting to much that is commonplace a new and intense meaning. And in the singing of melodies arias and other natural forms of composition approaching the declamatory, she is great. It is only when brilliancy is required that we have something to regret. Then, certainly we mourn the lost LA GRANGE. As an actress Mme. GAZZANIGA has no equal on the Italian stage in America. Portions of the second and third acts were worthy of Miss HERON. Thus, with many serious defects, Madame GAZZANIGA has many solid recommendations. It is remarkable, too, that her best qualifications are those which are least often found in combination. In view of this fact, we are quite prepared to believe that she will win the admiration of our audiences, and ultimately command the respect of the sceptical. The magnificent compass of her voice, its freshness and power, are things which cannot be forgotten, while little blemishes of execution merely annoy for the moment. The general impression which Mme. GAZZANIGA leaves on the mind is, we believe, favorable with the majority of hearers. She was called out three times last night.

Mr. Hildreth's Petition to the Methodist Conference on the Use of Tobacco.

In our report, yesterday, of the proceedings of the Methodist Conference, it was stated that a Petition presented by Mr. JOHN T. HILDRETH, in regard to the use of tobacco, was so "disrespectful in its language that permission was given him to withdraw it." Mr. HILDRETH denies that he was guilty of any intentional disrespect, and sends a copy of the petition, which we publish, partly that the public may judge, and partly because its contents may be of general interest:

To the Bishops and Members of the New-York East Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church in Annual Conference Convened.

REV. FATHERS AND MINISTERS: There is a solemn duty, as well as obligation, binding upon every Christian Minister, to refrain from the very appearance of evil, and to carry out the principles of Christ in their purity, not only while in the pulpit as teachers, but in every social or public circle in which they may be called to move.

One whose name has, is, and we hope ever will be, revered as a holy and good man, Rev. JOHN WESLEY, said cleanliness is next to Godliness.

Why, then, do the present clergy, in many instances, indulge in the use of that filthy weed, tobacco? Is it not offensive to many? How can a Christian Minister indulge in its use? Is it not filthy in all its forms? Is it not, when used as a quid, and rolled in the mouth, from which a powerful mass of liquid filth is emitted, disgusting to that being who is man's help-mate and companion—Woman?

Is not the smoke, puffed in the face of another, whether from a pipe or cigar, offensive?—even an assault?

Did Christ ever use Tobacco in any form? Although the pleaders of rum and wine as a beverage often quote the miracle of the Saviour turning water into wine at the marriage feast, no mention is made of Tobacco ever having been tolerated by him in any form. If it is so necessary for man to use it, and to make a smoke-house of his mouth, or a manufacturer of a filthy fluid mixed with mucus, and of a most disgusting nature, why not swallow the juice thus manufactured, and not pour it out upon the carpet, or the well-cleaned floor of a neat housewife?

It is injurious to health—not a clergyman in the whole Irish Conference use it, but our American clergy, who are generally considered the most refined of the ministerial order.

There are members of this Conference whose nervous system are almost paralyzed from its constant use. Varied are the excuses for its use. Some use it for headache, some neoralgia, stomach-ache, tooth-ache, and, we have reason to believe, some may use it for corns; as with drunkards, they have each an excuse. We are satisfied, having consulted physicians from twenty-five of these United States, all of whom fully agree that Tobacco is, in any form, injurious, and we are satisfied that no person of cleanliness can say but that it is a dirty practice in any way used.

If it is cleanly, why that respectful petition from the leading brethren of this Church, (having notices posted prohibiting its use,) arguing for the clergy comprising the Conference now in session not to use it, if they did not consider it a filthy practice?

You may receive this petition, and, as we believe, one of its like has been received and passed over to the Committee on Slavery, (and we believe that Committee well timed, for there are more than one kind of Slavery.) God knows we believe, if there are any slaves in human shape, it is the Tobacco-chewer and smoker. We have only to add, we intend to urge the utter annihilation of its use, until the desired object is accomplished, or we lose the power to speak. We consider it no excuse, even if nine tenths of the community use it, and we believe this the strongest plea that can be urged in its favor.

If, then, this be an excuse on account of its numbers using it, then quit preaching the Gospel, and go to manufacturing Tobacco and Segars, for there are many more sinners than saints.

As a general thing the habit is acquired when but boys.—many of whom think if they can utter a good round oath, and drink a little rum and smoke, their manship is established. Begin, then, with children, especially in Sabbath schools. But if you use it, where is your influence?

Therefore your petitioner prays your venerable and holy body would pass resolutions urging upon the members of the Conference generally, the necessity of each using his exertions to suppress its use in their respective charges. Also, make it one of the test questions for members presenting themselves for the high and holy calling of preaching the Gospel.

And as in duty bound will ever pray.

JOHN T. HILDRETH.

BROOKLYN, April 17, 1857.

Another Change on Broadway.

Workmen have been for two or three weeks engaged in excavating on Crosby street for the new warehouse of BROOKS BROTHERS, clothiers of Catharine-street. Their building will occupy eight lots of ground altogether—four on Broadway from the corner of Grand-street north, and four in the rear on Crosby—making a front of 100, and a depth of 900 feet. The Messrs. BROOKS have owned this property during the past four or five years. The new edifice, though only of four stories, will not be less than the average height of new buildings on Broadway. The material will be brick, with stone trimmings; the brick probably to be covered with mastic, we are sorry to say. The entire cost of the building will not be less than $150,000. The estimated value of the ground is $150,000 more. The Broadway house, well known as the head quarters of the late Whig party, and the conspicuous liberty pole in front of it, will be swept awey by this improvement.

Callathumptans.

The Brooklyn Times tells of a newly-married couple, who hearing that the Callathumpians were about to visit them, prepared for their entertainment a splendid iced cake, in which ipecac enough had been stirred to give an operative dose to each alice. The Callathumpians came, were invited in, and fed liberally. The doctor of the village laid the foundation for a fine fortune within the next week, and we are informed that it so completely cured the Callathumpians of their musical propensities, that the price of homesteads in the vicinity has gone up twenty-five per cent already.

Succumbing.

Jones' Woods, which was so long retained as a place sacred to the enjoyment of long-pursed people, then for three years struggled over as the site for our great Park, and then suddenly dropped when the Central Park was hit upon, fairly comes into market to-day for City lots. The tomb, and the garden, and the hole in the hill, we suppose, will come under the hammer; at least 350 lots, scattered over and through the famous "Woods," are to be offered by Mr. BLEECKER to-day, at the Exchange, to the highest bidder. Civilization, unlike the great Target Parade, marches right on in spite of the weather.

☞ The new Cent will be distributed to the public in about three weeks. A million are already completed, and two millions more will be finished before the Mint commences paying them out. Col. SNOWDEN declares that since the establishment of the Mint the large amount of eighteen hundred tons of copper have been used up in the manufacture of pennies, making 156,000,000 of pieces. The quantity of Spanish coin still in the country is estimated at two and a half millions of dollars.

☞ The States—Major HEISS' new paper—makes its appearance at Washington in a small folio, a trifle larger than the Evening Star. It is Democratic, of course, but says it intends to be liberal, which is much to be desired, and independent, which is better. The Major infuses life and vigor into his first number, and it gives good promise.

Deputy-Marshals Retained.

Among the arrangements of his office made by Marshal RYNDERS, it may be of interest to many to learn that Deputy-Marshals GEORGE NAVIN and LEWIS D'ANGELIS are retained. Both are men peculiarly adapted to and of large experience in the duties of their office.

NEWS BY THE MAILS.

The Dallas Gazette contains the note of a case in which a woman named ANGELINE—a free person of color—was tried for perjury before a Statutory Court, in Alabama, consisting of a Judge of Probate and two justices of the Peace, convicted and sentenced to be branded and whipped. On appeal to the Circuit Court, the branding was remitted, but the whipping confirmed; and, on final appeal to the Supreme Court, both branding and whipping were dispensed with, in consequence of the reversal of the judgments of the inferior courts, and ANGELINE was discharged.

Judge HAINES, of Delaware County, Pa., has not yet delivered his full opinion in the case of PASSMORE WILLIAMSON vs. Judge KANE, but has simply notified the parties that he will order all the special pleas to be stricken off, leaving the entry of the order and the delivery of his opinion until the ensuing May term. This, the West Chester Herald says, will leave the case in a position to be tried as a case of ordinary trespass, in which the defendant will have every advantage that he could have had by special pleading, so far as questions of law are concerned, and bring all the facts before a jury, to be considered and judged by them.

The District Court of Pittsburg, for the past few days have been engaged in the trial of the case of the Pittsburg & Steubenville Railroad vs HAYES & BLAIR. It arises out of an alleged subscription of $5,000 to the capital stock of the Company; but the defendants now refuse to pay $1,000, that is, take twenty shares instead of one hundred. There are several suits of a similar character on the trial list, set down for this term. These subscriptions, as we see by the Post, are part of those obtained and sent to the Mayor of Pittsburg as made in good faith when the city was induced to make a subscription of $250,000 to the company. It involves nearly $100,000 of money, and is a question to be decided of importance, not only to the defendants, but to the Company.

A bill has become a law in Ohio which provides that all property held for religious purposes shall be deemed to be the property of the congregation, and shall be held by a corporation for that purpose, for organizing which the bill also provides; but, in cases where it has already been deeded to an individual, for the church, exclusive of any rights of the congregation, it may remain in his hands till his death or removal, after which it must pass into the possession of the contemplated corporation.

In South Pittsburg, on the 14th inst., a fire destroyed the ploning mill and sash factory of Mr. MELLINGER, with some 2,000,000 feet of lumber and three dwelling-houses. The total loss of Mr. M. is estimated at about $80,000. He is insured for $26,000. The loss in machinery alone is estimated at $20,000.

The Auburn Advertiser gives some hints from which we are to conclude that seduction and crime were the instigators of the late horrible tragedy near that city. Nor was Woon, the man who shot Miss SHAW and then himself, the seducer; but the real villian is still alive.

Mr. G. W. CARLTON, of Cobourg, Canada, has invented what he calls a sound telegraph, by which vessels can communicate with each other, at the rate of 80 words per minute, though distant 15 or 20 miles.

The shipments of lobsters from Provincetown in 1855 amounted to about 300,000; and in 1856 to about 400,000; of which Boston and other ports in Massachusetts had 50,000.

THE ELECTIONS and CANDIDATES.

Gains for Ministers—The Backbone King returned for Sunderland—Singular facts connected with the Elections—The advance in the Bank of England's rate of Discount—The Emperor of China not disposed to yield—Position of Lord John Russell, Disraeli, &c.—The Fashionable World—Literary News.

Correspondence of the New-York Daily Times.

LONDON, Friday Night, April 3, 1857.

The elections may now be said to be over, and their effect is the establishment, for the present, of the supremacy of PALMERSTON on an altitude for which the most exalted vision-mongers of his followers were wholly unprepared. Even the extreme zealots among his retainers are startled at the extent and nature of his victory. COBDEN, BRIGHT, GIBSON, GAYARD, FOX, WALMSLEY, MIALL, and numerous others identified with the cause of Progress, are all swept off CARDWELL, and several of the Peelites, are also demolished, and the tories who voted against Government on the Chinese question, have gone down by the dozen. Never was there such an annihilation of the opponents of a Ministry since this country was first supposed to have a voice in the selection of its rulers. The brother of BRIGHT (JOHN himself is still in Italy,) when speaking after the election, said he was much better pleased that the majority against his relative in Manchester was 2,000 than if it had been 900. The latter would imply that the struggle was one of reason, doubt, difficulty; but the former proclaimed itself to be what it really is, the consequence of an hallucination, which periodically attacks communities and nations, as it does individuals, causing them to do that which is most repugnant to their convictions, most abhorrent to their predilections at other times. Instances of this sort of premeditated dementedness are familiar within everybody's recollection, as well in a social as in a political sense. In 1845-46, in the height of the Hudson mania, there was scarcely a man you met who did not acknowledge the folly of expecting that everybody would grow suddenly rich out of nothing; for the only alleged basis of all the ideal wealth was scrip, with the names of half-a-dozen more or less unscrupulous adventurers upon it. Everybody satirized the silliness, bemoaned the demoralization, predicted the retribution of this wild, licentious gambling; yet everybody rushed headlong into it, from Archbishops and Duchesses to parsons' clerks and washerwomen. Suddenly the long foreseen collapse came, and then everybody exclaimed, as everybody invariably does, on all such occasions, "Who'd have thought it?"

Having mentioned HUDSON, it may be not irrelevant here to dispose of him in connection with the elections. Astonishing to say, he has been again returned, and for his former and otherwise very respectable and influential borough of Sunderland. A single such incident is enough to stamp John Bull as the Sphynx of the whole human family. Here has all England been resounding these last few years with lamentations about the decay of national probity; pious bankers qualifying for Newgate; public companies enacting wholesale knaveries; forgery cultivated as one of the fine arts by felonious Secretaries with a taste for Raphians and vertu; religion and external respectability made the cloak for every imaginable and a good deal of previously unimagined rascalities; and homilies and leading articles interminable upon this moral chaos. The inauguration of it all was pronounced, by common accord, to be Mr. HUDSON, whose system of "cooking accounts to make things pleasant," to quote the famous phrase he made use of on a memorable occasion, was supposed to have sapped the foundation of commercial integrity, and rendered roguery fashionable as long as it was undetected, and therefore unpunished. It is admitted that so dreadful a spectacle of debasement was never read of, much less witnessed, as that exhibited by the prostration of rank, beauty, age, youth, eloquence, erudition, piety, everything, at the shrine of Money-Bags on two legs, during the time it was thought he could fill other people's pockets. When that delusion was dissipated, violent, of course, was the reaction of the Caliban crew at finding that their deity was a contemptible Trinculo. He was hooted on all hands, and every step he was impelled downward towards the abyss of dishonor—that is, of destitution, which alone is disreputable in this country, as SYDNEY SMITH said—was hailed with acclaim by that omnipotential organ of opinion among us which, only a couple of years before, ran the most extraordinary of its surprising expresses for the purpose of recording HUDSON's triumph at Sunderland over one of the ablest and most indefatigable benefactors of the age—Col. THOMPSON—who, by the way, has just been returned for Bradford, as many American admirers of the veteran Benthamite will rejoice to learn. Since HUDSON began to go down his descent has been rapid, but not quite so ruinous as might have been expected. All his real and personal property, immense as it was, soon disappeared to satisfy his creditors; that magnificent house at the corner of Albert Gate, which forms one of the wonders of foreigners, being among the most conspicuous of the items transferred to other hands, the French Embassy having made it a permanent diplomatic vocale. Still GEORGE's original Fortunatus-like luck stuck to him in some measure. He occasionally made coups in the stock market, which sustained him awhile above water; but, on the whole, every day added to his embarrassement, from the incarcerating consequences of which nothing could have saved him but the fact of his being a member of Parliament, which bars arrest. Notwithstanding all his faults and misfortunes the constituents of Sunderland, partly in a spirit of obstinate singularity, and partly in remembrance of certain local advantages in the shape of docks and railways conferred in the noon of the Iron King's reign, remained faithful to his fallen majesty, and returned him twice more. Still his course was downward, and still they have adhered to him. Certain schemes he had in the Peninsula, veritable Châteaux en Espagne, tumbled to the ground, heaping the additional ruin of the debris upon him. He was in pecuniory extremis. His acceptances were publicly exhibited in bankruptcy and insolvent courts as being all but waste paper. Despite the notoriety of these circumstances, he again offered himself for Sunderland, and has again been returned, a sheriff's officer wolting on the hustings to seize him in case the poll had gone against him.

What makes this the more amazing is, that, at this very moment, there is additional and peculiar significance attached to the proceedings of certain delinquent members of Parliament in connection with commercial undertakings. In addition to the notorious McGREGOR, late member for Glasgow, formerly too well known in America, and now an all but absolute mendicant for his daily bread in Paris, two other legislators have been scouted into the obscurity of private life because of their being implicated in the juggleries of the British Bank. It was hinted here last week that the virus, or the suspicion of it, which comes to the same thing, was extending to mercantile men of much higher reputation amongst us than ever were the concocters of that calamitous fraud. Hence, there is an almost morbid excitement in the public mind on this subject; and yet, in the face of it, a large and affluent and influential community like Sunderland returns Mr. GEORGE HUDSON!

Next to this outré exploit, the oddest, at least the most unexpected, circumstance to be noted is the sudden rise in the Bank of England rate of interest by one-half per cent. The intention of any such movement on the part of the directors was kept secret till the last minute. Very probably it was almost the last minute before it occurred to themselves. Why it should have occurred at all is what our wise men cannot comprehend. It was only the day before that the monthly return of the Board of Trade showed a perfect plethora of prosperity on paper; and a few days before that again the Government journals were in extacies at the tidings of the Emperor of China having repudiated YEH, and thereby confirmed the omniscience of the Palmerston policy in that quarter So, too, in regard to Persia, where our general, OUTRAM, won a great victory a la Chinoise. Nevertheless, with all these incentives to confidence and congratulations, the monetary sages of Threadneedle-street cry "caution!" and clip the padlock on their strong box, all the other banks of course following the example, without the least consciousness of a reason for so doing, the ignorance of course heightening the general tendency to panic. It now turns out that if things be all coleur de rose, there is considerable quantity of thorn underneath.

So far from the Chinese news being of the agreeable character supposed, it appears that the Emperor is a regular YEH himself in contempt for the barbarians That he means to yield nothing whatever of his own accord and to resist to the uttermost all attempts to take anything from him. The meaning of this is that we are thoroughly in for a protracted and costly war at the other end of the earth. Armaments on a scale proportioned to the requirements are ordered. Apothecaries' Hall has put on half-a-dozen steam-pestals to [illegible] mortality of rising kites. [illegible] Admiralty has contracted for a fabulous number of gallons of ink to make out the bill of particulars the Chancellor of Exchequer will have to lay before parliament, as soon as the money is spent,—not before: that is never done in this Country. We have no choice, but to sanction the payment; and why the officials take the trouble to ask for such sanction, seeing that it is never withheld, and cannot be withheld, it is very difficult to comprehend. Then, again, this victory over the Persians, with such kind-hearted and simple friends as the Russians to improve the occasion, occurring before the draft of FEROUK KAHN's proposed treaty could reach the Shah, may provoke other than nightingale notes among the Fireworshipers, and produce an anti-Anglo flame which years of diplomacy and war may not smother, and which will probably require quite as much of the latter as the former. Furthermore, all the gagging of the Continental press cannot stifle the fact that matters there are becoming hourly more serious. All the iron pressure of Austria cannot keep down the most portentious manifestations in the Venetian and Lombardine provinces. Sicily and Naples are synonymous with the volcanoes that constitute their physical phenomena. The States of the Church are—the states of the Church, and no more need be said. More alarming than all, the determination of the French Emperor to render his will the one motive power of his people's thoughts, and the secret determination of the people to have a will of their own, cost what it will, are pregnant with symptoms which the blind can see bodes change of the most organic character.

Here be materials which may well repress an undue tendency to buoyancy in gentlemen of a not particularly poetic temperament like Bank of England Directors. All of a sudden, too, it appears to occur to public apprehension that the virtual and only possible sovereign of the situation is Lord PALMERSTON, now in his three score and thirteenth year, and that there is no one to take his place. No one to take his place? No; he is who and what he is, because he is Lord PALMERSTON. As such, he has been invested with the Sultanship of this Constitutional Kingdom of ours; and no one pretends that there are two Lord PALMERSTONS. Like ALEXANDER, his empire must fall to pieces at his death. None of his Lieutenants, none of his antagonists are fit to take his place; nor do any of them occur to any body as being fit. The condition to which the House of Commons is now reduced would render it doubly difficult to carry on without him; for out of doors the intelligence and capacity would be far greater than within, as it is at present. But a dissolution would not mend matters, inasmuch as those who would thereby be benefited do not constitute the governing classes, and never will and never can. This is incomprehensible in America; but it is so palpably intelligible here that the mere abstract hypothesis of an Administration from the middle classes, even of the upper ranks of the middle, is never so much as discussed in the way of entertainment.

Lord JOHN RUSSELL is in again, and has somewhat advanced in public favor; but it would be long, indeed, before he could become what he was when he left office, and that was anything but what was desirable. He does not seem to be aware of the fact, and his friends don't like to tell him, that after 65 even Russells do not grow younger. He is still eight years the junior of PALMERSTON; and considering what the latter has become within the last eight years, it is not surprising that Lord JOHN should think there is some scope for himself left yet. Possibly there is, but impossible that it should be worthy of his antecedents, still less of the exigencies of the time. His declaration this day week, that a certain dispatch suppressed by CLARENDON would have vindicated his conduct completely at Vienna, and his further intimation that he had urged upon PALMERSTON the propriety of not allowing the Circassians to be sacrificed, as regards the ports on the north shores of the Black Sea, to Russia, ought, one would think, to have created an extraordinary sensation. But such is not the case. It has hardly called for the least remark. Everybody seems to be of opinion that the least said the better, about proceedings that were characterized by fatuity and duplicity the most astounding modern history makes mention of.

DISRAELI, who is likewise returned to the new Parliament, as is also BULWER, has been indulging in disclosures as to the Vienna bunglements, and has elicited a good deal of comment of a kind little flattering to any one, himself included, though it must be confessed that he has not lost caste of late in the general declension of all political character.

In all the new men elected, it is to be remarked that there is not a single one of public prominence, save KINGLAKE, the author of Eothen, who is regarded as somewhat of a set off to the loss of LAYARD, though he does not possess the latter's capacity for speaking, and has not diplomatic experience.

It is needless to say that in the midst of the excitement that prevails here the news concerning the rejection, or partial rejection, for we hardly know what to make of it, of the Dallas-Clarendon Treaty, has attracted little notice, though it too may not have been without its effect on the Bank Directorate. The British public are very anxious to get rid of the subject any how, and are heartily sick of the Mosquito Indians and all about them, which the American public doubtless cordially reciprocate.

The London season is expected to be unusually brilliant this year, because unusually late, owing to this second session. Hence, your citizens meditating a visit will have ample time for their arrangements. Both Operas open on Tuesday week. The corps diplomatique give evidence of festivious activity extraordinary. The publishing world is likewise hustling, many new works of interest being on the eve of appearing; though one of great promise, Mrs. GASKELL's Life of Miss C. Bronte, has not been what it could be wished; but others, of which you shall be apprised next week, are likely to atone for its shortcomings.

COMETS.—Lt. MAURY informs us that another telescopic comet, discovered by Dr. BRUHNS at Berlin March 18, is now visible in the northwestern part of the heavens. It is supposed to be identical with the third comet of 1846, discovered by BAORSEN—an elliptic orbit for which has been computed by Dr. VON GALEN, by which it returns to its perihelion June 25 of the present year. The places of the two comets, observed by Mr. FERGUSON, with the great refractor of the National Observatory, on the 17th April, are as follows:

Comet, 1857, I....	(D'Arrest.)	R. Ascen'n.	Declina'n.
	h. m. s.	h. m. s.	° ′ ″
April 17.....	5 59 40	5 0 12	30 8 35
Comet, 1857, II....	(Bruhne.)	R. Ascen'n.	Declina'n.
	h. m. s.	h. m. s.	° ′ ″
April 17.....	8 33 20	4 7 20	43 57 08

The first comet is increasing its distance from the earth; the second is approaching, and will be visible during the whole of May. The first is now in Auriga, the second in Perseus.—Nat. Intel.

"PISTOLS AT TWO PACES."—The New-Orleans Crescent publishes a correspondence between Mr. W. R. ADAMS, of the Courier, who recently challenged and fought Col. NIXON, of the Crescent, which preceded that event. It appears that ADAMS first challenged Col. JOHN BARTON BRECKINRIDGE, one of the editors of the Crescent. BRECKINRIDGE promptly accepted the invitation, and THOMAS E. ADAMS was chosen as his friend to arrange with WILLIAM E. WILLIAMS, the friend of ADAMS the challenger. Now it so happens that BRECKINRIDGE is afflicted with imperfect vision, of each which would place him at a considerable discount in a duel. In order to place him on a par, therefore, his friend ADAMS named to his challenger's friend, "pistols at two paces" as the conditions of the fight. WILLIAMS indignantly repudiated these terms, and ADAMS, the principal, proceeded to seek satisfaction on NIXON, BRECKINRIDGE's associate.

C. K. BRADFORD, a painter and dealer in paper hangings, was arrested at Nashua, N. H., on Saturday, for stealing the keys of the Nashua Bank.

FINE ARTS,
READY-MADE CLOTHING, &c.

It has been aptly remarked by critics that good taste, being intuitive, gems of art were to be seen on the walls of even unpretending mansions, and that the best and purest taste was not always to be looked for in marble halls.

Apply the inference in the adornment of the outward man, and where, for a series of years, has been realized the discernment that has given eclat to the Ready-made Clothing business, and by productions the most recherché in style averted a subjection to the old regimen in getting suited, let the community answer and be assured that competition but prompts us to more strenuous endeavors in a determination to retain the supremacy heretofore awarded our clothing.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

SIX REASONS WHY EVERYBODY USES LYON'S KATHAIRON.

1. It is the cheapest preparation for the hair ever made.
2. It is pronounced by all to be the most beneficial.
3. It is the most agreeable to use.
4. It is the cleanest and most carefully prepared.
5. It is the most highly perfumed.
6. It is the only article that never fails to give entire satisfaction.

The immense sale of the KATHAIRON—nearly 1,000,000 bottles per year—attests its excellence and universal popularity. Sold by all dealers, everywhere, for 25 cents per bottle.

WE DESIRE TO INFORM OUR FRIENDS AND the public that we have arranged the stock which remained unsold in the old store, apart in a cheap side room. It includes TEA SERVICES, BRONZES, VASES AND GLASS WARE, &c., and we shall offer them at decided bargains. We design in future to place in this room any goods which may be in the least old or imperfect and we shall sell them regardless of cost. Parties in search of bargains will do well to pay this room a visit.

THERE ARE A FEW MEN

In the world that deserve to be remembered as public benefactors—Gough (John B.) for his devotion to the temperance cause; Mayor Hall, for his unremitting attention to the sick; Horace Greeley, for his humanitarianism; and BAILEY & CO. for cheap China, Glass, Gas Fixtures, and so on. Each have done a world of good in his especial way, but we are not quite certain that Messrs. D. & Co. do not deserve the greatest meed of praise. One thing is certain—they benefit the greatest number, and, according to political economists, deserve the palm.

GREAT MEN OFTEN DIFFER

About matters of public policy, but upon the question of cheap China, Glass, Gas Fixtures, and Silver-plated Ware, there is at the present day but one opinion, viz.: that the only place to buy the same is at DAILEY & CO.'S, Nos. 631 and 633 Broadway. For an insight into the matter look at their advertisements in the dry goods column of this paper.

COUNTRY RESIDENCES.

COUNTRY RESIDENCE FOR SALE AT Orange, N. J., one hour's ride from New-York. The house, two-story, with wing, and with piazzas front and rear, is now in process of building, and will be completed about the 10th to the 15th of May. It is built by the day's work, and will be thoroughly finished. The location is fine, commanding a view of Orange Mountain and Valley; and convenient, being within three minutes' walk of the principal depot. The lot is 75 feet wide by 250 feet deep. For terms and further information, apply to FAIRBANKS & CO., No. 189 Broadway, New-York, where a map of the village and a plan of the house may be seen.

FOR SALE—COUNTRY RESIDENCE AT BAY VIEW—Two miles south of Jersey City, on the Bergen Point Plank Road, situated on high ground in full view of New-York City, Bay, &c.; dwelling new, cottage style, ten rooms, barn and about one acre of ground, well fenced, painted, &c. Spring water brought into kitchen through iron pipes, stop-cocks, &c.; surrounded with good improvements, and is offered a bargain, as the owner is removing out of the country. If not sold by Wednesday, the 22d inst., is offered at auction on that day, at 11 o'clock A. M., on the premises, together with furniture, wagons, carts, &c., &c. Stages leave the Jersey City Ferry every hour, and pass the door. For further particulars, inquire of WILLIAM M. LUMMIS & CO., No. 49 Warren-st., New-York, or the subscribers, on the premises, the day of sale.
JOSEPH B. WILKINSON, Troy, N. Y.

FOR SALE—THE VALUABLE AND HIGHLY desirable country residence of the subscriber at Upper Ravenswood, Long Island. The property consists of 166 feet front on the East River, running back to the turnpike, embracing about 2 acres, well stocked with fruit and shrubbery, and in a high state of cultivation. The house is new, commodious, replete with every convenience and built by day's work in the most substantial manner, and is in every respect one of the most desirable residences for a gentleman of wealth to be found in the vicinity of New-York. Inquire for particulars of J. S. VANDERHOOF, No. 17 William-st., or on the premises of CHARLES WHITLEMORE.
Also for sale, a lot adjoining the above, 150 feet on river by about 600 feet deep, running through to turnpike.

A FINE COUNTRY RESIDENCE FOR SALE.—Will be exchanged for any kind of property, except improved real estate. The mansion is entirely new, commodious, and furnished with both hot and cold water, range, &c., &c. The house is situated on an eminence commanding the finest views within the same distance of New-York, overlooking the City and Bay—views of Long Island, State Island, Hudson and East Rivers, the Narrows, Newark, Elizabeth City, and the surrounding country. It is within 75 yards of a plank road, and 2¾ miles of Jersey City Ferry. Omnibuses pass on the plank road every half-hour. The owner, who intended to occupy it, desires leaving the City, and prefers disposing of it for much less than its worth or cost, in letting it. About $7,000 will remain on mortgage. Apply to E. L. STEVENS, No. 14 Wall-st.

FOR SALE—ON THE BANK OF THE HUDson, about five minutes' walk from the depot at Dobbs' Ferry, and adjoining the residence of F. P. Furnald, Esq., a country seat consisting of about four acres of land, with every variety of fruit and ornamental trees, a good house about 44 feet front; grounds beautifully laid out with flower and grass plots, and a large and lustrous fountain in front of the house. The location in point of health, beauty of scenery and extent of view is unsurpassed by any on the Hudson, being immediately on the bank of the river, and having a water front of about 500 feet. The above premises will be sold very low and on easy terms, as the owner is about to leave for Europe. SAMUEL EDDY, No. 3 Hanover-st.

FOR SALE, ATTARRYTOWN—THE SPLENdid country seat erected and lately occupied by Capt. NATHAN COBB, possessing complete advantages of river scenery, water, fruit and forest trees, gardens, carriage-house, stables, ice-house, &c. The house is large, and finished in best style for a country residence the whole year. It would answer for a first class boarding-house—an establishment that would pay well there. Every appendage to the property is perfect and desirable. For sketch and further particulars, apply to M. K. COUZENS, No. 237 Broadway, rooms No. 20 and 21.

FOR SALE—A DESIRABLE COUNTRY RESIdence, with 25 or 85 acres of land, near the village of Fishkill, Dutchess County, and within 40 minutes' drive of one of the best stations on the Hudson River Railroad. There are on the premises a Gothic house, with many modern improvements, barns, carriage-house, ice house, two never-failing wells of water, a flowing orchard of all kinds of fruit, and a well-stocked garden. The property will be sold at a low price as the owner is about to leave for the West. Apply to ANTHONY VAN WYCK, Fishkill Village, or SKEEL, VAN VALKENBURGH & CO., No. 303 Fulton-st.

FOR SALE OR TO LET AT FORDHAM—A desirable country residence on the McComb's Dam Road, immediately opposite the residence of LEWIS G. MORRIS, Esq. The property comprises six acres of land, well stocked with fruit trees of mature growth, a convenient and commodious cottage and outbuildings complete. The situation is elevated and remarkably healthy, 1 mile distant from High Bridge and 10 minutes' walk from Fremont Station, on the Harlem Railroad. For particulars apply on the premises, or to MEGRATH & CO., No. 67 Washington-st.

TO LET—A DESIRABLE COUNTRY RESIDENCE on Staten Island, two miles below the Narrows, and five miles from Vanderbilt landing, over a beautiful road. The house is large and commodious, with fine fruit, garden, stable, &c., and about 6 acres of land. NEW-YORK CITY.

Board of Aldermen.

The Board of Aldermen met last evening, Alderman CRANDELL, President, in the Chair. A petition was received and granted asking that the name of Spring-street be changed to that of Tenth-street at the request of the petitioners.

THE MURDERED POLICEMAN.

With reference to the murder of STEPHEN P. HARDENBROOK, a policeman of the Ninth-Ward, the Mayor submitted to transmit the following resolution to the Board of Councilmen for their consideration and action:

Resolved, That the sum of $1,000 be, and the same is hereby appropriated, and the Comptroller is hereby authorized to invest that amount and issue a City Bond for such sum, and that the interest thereon at the rate of 7 per cent. per annum, be paid to the order of STEPHEN P. HARDENBROOK, so long as she shall remain unmarried, for the support and education of her children, and in the event of her second marriage, the aforesaid interest to be paid to the children of the said STEPHEN P. HARDENBROOK, until they shall severally arrive at the age of 21 years, when the principal shall revert to the use of the city. The Board concurred to offer a reward of $1,000 for the arrest of the murderer.

THE POLICE COMMISSIONERS TO BE RESISTED.

The following preamble and resolution were adopted:

Whereas, In the opinion of this Board, the act of the Legislature, known as the Police bill, is unconstitutional and void. Therefore be it

Resolved, That his honor the Mayor, the Recorder and the City Judge, be and are hereby directed to retain possession of all the property belonging to or connected with the Police Department, and refuse to acknowledge or obey the Police Commissioners (so called) in said act, but to continue in the discharge of their duties, as heretofore imposed on them, by virtue of the laws appointing them as Commissioners.

When the above had been read Alderman MONAGHAN desired to say that he had been misrepresented by some of the reporters in what he said when protesting against the acts of the Legislature. He wished to be understood as holding himself responsible for the statement that the members of the late Legislature could be bought and sold like cattle in the market. The Board concurred to print 10,000 copies of the new Charter.

PAYMENTS OF CITY WARRANTS.

The following was adopted:

Resolved, That the City Chamberlain report to this Board his reasons for refusing to pay the City Warrants lately drawn on him, with a general statement of the amount of funds in his possession to the credit of the City, and such other information as will enable the Common Council to be fully informed of the true state of facts connected with the finances of the City.

PAVING STREET CLEANERS.

The following was adopted:

Resolved, That the Comptroller be and he is hereby requested to report to this Board forthwith, the reason why the men employed on the streets, previous to the contracts being made for the cleaning of them by contract, have not been paid since the 27th day of December last, while he has been paying the contractors for such work since that date.

MISCELLANEOUS.

The Board concurred with the Councilmen in favor of extending the time to the lessees of the Thirty-fourth-street Ferry to Hunter's Point, N. J., until the 1st of October next, for putting said Ferry in operation.

They concurred to build a new carriage for Hose Co. No. 28, and a new house for Engine Co. No. 16.

A resolution, charging Mr. Reynolds, the Street Contractor, with paying his men in uncurrent money, was offered and laid on the table.

The recent nomination of Fire Wardens was confirmed.

The report on the Third-avenue and Harlem Railroads was made special order for Monday next.

The nomination of Jacob Rudolph, City Surveyor, was confirmed, and then the Board adjourned to Tuesday next.

Board of Councilmen.

The Board of Councilmen met on Monday, the President, J. N. PHILLIPS, Esq., in the chair.

Several petitions were presented and referred.

A resolution to print the proceedings of the Board in a Democratic morning paper, instead of an evening paper, was lost, after long debate, for want of a constitutional vote.

A resolution to divide the Twenty-first Ward into six Election Districts was referred to a Special Committee.

A resolution repealing and annulling so much of the grant of the Sixth or Eighth avenue Railroad as allows the laying or using of rails in Vesey-street, between Greenwich and Broadway, and directing the Street Commissioner to remove the rails within the above limits, was referred.

A resolution to the effect that the Counsel to the Corporation be requested to report whether the recent Charter deprives the members of the present Common Council of their pay after the 1st of May, was adopted.

A resolution was offered by Councilman OTTARSON to ask Corporation Counsel to report to the Board whether in his opinion the Charter amendment of 1853, section 12, does not secure all contracts to the lowest bidder, with adequate security, whether the contracts be confirmed by the Common Council or no. And whether an ordinance of the Common Council can alter or add conditions to any propositions of the City Charter.

The resolution was adopted.

The Committee on Law Department—to whom was referred the duty of obtaining the opinion of Corporation Counsel as to whether contracts were valid without confirmation of the Common Council, preparatory to the consideration of a resolution by Councilman B. REILLEY, "directing the Comptroller to pay no money on account of work performed under any contract with the City, until the same be confirmed by the Council"—submitted their report with the opinion of counsel, in the following terms:

"No contract involving the expenditure of more than $250 is valid until all the proposals, contracts and papers shall have been laid before the Common Council and confirmed by them, and appropriation made therefor; this language being that of the ordinance itself, and leaving no room for doubt or discussion."

Councilman REILLEY moved the adoption of his resolution.

Councilman OTTARSON said that the object of this resolution was to break up the system of cleaning the streets by contract. Any attempt to do this was only made for party purposes.

Councilman WARNER denied the assumption. The Board merely wanted to know whether they had authority to demand confirmation of these and other contracts. The charter awarded the contract to the lowest bidder, upon adequate security, but the ordinances were just as binding as the charter.

Councilman JONES said it was within the province of the Board to pass upon every contract above $150. He was not inimical to the present temporary arrangement as to street-cleaning. [Councilman WARNER, interposing—"Nor am I,"] but that has nothing to do with the general question.

Councilman HASWELL agreed with this. It had nothing to do with cleaning streets, but merely with the abstract right to overhaul contracts.

On vote, affirmative, 43, negative, 5, the report and resolution were adopted.

The following resolutions were then taken up from the table:

Whereas, It is represented, that the Legislature of this State has, during its present session, passed various acts relating particularly to the City of New-York, and

Whereas, It is represented, that many of said acts are calculated to, and do impair or interfere with the property, rights, franchises, privileges, and powers of the Corporation of the City of New-York; and

Whereas, The said acts were passed without the application or assent of said Corporation; therefore,

Resolved, That the Counsel to the Corporation be, and he is hereby requested to report to the Common Council, without delay, what acts have been so passed by said Legislature, setting forth copies thereof.

Resolved, That if he deem it necessary, the said Counsel be authorized and impowered to consult and advise, with such other counsel as he shall see fit, touching the validity and effect of the said several acts, and each of them, and present to the Common Council an opinion in detail in regard thereto.

Resolved, That until said report and opinion shall be received, the Mayor, Aldermen and Commonalty of the City of New-York, its officers, agents, and servants, will wholly refrain and abstain from any action calculated to adopt, recognize, or acquiesce in the validity of any act, or part of an act, which may have been passed by the said Legislature, touching the property, rights, powers, privileges, jurisdiction or franchises of the said Mayor, Aldermen and Commonalty, except such acts as may have been passed by said Legislature upon the application of said Mayor, Aldermen and Commonalty, and that in case any attempt shall be made by any person to inforce, or carry into effect such acts, or any of them, it shall be the duty of the said Corporation Counsel immediately to institute proper legal proceedings to prevent the same, and protect the rights of the City.

Resolved, That the sum of five thousand dollars ($5,000) or so much thereof as may be necessary for this purpose, be, and the same is hereby, appropriated, to pay the charges of such additional counsel as the Counsel to the Corporation may require."

On the question of the adoption of the Preamble and resolutions, Councilman MCCAHILL said, the Legislature often passed unconstitutional laws—witness the Maine law. The country was safe in the hands of the Democratic party.

Councilman WAUGH said it was a shame the Board should be kept night after night while members were "expending their gas, and letting off so much humbug." All they had done might have been transacted in 15 minutes.

Councilman BRADY said talking was certainly useless. It was a party matter. He saw no cause to complain so much about Albany. The Charter the Board sent there differed little from the one the Legislature had passed.

Councilman JONES spoke strongly in denunciation of the interference of the State with the City. Several other members having spoken, and the question being put to the vote, the President in tendering his, declared his opinion that at least one section of the Charter was unconstitutional. The motion to adopt was lost for want of a Constitutional vote, which was 35 to 10. The reconsideration was moved, and as an amendment that it be referred to a Committee of the Whole, Councilman BOOLE would rather take it, after the special order on the regular calendar. Carried.

The Board then went into Committee of the Whole, Councilman JONES in the chair.

The special order related to the propriety of raising the salaries of the officers of the Croton Aqueduct Department, raising that of the President to $3,000; that of the Commissioner and Engineer $5,000; Assistant Commissioner $3,000 per annum.

Councilman OTTARSON argued in favor of the increase taking effect from the commencement of their term of office in 1856; on the other hand, Councilman WARNER said the Engineer was the only one who did anything, the others were mere drones. He had no objection to remunerate the Engineer, and moved as an amendment to strike out all else.

Councilman HUGHES said it was a wholesale piece of robbery. Councilman BRADY hoped the amendment of Councilman WARNER would not prevail. Every other department had got $3,000 for its President. What was the opposition for? What was its motive?

Councilman OTTARSON said the Croton department was non-political. [Expressions of surprise and assent from Councilman WARNER.] The modesty of these men had not asked for back salary—an unusual modesty, which ought not to be employed against them.

Councilman BULTEEL said the City checks had that day been thrown out of the banks, and to give these men salaries equivalent to that of the Mayor at such a time was preposterous.

Amendments upon amendments were proposed, amidst a scene of tedious and indescribable confusion.

Ultimately it was recommended to report to the Board that the salary of the Engineer of the Croton Department be raised, to date from 1856, (instead of 1857, to $5,000 per annum; that of the President (to date from 1857) to $3,000; his assistant, same date, also to $3,000. The Street Commissioner's salary, after many amendments, was raised to $5,000, to date from Jan. 1, 1856; and his assistant, $2,500.

The question of appropriating $5,000 to pay Corporation Counsel for contesting the Charter, or for obtaining further professional assistance, was decided in the affirmative, without debate.

The Committee then rose and reported, and the Board adjourned to Wednesday, after a noisy discussion, lasting more than four hours.

Tunnelling Broadway.

The Committee on Streets of the Board of Councilmen met by adjournment in the City Hall, on Monday, to examine the submitted plan, and hear statements as to the practicability of the formation of a tunnel for the relief of Broadway.

Mr. CH: PERLEY stated that Wall-street was better adapted for tunnel than any other street crossing Broadway. If made at that point, it would interfere less with the business of Broadway than if constructed at any other. It would take at least two thousand carts off Broadway. The proposed tunnel would commence at a point on the intersection of Wall and Nassau. From Nassau, there is an ascent of ten feet eight inches to Broadway. By giving a descent of seven feet, a depth of fourteen feet clear in the tunnel would be secured. The tunnel might curve in the form of the letter S to Rector-street, where it would terminate; the excavation to be continued forward to Greenwich-street. The descent from the corner of Nassau and Wall to Greenwich-street would be a quarter of an inch to the foot. The sidewalks might be maintained as now, by means of iron railings.

It is thought that cartmen, even out of Fulton, would seek the Wall-street tunnel, to escape being detained by the crowd. The cost is estimated at $150,000. Six months would be sufficient for the completion of the undertaking. Sewers might be sunk below the bottom of the tunnel. The sewer now leading down Wall-street to Broad-street might be reversed so as to discharge itself into the North River. There would not be room for the Croton water pipes over the tunnel, and they might therefore be turned under it. The thickness of the arch between the top of the tunnel and the pavement in Broadway, would be about three feet and a half. Wall-street, from curb to curb, is 24 feet wide, and the tunnel will occupy the whole of it. Width can be obtained in Rector-street by making the excavation under the sidewalks. The Committee having heard this statement, agreed to meet the projector on Tuesday morning, and examine the location.

That Gold Box—Letter from Andrew Jackson, Jr.

The gold box left in trust by General JACKSON, with his son, to be presented to the most patriotic son of New-York, has at last been heard from, as will be seen by the following copy of a letter received by Alderman MONAGHAN, yesterday:

HERMITAGE, near Nashville, Tenn.,
Tuesday, April 14, 1857.

Peter Monaghan, Esq., Chairman of the Joint Special Committee of the City of New-York:

DEAR SIR: Your favor of the date of the 17th ult., has just been received. By a misdirection, to wit: ANDREW JACKSON, Jr., Hermitage, Decatur County, Tenn., it has sojourned in another Post-Office, near by, in Tennessee, until the present moment. Its contents I have carefully noticed.

The Gold Box left me in trust by my venerated father, is still here at the Hermitage, safely deposited. It has been, and will be, and is at all times ready for that patriot whom the corporate authorities of the City or State of New-York shall deem fit to receive it.

It is a precious gift, Sir, left by the dying patriot to one of his favored countrymen, from the great State of New-York. May it be worthily and deservedly bestowed, for we all remember that glorious motto for his beloved country—"Our Glorious Country. It must and shall be preserved!" As soon as the selection is made by the proper authorities of New-York, in conformity with the will, I am ready to present it to the favored son selected, whether here or at Nashville, or in the City of New-York, or to forward it on through the hands of some safe person, selected for that purpose, and authority will be given him to present it in my name.

I respectfully submit the above to the consideration of the Committee, with the addition that I shall be pleased to hear from them at any and all times upon the subject.

With great respect, I remain, respectfully, your obedient servant, ANDREW JACKSON, Jr.

A Spiritual Cantata.

The musical world is to be favored next Friday evening with an original "Cantata," entitled "The Song of the Stars," a spiritual epilogue composed by Miss EMMA HARDINGE—the music of which is stated to have been rendered in less than a week, when the composer, a medium, was in a trance condition.

The concert at which this spiritual music is to be heard is an amateur complimentary benefit given to Miss HARDINGE, by the Spiritualists who meet at Dodworth's Hall, as an indication of their appreciation of her musical efforts in their behalf during the past year.

Fires.

LARGE FIRE IN THIRTY-NINTH-STREET—THIRTY-EIGHT HORSES BURNED.

A fire broke out about 3 o'clock yesterday morning in the large frame stables, Nos. 36 and 38 West Twenty-ninth-street. It spread with great rapidity, and in a short time the entire building was destroyed. Thirty-eight horses were burned to death, and a large number of vehicles of all sorts, harness, &c., &c., destroyed. Only a few carriages were saved. The horses were hitched in the back part of the stable, and as the fire began in the front, it was impossible to rescue them.

A new frame building, and a carpenter shop adjoining the stables, were somewhat damaged.

JOHN LEWIS, a hack-driver, who slept in the stables, acknowledges that he had a candle burning in his apartment during the night. This, probably, accounts for the origin of the fire.

POLICE INTELLIGENCE.

An inquest was held by Coroner GAMBLE, yesterday, at the Sixth Ward Station-house, upon the body of the man, James Peters, who died so suddenly under suspicious circumstances, on Sunday last, at No. 62 Centre-street. The result of the post mortem examination was submitted, and a number of witnesses, inmates of the house where Peters lived, were examined.

Martha Peters said—Deceased is my husband; we have been married seven years; we lived for the past two weeks in No. 62 Centre-street with my sister who is married to a colored man named Frederick Francis; Andrew Davis and George Watts lived there also; my husband never drew a sober breath in six months; he gathered soapfat for a living; he used to beat me continually; he was very quarrelsome and would fight with any one; he went out yesterday morning about seven o'clock and came back about nine o'clock: he was then very drunk; he commenced to quarrel with my sister and her husband; he tried to beat me and Francis prevented him; he struck Francis and kicked Francis' wife; Francis did not strike deceased at all, he only shoved him away; we got him quiet after a little while and he laid down in bed; Francis and his wife laid down also in another bed; I went to wake deceased about twelve o'clock and found that he was dead.

George Watts said he had been going with deceased, collecting some soap-fat for several weeks—that on Sunday morning they went to the Fulton Market and from thence to Catharine-street; that during this time they drank twice; that Peters was very easily made drunk, and that on Sunday morning he was very much intoxicated. This witness also corroborated the statement of Mrs. Peters as to the difficulty that occurred between her husband and the negro, Francis.

Mrs. Francis, the wife of the negro, was also examined, but her evidence did not differ materially from that of the other witnesses.

This woman, Mrs. Francis, the white wife of the negro Francis was an object of much attention from those present at the inquest. She is an Irishwoman, apparently about thirty-five years of age. She bore evidence of having been once quite good-looking, though many years of dissipation and excessive indulgence in strong drinks, were plainly marked.

The Jury, after a few moments deliberation, returned a verdict of "Death from Congestion of the Brain."

The prisoners were thereupon released.

The deceased was born in France;—his age was 44 years.

THE MURDERED POLICEMAN—CONTINUATION OF THE CORONERS' INQUEST—IMPORTANT.

The Coroners' inquisition upon the body of Stephen P. HARDENBROOK, the Ninth Ward policeman, who was murdered last Tuesday morning by burglars, has not yet adjourned. A great many witnesses have been examined. A German, named Constantine Casser, was arrested yesterday, at his residence in Thirty-fifth-street, on suspicion of being one of the murderers. It was shown that on the morning of the murder, and soon after it had been committed, he entered the oyster saloon of a Mr. Jackson and asked for a drink. His hands were bloody, and he seemed greatly agitated. After washing his hands he retired. A man named Keyser, it is said, was seen in company with Casser soon after the murder.

This Keyser, it is said, has a cut upon his head,—just such an one as would result from a blow with a policeman's club. Keyser was not forthcoming yesterday, but the policeman charged with his arrest felt confident of bringing him before the inquest, which will be resumed at No. 48 Troy-street this morning. One of the witnesses examined yesterday—a man named Schemerhern—testified that a man named Conklin, who lived in Perry-street, told him that he (Conklin) witnessed a portion of the conflict between Hardenbrook and the burglars, and saw the fatal wound inflicted. A subpœna was issued for this man Conklin, and it is presumed he will be examined to-day.

MORE BURGLARS—ATTEMPT TO KILL A POLICEMAN.

Burglaries are becoming more frequent than ever, and their perpetrators more desperate and daring. Policeman Donovan, of the First Ward, while patroling his beat, about 10 o'clock yesterday morning, espied two burglars emerge from the store, Nos. 40 and 42 Broad-street. He ran towards them, whereupon they precipitately fled, one up Exchang-place towards Broadway, and the other down towards William-street. He pursued the latter, and gained upon him rapidly, and just as he was about seizing him, the ruffian suddenly turned and discharged a pistol at him, but the bullet missed its aim. Before Donovan had time to recover from the surprise of this unexpected assault, the burglar dodged from view in the darkness, the street lights being all out.

THE SCATCHARD EXAMINATION.

The examination of that mysterious character, Scatchard, who was arrested a few days since, charged with conspiring to effect the liberation of Huntingdon, the forger, was resumed yesterday forenoon at the Lower Police Court, before Justice CONNOLLY. Some further affidavits were made, documents submitted, and witnesses examined, but none of them of any special public interest. The examination thus far, proves that Scatchard, or Cross, or whatever his name may be, is a slippery fellow—that he has been "operating" cunningly, in various ways, upon all sorts of people, in almost all parts of the country; that he is a most accomplished penman, and has a wife devoted to his interests. He will be further examined to-day

LONG ISLAND.

Strike on the City Railroads.

At 8 o'clock yesterday morning, while the rain was falling in torrents, the driver and conductor of one of the Greenwood cars, after turning their car at the Fulton Ferry Dépôt, left it and announced that they should drive and conduct no more unless this "new order" was reversed. The first Green Point car that came in was deserted in a similar way. The Myrtle and Fulton-avenue men stuck to their business, but every man employed upon the other two lines stopped short and refused to budge an inch.

The result was, that by 9 o'clock there was a string of cars standing still that reached from the Ferry to Orange-st. The new time table which is so obnoxious was promulgated last Sunday morning. It requires that each conductor and driver shall make two trips additional to what has hitherto been required of him, and without any additional pay. A man under the new requirement would have to be fifteen hours a day on the road, and as the care of the teams and of cars is outside of this, seventeen hours a day would be the day's work demanded. There is no time given to dine, sup or breakfast in;—they carry their cold victuals in the car, and while the driver eats it stealthily the conductor drives. For such a slavish life the Railroad Company pays the enormous sum of twelve shillings a day! The strike was more general than it would have been, from the fact that the employes—many of them persons who have been on from the opening of the Road, had concluded that it were better to be out of employment for a season than to die daily on such small wages. The day chosen was most favorable for the purpose of the strikers. It rained a torrent all day—hence, all Brooklyn that got drenched in walking from Sand-street to the Ferry was made aware of the grievance. The Company succeeded in picking up Greeks enough to get all the cars running at last, but they had an exciting time of it. At one time a wealthy Director, in despair of finding a driver, sprang upon the platform when the rain was at the hardest, and seizing the ribbone drove up the hill himself. By the promise of a permanent situation, he beguiled a green Jehu at last to his relief. The damage to the Company must be considerable,—the direct loss of fares upon a day that the cars would run full,—the unusual amount of "knock-down" that the irresponsible and temporary conductors were expected to avail themselves of, the damage to teams, and the loss of sympathy from the public, make an aggregate worth grieving over. On the other hand the strikers, of course, all lost their situations, and some of them could but poorly afford that.

Caspar Urban vs. D. L. Northrup, Auditor.

This case was argued a few days ago before Judge BIRDSEYE, when a decision was given in favor of the Auditor. The case is an application for a peremptory mandamus to compel Mr. NORTHRUP, who is Auditor of Brooklyn, to certify the salary of Mr. URBAN. The refusal was made for several reasons: one that he was not entitled to salary, if at all, until his appointment as Foreman of Repairs and Supplies had been confirmed by the Common Council, which was done on the 5th of February, and the demand is made for pay from the 5th of January; second, that he holds two offices, and cannot draw pay for both from the City Treasury.

The case was carried up to the General Term at Poughkeepsie, when the Court affirmed so much of the decision of Judge BIRDSEYE as held that the Relator could not claim any salary for the period prior to his confirmation by the Common Council, but decided that the office of Foreman was not incompatible with that of Assessor, unless it should be shown affirmatively that the discharge of the duties of Assessor by the Relator, interfered with the discharge of the duties required of him by the ordinances of the city as Foreman of Repairs and Supplies, and therefore the mandamus was granted.

Attempted Suicide.

At an early hour, yesterday morning, THOMAS CLARK, residing at the corner of Navy and Raymond streets, Brooklyn, attempted to commit suicide, by cutting his throat with a razor. He was taken to the City Hospital, in a critical state.

Another Attempted Highway Robbery.

A marketman named PATRICK CONNELLY, of Little Neck, L. I., while returning home from New-York on Wednesday night last, was attacked by a highwayman on the Plank Road near St. Roans Well, and it was only by almost superhuman exertions that he escaped from the villain.

☞ The horses and carriages belonging to the late Sheriff RYERSON were sold at anction, in Brooklyn, on Saturday last, for $2,500—their full value. He had three horses, well known in sporting circles. Neptune sold for $410; James Buchanan, or Don Juan, $395; and Belle brought $6 40.

MONDAY, April 20—P. M.

The Official Averages of the Banks in the City of New-York, for the week ending Saturday last, April 18th, the particulars of which are advertised separately by each Bank on another page of this paper, present in the aggregate the following changes from the previous weekly statement of Saturday, April 11:

Decrease of Loans	$976,543
Increase of Specie	1,176,882
Decrease of Circulation	16,516
Increase of Undrawn Deposits	704,376

Including the operations of the exchanges between the Banks through the Clearing House, which average $28,914,176 per day, and the statement of the Sub-Treasury on Saturday afternoon, the following is the general comparison both with last week and the corresponding week last year.

	Loans in the City	Specie in the City	Circulation in the City
Current	$99,695,000	$13,000,000	$3,000,000
Last	100,725,065	11,823,174	3,016,717
Specie	13,262,182	13,061,973	10,884,490
Circulation	8,281,519	8,176,638	8,787,344
Gold Deposits	$6,878,787	$6,441,417	$6,613,906
Exchanged	$4,066,112	$3,814,176	$3,476,048
Undrawn	$4,320,635	$7,547,320	$5,648,855
Sub-Treasury	14,047,377	15,039,388	15,174,799
1856—April 19, Specie in Bank			$12,988,132
In Sub-Treasury			14,047,377
Total reserve in City			$27,005,509
1857—April 18—Specie in Bank			$13,061,372
In Sub-Treasury			15,039,388
Total reserve in City			$27,100,710
1856—April 19—Bank Capital			$50,791,000
Undrawn Deposits			66,839,625
Together			$117,630,625
Against line of Loans of			106,765,065
1857—April 18—Bank Capital			$59,631,000
Undrawn Deposits			67,547,289
Together			$127,178,939

The present showing is altogether the best for the state of the Money Market we have reported for a month past. The addition to the Specie average is much larger than was generally looked for, while the decrease in Loans, considering the ease with which they ran down, was scarcely anticipated. The present line is less expanded, proportionately, than at the corresponding period last Spring. The Deposits begin to look up, and will probably show a gradual, if not rapid addition until the middle or close of June.

The new week opens on an easy market for Money; the rate at call being 7 ₱ cent., and on prime paper 8 to 9 ₱ cent. There was a considerable business in the forenoon in Sterling Bills, at 109¾ ₱ cent.; the Bankers, later in the day, advancing their rate to 109⅝@¾. The mail for the Boston steamer will close early to-morrow afternoon. Francs are 5.20@5.17½. The advanced pretensions among the leading drawers of Exchange were not unexpected, and need create no concern in regard to the Specie shipments of the season, which for April will scarcely equal last year, nor for May and June exceed the movement of the corresponding months of 1856, which was met then, as it will be again, without disturbing materially the Bank reserve. On the 21st April last year, S

The Elections in Great Britain Still Favorable to Ministers.

Rumored Settlement of the Dispute Between Spain and Mexico.

FURTHER FROM CHINA.

Cotton Quiet—Breadstuffs Dull—Consols 92 1-2@5-8.

The United States Mail steamer Fulton, Capt. Worrell, arrived yesterday morning, with four days later advices from Europe. She left Southampton on the 8th of April.

The Fulton brings $140,075 in specie.

The City of Washington, from Liverpool, 10 o'clock, morning of Wednesday, 8th instant, also arrived yesterday.

The steamers Leopold I. and Hermann, from New-York, on the 31st ult., arrived off Cowes on the night of the 3d, the former a few hours in advance of the latter.

The elections in Great Britain were almost over, and they have resulted in a decided gain to the Government, although, from the number of new men who have gained seats, it is impossible to estimate correctly the probable majority. The counties have already returned 119 Liberals (of all shades) against 146 Conservatives. The estimate (of the London Globe) is, to the present time, 355 Government, 249 Opposition.

It was rumored that Lord PALMERSTON has given some kind of intimation to Baron ROTHSCHILD that, if possible, the Jew question shall be brought forward in the first session of the new Parliament as a Cabinet measure. The internal dissensions in the Government in respect of this subject are still, however, great. The Earl of HARDWICK is inexorable. The Earl of SHAFTESBURY, who is always consulted by Ministers on any religious subject, has consented to support a bill for the simple repeal of the abjuration oath, but refuses to tamper with the oath by leaving out the words "on the true faith of a Christian."

Lieut. Gen. Hon. T. ASHBURNHAM has been appointed to the command of the British military force about to be dispatched to the seat of war in China. The new Commander-in Chief had already left England for Alexandria en route to Hong Kong.

Rev. J. T. PULHAM, M. A., a strong adherent of the Evangelical Party in the Church of England, and one of the most popular preachers of the establishment, has been appointed by Lord PALMERSTON to the vacant Bishopric of Norwich.

A telegraphic despatch from Madrid of the 4th inst., states—"Some seditious movements have been discovered and counteracted. Mexico has recognized the justice of the demands of the Spanish Government."

The diplomatic rupture between Austria and Sardinia is now complete. As Austria will doubtless think it beneath her to take the initiative towards a reconciliation, and as Sardinia is certainly not disposed to make advances, if we may judge from the present disposition of that Government and the Chambers, matters will probably remain in the same state for some time to come. A circular despatch of the Austrian Government, exposing its views on the present position of the dispute between the Cabinets of Vienna and Turin, says:

"The question has been asked, what signification Austria attaches to the rupture of diplomatic relations? It is easy for every one to understand that there is in that act a serious warning to Piedmont. The foreign cabinets, particularly those of the two Western Powers, have not witnessed this step with indifferent eyes, and they endeavor to anticipate ulterior consequences by friendly mediation. At Vienna they will meet with the very best intentions. Nothing is demanded of Piedmont but the observance of international rules, and if the mediating powers can obtain what was refused to Austria an arrangement will be easy. Should, on the contrary, Count DE CAVOUR entrench himself behind a line of argument which merely plays on words without modifying facts, Austria will have to deliberate on the further steps that may prove necessary for the preservation of her dignity and of her safety."

The latest phase of the Neufchatel dispute will be found in the following extract from the Paris (April 6) correspondence of the London Times:

"There is nothing new to say of the Neufchatel question, as the Conference has not held a sitting since Friday. The Plenipotentiaries are agreed on some leading points, and the Swiss and Prussian Ministers have accepted them ad referendum, and are now waiting for an answer from their respective Governments. These points I have already mentioned—the amnesty for those who took part in the events of September last year, and for those who were convicted of political offences previous to that period, and the principle of the payment of the expenses occasioned by that outbreak, though the amount is not yet fixed. The Prussian Plenipotentiary also required the suspension of all discussion on the Constitution of Neufchatel until after the lapse of a year, or at least of six months. The Constitution of the Canton of Neufchatel may be revised at the end of May next, and the King wished that there might be sufficient time for the public excitement to cool down. The Swiss Plenipotentiary had no power, nor indeed has the Swiss Government, to make such a concession, which would be a violation of the Federal Constitution. He consequently resisted it, and the other Plenipotentiaries, excepting, of course, M. DE HATZFELDT, sided with him. The Prussian Minister accepted the decision of the majority ad referendum, and on this point also an answer from Berlin is waited for. There are five or six other points which will doubtless come before the Conference at its next sitting."

A telegraphic dispatch from Copenhagen, received at Berlin, states that the treaty respecting the Sound Dues was ratified on the 31st ult. by the representatives of Prussia and Denmark. A later dispatch announces that the first Prussian vessel had passed through the Sound that morning without stopping.

The abolition of the Sound Dues has caused very great satisfaction to all classes in Sweden, as the trade of the country is thus relieved from a yearly tax of no less than a million of rix dollars, or the interest of a capital of 20,000,000 rix dollars. The proposed new tariff is a worthy addition to this treaty, and will place the customs law of Sweden on the most liberal footing, making free trade a reality in that country.

A letter from China informs us that the King of Siam had published an edict, in order to enforce the execution of the treaties concluded between him and the European Powers. The edict says: "We will that the members of these different nations shall freely circulate in our States, transact commerce, and exercise their religion, while conforming to all our laws, and respecting the acts of our authority." And there is annexed a long list of customs tariff, with the import and export duties to be paid on each.

Accounts from Athens, of the 28th ult., state that the Senate had passed a vote favorable to the Ministry.

It was considered in India, according to the last accounts from China, that the closing of the five Chinese ports against European commerce was imminent.

At last advices the Persian army was firmly posted at Shiraz, and General BUEHLER was fortifying Arabistan. The Southern provinces were tranquil.

Reforms are progressing in Turkey. In two cases Christian witnesses have given evidence against Turks in Bosnia, and in both the Mussulmans were found guilty. The passport or card of identity system has been introduced into Bosnia.

The Grand Duke of Tuscany has "for the present" declined to conclude with the Papal chair a concordat like the Austrian.

At the Gloucester (Eng.) Assizes, 4th inst., a verdict of £500 damages was given against Cardinal WISEMAN, at the suit of a French Priest, named ABAE ROUX, lately in Exeter at Chelsea, for breach of a contract, upon which the plaintiff alleged that the defendant had received a document signed by the Princess LETITIA BONAPARTE, niece to the Emperor of France, which the Cardinal had either lost or disposed of in some other way. This document was an acknowledgment on the part of the lady that she owed ROUX 25,000f., which she desired her children would pay as a "sacred debt."

A fearful tragedy was perpetrated at Liverpool on the 6th. A butcher, named GIBBONS, who had been in a desponding state of mind for some time, owing to failure of business, cut the throats of his wife and two of his children, wounding a third on the cheek-bone. The last child (four years old) was quite dead, and the mother and the youngest were not expected to recover.

The Emperor of Russia is said to have definitely given up his intended journey to Western Europe.

An Order in Council had been issued prohibiting the importation into England of cattle, or of horns, hoofs, hides, or skins, from the territories of Russia, Prussia, or Mecklenburg-Schwerin, which lie on the Gulf of Finland, or between the Gulf and the city of Lubeck. This precaution has been taken to prevent the introduction into England of the infectious disease which is destroying the cattle of the Baltic provinces.

The amount of gold on its way from Australia to England, and the greater portion of which could not be far distant, was estimated at £2,000,000, and silver £500,000.

There was an active demand for Money on the London Stock Exchange on the 7th inst., at 6 to 6¼ per cent. The Bank had raised the rate of interest for loan on stock to 7 per cent., which had caused a general decline in prices. The English funds had further declined ⅜ per cent., in consequence of the tightness of the Money market. Consols were 92⅜ to ½ for Money, and 93 to ½ for account. Railway shares were heavy, the leading lines down about 10s. Foreign market also heavy, under the influence of Consols. All the other markets participated with Consols, and were dropping.

THE CHINA WAR.

Anxiety of the Foreign Residents at Hong Kong—The Poisoning—Reinforcements to the British—Plan of Operations—Losses sustained by Americans—Commodore Armstrong—Movements of the American Squadron—Chase after Pirates—The Coolie Trade—Fight with Junks, &c.

Correspondence of the New-York Daily Times.

U. S. STEAMER SAN JACINTO, }
HONG KONG, China, Saturday, Feb. 14, 1857. }

Since the departure of the mail from this port, (on the 15th of January,) few events of importance have transpired in China, that is, compared to those of the past few months. I had expected to be able to record the destruction by fire of Hong Kong and Macao by this time—such an event having been anticipated nightly by foreigners in the above-named places. It is impossible for me to picture in words the constant state of alarm and anxiety the foreigners in this part of the world live in. Judge from the brief abstract of events occurring since the 14th of January, which I will give you, whether or not they have cause for alarm.

On the morning of the 15th of January the inhabitants of Hong Kong were all, with but few exceptions, poisoned. There was at that time a wholesale attempt to kill at one time every resident of the place. People here are supplied with bread from an establishment kept by a Chinaman named ALLUM Arsenic in large quantities was mixed with the flour used by him, and his customers, all of the foreign residents and most of the shipping, were regaled on the morning of the 15th of January with a dose of bread highly seasoned with arsenic. Fortunately, the quantity put in was too large, it acting as an emetic, even on those who partook of but a very small quantity of bread. The sufferings of many were severe, though there were but two deaths. Among those who were very ill was Sir JOHN BOWRING, the present Governor of the colony, and his lady. The supposed poisoner, ALLUM, on the morning of, and previous to, the distribution of the bread, took his departure for Macao, per steamer. A steamer was chartered to go in pursuit of the villain, and fortunately succeeded in overtaking and capturing him. He has had his trial, and though there was the strongest of circumstantial evidence of his guilt, he was acquitted. The fact of his having some fifty men in his employ, making bread, made it difficult to identify him as the poisoner. Apropos of poisoning, people here are expecting the springs and wells to be poisoned next. So you see that we are generally having a most delectable time of it. Many of the Levant's officers suffered from partaking of the bread; on the San Jacinto we escaped.

The English are almost daily having accessions to their force in China. There are now on the way out here four sailing vessels, three steamers, and seven steam gunboats, a force destined for this station by the home Government, previous to the commencement of the "second war with China." That there will be an immensely additional force started for these waters, there is no doubt. The troops which are arriving weekly are mostly Sepoys from India, an effective set of men in the kind of warfare carried on here. The English have shown their good sense in detailing for this station vessels of light draft, gun boats, &c., for only such vessels can approach effectually in Chinese waters. Our Government show a want of the above-named quality by sending vessels of heavy draft of water. There is but two ports in China that the San Jacinto can enter without difficulty, Hong Koeg and Amoy. The British force at present in the Chinese waters numbers 23 vessels, mounting three hundred and fifty-four guns; of troops there is about twelve hundred and thirty-two, all of which are stationed at Hong Kong. The plan of operations of the English for the future, upon the arrival of additional force, is to take possession and retain the island of Formosa, to destroy Canton, and to proceed to Pekin with a large force and dictate a new treaty, the tenor of which may be readily surmised by all who understand English character.

Canton has for the present been abandoned by the British, as also have the Dutch and French Folly Forts. There is no shipping above the Bogue Forts, the river having been made too hot for the British by their enemies. If their force had not left Canton at the time it did, it would not have got down at all, as the various passages on the river are being obstructed by means of sunken junks, barriers, &c., placed there by the Chinese. There have been several attempts made to set fire to and blow up the British vessels up the river, none of which, so far, have been successful. The Mandarins have laid an embargo on Hong Kong, prohibiting intercourse with foreigners. The suburbs of Whampoa, Bamboo town and Newtown have been burnt by the Mandarins on account of the encouragement given by resident Chinese to foreigners. There has also been a general destruction of foreign property, consisting of chops, (floating stores,) dry docks, warehouses, &c. Several Americans have lost largely in property.

Commodore ARMSTRONG, Commander in-Chief of the United States Naval Forces in the East Indies, has come in for a large share of blame from the resident Americans here for, as they say, his want of energy and disposition to protect American interests. Between the Commodore and several prominent Americans there has been a spicy little correspondence on the above subject, which will go to Washington, where judgment will be pronounced as to the rights and wrongs of the case.

The sloop-of-war Portsmouth, now at Shanghae, has been ordered back to Hong Kong. Upon her arrival the Levant will proceed to Shanghae to go into dry dock in consequence of injuries received at the Barrier Forts.

The San Jacinto steamed out of this harbor on January 29th, to ascertain the character of a fleet of junks outside, said to be pirates. Upon cornering a portion of them in a small cove, the leader of the gang came aboard and convinced the Commodore that they were rebels and at war with the Mandarins, whereupon they were allowed to depart in peace, with a caution "not to disturb foreign vessels, neither to interfere with the trade of the port." We then steamed over to Macao, where the Commodore got, as he supposed, positive information of their identity as pirates, so after laying over about thirty-six hours, we again gave chase and came up with them in the same place. All hands were called to quarters, and an action seemed incvitable; the order was given to fire, but countermaeded again. After again summoning the "rebel chiefs" aboard, and after another long confab between the great washed and unwashed, they were suffered to depart in peace, whereupon we steamed into Hong Kong. So ended our second fruitless chase after pirates,—the battle of the Boyne. Here we lie now, resting on our laurels, and no doubt here we shall he until summoned by the great trump of English influence to do a Briton's dirty work." "Comitas inter gentes."

I have two more Coolie horrors to tell you of. The French ship Port de Bordeaux, left Macao two or three weeks since, bound for Havana with a cargo of Chinese Coolies. When one day out an alarm of fire was given from the between decks; the officers and crew ran in haste to put it out. No sooner were they out of the way, when a large number of the Chinese went aft and got possession of the arms, and then told the master that the alarm was a ruse for the purpose of running the vessel back to Macao. Some sixty of them averred that they had not agreed to go to Havana, but had taken passage to the Straits. The master not being able to act otherwise, went back to Macao and threw up his charter. Those apprentices who had agreed to go to Havana, made no objection to doing so, and have since taken passage for the above-named place in a Dutch ship. We think that the deceived Chinese merit great credit for their forbearance.

By a recent arrival of the ship Mazeppa, we learn "that as she passed Breaker Point she saw there the French ship Armais. This ship was dispatched from Swatow with a cargo of Coolies. The day after leaving the Captain was cut down with a hatchet, and the other officers and some of the crew were dispatched in detail. The vessel was afterwards run ashore where seen by the Mazeppa, and the Coolies, said to number some six hundred, went their ways. The rest of the crew were in the hands of the villagers, and under the supposition that they are English, it was supposed that they would soon be killed." The French frigate left on the 2d of this month to look into the matter.

Advices from Siam inform us of the adjustment of all difficulties there, the King having made every concession asked for. The newly-appointed Consul, Mr. GINGALL, is about starting for Bankok from this place.

To-day from our deck we witnessed the capture of two Chinese junks by H. M. brig Bittern. The capture was accompanied by a bit of a fight. Loss by the English—000.

I trust that the incoming Administration will make some change for the better in the persons who have American interests in charge in this part of the world. We shall see. Adios. JAKE.

Inhumanity in the Merchant Service—A Case in Point.

From the London Times, April 6.

On Monday, the 19th of January last, the American vessel James L. Bogart was lying in the Mersey, on the Cheshire side of the stream, preparatory to her homeward passage. Her captain had been two or three days away, her chief mate, FUERER, and second mate, CAMPBELL, being left in charge. After breakfast in the morning, when the hands were mustered and set to work by the boatswain, two seamen who had recently come on board, named CHARLES VANDERPOLE and JAMES CHRYSTIE, declined to work, alleging that they had been brought to the wrong ship, and refusing the service. No sooner was this resistance offered than the mates armed themselves with revolvers, and fired deliberately and repeatedly at CHRYSTIE as he ran away from them about the deck. The shots seem to have alarmed the whole crew, 17 in number, and to have driven them into common cause with the remonstrants, for they presently all gathered on the forecastle together, and passively made a kind of head against the mates. Upon this, these officers took stand opposite, with the pistols, and, after, challenging the men in vain to come down actually fired three rounds right among them as they stood. How it happened that more execution was not done under such circumstances we can hardly imagine, but at last a shot from the second mate took effect, and a ball was lodged in CHRYSTIE'S thigh. The chief mate then gave chase to a man named, JONES, who, after being shot at, turned upon his pursuer and felled him to the deck with a handspike. Meantime, the steward of the vessel and the pilot ran up a signal of distress, which brought a police officer on board; the crew were all given into custody on a charge of mutiny, and CHRYSTIE and FUERER were carried off to the hospital together. The chief mate appears to have died, but CHRYSTIE'S wound was not fatal; and on Friday last PETER CAMPBELL was put on his trial for the offence before Mr. BARON WATSON, at Chester. The evidence of the deed was overwhelming. The sailors deposed to the firing of the shot; the police officer to the production by the prisoner himself of the pistol, with three of its barrels discharged; and the surgeon of the hospital to the lodgment of the bullet in the thigh of the prosecutor—where, indeed, for that matter, it still remained. The only question concerned the character to be given to the offence, but after some deliberation the jury found the prisoner Guilty upon the count of intending grievous bodily harm, and the Judge sentenced him to transportation for life.

It appears almost incredible that such a murderous affair as this should have been got up, as it were, at a minutes' notice, in a British river, and in broad daylight; nor will the astonishment of our readers be lessened when we add that the sentence seems to have taken the prisoner by surprise, as something unexpectedly severe. The fact is, however, that more than one element of recklessness went to the production of this affray. Of these the first and most powerful is generally by the incidents of the merchant service generally. Whether it be from any still unimpaired traditions of barbarous times, whether from the necessary concentration of power in the hands of a single and often half-educated individual, whether from the general character of the men who take to sea service, or from all these causes and others combined, certain it is that the worst and most inhuman tyranny now practised upon earth appears to be in merchant vessels at sea. Every reader of these columns will be able to recollect cases of the most revolting cruelty—of cruelty surpassing anything that has been related of Asiatic or African despotism, while the difficulty of obtaining unbiassed testimony and of ascertaining facts with the precision required in a British Court of Justice too often leads to the partial if not complete impunity of the guilty. Even in a case like this before us, open and reckless as was the violence employed, it is possible enough that the crime might have escaped unpunished had it been committed at sea. It certainly does appear, and we shall presently give some explanation of the fact, that these barbarities prevail to a greater and more shocking extent in American ships than in those of our own country, but even the British merchant service is so far disgraced by them that we cannot possibly affect innocence while denouncing the offences of others.

The excesses of the Americans in these respects arise, we believe, from peculiarities of their national character operating in two or three ways at once; and it is here that we must look for the second element of that frightful recklessness exhibited on board the James L. Bogart. Merchant ships are badly ruled almost everywhere, but worst of all in the service between America and England. Americans, notwithstanding their aptitude for the sea, do not like shipping themselves as ordinary working seamen. They take naturally enough to a seafaring life in fishing, whaling, or what not, and turn out as hardy a set of mariners as any in the world, but they always prefer to retain such a share in the ownership of the vessel or the venture she is bound upon as will give them individually a species of command or independence. The natural consequence is, that there are not many hidders for a service unprovided with these attractions; and much difficulty, in fact, is experienced in getting some of the Atlantic packet-ships manned at all. Not only are the worst arts of the crimping trade brought into play, but men are actually kidnapped and carried off, either by delusion or force, to find themselves bound to the voyage against their will. Of course, such a state of things tends, by direct reaction, to make the condition of the service worse than ever. With sullkiness, vindictiveness, or insubordination common among the crews, it is but natural to look for suspicion, violence, and brutality among the officers; and if to these circumstances we add the recklessness of American character, the habitual employment of deadly weapons in ordinary conflict, and the contempt entertained for the negro race, to which many of these seamen belong, we shall obtain probably a fair comprehension of the feelings which induced a couple of mates on such insufficient provocation, and within hail of the land, to resort to proceedings which would never be dreamt of aboard a man-of-war even in a mutiny on the high seas.

The extent to which these atrocities have been carried in the particular service between the United States and Liverpool, is so terrible that it has actually engaged the attention of a benevolent society in the latter place, which occupies itself with the relief of "Foreigners in Distress." Even the statistics of these miseries have been published, and, if any reader's mind should be more impressible by figures than by facts, he may understand that in the 13 months ending with January last the cases of no fewer than 106 seamen were investigated, and with results showing that out of this number 69 had been kidnapped, while 82 were in need of medical treatment from the sufferings they had undergone. It is to be hoped that the example so very justly made by Mr. Baron WATSON and the Chester jury may have its effect in deterring future offenders, and in improving the condition of those unfortunate men whom necessity or dissster may have subjected to such risks. The Americans themselves, as their own journals show, are fully cognizant of the shocking excesses prevailing; nor can so shrewd a people be unaware that service rendered under such conditions must always be bad service. We, as before confessed, have our own faults too—bad enough in all conscience, even if not quite so bad as those of others; and in these days of enlightment, and publicity, it will be surely hard if humanity and economy together cannot make themselves heard in bringing about reform.

Trade in France.

From the Paris (April 6) Correspondence of the London Times.

The unexpected increase in the rate of discount by the Directors of the Bank of England has created an unfavorable impression on the trade of Paris, which was beginning to recover from the effects of the long dead season through which it had passed. The manufacturers of Paris have, during the last week, received the visits of many commission agents, but their purchases have not been extensive. Although buyers are beginning to submit with less hesitation to the general advance in prices on all description of merchandise they merely purchase sufficient for their immediate wants, still looking forward to better times. The accounts from the manufacturing districts are not so favorable as could be wished. The sale of both silk and cotton goods has been limited during the week. The cotton goods manufacturers, both in Alsace and in Normandy, are loud in their complaints of the excessive price of the raw material used by them, which they say is out of proportion with that of wool, and that they are thus placed in a disadvantageous position as compared with the woollen manufacturers. At Lyons, on the contrary, raw silk has fallen considerably, notwithstanding the fears entertained of another bad crop in consequence of the disease among silkworms. But still the price of manufactured silk is higher than during former years, and nevertheless buyers demand concessions, which the manufacturers say they cannot afford. The last accounts from New-York, announcing that a modified Customs tariff will come into operation on the 1st of July next, encourage the manufacturers here to expect some profitable orders from the United States. It is further said that the stock of French goods is exhausted both in Germany and Russia, and that a demand may be shortly expected from those quarters. In speaking of the silk trade, it may not be inappropriate to observe, that the sale of French Cashmere shawls in Paris—a branch of industry unknown here fifty years since—now amounts to 30,000,000 francs annually. Previously to that period the French ladies were entirely dependent on India for that useful article. At present, the Court having patronized the French Cashmere shawl, little else is worn. The Paris corn-market, as well as those throughout France, continues to decline, and sales are difficult. The arrivals of wheat at Marseilles were not numerous last week in consequence of the prevalence of East winds, but there is no consequent animation in the market. The tendency in the Paris flour-market during the last week has been downwards. The highest price obtained for flour of the best quality was 73f. 50c. the sack of 157 kilogrammes. 1,000 sacks were sold at that price, the united efforts of the speculators for a rise being only sufficient to prevent it from falling lower. Good flour of the second quality is easily had at from 60f. to 65f. the sack, and thirds at from 50f. to 55f. The stock of flour now disposable in the hands of the factors amount to 17,000 quintals; and it is expected it will reach the figure of 20,000 metrical quintals. The accounts from the agricultural districts as to the growing crops are most favorable. The alternate heat and rain have developed vegetation in a most fortunate manner, and promise an abundant harvest. It is expected, likewise, that this will be an exceptional year for fruit, and that the crop will be the most abundant seen for the last ten years. The price of wine still continues to rise in the market of Bercy. The opinion of many good judges on the subject is, that even if the next vintage should prove to be all that could be desired, still there will be no great reduction in price, inasmuch as the stock of old wine is exhausted, and that there is but little of any description on hand. Letters from Nantes state that the holders of wine in that quarter are disposed to take all the chances of the next vintage rather than dispose of their stock of vines. Spirits distilled from beetroot are firm in Paris at 174f. the hectolitre, and in Bordeaux at 132.; Languedoc brandy is quoted at Bordeaux at 215f. the hectolitre.

The show of prize cattle at Poissy is to take place on Wednesday next. There are 404 animals entered for exhibition. Last year there were but 276. The number of oxen is 154, of which 64 are French and 88 foreign. The French animals are the best yet exhibited, but they are sadly inferior to the English and Scotch.

The Three per Cents. closed to-day at 69f. 85c. for the end of the month, and the Four-and-a-Half per Cents at 82f. 25c. Orleans Railway shares, 1,517f. 50c.; Great Northern, 1,022f. 50c.; Strasburg, 863f. 75c.; New Shares, 825f.; Paris and Lyons, 1,502f. 50c.; Lyons to the Mediterranean, 2,176f.; Western of France, 790f.; Bordeaux and Cette, 867f. 50c.; ditto, New Shares, 880f.; Great Central of France, 612f. 50c.; Lyons and Geneva, 820f.; Bank of Crédit Mobilier, 1,435f.; Austrian Railways, 747f. 50c.

London Money Market.

From the London Times, (City article,) April 6.

The course of Exchange at New-York, on London, for bills at 60 days' sight, is 108¼ @ cent., which when compared with the Mint par between the two countries, shows that the Exchange is against England; but, after making allowances for charges of transport and difference of interest, the present rate leaves no profit on the transmission of Gold either way between England and America.

The Bank of England adopted a further slight restriction to day, which had the effect of increasing the heaviness of the Stock market. In ordinary times they discount bills not having more than three months to run, for the bill-brokers, in the same manner and on the same terms as for the public. This afternoon, however, they gave notice that the accommodation would be limited to bills having not more than one month to run, and that on bills of longer date they would only make advances for a fortnight.

This limitation is not in any way to apply to the public at large, all ordinary mercantile applications being still freely met at 6½ per cent. During the ensuing 10 days the amounts repayable to the Bank will be extraordinarily great, and if these should be met in any considerable proportion without a call for renewed assistance the restrictions adopted yesterday and to-day will probably soon be rescinded. The object of the Bank evidently is to keep themselves free during the next fortnight to take any measures that the course of events may render necessary. Within that time the effect of the dividends and the prospect of a partial retention of some of the Australian gold arrivals will have been ascertained. Further advices will also have been received which will help to indicate whether we are to continue sending gold to all parts of the world to obtain the requisite supply of silver for each fortnightly Indian mail. Any course that may then be presented may be expected, therefore, to assume some degree of permanence. Meanwhile it will be an advantage if the step now interposed with regard to bills of long date should induce all persons in the uncertainty that prevails to weigh well the responsibilities of protracted commitments.

The English funds opened this morning at a decline of ¼ from the price to which they receded yesterday after regular hours, and subsequently experienced a further fall, from which there was only a partial reaction. Consols for money, which closed last evening at 92¾ to ⅞, were first quoted 92½ to ¾. From this, in consequence of some large speculative sales, for the May account, they went to 92½. A rally then occurred until there were buyers at 92¾, but the closing transactions were at 92½ for money and 93¼ for the 7th of May. Attention was occupied by the preparations for the settlement, which takes place to-morrow, and the demand for money at from 6¾ to 7 ₰ cent. to carry on purchases to the next account being fully as great as had been anticipated, the market throughout the day was without any appearance of stability. The realizations effected, however, since the fall first commenced must have brought it to a more healthy condition than it has presented for some time past. Bank Stock left off 216 to 218; reduced, 91¾ to ⅞; New Three ₰ Cents., 91¾; India Stock, 222 to 224; Exchequer-bonds, 98¾ to ½; India Bonds, 5s. discount to par; and Exchequer-bills, (June,) 5s. to 2s. discount; (March) 1s. discount to 3s. premium.

There was again great activity in the discount-market to-day. The applications at the Bank were also said to be very numerous. This, however, was to be expected, looking at the amount of the advances to be repaid to that establishment to-morrow and in the next few days.

Liverpool Markets.

The Liverpool COTTON markets remained quiet but firm, the advices per America not having changed previous quotations. Sales of three days (Saturday 4th, Monday 6th and Tuesday 7th) were 18,000 bales, including 1,500 on speculation and 1,500 for export. In Manchester also business remains quiet, but steady, with prices of goods and yarns unchanged. Quotations for Cotton are repeated, namely, fair Orleans, 8¾d., middling Orleans, 7 13-16d.; fair Mobiles, 8d., middling Mobiles, 7¾d.; fair Uplands, 7¾d., middling 7 9-16d.

INTERESTING FROM WASHINGTON.

The Limantour California Claim—The Third Naval Court of Inquiry—Important Appointments—Officers for the Steam Frigate Minnesota, &c.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Daily Times.

WASHINGTON, Tuesday, April 21.

The Limantour California claim is now before the Attorney-General. It is no doubt fraudulent, but this is to be proved before the District Court of the United States in California. The claim covers one half of San Francisco, including the United States Government lots.

Of the Nebraska appointments, those of Judge and Governor are yet to be made.

The Naval Court of Inquiry, No. 3, met to-day. The Court is ordered to take cases as they offer, but it is now proposed to give preference to the older officers, who refuse to go before the other two Courts.

OUR RELATIONS WITH MEXICO—NEGOTIATIONS IN PROGRESS—MR. FORSYTH'S INSTRUCTIONS.

WASHINGTON, Monday, April 20, 1857.

The President and Cabinet will take some time for the consideration of the subject of the Tehuantepec transit before they agree upon the instructions to be given to Mr. FORSYTH in regard to it. There are other questions pending in relation to Mexico which are to be considered. A commercial treaty of a liberal character is quite as desirable with Mexico as it is with China. There are on file in the State Department claims of our citizens upon the Mexican Government to the amount of six millions, independently of the Hargous claim for indemnity on account of the violation of the Garay contract. These claims have been repeatedly urged upon the Mexican Government without avail, and every Presidential annual message makes a slight mention of them, together with a remark upon the unfortunate political condition of that country as a reason for forbearance on the part of the United States. As Mexico can pay nothing, except in territory, and as we are covetous of Sonora, Lower California and Tehuantepec, these claims, and the continual necessities of the Mexican Government, furnish the basis for a negotiation for the purchase of those Territories.

President PIERCE'S Message, at the commencement of the late session, was quite pointed on this subject. He said he should "continue his efforts to procure for the wrongs of our citizens that redress which is indispensable to the continued friendly association of the two Republics." Of course, he had in view his instructions to Mr. FORSYTH, and these evidently were to get territory. General GADSDEN had attempted a negotiation for that object under his instructions, as he has informed his friends, to my knowledge. He met with a rebuff from the Government of COMONFORT, and his failure was ascribed to his alleged want of personal good understanding with the provisional dictator, and it was for that reason that he was recalled, and Mr. FORSYTH sent out.

Gen. GADSDEN failed because COMONFORT was under a pledge, by a decree issued upon his accession to the Government, not to alienate any Mexican territory without the sanction of Congress, and he could not have done it, in a direct and open manner, without hazarding his power. When it was reported here that Mr. FORSYTH had made a treaty, by which territory was ceded to the United States, it was generally believed, even among Senators; but Mr. CRIPPS, the former Secretary of Legation in Mexico, being here at the time, declared that it was incredible and untrue. But Mr. FORSYTH went as far towards the object as he could do, in an indirect way, by placing Mexico under such pecuniary obligations to the United States, as must necessarily serve as a basis for a future demand for the cession of territory, or of its seizure, by way of reprisals. No administration is insensible to the popularity and glory of territorial expansion. President PIERCE coveted that distinction for his administration. As to the Senate, notwithstanding the pledges made in debate on the Gadsden treaty against the acquisition of more territory from Mexico, it is quite certain that this body would have ratified, at either of the two last sessions, such a treaty as Mr. FORSYTH was instructed to make.

Under present circumstances, it will be well for our Government to attempt to purchase Sonora or Lower California, or any territory from Mexico. The instructions to be sent to Mr. FORSYTH are not agreed upon, but they will, at least, be directed towards the acquisition of a free right of way for our Government and citizens across the Tehuantepec Isthmus. To purchase the territory on the line of the transit may not be practicable. If it was worth $15,000,000 when Mr. BUCHANAN was the Secretary of State, in 1846, it is worth much more now. It has now become indispensable to us as a line of communication with California. X. Y. Z.

COMPLIMENT TO THE SECRETARY OF THE TREASURY—NAVY YARD MATTERS.

WASHINGTON, Tuesday, April 21.

The Hon. HOWELL COBB justly feels much complimented by a letter which he has just received from the principal French residents of the City of New-York, inviting him, in the most flattering terms, to a public banquet. One of the signers, now here, tells me that the invitation is in the highest degree complimentary, embracing as it does a large proportion of the wealth and intelligence of the French citizens engaged in commerce, in your metropolis. Unfortunately, the pressure of public duty, as well as the illness of the Secretary's wife, will probably prevent his accepting it until a later period.

The appointments at the Brooklyn Navy Yard, which have been for some time in abeyance, are now understood to be settled. No changes are likely to be made whatever. So many and such contradictory statements have been sent to the Department, that it has been thought more prudent to "let well enough alone."

[FROM OUR REGULAR TELEGRAPHIC REPORTER.]

BOOKS OF THE WEEK.

America and Europe is the title of a new work just published by APPLETON & Co., the author of which, ADAM G. DE GONOWSKI, is already known to American readers, by his two books on Russia. In the present work Mr. GUROWSKI has grappled with a subject which the majority of his readers may be supposed to be as well acquainted with as himself, and as capable of forming a correct judgment on it. This will be to him both an advantage and a disadvantage; he will gain nothing from special information, but then his readers will be perfectly competent to appreciate the correctness and candor of his speculations and reasonings. We think that he will be the gainer in the new relations in which he appears before American readers, many of whom will probably be disappointed in not finding the work of a more personal and gossipy character. The author, however, takes a general and comprehensive view of his subject from an elevated standpoint, and looks down upon the nations of the earth with the calm and candid spirit of a philosopher. His aim is to make a comparison between the civilization of the old world and the new, to contrast the state of society under the different monarchical nations of Europe, and that of the United States; to show the different developments of humanity under a despotic and a democratical government. He arranges his subject scientifically under twelve different heads, giving a chapter to each; beginning, of course, with "Population and Races." The other topics are Character, Democracy, Self government, Slavery, Manifest Destiny, Foreign Elements, Education, the Press, the Pulpit, the American Mind, Customs, Habits and Manners, Country and City.

These subjects are discussed with great ability by Mr. GUROWSKI, and in a style which has surprised us by its force and compactness, as much as by the absence of those inaccuracies which we should imagine were inevitable in the writing of a foreigner. There are parts of the work, however, to which we cannot pay this compliment, which the author probably did not revise with so much care as he bestowed upon others.

Such works as this of Mr. GUROWSKI, which give us the philosophical observations of a candid and intelligent foreigner on the workings of our political and social institutions, are worth infinitely more than the notes of such European tourists who have published books on this country, and which have gained a popularity by their audacious disregard of propriety, and their personal gossip. Mr. GUROWSKI has not marred his pages with any personal allusions of an offensive character, nor, in fact, introduced any personalities at all, except in two or three instances, which had better have been omitted. The most interesting parts of the volume are those which relate to our social habits, for on this point we are the tenderest and most desirous of knowing what Mrs. Grundy thinks, or says of us. We can readily forgive the foreigner who condemns our political system, and pronounces Republicanism a failure, but there is neither pardon nor peace for the indiscreet visitor who intimates that we expectorate too much in bar-rooms, or devour our dinners with unrefined rapidity. It will be a great comfort to many of our readers to know that Mr. GUROWSKI, who must be allowed to be a perfectly competent authority, decides that; "Where the democratic principle is playing in its fullness, America generally outshines Europe in culture, manners, good-breeding, mental superiority." In the name of the American Democracy we bow to Mr. GUROWSKI for his good opinion, and hope that Rev. Mr. FIDLER, Mrs. TROLLOPE, and Monsieur BEAUVALLET will put their heads in a bag when they read this intelligent judgment of so accomplished and candid a gentleman as the Count GUROWSKI, of whom we will take leave by apologizing for having called him a foreigner, for though a foreigner by birth he is a citizen of the United States, and an American by adoption.

One of the great merits of MACAULAY, and the one which, perhaps, has done more towards insuring him that almost universal popularity which he enjoys, than any other, is his talent of portraying individual character. It is this which makes all his writings, whether reviews or histories, so eminently readable. His History is, in fact but little more than a succession of brilliant portraits, and his reviews are not much different. Instead of reviewing a work, or analyzing its merits, he sketches a striking character, or biography of its author, or else gives a series of biographies of persons in some way connected with the subject. He is, therefore, always entertaining, because he is always personal; and he deals more extensively in the gossip of history than any other writer who ever tried his pen upon a serious theme. The APPLETON'S have published a fair sized volume composed in part of the biographical sketches in his History of England, and including the biographies which he contributed to Encyclopedia Britannica. There are very nearly a hundred of these sketches and biographies, and the number might have been easily doubled.

The best of his biographical sketches is one of Dr. JOHNSON, extracted from the Encyclopedia Britannica, which is, in fact, a perfect miniature history of the life of a great man. We wonder that the compiler of the volume should not have placed in the collection MACAULAY'S sketch of HORACE WALPOLE, for it is one of his most racy and picturesque delineations, although it is little better than a caricature. Some of the sketches included in the volume are so very slight and sketchy that they do not deserve to be called biographies,—that of DEAN SWIFT, for example, is of this class. It is hardly more than an allusion to that remarkable man, and gives no insight into his character at all, but merely indicates, and by no means correctly, the position he held when a young man in the service of Sir WILLIAM TEMPLE at Moor Park.

Natural history is the natural study of young persons: it is at once entertaining and instructive, and is not capable of being perverted to a bad use. It is with great pleasure, therefore, that we see any new publication on this subject for the hands of youthful readers. One of the prettiest that we have lately seen is entitled, Cats and Dogs, Nature's Warriors and Workers; Or, Mrs. Myrtle's Lessons in Natural History. By L. F. F. M. Published by NELSON & SONS. We do not know who the person is that L. F. F. M. stands for, but she is a gentle-hearted and well informed woman who appears to be eminently endowed with the talent for teaching. The histories of cats and dogs are prettily illustrated with colored pictures.

Polemics ought not to be admitted into novels but if they are they should be only as secondary and not as the chief elements of the story. It seems impossible, however, to write an Irish novel which is not either religious or political. The story of an Irish work of fiction is generally employed as a vehicle to introduce a controversy which all the characters must be engaged in conducting. Readers are not expected to be interested in the denouement of the story, but in the triumph of Whig or Tory, Catholic or Protestant, as the case may be. The novels of Miss. EDGEWORTH and Lady MORGAN were all of a controversial character, and an infinite number of lesser note have been of a similar character. We find upon our desk this week a new Irish novel upon the old polemical plan, first published in this City, called Ballyeham Castle; a Tale Founded on Fact: By Sheelah, and published by N. TIBBALS. The authoress is in the Protestant interest, and the story is evolved from the difficulties arising from the marriage of a Protestant lady with a member of the Roman Catholic Church. The scene lies mostly in Ireland, but the denouement is in Canada, on the shores of Lake Superior. Founded on fact, or no, the story is probable enough, but not particularly entertaining. The author naturally expresses a desire to be read. She asks nothing more, and will take all the risks of what may follow. But this is the chief end of all writers; all they ask, all they aim at, all they wish for, pray for, and struggle for, is to be read. But, it is one thing to desire this, and another to obtain it. Of all the multitude of books that are published, the number that find readers is exceedingly small.

Courtship and marriage, servants and children, those are the great objects of a woman's thoughts, and they necessarily form the staple topics of their writings and their conversation. We have no right to expect anything else in a woman's book; but yet we do, sometimes, find something different, if not better; or at least, if we find nothing different we find the old elements differently arranged, as in Jane Eyre, for example. The bits of stained glass in the kaleidiscope of life at every turn of the instrument ought to present a new combination in which the blue sometimes prevails, and sometimes the green and the red. The author of Margaret Maitland, who is one of the better class of lady novelists, has given us a new novel of a purely feminine character called The Days of My Life, which has just been published by the HARPERS. It is only a quiet, domestic novel of English country life; but it is evenly and pleasantly written, and though it contains nothing that is in any sense startling or absorbing, it is sufficiently interesting to engage the attention of ordinary novel readers.

The Connections of the Universe, as seen in the Light of God's Created and Written Revelations, is the title of a small volume published by STANFORD of Broadway; but the author chooses to keep his name to himself. It is his object to prove that God has made three revelations of himself; first, in the Creation; secondly, in the Bible; and thirdly, in the person of Christ. Three such orthodox propositions will be agreed to by all persuasions of Christians.

Three new Reading Books have just been added to the répertoire of our schools, by Messrs. A. S. BARNES & Co., of this City. They are called the "National Series," by RICHARD G. PARKER, A. M., and J. MADISON WATSON. The selections are well made and scientifically arranged, and each book is very handsomely illustrated with wood cuts.

What a fortunate race the literary critics were who exercised their functions in the early part of the present century, when Waverley and Guy Mannering first dawned upon the reading world. How easy it must have been to predict the marvellous popularity of these famous works; and how little critical acumen it required to fathom the secret of their authorship: how pleasant, too, to be able to convey the information to the devourers of novels, that so great a treat had been prepared for them. Even now, it is difficult to resist the temptation to treat these immortal romances as new works, coming as they do, in the elegant edition of the Boston publishers, TICKNOR & FIELDS, but we must be content simply to announce the publication of two more volumes, containing, Guy Mannering, or the Astrologer."

The author of a novel, or a poem, should never intrude himself upon the attention of his reader. We do not care to see the chisel of Phidias when we look at the statue of Apollo. It destroys the illusions of the statue, and reminds us that it is only a block of stone. When the temple has been finished the scaffolding should be taken away, and all the dabs of mortar removed. The artist should keep his tools out of sight, and when he exhibits his completed work leave no evidences of the manner in which he formed it. We are induced to make these remarks from examining a new novel which comes to us from a publishing-house in Virginia. It is entitled Hansford: A Tale of Bacon's Rebellion, by ST. GEORGE TUCKER, and published by GEORGE M. WEST, of Richmond. Mr. TUCKER first gives us a preface in which he explains his design, and informs us where he had obtained the hints and materials for his romance; and then he adds foot notes explaining the meaning of certain allusions, and pointing to those parts which are true, and those which are fictitious. The reader is thus rendered uncomfortable by being constantly reminded that it is not a true narrative he is reading, but only a make-believe story of Mr. ST. GEORGE TUCKER'S. In other respects Hanford is a very respectable novel-romance of the G. P. R. JAMES school, the scene of which is laid in Virginia in early Continental times.

There is a pains-taking gentleman of the editorial profession on the other side of the Atlantic named JOHN TIMBS, whose brilliant and careful scissorings have enriched a good many London publications, and who is now engaged as a sub-editor of the Illustrated News. He has published a work for the multitude, entitled Things Not Generally Known, containing, as may be naturally anticipated, hardly anything that is not generally known. But a feast of scraps is always acceptable to the great multitude of hungry readers, who like an abundance and a variety. Therefore, such works as Mr. TIMBS' scissorings and pastings are always popular and salable. A rehash of his last work has just been published by APPLETON & Co., entitled Things Not Generally Known, A Popular Hand Book of Facts not readily accessible, in Literature, History and Science, edited by David A. WELLS. Mr. WELLS' book, though, it is only justice to him to say, contains less unimportant matter than Mr. TIMBS', and is, on the whole, much better arranged, besides having much valuable matter that is not contained in the English publication.

Hooper's Western Fruit Book, which comes to us from a Cincinnati publisher, has a delicious aroma of apples and peaches in its pages; and, in addition to the letter-press about plums, nectarines and pippins, it contains some life-size colored portraits of these exquisite fruits. It is simply what it professes to be, a compendious collection of facts from the notes and experiences of successful fruit culturists, arranged for practical use in the orchard and garden.

WASHINGTON HOOKER, M. D., deserves the praises of parents and the blessings of children for his beautiful book, just published by the HARPERS, entitled The Child's Book of Nature: Three Parts in One." The three parts, which are profusely illustrated, treat of plants, animals, and air, water, &c. The style is perfectly adapted to the instruction of children.

Gracie Amber, is the very ambiguous title which Mrs. C. W. DENISON has bestowed upon a new novel just published by SHELDON, BLAKEMAN & Co., of this City. Gracie is the name of the gentle heroine of the novel, and we may add that though it is a pious novel it is full of vivacity and lively descriptions of character.

The HARPERS have published the sixth volume of the Lives of the Queens of Scotland, by AGNES STRICKLAND, and the APPLETONS favor us with a condensation by Dr. TOMES, of Commodore Perry's Narrative of his Expedition to Japan.

A NEW MAGAZINE.—We have received the first number of the long-promised Magazine of the South, which is to be the vehicle for the current literary products of our brethren on the hither side of that dreadful dividing line of MASON and DIXON. The new Magazine is called Russell's, and it is published at Charleston, S. C. The advertisement on the cover states that, "It is established and designed to meet a commonly felt want, and to give utterance and circulation to the opinions, doctrines and arguments of the educated mind of the South especially, and to promote in its sphere and measure, the progress of a sound American Literature, free from party shackles or individual prejudices." The promise is good, and its fulfillment to be devoutly desired; but we do not think that "the progress of a sound American Literature" requires such a savage pitching in to a rival Magazine as the Editor gives to PUTNAM'S. The contents are varied and magazinish, but not remarkable for brilliancy or force.

LAW INTELLIGENCE.

INTERESTING TO FREEMASONS.

The Case of Deniny, Charged with Arson—Singular Disclosure—Jurors Tampered With.

COURT OF GENERAL SESSIONS.
Before Hon. Recorder Smith.

The proceedings in this Court yesterday were of very unusual and startling interest. The trial of JOSEPH MILLER, the Englishman, charged with causing the death of his young wife, by a long course of most brutal usage, having been postponed to Friday at the instance of his counsel, the case of THOMAS DENINY was next called on. DENINY, it will be remembered, was tried in this Court, before Judge RUSSELL, on the 12th of last January, and the two following days, on a charge of arson. It was alleged that he attempted to burn the premises occupied by him, as a liquor store, in the Second-avenue, near Thirty-fourth-street, with intent to defraud the Bowery Insurance Company, where his stock had been insured for $600, said stock, at the time of the commission of the crime being so much reduced as to be worth little more than $50.

The Fire Marshal interested himself greatly in the case, and prepared a fine card board model of the premises, showing the preparations made for their destruction, the ingenious manner in which shavings saturated with camphene, had been placed among the casks of liquor, and how wisely these had been distributed, for the speedy and thorough accomplishment of the nefarious purpose. The fire had already been kindled, when a Mr. MAPES, who lived next door, smelt the smoke, and gave the alarm. The premises were saved, but the indications that they were not set on fire by accident were so strong, that DENINY was arrested, and as we have said, brought to trial. The evidence against him was overpowering, but the Jury, after being locked up for twenty-one hours, were unable to agree, and were discharged. They stood eleven for conviction, and ONE for acquittal. The prisoner was taken back to the Tombs, the District-Attorney resolving that he should be tried a second time. This second time appointed was yesterday.

Meanwhile, a few days ago, it came to the knowledge of Mr. GRAY, the Warden of the City Prison, that a conspiracy to seize the jailors, murder them, if need be, and so effect their escape from the prison, had been formed by about a dozen of the prisoners, and that DENINY was the ringleader. D'ORSAY, the negro, who murdered the girl in Worth-street, (and who will be tried to-day,) some notorious and desperate burglars, and two sailors, confined on a charge of murder, were foremost among his accomplices. It was while Mr. GRAY, the Fire Marshal, and others, were investigating the circumstances of this conspiracy, that the disclosures were made which caused such a sensation yesterday in the Court of Sessions.

DENINY, having been placed at the bar, (which means, seated beside his counsel,) and the Jury having been empaneled, the District-Attorney, Mr. HALL, who on the first day of term, had expressly set down the trial for yesterday, rose, and addressing the Court, moved that it be postponed till the May term. And then he stated to the Court what we will tell in our own way as follows:

A prisoner now in the Tombs on some charge of fraud, the nature of which is immaterial, named JACOB DINDAN, who for some time shared DENINY'S cell, was examined, a few days since, touching his knowledge of the aforesaid conspiracy to escape from the prison. While giving his testimony on that point, he volunteered some very interesting evidence on another. He said that shortly after he was placed in DENINY'S cell, DENINY told him about his former trial, and said that he would surely have been "sent up" for ten years, if there had not been a Freemason on the Jury. When told to stand up and look at the jurors, while they were taking the oath, as is the custom, he made the Masonic sign to them, and one responded. That one was the one who held out against conviction. His name is known.

The witness further stated that DENINY at the commencement of the March term, obtained from his counsel a list of the Petit Jury panel; that he made two copies of it; that police officer —— told him in the presence of witness, that one of the Jurors, a Mr. ——, was "all right;" that one of the lists of Jurors was given by him to this police officer, who, as witness understood from DENINY, is a Freemason, for the purpose of discovering which of the Jurors on the panel were Freemasons, and another list was given to Mr. LEWIS BAKER, lately so notorious in connection with the POOLE homicide, who likewise, as DENINY told witness, is a Freemason. The part that BAKER was to play, was, it was understood, to visit the Jurors at their homes or places of business. The result of this distribution of jury lists was the return, to DENINY of the names of six Jurors whom he might count upon as his friends.

But he was not tried at the March term, and his indignation, as described by witness, was very great. He said he was entitled to challenge twenty Jurors, and that before he had exhausted that number, he would have been able to have got some of his friends on the Jury.

At the opening of the present (April) term, DENINY according to witness, again procured a list of the Petit Jury from his counsel, and made, as before, two copies. One of these he gave to LEWIS BAKER, who called to see him several times. The police officer before alluded to, also brought to his cell Mr. ——, the Juror of the March term, who was said to be "all right," and who had a long conversation with him, in the police officer's presence. To this gentleman DENINY gave another list of the present jury panel. One of these lists was afterwards returned to him (and was produced in Court yesterday.) The names of sixteen jurors were checked off on it as men to be relied on.

According to this witness, DENINY had proposed to him to join the conspirators in the Tombs who were meditating an escape. When asked by this witness if he intended to try and escape before his second trial, he said he did not, as he calculated on getting off, by getting some of his friends on the Jury. If he failed in that, and were convicted, he would then put the other plan into execution. So much for this witness, whose affidavit, with sundry omissions, not intended for the public, and which we have not supplied, the District-Attorney read yesterday in Court.

He read the affidavits also of two other prisoners, one of whom testified that he would not have his trial go on this Term unless he could get some Masons on the Jury. Another, PETER ARNESON, testified to his having seen DENINY with a list of Jurors, which he had obtained from his counsel, and to his having heard him say that several of them could be dealt with. The wife of DENINY, also, was to call at the store of one of them, a hatter, and buy a cap of him. While making the purchase she was to get into conversation with him, and see if he was to be relied upon.

The District Attorney having read these affidavits to the Court, renewed his motion that the trial of the prisoner should be postponed. Whereupon, DENINY'S counsel arose and insisted that the trial should at once proceed. He made a personal attack on Mr. HALL, to the effect that he spent his time lobbying bills through the legislature at Albany, instead of attending to his duty in that Court. The counsel worked himself into a passion before he concluded his vehement harangue.

The Recorder having examined the affidavits, and the prisoner's marked Jury list, said that there was sufficient evidence before him that the Jury had been tampered with, or at least that an attempt had been made to influence some of them, and that consequently he could not allow the trial to proceed. The District Attorney's motion, therefore, must be granted. So DENINY was removed back to prison, where he will not again be allowed a list of the Jury panel. He will probably be tried during the next term.

Decisions in Equity and in Admiralty on Appeal.

UNITED STATES CIRCUIT COURT—APRIL 21.
Before Judge Nelson.

CREDITOR'S BILL—ASSIGNMENT—LEX LOCI—LIEN.

Edward Livermore et al. vs. T. A. Jenks et al.—NELSON, C. J.—This is a creditor's bill filed against the assignees of the judgment debtor, under the following circumstances: The debtor was the owner of a considerable amount of personal property in the State of New-York, and owed there also a large amount of debts. He was a resident and citizen of Rhode Island. Having become embarrassed in business, he assigned all his property to the defendants for the benefit of his creditors, giving preferences to some of them, and distributing the surplus among the rest. All his creditors in this country are parties to the bill, and they contend that the assignment, which was made in the State of Rhode Island, where it is conceded it is valid, and operative to pass the interest of the assignor. The papers also concede that there is no fraud in fact in the transaction: but, it is insisted, on the part of the complainants, who are judgment creditors in New York, that the instrument is invalid here, and there is no doubt that if executed here, according to the law of the State, the clause exacting the release of the debts would have the effect to invalidate it, and leave the property assigned open to the operation of the judgment creditor. But, it is insisted in answer to this view, that the assignment being valid where it was made, the lex loci should govern; and that it should be held equally valuable here. Whether the courts of New-York would recognise this principle and affirm the validity of the assignment as against their own creditors, in a question that seems not to have been determined. As there is another view of the case, which, we think, must determine it in favor of the defendants, we shall, for the present, waive this question, as there is considerable diversity of opinion upon it in the different States.

As I understand the pleadings and proofs, the latter of which are meagre, it appears that the property in New-York was taken into possession by the assignees, converted into money, and the proceeds transferred to Rhode Island previous to the filing of the creditor's bill; and, of course, previous to the attachment of any lien upon it. Independently of any such lien there was nothing illegal or that could prevent the possession, and removal of the property by the assignees, as, confessedly, their title was good except as it respected the lien of the domestic creditors; but, in order to enable them to follow the property into the hands of the assignees, or to subject them to responsibility on the same, the lien must be first established, otherwise the assignees are prior in point of time and of right. Independently of any lien upon the property, the assignees committed no violation of right as it respected the New-York creditors by the possession and removal, and hence cannot be made accountable to them for it. Indeed, we do not see that the creditors can set up a right to the property as against the assignees, except through the lien; and, as none has been acquired in this case, we think the complainants have failed to establish any right to the property, and, consequently, that the decree must be for the defendants, and the bill dismissed.

For complainants—Messrs. Monell & Willard; for defendants—Messrs. Blatchford & Seward.

COLLISION—FRAUD BETWEEN MASTERS AND SHIPMASTERS; ALSO BETWEEN HIM AND MATERIAL MEN.

J. S. Crane et al., owners of the brig Iola, vs. The Steamboat Sampson.—NELSON, C. J.—This libel is filed by the owners of the Iola against the Sampson, to recover damages for a collision that occurred a short distance out from Sandy Hook, on the south shore of Long Island. The bow of the steamer came in contact with the brig upon her starboard side, cutting her down to the water's edge. The Sampson was lying at a usual place for steamers waiting for employment to tow up vessels coming from sea into the harbor of New-York. The break in the brig was stopped with canvas, so as to enable the steamer to tow her to the Atlantic docks to be repaired. A libel was filed by the latter for salvage in bringing in the brig, which is also before us, and was argued with the present case. The libelants claim that the Sampson was seen by them some three or four miles ahead after the Iola had taken her course eastward, her destination being to St. Johns, in the Province of New-Brunswick, where she belonged; and that the steamer was then lying still, and not in motion upon the waters; that the course taken by the brig would have passed the Sampson's bows, giving a wide birth, but that as she neared the steamer, and when within some half a mile, the latter suddenly started her engine, and ran across the track of the brig, and thereby produced the collision.

The steamer claims that she was lying still upon the water; that she made no movement forward, and that the only movement made by her was to back, with a view to avoid the brig, which was coming directly against her bows; but that, notwithstanding every effort to back, the collision could not be avoided. The whole case turns upon these two allegations. The proofs are contradictory and irreconcilable—all the witnesses examined on board the brig sustaining the view taken by the libelants, and all on board the steamer the view presented by her in the defence. Some seven witnesses have been examined on each side, who were present at the collision.

The Court below decreed in favor of the libelants. In a case so nicely balanced, and depending altogether upon the credibility of witnesses, we are not inclined to interfere with the decision below.

The libelants, notwithstanding they obtained the decree, have also appealed from it, on the ground that the damages awarded have not covered their loss. They claimed $4,585 73. They were allowed $1,121 20, besides costs.

The Commissioner reported in their favor $2,150, which was reduced on exceptions to the report to the sum above mentioned.

The Iola was insured, at least it was so stated by the master, and there is some evidence in the case, that several of the hulls made out by the material men, and workmen engaged in repairing the vessel, were exaggerated, with the knowledge and connivance, if not by the procurement of the master, with a view to impose upon the underwriters. This fact, doubtless, influenced the Court below, to reduce the items to the lowest estimate. It is due to the ship-masters and others at this port to say that this is the first instance of a fraud of this description which has come under my notice. It has been properly rebuked, and any advantage to be derived from it prevented by the decision of the Court below. I do not doubt if it had appeared that an owner had been privy to or concerned in the fraud, the entire amount of the exaggerated bills claimed in the expenses of repairs would have been rejected. As a general rule, however, in order to put an end to impositions of this description the owners must be held responsible for the acts of the masters. These impositions can be reached and properly dealt with in no other way. If, in this case, the Court below had rejected the entire amount of the bills tainted with the fraud I should have upheld its decision. Moreover, it should be understood, that any ship master, or material man conniving at any such fraud with the master, or agent of the owner, should the fact appear, would be disabled, upon established principles of law, as well as of morals, from collecting any portion of his demand.

The idea which seems to have influenced the parties is founded upon the principle of the allowance of one-third of the new repairs to the underwriters—in other words, a deduction to that amount in the charge—and that, in order to save the owner from any expense, the bills should be exaggerated so as to cover this one-third, and, to carry into effect the scheme, the master to pay simply the fair price for the materials or work. For this purpose, two sets of bills are made out—one to contain the actual bona fide value of the materials and cost of the labor, and the other the enhanced value to be furnished to and claimed from the underwriters.

It is a matter of gratification that the scheme has been exposed and defeated, and we trust that its publicity will have the effect to call the attention of all persons concerned in settling and adjusting damages in cases of collision, to scrutinize the bills, and see to it that impositions of the character here developed shall not escape their notice. They shall be sustained in the application of the most rigorous rules in determining the expense of repairs with a view to prevent abuses, so far as their rulings may come under revision by this Court.

The decree of the Court below is affirmed, and as both parties have appealed from the decree, it is affirmed without costs on either side.

For libelants—Messrs. Owen and Vose; for claimants—Messrs. Beebe, Dean & Donohue.

SALVAGE.

Isaac Phillips, owner of steamboat Sampson, et al. vs. The Brig Iola.—NELSON, C. J.—The libel in this case is filed by the steamer Sampson, to recover salvage for towing the Iola, after a collision with the steamer, in which the former was badly injured, from the place where it happened, outside of Sandy Hook, to the Atlantic Dock for repairs. We have just affirmed the decree of the Court below, in which the Sampson was condemned for this injury to the Iola. According to this decision there can be no just claim for salvage for doing what was in her power towards saving the brig. The steamer herself was the most deeply interested in this service. Had it not been rendered, the Iola would probably have sunk, and vessel and cargo resulted in a total loss. The salvage service, therefore, was rendered by the steamer for her own benefit, and, of course, no pretext for charging it upon the brig.

For libelants—Messrs. Beebe, Dean & Donohue; for claimants—Messrs. Owen & Vose.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT—APRIL 21.
Before Judge Betts and a Jury.

The United States vs. One Case containing silk Goods.—This was a suit brought to forfeit the goods on the ground of undervaluation in the entry of the goods by the importer. The evidence that they were valued in the entry at a lower rate than their market value at the place of importation was considered sufficient. But in order to overthrow the intention of fraud on the part of the importer in making the entry, it was proved that he bought them at Paris at the exact rates set forth in the entry, and had bought other such goods at similar rates. The Jury this morning brought in a verdict in favor of the claimant.

For the United States, Mr. Joschimssen. For claimants, Messrs. Bowdoin, Larocque and Barlow.

The United States vs. Jeremiah Towle.—This was a suit brought to recover the sum of $6,600 alleged by the Government to be due on a settlement of the accounts of the defendant as Naval Officer. He, however, claims to be entitled to retain it as his own emoluments of office. The case is still on.

For the United States, Mr. McKeon and Mr. Joschimssen. For defendant, Mr. Cutting and Mr. Chase.

COMMON PLEAS—SPECIAL TERM.
Before Judge Ingraham.

James Harris et al vs. James Morse et al.—Judgment for plaintiff for $613 78 with allowance of 5 per cent.

Henry B. Tatham vs. Samuel W. Goodridge.—Referred to Henry Nicoll, Esq.

Samuel Gregory vs. James Morse et al.—Judgment for plaintiff for $223 80 with allowance of $40 for plaintiff.

Ezekiel Schaifer vs. Jacob W. Ranney et al.—Judgment for plaintiff on demurrer with leave to defendant to answer on payment of costs.

William Fieper vs. Adolphus Hagenlocher.—Referred to Michael Ulshoeffer, Esq.

John W. Crone vs. Deborah Wyatt.—Motion denied with $10 costs to defendants to abide the event.

Amanda Maness vs. Robert Maness.—Divorce granted.

Robert F. Dewett vs. Davidson & King.—Motion to open default, &c., granted on payment of costs.

COURT OF COMMON PLEAS.
Before Judge Daly

John W. Craw vs. Deborah Wyatt.—This was an action brought to recover the rent of the premises No. 47 Bond street in this City, for the first quarter of the year 1856.

It was proven that defendant held these premises from May 1, 1855, to July 16, 1855, and that on the 19th of July notice was given to defendant that if she left the premises she would be held accountable for the rent. Defendant set up a counter claim for board of plaintiff and his son, from May 1 to Aug. 1, 1855. Receipts, some of which were produced, were given by plaintiff to defendant at the several quarter days. It was proven by plaintiff's son that at each time the rent was paid the amount of the board was deducted and balance paid to plaintiff.

Verdict of $347 for plaintiff, and $24 allowance.

Irving S. Campbell for plaintiff; Moses Ely for defendant.

COURT CALENDAR—Wednesday April 22.

COMMON PLEAS—Trial Term—Part I.—Nos. 237, 581, 474, 475, 696, 14, 151, 428, 535, 538, 539, 598, 296, 458. Part II.—Nos. 585, 643, 645, 647, 648, 649, 651, 652, 653, 654, 655, 656, 658, 527, 570.

Virginia—Two Items in Juxtaposition.

From the South (Richmond.)

No. 1.—THAYER REFUTED.—A company of Frenchgentlemen, as our readers have been informed, own a considerable tract of land in Southwestern Virginia—we believe in Wythe County. Mr. LACOUETEUX, an intelligent citizen of France, who is one of the Company, is in this country acting as its agent. We learn from the Wytheville Telegraph that ELI THAYER has proposed to him recently to join him in the enterprise of settling these lands. Mr. L. declined the overture. The Telegraph says that ELI came out of the correspondence with a flea in his ear.

No. 2.—The Wheat crop in this county, says the Loudoun Washingtonian, is believed to be very severely injured. Some of our farmers speak of ploughing up a portion of their wheat fields, and sowing them in oats. Where many of the fields looked green and beautiful during the warm weather of February, now they are barren.

MARKET REPORTS.

NEW-YORK, Tuesday, April 21, 1857—6 P. M.

ASHES—Are selling in small lots at better prices: Pearls, $7 75; Pots, $7 87½@$8 ₰ 100 lbs.

COFFEE—Is moderately inquired for and is firm. Java, 15¾c @ 15¾c.; Laguayra, 12c.@12¾c.; Maracaibo, 12c.@12¾c.; Rio, 10c.@13c.; Jamaica, 11¼c.@11¾c.; and St. Domingo, 11½c. ₰ lb.

COPPER—Is quiet and somewhat depressed.

COTTON—The demand is rather tame, and prices lean in favor of buyers. Middling Upland, 14c.; do. Gulf, 14½c @14¾c.; and other grades at proportionate rates, ₰ lb. Even this reduced currency fails to elicit an active inquiry.

FISH—Dry Cod are dull and heavy, with more offering. Mackerel are quite sparingly offered, and are in request at full and buoyant prices. Salmon, Shad and Herring remain as last noticed.

FLOUR AND MEAL—The market is poorly supplied with desirable lots of State and Western Flour. The demand is fair—prices are well supported. Sales have been reported of about 20,250 bbls., mainly at prices within the annexed range.

Ordinary State	$5 65@$5 70
Straight State	5 70@ 5 75
Extra State	5 80@ 6 10
Common to Good Indiana and Upper Lake	5 65@ 5 85
Common to Good Superfine Ohio	5 70@ 5 90
Fancy Michigan	5 80@ 5 90
Extra Indiana and Michigan	5 80@ 7 50
Extra Ohio	6 00@ 7 75
Fancy Genesee	6 10@ 6 30
Extra Genesee	6 75@ 8 50
Extra Missouri	6 50@ 8 75

Canadian continues unaltered. Superfine to extra is worth $6@$7 10 ₰ bbl.; 575 bbls. were disposed of within the range. Southern is in good request at full prices. The transactions, since our last, comprise about 2,100 bbls. low Mixed to fair Extra, and choice Extra at $6 20@$7 90, and $8@$8 75 ₰ bbl. Rye Flour is saleable and firm, at $3 50@$4 65 for Fine to Superfine, ₰ bbl. Corn Meal is moderately dealt in and is steady at $3 20@$3 25 for Jersey, and $3 60@$3 65 for Brandywine, ₰ bbl. The latter brings $17@$17 25 in puncheons.

GRAIN—Wheat has not varied. We heard of very moderate sales, including good Southern White, at $1 60, and good Western Red at $1 45 ₰ bushel. Rye is still in request, and is steady, at 84c.@88c. ₰ bushel. Sales, 3,600 bushels. Barley is sparingly sought after, and is heavy at $1 50@$1 70 for common to choice, ₰ bushel. Barley Malt is dull and nominal, at $1 60@$1 85 ₰ bushel. Oats are moderately inquired for, and are up to 56c.@60c. for Western; 56c.@58c. for State; 53c.@55c. for Jersey; and 50c.@52c. for Southern, ₰ bushel. Corn continues in slack demand, at drooping rates. We have heard of sales of about 36,000 bushels, at 73½c.@75c. for new and old yellow, and 72c.@73c. for new and old White, ₰ bushel.

HAY—About 400 bales River found buyers, mainly at 70c.@75c. for shipment, and 87½c @$1 for local use, ₰ 100 lbs.

HIDES—Are very moderately inquired for, but they are not lower.

HOPS—Sales transpired of 34 bales common to prime, at 7@11c. ₰ lb.

IRON—Only a few small lots of Scotch Pig were sold at $36 75@$37 ₰ ton,—usual terms.

LEAD—Rules quiet at former quotations.

LEATHER—Sole is in moderate request, at languid rates.

LIME—Rockland is in rather limited supply and demand at about previous figures.

MOLASSES—The demand is somewhat brisker; prices show no quotable alteration Porto Rico, in hhds., 36c.@37c.; Cuba Muscovado, 53c.@53c. Clayed Cuba, 50c.@52c., and New-Orleans, 74c@75c ₰ gallon.

NAVAL STORES—Are generally quiet, yet stiffly held, —with diminished supplies of the leading articles, available.

OILS—The general demand is not brisk; prices, however, are supported.

PROVISIONS—Pork is heavy and cheaper, with sales reported since our last of about 650 bbls. in lots, at $22 50@$22 70 for Mess, and $19 25@$19 40 for Prime, ₰ bbl. Dressed Hogs bring, in lots, 9c.@9¾c. ₰ lb. Cut Meats are in limited demand, and are heavy, at 10¾c.@11c. for Hams, and 8¾c.@9c. for Shoulders, ₰ lb. Bacon is quiet, yet stiffly held, at 10¾c.@12c. ₰ lb. Lard continues in moderate request, at drooping prices. The transactions since our last reach about 500 bbls. and tcs., mostly fair to prime, at 14c.@14¼c., ₰ lb. Beef is in fair demand, at steady rates. The transactions since our last consist of 610 bbls., at $10 75@$11 50 for new Prime; $12@$14 for Country Mess; $15 50@$16 50 for repacked Western Mess, and $16 75@$17 25 for extra Western do., ₰ bbl. New Prime Mess Beef continues considerable attention, and is held at 8c.@8½c ₰ lb. Beef Hams are inactive, yet steady, at $23@$24 ₰ bbl. Butter is in moderate demand, and is worth 15c.@18c. for Ohio; 18c.@20c for common to very good State, and 21c.@30c. for prime to choice do., ₰ lb. Cheese is saleable and firm at 12c.@13½c. ₰ lb.

The City of Washington, from Liverpool, April 7, reports that the great Liverpool sale of Provisions drew an immense attendance—with the following results—establishing an advance of 1s.@2s. 6d. on all Bacon but C. C.: 557 boxes Cheese, sold at 58s @64s.; 71 casks Cheese, sold at 56s.@56s.; 416 boxes Short Middles, rib in, sold at 57s. @58s.; 2,064 boxes Long Middles, rib in, offered—nearly all sold at 54s.@55s. 6d.—the highest price being for about 400 boxes "Robert M'Alister"; 668 boxes Long Middles, boneless, sold at 57s.@57s. 6d.; 1,538 boxes Cumberland Cut offered—only part sold at 53s. 6d.@54s. 6d., and 55s. for "O'Neill Bayley"; 106 hhds. Shoulders (Old) found buyers at 37s.@38s.; 402 barrels Lard offered—40 barrels sold at 72s.; the 70s. 6d., and balance withdrawn.

RICE—Is in rather better demand, and is now worth from $4 50@$5 50 for common to choice, ₰ 100 lbs.

SUGARS—The inquiry is brisker, and prices are somewhat firmer, though not quotably higher. Sales have been reported since our last of about 650 hhds. Cuba, &c., in lots, at from 9c.@11¾c., mostly within the range, ₰ lb. Refined Sugars are in reduced supply and are actively sought after, but refiners are asking higher prices. Hence the diminished sales. Stuart's varieties are nominal

THE NEW DRAMA AN IMMENSE SUCCESS.

THE LOVE OF A PRINCE.

The two pieces which have been performed at Laura Keene's Theatre during the past week are probably "mounted," as it is called, in a more complete and perfect manner than has ever before been seen in this City. King Frederick of Prussia.....Mr. Burnett

Prince Frederick of Prussia.....Miss Laura Keene

To be followed by

THE ELVES,

LEGEND.—The mountain forests of Pastoria are inhabited, it is said, by Pixies, Sprites and Elves, who, like the Phantom Dancers of Germany, delight to entrap travelers into their realms and torment them with their mischievous antics. Having the power of transferring the spirit, they often, in their malicious gambols, give life to the newly dead. Statues, rocks and trees are seen fantastically moving in the forest, but it is only during the DAY they retain their fictitious existence; at the approach of NIGHT they resume their immobility.

THE MONEY QUESTION will be produced immediately.

BURTON'S NEW THEATRE, BROADWAY.

WEDNESDAY—GRAND COMIC COMBINATION.

Two of the greatest favorites on the stage, which, notwithstanding they have been performed more frequently than any other pieces, continue to attract crowded and delighted audiences.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

By the arrival at this port yesterday of the Fulton, from Southampton, and the City of Washington from Liverpool, we receive European advices to the 8th instant—four days later. The elections throughout Great Britain, now nearly terminated, are largely in favor of Lord PALMERSTON. According to the London Globe, a ministerial print, there were returned, up to the 8th of April, 366 liberals against 249 conservatives. As it is uncertain how many of the new members will vote with ministers, we shall not know precisely the majority that the Premier will command until Parliament meets. The first test question will be the election of a speaker by the House.

There is scarcely any news by this mail from the Continent of Europe. The telegraph from Madrid announces the recognition of the Spanish claims by Mexico, but the correctness of the despatch may very well be doubted. The Austro-Sardinian rupture is complete, and the dispute grows serious. Austria has issued a circular, in which Piedmont is covertly threatened with ulterior measures if the mediation of France and England should prove unsuccessful. European journals seem greatly befogged in regard to the Neufchatel question. Some assert that the conferences have adjourned sine die without being able to arrive at any satisfactory conclusion. Others, again, contradict the statement. One fact is evident—namely, that the public, rather sick of the subject, is satisfied that it will be settled in some way or another without an appeal to arms.

A letter from our correspondent on board the San Jacinto, now at Hong Kong, gives some interesting particulars of recent operations at the seat of war and of the movements of the American squadron in Chinese waters.

Late advices from Australia represent the stock of the import market as discouraging. It is alleged that more difficulty was experienced in selling goods than at any time since 1854. Almost all branches of business, except the iron, hardware and timber trades, are described as having been overdone, and in the latter recent arrivals had been very large.

The Telegraph and the Mails bring us details of the extent of and damage done by the storm. Snow fell in various localities, in some places to a great depth, and the damage done by freshets and landslides must be considerable. Various marine disasters are reported, and we shall doubtless hear of more, as the storm was very severe on the coast, and the northeast gale was very strong.

The Ohio Legislature, previous to its adjournment, passed a bill making it a penitentiary offence to claim or hold slaves in Ohio, or to undertake to carry out of the State as a slave any person of color. This is intended, of course, to prevent the operation of the DRED SCOTT decision.

It appears that the accident to an express train on the Hudson River Railroad on Monday was not so serious as at first reported. The engine, tender and baggage car were thrown into a small hay neither receiving material damage. The accident was caused by the misplacement of a switch.

In the United States Circuit Court a very interesting case of collision has been decided by Judge NELSON. The collision was between the steamboat Sampson and the brig Iola, and the decree of the District Court against the Sampson was affirmed. An attempt seems to have been made to bring in fraudulent bills of the repairs made necessary by the collision, which is sharply rebuked by the Court, and as an effect of the case, we shall be less likely to hear of bills being swelled, because it is an "underwriter's job."

Judge NELSON also decided an interesting case in relation to a creditor's bill filed to set aside an assignment made in Rhode Island, which would not be valid under our State law. The question which State law should govern was not, however, decided—the Court holding that as the property here had been sold, and the proceeds transferred to Rhode Island before the bill was filed, the plaintiffs had no lien, and the bill must be dismissed.

In the United States District Court the trial was commenced yesterday, of a case brought by the United States against JEREMIAH TOWLE to recover about $6,000, a balance alleged to be due on his accounting as Naval Officer. The case is still on.

The case of ALEXANDER CROSS vs. GEORGE LAW is still on, and will be likely to take all of to-day. Mr. CHARLICK was on the stand as a witness for defendant.

The case of C. BROOKMAN, master of the American bark J. N. Brookman, arrested on a charge of assaulting the second mate, EDWIN WILSON, with a belaying pin, was brought before Commissioner MORTON yesterday, and after a brief examination, discharged.

In the Court of General Sessions, yesterday, the proceedings were singularly interesting. A man named THOMAS DENINY, who was tried for arson in January last, when the Jury failed to agree, was again placed at the bar; but at the instance of the District-Attorney, this second trial was not allowed to proceed. From the affidavits of three prisoners now confined in the Tombs, it appeared that DENINY, with the assistance of his counsel, a police officer, and LEWIS BAKER, obtained at the commencement of the March and April Terms of the Court lists of the Petit Jurors, and discovered which among them were Freemasons, and, through the agency of the above parties, tampered or attempted to tamper with them. It is also alleged that, on his first trial the only Juror who refused to convict was a Freemason, to whom he had given the Masonic sign.

At the meeting of the Joint Committee of Aldermen and Councilmen, respecting "the snuff box," yesterday, Gen. SCOTT offered and agreed to write to various Generals of division, to inquire as to who, in their opinion, was the "bravest" man from the State of New-York, and so entitled to the gift.

No machine-sweeper has yet been put on the streets—like the Niagara, it waits for weather.

The Russian ship Minerva, WETTING, from Rotterdam, with a cargo of gin, brandy, grapes, &c., went ashore north of Barnegat Inlet, at 1 o'clock on Monday morning, and lays broadside on, with six feet of water in her hold. Her four passengers and crew were landed in safety.

The steamer Isaac Newton has not changed her position since she sank, and it is now feared that she is injured below her water line.

An attempt was made in the Brooklyn Common Council, Monday evening, to frustrate the objects of the new Police Bill, so far as that city is concerned. Alderman DELVECCHIO offered a resolution, directing a Special Committee to procure a written opinion as to the constitutionality of the act, which, as it involved an expenditure of money, was laid on the table for one week under the rule. A resolution offered by the same Alderman, directing the Counselor to the Board to prevent the transfer to the State Treasury of the money now in the hands of the City Treasurer, applicable to the maintenance of the present Police force, was brought to a vote and lost: Ayes, 15; Nays, 18.

Kansas Consistency.

The National Era comments as follows upon a recent statement in the Tribune that, while the grossest frauds were perpetrated by the Kansas officials in making up the lists of voters, "the Free-State men allow them to do as they please:"

"'The Free State men allow them to do as they please!' Aye, and when the work is done, we shall have an outcry against the frauds of the census. But what good will it do then? Where will be the proof of fraud? If 'the Free-State men allow them to do as they please,' to enter or not enter their names, and to enter spurious Pro-Slavery voters, and give themselves 'no trouble' about it, they may thank themselves if their rights are trampled upon. We do think that it is high time to give up this policy of political emasculation."

The Era seems to suppose that the conduct of political parties, in a grave crisis of public affairs, ought to be governed and guided by common sense. It apparently forgets the superior claims of what is popularly styled political consistency, which consists in adhering to a position once taken, right or wrong, regardless alike of changed circumstances or of the consequences to which such adherence may lead. The Free-State men of Kansas a couple of years ago repudiated the Territorial Legislature,—and formed a State Constitution and elected State officers of their own,—believing this to be the best method of putting their case before the country, and of urging their claims upon the attention and adoption of Congress. But they failed in their attempt to enter the Union with the Topeka Constitution. Congress refused to recognize that instrument as the legitimate embodiment of the popular will—the Executive Administration refused to adopt and enforce its provisions, and, what is still worse, the people of the country failed to elect either a Congress or an Executive which would reverse the action of their predecessors. It would seem, therefore, to be as nearly certain as anything in this uncertain world can be, that the Topeka Constitution, and the Government organized under it, are utterly exploded—that what little life they may once have had has long since departed, and that they are now of no more importance to any party or any person than the resolutions of '98, or the effete platform of any political faction which died and was buried twenty years ago.

But this fact is deemed to be of not the slightest consequence by a certain school of politicians. The circumstance that a party or an issue is dead, does not strike them as being any reason why they should abandon it. They were Topeka-Constitution men in 1855, and, therefore, they cannot be anything else in 1857. Political "consistency" requires that they should stand still in their tracks—even if the whole country should have moved off. They could not recognize the bogus Legislature of 1855, and, therefore, they cannot countenance any of its acts, even by taking part in an election which might result in its overthrow. They are so much opposed to making Kansas a Slave State, that they cannot even go to the polls to out-vote those who are trying to secure that end. This is the very Quixotism of partizanship. It ignores everything but its own "consistency,"—and, of course, sacrifices everything to that. And when it ends,—as it very probably will end,—in the adoption of a Pro-Slavery Constitution for Kansas, and her admission into the Union as a Slave State,—these men will have the consolation of reflecting that, whatever else they may have lost, their "consistency", has been preserved.

Politics is eminently an experimental science, and can no more ignore changed circumstances, than an experiment in natural science can ignore the conditions essential to its success. There is a very large class of active politicians who feel bound to keep up just as active a party canvass after as they did before the election. They opposed Mr. BUCHANAN's election then, and they oppose it now. They insisted that it would ruin the country, and they feel bound to insist upon it still. They feel it, indeed, to be their solemn duty to help it achieve this result, in order that their "consistency" may be vindicated and their principles established. Now, it is not easy, we confess, to break the force of habit, or to disregard the sentiments and opinions of the party or clique with which one has been zealously acting. It is much easier to resist and ignore the opinion of the whole country, than it is to oppose or doubt the party with which you have been accustomed to act. It costs less trouble to forget that the Presidential election is over,—that the Republicans were beaten and that whatever is done for the country must be done by their opponents, than it does to shape your action according to those fixed facts. The easiest way is the old way—go on with the fight,—stand by the Topeka Constitution, ignore the Territorial authorities,—preserve your "consistency" and allow those who have the power and are disposed to abuse it to "do as they please." So long as the Free-State men in Kansas are governed by such counsels as these, the National Era is quite right in saying that they may "thank themselves if their rights are trampled upon."

BEET BRANDY.—France imports immense quantities of pure spirits not only from this country but from England, she distils great quantities of spirit from grain and from beet root; yet she exports no alcohol of consequence, except in the shape of brandy and wine. It follows then, as a matter of necessity, that a great proportion of the wines and brandies which we, and the rest of the world, receive from France, is nothing more than grain, or beet distilled liquor, colored, flavored, and named to suit the market to which it is sent. We have the evidence of the French themselves, that the product of the vine in all the districts of France has greatly decreased, and that at the same time the exports of so-called vinous liquors have immensely increased. The distillation of beet spirits amounted in the year 1853, in France, to but $100,000, while in 1856 it exceeded $10,000,000. These are facts for the lovers of prime old Cognac, taken from under Customs House lock to insure its purity, and they can draw their own inferences. It may be interesting, too, to those who take a glass of genuine old port, as Timothy was advised to do, for their stomach's sake, to know that one of the largest importers of port wine in this country is also a very large exporter of our domestic alcohol to Oporto.

The Pulpit and the Players.

The American Dramatic Fund Association have undertaken a tremendous task. They propose to emancipate the occupants of the Christian Pulpit from the social restraints which have been put upon them by the custom of ages and the convictions of the Christian world. At least we presume that they propose to do this, for we can discern no other practical and immediate object in the prominence which they have given to the fact, that a respectable clergyman of this City assisted at their festivities on Monday night and in the invitation which they have extended to the same gentleman, and which he has accepted, to deliver before them an address "Upon the relation of the Theatre to the sober and sacred interests of Society."

From the tone of the extemporaneous speech delivered by Rev. Dr. BELLOWS at the dinner of the Dramatic Fund, as well as from the tenor of the preliminary correspondence which passed between the minister of "All Soul's" and his friends, Messrs. WHITING and BROUGHAM of the Bowery, one would be led to infer that the Theatre in New-York was a flagrantly disreputable institution, and that the professors of the dramatic art were a noble army of martyrs, a congregation of injured innocents, none of whom could ever hope by any chance to get their social deserts at the hands of a proud and Puritanic world. The reverend gentleman himself appears in the light of a clerical knight-errant, adventuring much for the rescue of these poor deserving creatures from the tyranny under which they groan. Now all this, with respect be it said, is profoundly absurd. Undoubtedly there exists a very strong prejudice against the Theatre in the minds of a very large proportion of the technically "religious" public—a prejudice with the responsibility of which Rev. Dr. BELLOWS and Mr. JAMES T. BRADY took the liberty of saddling the unfortunate Puritans, but which is really to be referred to a much more ancient origin. Imperial Rome bequeathed to Christendom her contempt of the servile actor and the salaried mime, and Papal Rome fulminated her wrath against the proscribed Thespian ages before JOHN KNOX was born to wag his reverend beard against the worldliness of "diamond-hearted" MARY. Protestant England honored the obsequies of the actor SHAKESPEARE with funeral rites and melodious sorrow when British Puritanism was nearing its zenith;—Catholic France refused the last decencies of Christian burial to the actor, MOLIERE, when French Puritanism was dying of the dragonnades. But the position of the drama in the modern Anglo-Saxon world, and particularly in this City of New-York, was by no means truly represented in the proceedings which have provoked our present comment.

Any manager who will produce respectable plays in a New-York theatre, and produce them respectably, will find no difficulty in filling his house with an audience of well-bred, estimable and reputable persons; and any actor or actress who shall add to the possession of distinguished dramatic ability the exhibition of such personal traits as secure respectability to the members of all other professions, will easily attain as much consideration, both in private and in public life, as any reasonable human being need desire. Men and women like the KEANS and the KEMBLES, MACREADY and WALLACK, do not require the endorsement of any clerical friend, however respectable, to procure for them the entrée of the best society which London or New-York can afford. The leading journals of England and America have for years admitted careful criticisms of the current drama to a place of honor in their columns; eminent men of letters have devoted themselves to the production of dramatic literature; dignitaries of the Bar and of the Church have not disdained the laurels of the stage. If, now, any number of persons attached to the stage feel themselves to be laboring under a social ban, they may be sure that their misfortune is not to be remedied by any extraneous displays of effervescent liberality on the part of any man or of any set of men, but simply by a quiet and determined self-assertion, founded in the consciousness of personal worth, and vindicated by a high-spirited devotion to the noble aims of their profession. They can gain nothing, and they must lose much, by assuming the attitude of a proscribed class, and by inviting a patronizing sympathy, which is far more likely to humiliate their self respect than to advance their reputation. And we must confess our astonishment at finding that a gentlemen who has occupied the position and tasted the experience of a Unitarian clergyman, should have lent himself to an enterprise so Quixotic as that of attempting to establish by argument the social rights of any class of men. Rev. Dr. BELLOWS knows perfectly well that the gradual release of his own sect from the opprobrium under which they labored for so many years, has been effected, not by appeals to the mercy or justice of their fellow-Christians, but by the influence of the honorable Christian lives of Christian men, and by the general expansion of Christian charity and good feeling in the community. If a similar reform were needed in the relations of the stage to society, it could only be brought about by the operation of similar forces. But as we have said, such a reform is not needed in the sense and in the degree indicated by the speeches and other proceedings of the Dramatic Fund Dinner; and Dr. BELLOWS has been deluded by the action of a few members of the theatrical profession and a few friends of the Dramatic Fund, into a grossly inaccurate estimate of the facts of the case. To the public at large, we repeat, the only practical issue presented by these speeches and proceedings will be the question, whether Dr. BELLOWS himself and other gentlemen of his cloth, should or should not be permitted, by public opinion, to indulge in the innocent enjoyments of the well-conducted stage. How far the present demonstration will go to settle this question, may be a matter of doubt. The majority of the members of the denomination to which Dr. BELLOWS belongs, may perhaps be favorably disposed to such a change in the existing relations between pastor and people as will favor the development of the dramatic instinct in the clerical mind. But that denomination is by no means large in numbers, and it is extremely improbable that its action should influence to any appreciable extent the actual convictions of the predominant sections of the Christian world.

This personal and practical question apart, however, we commend the healthful and hearty views of public morality and of the rationale of public amusements advanced by Dr. BELLOWS to the attention of our fellow-citizens, and we shall be very glad to hear from him the more extended vindication which he promises us of a sound philosophy of recreation. No where is a thorough regeneration of popular habits and of popular tastes more needed than in America, and the error of judgment which Dr. BELLOWS has committed in mistaking the sentiments of his personal friends, and of Mr. JAMES T. BRADY, for the expression of the public feeling, will be easily forgotten and forgiven, if he shall do us the public service of talking sound sense on topics of general concern, and of pleading the cause of our irrepressible instincts, and our inevitable necessities, against those restrictive theories, and those oppressive customs of a former age which still exert a deleterious influence upon the health, the mind and the morals of the community.

Street Cleaning.

The weather of the last few days has put an entire stop upon the operations of the street-cleaners, and the City bids fair to be soon in nearly as clogged and filthy a condition as it was three weeks ago. The machines, as we learn, are ready; but nothing can be done until the streets are dry, and only then, in those places where the piles of mud and garbage, which have accumulated during the past months, are removed. Their use will rather be to keep the City clean, than to perform the first work of purification. It is much to be regretted that William, Water, Front, South, and other down-town thoroughfares, which cannot remain in the condition they are in without greatly inconveniencing our merchants, have not, ere this, been attended to. We must presume that it is the intention of the contractors to do their duty as soon as possible, as neglect of so important localities cannot be continued without casting suspicion upon either their energy or their intentions. Indeed we have been led to fear that a tincture of EBLINGISM has been for a while infused into the councils of those gentlemen who have the care of thirteen of the wards of the City, which it has required much painstaking to eliminate. Some of the subordinates of Mr. REYNOLDS were found so deficient, even while the weather was propitious, in coöperating with his zealous efforts to clean the lower wards, that he has been compelled to change them. The superintendence is about, however, to be entrusted to Captain BENNETT, who promises to be more faithful to the interests of the community.

Provided the contractors fulfill the expectations which were formed of them by the Comptroller and his colleagues when they signed the contracts, no fear need be entertained of any adverse action on the part of the Common Council. The Corporation Counsel has reported, it is true, that contracts, to be valid, should be confirmed by the two Boards; but he has also stated that the Common Council must confirm them if all of the conditions of the Charter have been fulfilled. There is no doubt in the mind of any one that this was done in the case of the recent contractors. They were the lowest bidders; the securities given by them were adequate; there is no suspicion of any collusion between them and any heads of departments; and the only motive which can be assigned for neglecting to confirm the covenants which the Mayor, Comptroller and Commissioner of Streets and Lamps have entered into with them, is that they threaten to cut off the supplies from a horde of plunderers, and that there is danger lest the City should be clean instead of filthy. So long as the contractors are faithful to the performance of their agreement, Mr. EBLING must report their accounts to Mr. FLAGG, and the Comptroller will certainly feel compelled to avoid a mandamus, and to issue warrants for the money as it becomes due.

It is now over three weeks since the new contractors took charge of their respective districts. At least half of this time, they can safely allege that it has either stormed, or that they have been interrupted by ontsiders. They have had also to contend with the inconvenience of inexperienced, cowardly, and sometimes unprincipled employees, and there has been an unavoidable delay in bringing forward the machines, which has prevented as rapid progress as would otherwise have been made. Under these circumstances, competent judges declare that nearly a month must elapse before the streets can be thoroughly purified. The public have a right, however, to look for a gradual and steady improvement, and we trust that we shall be able to report this under the new arrangements which have been made.

A Personal Explanation.

We have been requested to publish the following letter, which abundantly explains itself:

NEW-YORK, Tuesday, April 21, 1857.

HON. FERNANDO WOOD—Sir: Mr. JOSEPH BRODHEAD has informed me that you have requested him to cite you as authority for my authorship of sundry letters which have recently appeared in the columns of the NEW-YORK DAILY TIMES. I think it proper to make you aware that I neither wrote, instigated nor took any part whatsoever, directly or indirectly, in the composition of the said letters; that my first knowledge of their existence was derived from the columns of the TIMES; that I have not, now, the slightest conception with whom they originated; and that they contain facts of which I had been unaware, and views which, I trust for the good of the Democratic Party, are incorrect.

As I believe that these clauses embrace every category of contradiction to the assertion which you have empowered Mr. BRODHEAD to make to me, I have no more to add than that

I remain your obedient servant,

MALCOLM IVES.

We trust that the Hon. FERNANDO WOOD will be content with the above very broad and very explicit disclaimer on the part of Mr. MALCOLM IVES,—and furthermore that both these gentlemen, as well as Mr. JOSEPH BRODHEAD and all other parties concerned, will cease to vex their righteous souls as to the authorship of articles, editorial or communicated, that may find access to the columns of the DAILY TIMES. Without desiring to intrude any thing upon them in the shape of advice, we take the liberty of expressing the hope that they will, one and all, attend hereafter to their own concerns, without meddling in matters with which they have nothing whatever to do. Mr. WOOD is nominally charged with the care of the interests of the City:—and we presume that Mr. IVES and Mr. BRODHEAD are not in any way called upon to assume any degree of responsibility for the conduct of the TIMES. At all events we beg to inform these gentlemen, and all others who may take any interest in the matter, that the TIMES is a public journal, which says what it pleases of public men and public parties, and which is abundantly responsible for whatever it says. The authorship of any particular article, or series of articles which it may contain, is the business of nobody but the Editor;—and any attempt to fasten it upon individuals,—or any attempt on the part of individuals to assume or repudiate such authorship, will be treated as simply a piece of impertinence. If we place the communication of Mr. IVES on a different footing, it is only because it affords us an opportunity of stating our general views and our usual method of dealing with such cases.

Tampering with Justice.

A curious and rather startling disclosure was made yesterday in the Court of Sessions. A prisoner named DENINY was arraigned for his second trial on charge of arson,—the Jury upon his first trial, which took place in January, having failed to agree,—one juror refusing, in the face of the clearest evidence, to concur with the other eleven. His second trial was set down for the March term, but was not held,—and he was yesterday again arraigned and would have been tried, but for the remarkable disclosures of one of his fellow prisoners, which were brought forward by the District-Attorney and successfully urged as a sufficient reason why the trial should be still further postponed.

It seems that DENINY is a Freemason;—and according to his own statement, when tried in January he gave the Masonic sign to the Jurors, one of whom recognized and responded to it;—and this was the identical man who held out for a verdict of acquittal. It furthermore appears that while preparing for his second trial at the March term, DENINY obtained from his counsel a list of the Petit Jury panel, and gave one copy to a police officer and another to the notorious LEWIS BAKER, both of whom were confederates, and entered actively upon the task of sounding the Jurors. The result was eminently satisfactory, as they returned to DENINY the names of six Jurors upon whom he might confidently count as his friends. Being thus prepared for trial, DENINY was very naturally indignant that he was not arraigned at the March term. Precisely the same process of preparation was gone through with for the April term, except that in addition to his counsel, the police officer and Mr. LEWIS BAKER, he had also the active assistance of the juror who had befriended him so effectually at the January trial. This time DENINY received the list with sixteen names upon it marked as of men who could be relied on. Under this state of facts the District-Attorney moved for a further postponement of DENINY's trial;—and in spite of the vehement protests of his Counsel, the Recorder very properly granted the motion.

The state of affairs touching the Administration of Justice which is thus revealed, is not very assuring to our citizens or creditable to our Courts. That opportunities for such open, wholesale and systematic tampering with jurors should be allowed, affords striking proof of the laxity with which everything connected with our Criminal Courts is managed. It is also not a little alarming to find the old Masonic machinery again put in motion for protecting crime and defeating the ends of justice. We are not much surprised to find a Police officer one of the active agents employed in effecting the escape and securing impunity for felons,—for we are inclined to think quite a number of his colleagues in the Department devote no inconsiderable portion of their time and attention to similar objects. Nor as things go is there any ground for being astonished to find a member of the Bar becoming an accomplice in the most flagrant villainy, in order to earn the fee which he receives as counsel from an indicted scoundrel.

In due time we shall probably know whether Police Officers are upheld in such practices;—whether the Bar as a body, and the Courts of law in which they practice their honorable and useful profession, will tolerate the presence and companionship of a lawyer who aids his client to tamper with the oaths of Jurors:—and whether any effectual steps will be taken anywhere to purge the Courts of Justice from the stain and suspicion which such a development must cast upon them.

THE TAMMANY CONTEST—THE VICTORY AND THE VICTORS.—The contest for Sachems of Tammany Hall, night before last, enlisted even more than the interest which usually attends upon the internal struggles of the Democratic Party. What contributed largely to give it this desperate and determined character was undoubtedly the fact that it was the forlorn and final effort of Mayor WOOD to regain the political ascendancy in the Democratic ranks which has for some time past been gradually slipping from his hands. At the outset of the fight he seemed to be very considerably strengthened by the accession of Collector SCHELL, whom gratitude for the last-hour support which Mr. WOOD tendered him at Washington, in order to defeat Mr. BUTTERWORTH, induced to throw the weight of his influence into the scale in favor of the Mayor; but he seems to have found it utterly impossible to induce any great number of his friends to follow his example. Defeated at Washington, overborne at Albany, and abandoned by many of the police, whose support he has hitherto found available, Mr. WOOD found the candidates on his ticket in a minority which his worst enemies would scarcely have dared to predict.

One cause of the success of the Fowler or Reform ticket, was the care which had been taken to select men for candidates, whose names appealed at once to the good sense of the multitude of ontside members of the Tammany Society. Such men as Hon. SAMUEL J. TILDEN, Messrs. GUNTHER, COOPER, DENIKE, TAPPAN, MARSH and CORNELL, not to speak of the Surveyor and Postmaster, could only gain by comparison with the hack politicians who had been selected for the Sachemship by the opposite party. Corruption at primary meetings, and the total subordination of private opinion to the wills of a little self-created Democratic aristocracy, have begun to call so loudly for a cure, and to give such scandal to the initiated themselves, that members of the Society voted, out of pure shame, for candidates who were pledged to the attainment of reform, rather than for those who avowed a determination to [illegible] the old packed system.

The efforts of the triumph of the party headed by Messrs. TURNEY, HALL, [illegible] &c., is to put the General Democratic Committee, for the present year, into exactly the opposite position from that which it held during the last. It was then controlled by what will now be opposed to, the Mayor. At least of the elected Sachems have no other than friendly feelings towards Mr. SCHELL, and appreciate the delicacy of the position he has lately occupied, he will not be greatly the loser (if at all) by his apparent defeat. Some of his firmest adherents voted against him on Monday evening. It has been, hitherto, the avowed determination of the Mayor to resign his office on the 1st day of May. We presume that his defeat will be considered as a ready pretext for not doing so. He will consider the sacrifice himself (not to speak of the City) for the benefit of his friends! Fortunately, under the new charter, this will be a matter of less moment than heretofore; and, if the Police Commissioners do their duty under the bill just passed, it may be no matter at all. On the whole, the friends of order in all parties, as well as those who wish well to the Democratic cause in this City, may congratulate themselves on the result of Monday night's election.

A WISEACRE.—Some days since, in commenting upon the fact that counterfeiting by the use of the photograph has rendered detection much more difficult, we expressed the opinion that, in order to provide a remedy, "all bank notes should be printed in more than one color, and these colors should have such a chemical affinity that one can not be removed from the paper without removing the other." A correspondent of the Journal of Commerce solemnly "enters a protest against this,"—because he has a patent for precisely such a process as the one recommended,—and the TIMES had no business to recommend the article without at the same time puffing the patentee! We have serious doubts whether a man stupid enough to make such an objection could possibly invent anything worthy of public notice. At all events we shall not take the risk of indorsing anything of his invention.

The Imperial Photograph.

The improvements that have been made in the art of making pictures by the action of light upon chemically prepared surfaces, since the introduction of the Daguerreotype, is surprising. It was then confidently predicted that nothing deserving the name of a work of art could ever be produced by a process so purely mechanical: and so long as the picture was taken directly upon a metallic surface, leaving no room for further finish, the opinion was just. The Photograph, however, produced a very great change in this respect. By transferring the picture to paper, room was found for subsequent touches of the pencil, and by taking the impression upon glass and then using this as a stereotype-plate from which an indefinite number of copies may be printed upon paper, the process is carried to the highest degree of perfection.

The Imperial Photograph, as it is styled, is the latest improvement in the art. Some of the finest specimens of it are fully equal to the best steel engravings. Persons walking in Broadway may see in several galleries, and especially in BRADY's, pictures of this class which are wonderful, not only as accurate and striking likenesses, but as finished works of art. The portraits at BRADY's of Lady NAPIER and her two children—of MARTIN VAN BUREN, W. C. BRYANT, and others, are among the most beautiful pictures ever exhibited, and are scarcely distinguishable from the largest and most finished line engravings. The likeness is attained by the photographic process, performed with large and accurate instruments, and the exquisite finish is given by the pencil with India ink. This is a combination of the mechanical process and the labors of the artist, which secures the most perfect accuracy together with the highest artistic excellence; and the comparative cheapness of pictures thus produced renders them universally accessible.

Although it is generally conceded that the Photographs produced in this country are superior to those of Europe, yet the art itself receives much more general attention in England than here. Nothing is more common there than for naturalists, travelers, and amateurs of every sort, to learn the use of photographic instruments, and employ them for their own private amusement in copying plants, animal structures, and other objects of natural history. That it is less used for this purpose here is probably due in part, at least, to the fact, that we have fewer amateurs in any department of study or of art than are found abroad. Their number, however, is certain to increase, and the use of the photograph as an auxiliary to their studies will become correspondingly common.

The Imperial Photograph is the highest point which the art has yet reached; but it would scarcely be safe, remembering the past, to predict that no further improvements will hereafter be made in it.

Judges Roosevelt and Davies—Reply to the Communication of our Correspondent "Jus."

To the Editor of the New-York Daily Times:

Your correspondent, "Jus," a sort of self-constituted supervisor of the Court, admits that in 1855, Judge ROOSEVELT, according to a statute to that effect, was duly assigned by his then colleagues to hold the Circuit Court and the Court of Oyer and Terminer for the month of April, 1857. Judge DAVIES, it is said, though not quite accurately, was in like manner assigned to the Special Term for June. Your correspondent then proceeds to state that, "for their own accommodation, these two Judges exchanged work." This is a misrepresentation. The arrangement, whatever was its character, was not made either at the instance of Judge R., or in any manner at his suggestion, or for his accommodation. It emanated wholly from Judge D. himself, and its sole object, as represented by him, was to enable him, Judge D., for some reason not fully explained, to be out of town in June. The April part of the affair was a merely incidental consequence. Judge R., in respect of his own duties, asked no relief, and certainly was not bound, as matter of obligation on his part, or of right on Judge D.'s, to accept any. What ground was there then for complaint—I may add, under the circumstances, what decency? Judge R., as early as February—why at that early period seems somewhat singular—was urged by Judge D. to agree to relieve him in June. He at first hesitated. Some days after the request was repeated, and met with a like undecided answer. At the suggestion of Judge R. it was then put in the form of a written memorandum, and that memorandum when received, whatever may have been the unexpressed intention, contained no allusion to the Oyer and Terminer. It simply contained an expression of the gratification he, Judge D., should feel if Judge R. would take his June Special Term, accompanied by a tender of his, Judge D.'s, services to hold the "Circuit" for Judge R. in April. No answer being immediately returned to this note, the request was again suggested orally on the Bench of the March General Term, and was at last, although at the expense of some anticipated inconvenience, acquiesced in. Such is a plain narration of the true case, so far as the material point of the communication referred to is concerned. It contains some other matters which, together with the motives of its author for discoloration, will be noticed hereafter.

JUS ET VERITAS.

Admitted to Practice.

The following gentlemen were admitted at the General Term, at Pokeepsie, to practice in all the Courts of the State: Gerome Williams, Frederick A. Emigh, John Moore, Timothy Perry, James Rogers, William Betts, Jr., William Dean, H. B. Hubbard, W. H. Hasbrouck, John C. Gwince, R. R. Champion, John Wallace, Geo. H. Brewster, David Noble Rowan, David L. C. Brooks, Lewis H. Rowan, James L. Lewis, Robert E. Taylor, Mellville Haywood, Silas D. E. Ellison and Hon. Henry Booth. The examination was thoroughly conducted, and the result was declared highly creditable. The following gentlemen were also admitted at the same time on motion: Edward Dale, William S. Constant, G. W. [illegible] strong and John Keynton.

FROM ALBANY.

Gathering Up the Fragments—One Bill not Signed by the Governor—"In Relation to the Business of Banking"—Swearing in the Police Commissioners—Opposition to the Law, &c.

Correspondence of the New-York Daily Times.

ALBANY, Tuesday, April 21, 1857.

I came back to gather up the fragments, and I find here only one small bill, locked carefully up in the big safe in the Executive Chamber. Of the 1,400 bills introduced in Senate and Assembly, 804 received the necessary affirmative vote, and were transmitted to his Excellency. Of these 804, all but one have found their safe passage to the office of the Secretary of State, and are written at length upon the records that are to endure forever. (I believe it is a theory with us that the Union, and particularly this portion thereof, is to endure right through time into eternity.)

But there is one exception—one "leetle bill" out of the 804 that hangs fire in the Executive mortar. It don't slide out—and I am strongly inclined to favor the conclusion that it will not, or some time to come. That "leetle bill" is the following act

IN RELATION TO THE BUSINESS OF BANKING.

The People of the State of New-York, represented in Senate and Assembly, do enact as follows:

SECTION 1. It shall be optional with every incorporated bank, banking association, or individual banker, doing the business of banking under any statute of this State, and receiving on deposit after this act takes effect, in the course of its or his business, or otherwise, the circulating notes issued by any other incorporated bank, banking association or individual banker, engaged in the business of banking under any such statute, to present such notes for redemption and payment in the manner and upon the terms now provided by law, either to the lawful redeeming agents, or at the counters of the incorporated banks, banking associations or individual bankers issuing them; but every such incorporated bank, banking association and individual banker shall elect to present, and shall present, such notes and all of them, it or he may have on hand at the time of such presentation, either to the lawful agents, or at the counters of the banks, banking associations or individual bankers issuing them, for redemption and payment, in the manner provided by law, or as often at least as once in each successive week, when more than the sum of $10,000 is held by said incorporated banks, banking associations or individual bankers.

SEC. 2. If either of such banks, banking associations or bankers holding such circulating notes, shall elect to present the same for redemption and payment at the counters of the banks, banking associations or bankers issuing them, it, or he, shall cause a written or printed notice of such election, attested by the signature of the president or cashier of the bank, banking association, or banker so holding them, under the seal of such bank, banking association, or banker, that it or he will thereafter seal and present such notes and all of them, that it or he shall have on hand at the time of such sealing, at the counter of the bank, banking association, or banker issuing them, for redemption and payment as often at least as once in each successive week,—to be redeemed and paid in the manner required by law; and when such notice shall have been given each notes so received by such banks, banking associations and bankers aforesaid, giving such notice, shall thereafter be presented at such counters, and no elsewhere, for redemption and payment, until a further notice of ten days shall be given in the manner above provided, that such notes will thereafter be presented for redemption and payment to the lawful redeeming agent aforesaid, within the times and upon the terms prescribed by law. But nothing herein contained shall be construed to prohibit banks, banking associations, and individual bankers from redeeming, presenting, holding, pledging or exchanging each others' circulating notes in the manner, within the times, and upon such terms as they may agree upon, or may heretofore have agreed upon, and as shall be conformable to pre-existing laws.

SEC. 3. Every incorporated bank, banking association and individual banker who shall knowingly and willfully neglect or refuse to comply with the provisions of this act, shall forfeit and pay the sum of one thousand dollars, to be sued for and recovered in the name of the people of the State of New-York in any Court having competent jurisdiction.

SEC. 4. This act shall take effect on the 1st day of June, one thousand eight hundred and fifty-seven.

This bill the Governor still holds under consideration, I think with a strong tendency to pitch it in the fire, or under the table, or in some other place where we will not catch sight of it again.

The Police Commissioners were here to-day swearing at the Secretary of State, or rather swearing in his presence, that they would support the Constitution of the United States, ditto of the State of New-York, faithfully perform the duties of Commissioners of Police, and turn out all who are not "sound on the goose," and to take care of our people generally—which latter duty I especially hope they will perform, the expressions of ye TIMES to the contrary notwithstanding.

The aforesaid Commissioners also drew lots for their terms of office. Messrs. DRAPER and NYE picked out the long straws, leaving the nubbins to Messrs. BOWEN, STRANAHAN and CHOLWELL. I could have bet on that a week ago—for when you come down to nice work, the odds are largely in favor of the General and the Governor.

I believe it is the intention of the Commissioners forthwith to organize their Department, and thus to afford his Honor the Mayor, and the Commonalty of the City an early opportunity of testing the law.

Another thing I learn—and that is, that within a few days an effort has been made to levy a tribute of $10 per head, on the policemen, the proceeds of which were to be devoted to the employment of counsel, etc., to fight the new order of things." The police generally refused to "bleed." So his Honor and the Commonalty will have to look elsewhere for the sinews of war.

Speaking of rejections, there was a trifle done in that line by the Senate, that I have not yet seen noticed. The Governor sent up for confirmation as Commissioners to supervise the expenditure of public moneys under the act of 1840, the names of Messrs. ALEXANDER H. STEPHENS, THOMAS TILESTON, and ROBT. M. HARTLEY. These were rejected, and apparently for no other reason but as a rebuke to the Governor. The gentlemen named were certainly unexceptionable, and as there are now no incumbents of the position, there seems but this one reason I have surmised for their rejection. LEO.

[TELEGRAPHIC.]

ALBANY, Tuesday, April 21.

The Canal Board, at a meeting to-day, adopted a resolution imposing tolls on all boats and property passing between Oswego and Higginsville, through the Oneida River Improvement Canal and Oneida Lake Canal and Feeder, the same as if they passed along the Erie and Oswego Canals by way of Syracuse, between the same points. This will increase the tolls $42,000 during the season on the average trade of last year, hitherto lost to the State by this cut off. The Canal Commissioners have fixed Wednesday, May 6, for opening the State Canals.

The new Police Commissioners were sworn in to-day. Messrs. NYE and DRAPER drew the long term of office, and STRANAHAN, CHOLWELL and BOWEN drew the short term.

Amusements.

BROADWAY THEATRE.—Mr. and Mrs. E. L. DAVENPORT—two experienced and valuable artists—commenced an engagement here on Monday night, and for the occasion produced Mr. MILES' play of "De Soto"—a work well known in the South and West, but never, we believe, performed in the metropolis. The history of the hero of the Mississippi does not afford a large scope for the dramatist—nor was it indeed heroical in the worthy sense of the term. Conscious of these facts, Mr. MILES has judiciously given a new coloring to the character of De Soto, and relied largely on his own imagination for "facts." De Soto, considered in a Baltimorean point of view, is unquestionably an estimable person—moderate, yet fearless; not indifferent to the sword, but careful of the cross—a sort of warrior priest, wild, intrepid, and resigned.

The plot of the play is necessarily slight, its interest being sustained mainly by brilliant tableaux, introduced at the end of each act. Mr. DAVENPORT, for whom the play has been adapted, has an excellent part, and throws into it a just proportion of energy and skillful moderation. In such characters he has but few equals in New-York or elsewhere. There is a pleasing and picturesque part for Mrs. DAVENPORT—an excellent actress—and another effective part for Mr. A. H. DAVENPORT, (there seems to be a general prevalence of Davenports at the Broadway Theatre,) who, however, walks through it somewhat carelessly—too much so for a rising actor, who has a reputation yet to win. The other characters are allotted to the members of Mr. MARSHALL'S Company.

"De Soto" has been placed on the stage in a careful manner. The costumes, armor, banners, &c., are brilliant, and present a beautiful effect in the tableaux. Some excellent scenery has also been prepared. We do not consider the play a brilliant literary production, but it is above the average of spectacle pieces, and the extremely creditable way in which it has been produced merits the liberal patronage of the public.

CONCERT.—Mr. H. SANDERSON gave a grand concert last evening at Niblo's Saloon, assisted by Madame CORA DE WILHORST, Signor MORELLI, Signor GIANNONI, Mr. ARTOMMAS and Signor MANZOCCHI, (Conductor.) These artists are all known to the public, and it is only necessary to say that they sang and played with their accustomed ability. Mr. SANDERSON (who is also called HARRY) is a young gentleman of this City who possesses in a wonderful degree the power of playing intolerable difficulties on the piano—especially those where endurance rather than skill is required. He has a natural genius for the instrument and an impish hand which seizes everything, right or wrong, in a powerful way. Some things he can do which would paralyze the wary fingers of THALBERG, and for the rest he can imitate any player you like, to mention in an extremely amusing and incorrect way. A retentive memory and a wonderfully acute ear enable him to play compositions which he cannot even read with the notes before him. He is now, we are informed, applying himself seriously to study. If he pursues the right path, he must of necessity become a great performer, for he has everything in his favor. We trust that he will do so, and that the applause which even now he obtains in the concert-room will not induce him to relax his efforts.

BENEFIT CONCERT.—The German Liederkranz a musical society favorably known to the public through many successful performances, intend giving a concert on the 28th inst. for the benefit of the German Ladies' Society for the relief of widows and Orphans. The chief attraction on this occasion will be the Walpurgie Night, a cantata by MENDELSSOHN, but little known in this country. The German population legend of the meeting of witches on the Brocken (the highest summit of the Harz mountains) on the night of St. Walpurgis, i. e. the night before the first of May, will be familiar to many of our readers from GOETHE'S "Faust." In addition to this performance, there will be other musical attractions for which several eminent artists have already volunteered their services.

The Great April Snow-Storm.

HEAVY FALL OF SNOW ALONG THE HUDSON RIVER.

Snow began to fall along the Hudson on Sunday night, and continued with but little intermission until yesterday afternoon. At Pokeepsie, in many places, the snow is from six to eight inches deep, and had it not melted, would probably have reached the depth of two or three feet. It is thought that more snow has fallen during this storm than at any previous time this winter. The weather was very cold yesterday.

THE STORM IN THE INTERIOR OF THE STATE.

The Franklin (N. Y.) Visitor of April 16, says:

"A snow-storm commenced in this vicinity on Monday evening last, and continued for about twenty-four hours. The amount which fell during this time has never been equaled within the memory of the oldest inhabitant. The ground being damp when the storm commenced, causing much of the snow to melt, the whole amount which fell is uncertain, but it is estimated by competent judges to have been four feet.

Measurments made on Tuesday evening showed an average depth of two feet eight inches. The quality was of that damp nature peculiar to Spring storms, and very heavy. The horse sheds of the Methodist Church, and part of those belonging to the Old Church, were crushed by its weight, and we presume many other buildings would have shared a similar fate but for the active exertions of their owners in 'removing the deposits.' Travel is, of course, much impeded. The stage on the Walton line left that place at 7 A. M., with a mixed team of 'horse and cattle,' and arrived here at 8 P. M.; distance, 14 miles—time, 12 hours. This time has, we understand, been beaten by Lady Suffolk on the Long Island Course."

The advance guard of the great army of Summer birds which had arrived in our midst, found their supplies suddenly cut off and became thankful recipients of such crumbs of favor as could be picked up around the doors of their good friends of the human family.

P. S.—The stage which left here this morning for Oneonta was obliged to return, being unable to "force a passage."

Since writing the above we hear of numerous accidents from snow on the roofs. Snow in South Franklin is reported three feet deep; on the Summit, between Franklin and Walton, three feet three inches.

THE STORM IN PENNSYLVANIA—DAMAGE AT READING.

From the Reading Press of Tuesday Morning.

It commenced snowing on Sunday evening last, with great earnestness, and in a very short time every exposed object was covered to the depth of many inches. It snowed during the night, uninterruptedly, fast and thick, accumulating on the roofs, and, by its great weight, causing many of them to crack under the pressure. On Monday morning the snow was fifteen inches deep, and, on account of its solidity, nearly as heavy as lead.

The roof of the Reading Railroad workshops, extending from Franklin-street to Chestnut, gave way between 7 and 8 o'clock in the morning, just as the workmen had commenced their work. The cast-iron columns supporting the roof, of great thickness and strength, snapped asunder like pipe stems. The iron roof came down upon the men in the shop, but, fortunately, the crash gave warning before it came, in time to enable them to escape, or find protection under the engines and iron frames among which they were working.

The entire roof, rafters and supporters of the vast building are a complete wreck, and the brick wall in many places is crushed outwardly, and also at the top, broken and thrown down. The escape of the workmen, several hundred, without loss of life, is indeed miraculous. A few of the mechanics, however, were injured. The loss to the Company cannot fall short of $30,000.

The roof of Mr. MCILVAINE'S rolling mill came down with a crash, its fall, fortunately, injuring no one.

The same mishap occurred to a house in the village of Leesport.

The barn belonging to WILLIAM B. SCHIRNER, Esq., in Walnut-street, between Tenth and Eleventh, came down in a mass of ruins.

A carpenter shop, used by the workmen on the Lebanon Valley Railroad, at its connection with the Reading Road, caved in and crushed out.

The telegraphic communication is cut off, the destruction being more complete than at any former storm. Between Reading and Pottsville one half of the poles are down, and the wires badly broken. It will require several days to place the line in working order.

No interruption occurred to the passenger trains of the Reading Railroad. The Catawissa train made its connection at Fort Clinton at the proper time. Passengers from Pottsville report the depth of snow at three feet.

THE STORM IN NEW-JERSEY.

From the Newark Daily of yesterday.

The storm, yesterday, was very violent, continuing without interruption during most of the day. No serious disasters on the coast, as yet, have been reported, and it is hoped that the usual lose attendant upon these storms has not taken place this time.

In Newark Bay the waves were very high, and washed clear over the Passaic Light-House dock, injuring the building somewhat, and sweeping every loose thing from the deck. The house is to be rebuilt this Spring in a more substantial manner, so as to effectually resist the action of the waves. There were no vessels in the bay yesterday, all having anchored outside in the Kills, under the shelter of Staten Island, which, in a great degree, protected them from the wind.

In Morris County a snow storm occurred, covering the ground to the depth of two or three inches.

The train of cars which reached Trenton yesterday morning from Belvidere, was covered with snow, and reported the snow as being six inches deep when it left Belviere.

TELEGRAPHIC WEATHER REPORTS.

PORT JERVIS, N. Y., Monday, April 20.

We have had a severe snow-storm in this vicinity which has considerably damaged the telegraph wires, but has not prevented the railroad trains from running regularly.

WASHINGTON, Tuesday, April 21.

Three inches of snow fell at Paris, in Fauquier County, Va., yesterday.

BOSTON, Tuesday, April 21.

We have had a thick storm of snow and hail with a strong northeast gale, since midnight. This evening the storm ceased, but the weather remains cloudy and cold.

BOSTON, Tuesday, April 21—P. M.

The gale and storm of last night and to-day, was the most violent for the month of April that has occurred for several years, and extended far to the Eastward. The Eastern steamboats remained at their docks, and Portland Harbor was filled with coasters that put in for safety. Considering the violence of the gale and the high tides, the damage to shipping and other property, so far as known, is singularly light.

The Whale.

The whale which was captured by the crew of the little smack, Wm. Riley, on Saturday last, was stript of its blubber yesterday at Staten Island, and this will be brought to town to-day and converted into oil, at the factory near James-slip. The upper portion of the head will be exhibited at Peck-slip. Though not one of the largest kind, this whale was nearly sixty feet in length, and about eight feet through the thickest part. The blubber proved to be very good, being six and eight inches in thickness, and capable of yielding forty barrels of oil.

News from Australia.

FAST CLIPPER-SHIPS—BUILDING MANIA IN MELBOURNE—HEAVY STORMS OF RAIN—AMERICAN ICE—CAUTION TO SHIPPERS—EXPORTS OF GOLD.

Melbourne (Feb. 14) Correspondence of the London Times.

The European arrived on Tuesday, the 10th inst., and, as she sailed on the 14th of December from Southampton, her passage was 58 days. Too Oneida, Simla and European, have all performed well, and they have rather diminished the advantages which the Mediterranean route has been assumed to have over the Cape route. The next grand experiment we look for is the great Leviathan. There is no doubt that some of our clippers have attained the speed of 18 nautical miles within the hour under favorable circumstances. The Lightning, when new, did so. By uniting superior form with improved means of propulsion, I can see no reason why a normal speed of 20 knots should not be attained. Seeing that this tendency of all improvements in the art of shipbuilding within the last twenty or thirty years has been to increase the size of our ships, it seems by no means too sanguine an expectation to look forward to a succession of leviathan packets sailing between Melbourne and a Channel port in 35 days.

There seems to be a building mania among the principal banking corporations of this city. The English and Scottish Chartered Bank set the fashion by erecting a grand building, as remarkable for the classic style of its external architecture as for its convenience within. Its hall of business—the shop, as the successors of the Lombard goldsmiths call it, is a very beautiful chamber. The Bank of New South Wales follows, and is putting up a palace in Collins-street. It will be a splendid building, though its frontage is rather narrow. The cost of this building will be £25,000. The Bank of Australasia which has already a fine banking-house, is about to expend £40,000 in stone and cement. The Union Bank of Australia is also improving its fine building. The flourishing Bank of Victoria, which is at present not well housed, will probably follow the leads. The youngest of our banking institutions, the Colonial Bank of Australia, which is doing remarkably well, is well enough lodged for years to come.

After six weeks of dry weather we have had two storms of heavy rain. One last week was accompanied by one of the sharpest thunder storms I have ever seen in this country. The lightning shot upwards in vivid columns, and the reports followed immediately upon the flash. It appeared fearfully near the earth, and yet I have not heard of any damage. On Tuesday night it again commenced raining, and continued for about sixteen hours. It was a perfect deluge. Melbourne is built upon very undulating ground, but the valleys meet about the centre of the town, and Elizabeth-street, running north and south, is the lowest in the city. This street was converted into a rapid stream, which could not be crossed without danger. I never saw even this street so flooded. The channels or gutters are all open, pitched or paved with stone, the roadway being metalled. Where streets cross each other the channel is continued. In these channels the water was so deep and rapid as to alarm the omnibus horses, and some lost their footing and fell; one was within an ace of drowning. Many of the shops were flooded. Yet rain was much wanted, and this fall will do much good by giving the parched gardens a new lease and filling the water tanks. I may mention here that we are well supplied with American ice at 4d. ₰ lb., delivered in all the suburbs around Melbourne.

It seems to me that the present state of the trade of this Colony justifies a few words of caution to the shippers of goods to this market. During the latter part of 1855, and early part of 1856, the markets were steadily recovering from the previous glut and extreme depression. The speculative consignors almost ceased to export to Melbourne, and the regular importers were left to the operation of their own prudent calculations. The import trade genera ly became remunerative. Accumulation made itself manifest in various ways, as shown in my last letter, and especially by an increase of about 25 ₰ cent. in the private deposits of the banks. The large amount of mere money capital seeking investment lowered the rate of interest, or (and this is only another form of the same statement) raised the price of securities. Thus, without any material advance in rents, except for certain classes of houses in certain favorite situations, the price of house property has risen. Government 5-₰-cent. Debentures have also risen to £101. In short, we have had for some time very great commercial prosperity, and that prosperity continues. But there are certain clear indications that that prosperity is at last threatened, and therefore it is that I use the words of caution and warning. Recent accounts from England show that there is a growing disposition to ship to this market. Imports for some months past have been steadily increasing, and, although the quarterly imports and exports still show a healthy stats of trade, the merchants evince a justifiable uneasiness at the increase which their advices lead them to expect.

The quantity of Gold shipped, to this date, is 370,571 ounces; value, £1,482,284, or about £12,000,000 a year.

The imports at length exceed the exports:

Imports	£1,718,725
Exports	1,617,842
Excess	£100,883

The Difficulty with New-Granada.

Correspondence of the Baltimore Sun.

WASHINGTON, Monday, April 20.

Some of the Northern papers seem to apprehend that a war with New-Granada will follow from the recent rebuff which our brace of agents received from that puny and motley Government. They even surmise, from the late naval orders for the reinforcement of the squadron on another coast of the Isthmus of Panama, that hostilities are impending. But this is not necessarily nor probably the case. The naval force was ordered for those points last Summer, by the late Administration, in consequence of the Panama riot and outrages which occurred on the 15th of the preceding April. The Pierce Administration determined not to withdraw that force until they should obtain security of some satisfactory kind for the future safety of all our interests on the Panama Isthmus. Indemnity for past outrages, and a guaranty against a repetition of them, was demanded, but has never been obtained to this day.

Of course the present administration can do no less than continue to maintain the same or a greater naval force off the ports of Panama and Aspinwall as a precautionary measure against further acts of violence. Were they to adopt the Palmerston policy so much lauded in some quarters—that is, to commence hostilities upon the first pretext for conflict and negotiate afterwards—they would declare war and seize upon and hold the Isthmus, which Mr. COBWINE, our Panama Palmerston, recommended. But precautionary measures will answer for the present.

Mr. MORSE'S demands were upon a scale so rapidly descending that they may have amounted to little or nothing before he left Bogota. As to the small sum he demanded as an ultimatum, the Panama Railroad Company (who have got their eyes open to the consequences of a war) would pay it to avoid any extreme measures, which would be destructive of their interests.

The Astor Will Once More.

A case involving some $75,000 was decided on Monday by Judge ROOSEVELT. The question was as to the delivery of a deed by JOHN JACOB ASTOR for the house in Broadway in which he died, as a matter of fact, and as a matter of law, as to the effect of the deed if delivered upon a previous devise in Mr. ASTOR'S will of the same lot and the three adjoining lots to his grand daughter, Mrs. BORKEL, and her three sisters. The Court held that the deed, although handed by Mr. ASTOR to his son, to be delivered by him to Mrs. B. on his death, was good as a conveyance; and that its effect, so far as Mrs. B. was concerned, was to sever the joint tenancy of the four sisters in the four lots, and to give the one in question separately to Mrs. B., while it left the other three to be held in common by the other three sisters, subject to the limitations contained in the will.

Sudden Deaths.

Mr. WILLIAM THORP, of Port Ewen, Ulster County, died suddenly on Monday. He was in the employ of the Pennsylvania Canal Company, and started on horseback on the morning of that day to go up along the line of the Canal, to all appearance in good health. In the evening, he remarked that he felt an unnatural sensation, and in fifteen minutes expired. Mr. THORP was formerly a resident of Rondout, and about 50 years of age.

Mr. H. C. ALLENNOSEH, of Clinton, Dutchess County, died very suddenly on Friday last. He was engaged in putting on a load, when he remarked to the man who was assisting him, "I have overdone myself," and immediately expired.

☞ Inasmuch as our City Fathers and our Corporation Counsel agree that the new Charter has no binding force upon us, it is quite possible that they may hold the same doctrine concerning the Police act. Hence we may not have seen the last of the old Board of Police Commissioners. We could not learn that they did anything of importance yesterday, however.

☞ Thirty-one lots of the Jones' Woods property were sold at auction yesterday. They fetched $31,880—or some $1,030 per lot.

AUCTION SALES.

E. & F. H. SCHENCK, Auctioneers.

MIRRORS, MIRRORS, MIRRORS.

C. K. COVERT'S second annual sale at auction of superb French plate mirrors, consisting of his entire stock of PIER, MANTELS, SIDEWALL AND OVALS, which from its great extent and variety of styles, and the superior workmanship throughout, will surpass any sale of the kind that has ever taken place in this City, will take place on WEDNESDAY, 22d inst., at 3 P. M., at his warerooms, No. 924 Broadway, between 21st and 22d sts. This stock is unqualifiedly the greatest in extent, the most varied in style, and the best as to workmanship, of any stock now on exhibition in this City. The sale is positive, and there will be no limitation. To those intending to furnish this Spring, this sale offers inducements seldom met with, and we invite a general and careful examination of our stock, when every information as to sizes, &c., &c., will be cheerfully given. Seats, &c., &c., will be provided for the ladies. Stock now on exhibition, day and evening, until 10 P. M., and catalogues now ready.

AUCTION NOTICE.

UNITED STATES MARSHAL'S SALE.

SAMUEL OSGOOD & CO., Auctioneers, store 81 Nassau-st.,

Will sell at the Merchants' Exchange, THIS DAY, (Wednesday,) at 12 o'clock M., the brig Kate Foster, with her tackle and furniture, now lying at Pier No. 50 East River. By order of ISAIAH RYNDERS, United States Marshal.

ALBERT H. NICOLAY, Auctioneer.

FOR A PERMANENT INVESTMENT,

$40,000 EIGHT PER CENT. CITY AND COUNTY BONDS AT AUCTION.—ALBERT H NICOLAY will sell on THURSDAY, April 23, at 12½ o'clock, at the Merchants' Exchange:

$20,000 HANCOCK COUNTY (Illinois) 8 PER CENT. BONDS, dated July 1, 1856, and redeemable at the American Exchange Bank in New-York, July 1, 1876; Interest Coupons payable annually, on the 1st day of July, $1,000 each.

$10,000 WARSAW CITY (Illinois) 8 PER CENT. BONDS, dated May 1, 1856, and due at the American Exchange Bank, in New-York, May 31, 1878; Interest Coupons payable January and July 1, $1,000 each.

The above bonds were issued in conformity with an act of the State Legislature, authorizing the issue of bonds to aid in the construction of the Warsaw and Rockford Railroad. The amount of taxable property in the county, for the year 1856, was $5,308,940; taxes, $73,508; population about 25,000; area in acres, 432,640. The authorized issue by the county is $10,000. The amount of taxable property in the city is $1,906,000; taxes, $3,050; population, 3,400. The authorized issue by the city is $50,000, and no more can be issued by either the city or county without an act by the Legislature, and sanctioned by the people, so that every precaution has been taken to make these Bonds unquestionable in point of security, and they cannot be repudiated under any circumstances. Hancock county is one of the most prosperous in the State, and it is expected that fifty miles of the above railroad, from Warsaw to Quawka Junction, will be finished and in full operation in about sixty days.

The sale is to be made for account of the Warsaw and Rockford Railroad contractors, who received these bonds at par, and must realize to meet their obligations. The bonds will be sold without reserve. For a copy of the act under which these bonds were issued, and full particulars, apply to ALBERT H. NICOLAY,

Stock Auctioneer and Banker, No. 4 Broad-st.

P. S.—I have fully examined the strength of these securities, and I can recommend them to my friends and the public with the utmost confidence, believing that they will compare with anything in the market, and for a permanent investment no safer bonds can be found.

ALBERT H. NICOLAY.

HENRY H. LEEDS & CO. WILL SELL BY AUCTION on WEDNESDAY, April 22, at 12 o'clock at the Merchants' Exchange, important sale of an elegant country seat and building sites on Staten Island, being the western and central sections of the extensive and highly picturesque estate of "Hill Park," on Staten Island, 4½ miles from Vanderbilt's Landing, on the Richmond Plank Road, and near the New Drop Station, on the now constructing Staten Island Railroad. The estate is situated on the rear slope of hills extending from Todd's Hill. The portion offered at present comprises 103 acres, and includes the first-class country residence of "Hill Park House," with about 7 acres of ground laid out at great expense, in the most superb style of English landscape gardening, and containing a beautiful lake stocked with gold-fish. The house is newly built of the best material, by days' work, and forms, with offices and outbuildings, a complete residence of a large and wealthy family. The remaining land has been laid out in the style of an English park, in which two public parks, of about 6 and 2 acres respectively, have been set aside for use of the residents on the estate, and the surrounding space has been laid out and fenced in for 16 building sites, containing none but useful and appropriate land, and made accessible by wide and handsome park roads. For further particulars and maps, and, also, for free omnibus tickets to view the estate, apply at our office, No. 23 Nassau-st.

A. J. BLEECKER, Auctioneer.

WEST TWENTY-FIFTH-STREET—POSITIVE SALE OF A FULL SIZE FIRST-CLASS HOUSE ON WEST 25TH-ST., ANTHONY J. BLEECKER & CO. will sell at public auction, at the Merchants' Exchange, on MONDAY, April 27, at 12 o'clock, noon, the very superior new house, No. 51 West 25th-st., between the 6th-av. and Broadway, in the immediate vicinity of Trinity Chapel, lot 25 feet wide by half of the block. house 25 by 60 feet, four stories high, exclusive of basement and under-cellar. The parlors are finished in the most elegant manner, with costly statuary, marble mantels, fine plate glass, expensive cornices and arched doors; and the whole building is in keeping with the parlors, and replete with everything that the taste and experience of the builder (Mr. R. H. Coburn) could suggest. May be seen at any time during the day.

Two-thirds of the purchase money may remain on bond and mortgage. Title perfect, having been examined down to a very recent date.

WILLIAM T. BOYD, Auctioneer.
